"I will never allow anyone to tarnish my reputation with impunity."

At just about the same time, the prime minister's office released copies of two brief letters exchanged by Mr. Pearson and Mr. Dupuis.

The minister's letter to Mr. Pearson read, in full:

"Following my interview with you in your office last Wednesday in Ottawa, and for personal reasons I gave you, I ask you to accept at once my resignation as minister without portfolio."

Mr. Pearson's reply:

"I have received your letter of Jan. 22. I understand the personal reasons which caused you to tender your resignation and I wish to thank you for your services while you have been a member of the government."

The suggestion in the letters that the resignation came on Mr. Dupuis' initiative was at variance with the statements by both men.

A surprise development last Friday night was the return of Mr. Pearson from Toronto where he had filled a night speaking engagement and had planned to spend most of the weekend.

There was no immediate explanation for his unexpected return, but observers immediately speculated that it was connected with the resignation.

A spokesman said Mr. Pearson had scheduled several "private meetings" here during the weekend but no formal cabinet session was planned.

Mr. Dupuis, who retains his commons seat, represents the St. Jean - Iberville - Napierville, joined the cabinet as part of a small shuffle just under a year ago. He was its youngest member.

WON'T COMMENT ON CABINET MEMBER'S RESIGNATION — Prime Minister Pearson, emerging from a cabinet meeting in Ottawa, is pressed by reporters for comment on the resignation of Yvon Dupuis, minister without portfolio. Mr. Pearson would not comment on the resignation which was announced earlier in the day by the prime minister's press secretary. (CP Wirephoto)

'No Alarm Felt' But President's Night 'Restless'

Is Taken to Hospital In Ambulance Saturday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson was taken by ambulance to Bethesda Naval Hospital early today suffering from what the White House called a respiratory infection and at 7:40 a.m. was described as sleeping intermittently.

Press Secretary George E. Reedy, meeting with reporters at the hospital, said Johnson had "wakened intermittently" in his 17th-floor room and had spent a "rather restless night."

Earlier, the press aide said there was "no alarm whatever" about the president's condition—described by his personal physician as "a common cold with trachial and bronchial irritation."

"His heart is completely normal," Reedy said in announcing the 56-year-old president, victim of a severe heart attack in 1955, had been admitted to the hospital about 2:55 a.m.

At a briefing for reporters at about 8 a.m. Reedy said the president was being given decongerin, a general purpose antibiotic, as well as salicylate—in effect, aspirin—and a cough suppressant called tessalon. In addition, he said a vaporizer was being used in Johnson's room.

Reedy said Dr. W. J. Gould, a prominent New York ear, nose and throat specialist, had arrived at the hospital and conferred immediately with Johnson's personal physician, Rear-Admiral George G. Burkley. Reedy said Gould did not examine the patient upon arrival because Johnson was sleeping.

The press secretary also reported that word of the president's condition had been relayed to the Maryland mountain retreat of Camp David where Mrs. Johnson and daughter Lynda Bird had planned to spend the weekend.

The press aide said Mrs. Johnson was asleep and in accordance with the president's wishes she was not awakened.

In response to a question, Reedy said no oxygen had been administered to Johnson.

He reported that Gould had seen Johnson on a number of occasions in recent months, because the presidential election campaign had placed a strain on Johnson's throat. He said Gould had coached Johnson on how to conserve his throat.

Johnson was inaugurated for a full four-year term Wednesday. It was a 17-hour day that began at about 7:40 a.m. and ended after midnight Wednesday night and after the president had attended and danced at all five balls held in his honor.

Vice - President Hubert H. Humphrey, who was inaugurated Wednesday and thereby filled the office that had been vacant for months, was notified of Johnson's ailment. He remained at his home in suburban Chevy Chase, Md., Reedy said.

In examining the president at the White House Friday night Burkley found temperature normal, his pulse 80 and his chest clear.

When Johnson entered the hospital, Reedy said at Bethesda, the president's temperature was 100. Johnson went to sleep within two hours after being admitted to hospital.

Liberals Demand Medicare

TORONTO (CP) — The Liberal party beat the New Democrats to the punch with a demand that the government institute a publicly operated medical care insurance scheme in Ontario.

A motion to this effect by James Trotter (L — Toronto Parkdale) fired the opening shot in an anticipated medical insurance battle that may soon occupy the third session of Ontario's 27th Parliament.

Mr. Trotter's plan would allow patients to be treated by doctors of their own choice.

The medical practitioners would be free to practise within or without the state - operated plan and would be paid on a fee-for-service basis.

The Liberal scheme differs from the Progressive Conservative government's plans to make voluntary, private-operated medical health insurance available to every Ontario resident.

At the last session of the legislature, a similar motion was put on the order paper by Stephen Lewis of the New Democrats. The motion was defeated after a short debate.

This year the Liberal motion has a greater significance, as Premier Robarts has committed his government to the introduction of medical health insurance legislation at the current session.

Mr. Trotter's resolution is among several which the Liberal opposition has placed on the order paper, hoping Premier Robarts will call the motions for debate. If Mr. Robarts so wishes, he may, let them die when the session ends.

Murray Gaunt (L — Huron-Bruce) asks that coverage under the Ontario Hospital Insurance Commission be extended to all aged and, infirm persons' no longer eligible to remain in hospitals.

Stan Farquhar (L — Algoma-Manitoulin) asks for the appointment of a committee of the legislature to study the report on all aspects of addiction.

Mr. Farquhar's riding includes Elliot Lake, where workers have been reported contaminated to some extent by radioactive wastes from uranium mines.

4-Letter Word Rivard's Choice For His 'Friends'

Crag-Faced Witness Testifies at Inquiry

MONTREAL (CP) — Squat, crag-faced Lucien Rivard, 49-year - old narcotics conspiracy suspect, had a four-letter word Friday for nearly all those said to have been trying to help him get out of Montreal's Bordeaux prison on bail.

The thin - lipped, terse - cut Rivard is the central and forbidding figure in the investigation into allegations of his wife affluence and influence - peddling in Ottawa to prevent his extradition to the U.S. to stand trial as a kingpin in a huge dope-smuggling conspiracy. He has been in Bordeaux for seven months.

In the last two weeks, several persons have testified at the Dorion inquiry that they tried to assist Rivard.

They have included Guy Mas-

Chrysler Workers Walk Out

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's third Big Three auto strike in seven weeks started Friday as 6,000 workers walked off the job at Chrysler Canada's Windsor, Ont., plant.

The United Auto Workers (UAW) had set a strike deadline at Chrysler for 2 p.m. Monday, but workers jumped the gun when word came that a week-old strike at Ford of Canada plants in Ontario ap-

Labor Congress, Social Workers Endorse Federal Pension Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress and the Canadian Association of Social Workers threw their support behind the Canada Pension Plan Friday, although both organizations asked that quick action be taken to fill some gaps that would still exist.

The association said about 25 per cent of the working population — those in marginal or sub - standard wages — will gain little from the proposed contributory retirement plan. The CLC said, among other things, that benefits from the plan will be too low, instead of paying 25 per cent of previous earnings, the plan should aim for 75 per cent.

The organizations appeared before the joint parliamentary committee studying the Canada Pension Plan. The committee has had three-day sessions for the best part of two weeks. It adjourned further hearings until Feb. 1.

The CLC said it supported the plan as a "significant gain for the working force of this country," but pointed to five areas in which improvements should be made.

It said the ratio of benefits to earnings should be higher; it opposed the establishment of a fund from the contributions as opposed to a straight pay-as-you-go system; it does not favor the "regressive" nature of the plan, conferring those with the greatest ability to pay; and the brief said the supplementary benefits are too low.

The CLC delegation also told the committee that the old age security payment of $75 a month should be made available at 65 instead of 70.

Both the congress and the association sought better arrangements for persons who might have difficulty understanding the scheme and may require an appeal.

The association said the government should guarantee free advice, information and counselling to persons requiring it. This would "ensure information of a high quality and . . . could prevent the victimizing of the insured by private operators who could exploit the absence of responsible information."

Chambers Want Revision

MONTREAL (CP) — The joint co-ordinating committee of the Quebec and Ontario chambers of commerce ended a one-day meeting Friday in agreement that the Canada Pension Plan and the Quebec Pension Plan need revision.

The committee, composed of the boards of directors of both chambers, said in a statement Friday that something that it believes both plans "should be modified to reflect the benefits from those who do not need them to those who are in need'.

Nothing Changed —Moran

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill's medical bulletin today said there was nothing to report about the 90-year-old statesman's condition.

The bulletin, issued at 11:45 a.m. (6:45 a.m. EST), said: "There is nothing .to report. There will be another bulletin tonight."

It was the shortest bulletin issued since news of Sir Winston's stroke was made public eight days ago, and was the 18th bulletin announced Lord Moran, Sir Winston's 82-year-old personal physician.

Sunday night's bulletin indicated a worsening of Churchill's condition. It said:

"Sir Winston has had a restful—day, but there has been some deterioration in his condition."

As Churchill slowly declined, his first grandson-in-law to take the Churchill name was born. Mrs. Minnie Churchill, 24, wife of Sir Winston's grandson and namesake, Winston Churchill, gave birth Friday night.

Medical men interpreted Friday as a 17-hour day for Churchill as a sign that Churchill's heart was failing. Previous bulletins had spoken of circulatory troubles.

A British Medical Association spokesman commented:

"Sir Winston is showing terrific tenacity and purpose in clinging to his life. The illness is progressing much more slowly than at first appeared probable."

Another physician said: "It seems that respiration and the action of the heart are weakening. Blood pressure will be lower and coma deepening."

Viet Nam Buddhists Sack U. S. Information Library

SAIGON (Reuters) — Buddhist leaders and students today launched a violent campaign against the United States and the government of Premier Tran Van Huong by sacking the U.S. Information Service Library in Hue and calling for fire suicides among the Buddhist faithful.

Student rioters burned 8,000 books in the library and also demanded the ouster of U.S. Ambassador Maxwell Taylor within 48 hours.

At the same time, the Buddhist hierarchy called for suicides by fire to save Buddhism from "the cruel policy" of Taylor and Huong.

The Buddhist statement accused Taylor and Huon of pursuing a policy for eliminating Buddhism and letting Buddhist leaders die.

Five leading monks were on the fourth day of a fast until death aimed at overthrowing the government.

"This savage repression and cruel terrorism which have been perpetrated in this country are being carried out against all the people and Buddhist followers," the statement said.

In the northern Buddhist stronghold of Hue 5,000 persons staged a three - hour parade shouting "down with Taylor" and "Taylor go home."

The U.S. Embassy said on the U.S. library. Afterward a small and apparently repentant crowd watched smoke pouring from the broken windows of the two-story building.

Friday a Saigon mob broke windows in the American library in the capital city after police chased them from the nearly U.S. Embassy with tear gas.

Dorion Inquiry Cast Grows Daily

MONTREAL (CP)—The cast grows daily at the marathon inquiry by Chief Justice Frederic Dorion, 66, of Quebec Superior Court, into charges of attempted bribe offers and influence-peddling in high places on behalf of a criminal.

In 15 public hearings to date, and with no end in sight, names of the high and low have been dropped from the witness stand.

Here is a guide to the cast:

Lucien Rivard, 49, hard-eyed, self-styled hotelkeeper wanted by Canadian authorities who charge he was a big wheel in a huge international narcotics smuggling conspiracy; his efforts to avoid extradition are still before the courts here.

Pierre Lamontagne, 29, federal prosecutor here in narcotics cases and counsel for the U.S. in seeking Rivard's extradition.

Raymond Denis, 31, pale, dark-haired lawyer and former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay accused by Mr. Lamontagne of offering him $20,000 to agree to Rivard's release on bail.

Guy Lord, 25, handsome former executive assistant to Justice Minister Favreau said by Mr. Lamontagne to have tried to exert political pressure for Rivard's release.

Andre Letendre, 35, present executive assistant to Mr. Favreau, also alleged to have tried to coerce Lamontagne.

Guy Rouleau, 41, Liberal MP for Montreal Dollard who resigned as parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson when the allegations were made public, now said by Rivard to have been asked to help liberate a man convicted of attempted murder, Bob Tremblay.

Justice Minister Favreau to whose handling of reports of police investigations into the Rivard case is one of the commission's required points of inquiry.

Mrs. Marie Rivard, 32, Titian-haired wife of Lucien who said she raised $60,000 for bail within a week of her husband's June 3 arrest.

Eddy Lechasseur, 33, self-styled importer, professor of a criminal record and friend of the Rivards facing fraud and other charges here.

Robert Emilien Gignac, 35, cadaverous businessman and friend of the Rivards charged with capital murder in a gang-land slaying who said he introduced Mrs. Rivard and Guy Masson.

Guy Masson, 35, tubby, bald-ing former partner of Gignac and professed federal Liberal organization committeeman who said he told Denis the $60,000 would be available for Liberal election funds if Rivard stayed in Canada.

Senator Louis P. Gelinas, 62, Liberal party treasurer in Quebec who said he doesn't know Masson or Denis and that he cut off an unknown caller who wanted to talk to him about a deportation.

Raymond Rouleau, brother of MP Guy Rouleau, said by Rivard to have accompanied him to Ottawa, to enlist Guy Rouleau's aid in the Bob Tremblay case.

Orkie (Dave) Gagnon, said by Mrs. Rivard to be source of $20,000 of the $60,000 whose reported death last December now is being investigated by the commission.

Bill Lamy, a grocer, said by Mrs. Rivard to have put up $17,000, and Roger Aubin, suburban lumberyard, said to have contributed $15,000, who failed to put in an appearance to testify and are being sought.

Wilson May Feel Like Boxer Belted by Referee

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson may feel a bit like the boxer who, longing for the bell to end a rough round, is suddenly belted by the referee.

The count-down on the Labor prime minister's promised "100 days of dynamic action" ends today with Wilson's prestige shaken by the stunning defeat of his foreign secretary, Patrick Gordon Walker, in a by-election Thursday.

Tory newspapers are having rich a ration showing Wilson in Napoleonic garb booking passage to St. Helena.

The sensational setback tends to overcloud progress made by the government in such things as social legislation, incomes policy and stabilization of the pound sterling in difficult conditions.

Thursday's two byelections, the first test at the polls since Labor ousted the Conservatives in the Oct. 15 general election, saw a greater swing away from the socialists than friend or foe anticipated.

The anti-government swing at Leyton, the London constituency where Gordon Walker fell, was 8.6 per cent while at Nuneaton, Warwickshire, where Technology Minister Frank Cousins was elected, it fell with the disastrous end of Wilson's "100 days." One can amounted to 4.9 per cent.

The average of the figures in these two supposedly "safe" Labor seats if repeated across the country in a general election, would mean a Tory victory by more than 200 seats.

The results are embarrassing because the victim was the foreign secretary who now has been replaced by little - known

The 48-year-old Wilson has been extremely active ever since being called by the Queen to take office Oct. 16. He is credited with cricketing Britain's much-valued "special relationship" with the United States by his prompt visit to Washington when he followed with a visit to Prime Minister Pearson in Ottawa.

Government Move Defended By Broadcasters' President

The president of the Central Canada Broadcasters Association Friday defended the Ontario government's distribution of prosecuted portions of the speech from the throne to Ontario radio stations.

Frank Murray, manager of radio station CJBQ here and president of the association, said in a statement that newspapers receive advance copies of government speeches and now broadcasters are receiving them on tape in accord with modern techniques of radio reporting.

Ontario government press officers mailed five brief extracts from Wednesday's speech from the throne to 65 private broadcasting stations in Ontario.

Premier Robarts explained in the House Thursday night that the opening of the legislature was delayed 15 minutes to accommodate CBC television crews.

Text of the speech and tapes both were received 5 p.m. release by newspapers and radio stations.

Mr. Murray said in his statement:

"It is only to be expected that the daily newspapers and others should react unfavorably to the Ontario government's initiative in assisting private broadcasting stations to provide coverage of the speech from the throne at the opening of the Ontario Legislature on Wednesday.

'SAME PRIVILEGES'

"We welcome the co-operation being provided and reject comments concerning 'managed news.' Rather than managed news, broadcasters are receiving from the Ontario government the same privileges that have been extended to the newspapers for many years.

"The newspapers receive special copies, highlights and releases in print. Broadcasters now are receiving them on tape. This is in accord with the modern techniques of broadcast news reporting.

"The initiative and the interest that the Ontario government has shown in assisting the broadcast media to provide the people of Ontario with fast, factual coverage of government news is applauded."

County Councillors Wind up Session

Functions Of Authority Are Outlined

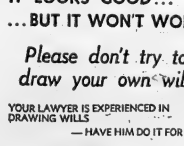
The inaugural meeting of The Belleville Retarded Children's Authority was held January 20, presided over by J. R. Blackburn, Chairman. Organization requirements were completed with the appointment of J. Leigh Anderson as secretary-treasurer and Bruce M. Kerr as Vice-Chairman of the Authority. Committee Chairman appointments were: Finance — Mr. Karr; Property — Thomas Stowell, and Educational Management — Mrs. Margaret Maddocks.

Chief Inspector L. A. Kells of the Belleville Public Schools outlined the duties and responsibilities of the Authority and emphasized the importance of the role played by the Retarded Children's Association as it will will continue to be fully engaged in the promotion of the welfare of retarded children in the area.

The function of the new Authority will be the administration and management of the school which since January 1st is under the direction and control of the Department of Education and financed by the Provincial Government and City of Belleville.

It was announced at the meeting that the Association would hold open house on the evening of February 2 with a cordial invitation to the general public to attend.

It is the intention of the Authority to improve and extend the level of services for retarded children resident in the City of Belleville as well as in the adjoining townships of Sidney, Thurlow and Ameliasburgh.



It is expected too that children in other nearby areas will soon have the benefit of the school facilities at 281 John St.

Anti-Semitic Literature Is Mailed Here

Yesterday Mr. Wesley Monk, 9 Leslie Drive, received literature from the Canadian Intelligence Service. This is nothing really new; several Belleville residents have received "information" from this service in the past. But this time it was mailed from -Belleville, no; Flesherton, Ont., where Ron Gostick operates the "Service". The address was written in ink.

The Canadian Intelligence Service issues material which would be characterized by most as "hate literature"; Gostick is violently anti-communist but couples this with anti-Semitic portation.

On Thursday, an election of officers for the presbyterial will be held.

Yukon Crew Sets New Flight Record

The crew of a 437 Transport Squadron Yukon, captained by Flight Lieutenant E. C. McLaughlin, set an unofficial record last Saturday when they completed a flight from Trenton to Marville, France, in seven hours and thirty-five minutes. The 3850-mile trip normally takes approximately ten hours in this aircraft type.

The Crew Navigator, Flight Lieutenant Noel de Tilley, explained that the quick passage was mainly due to the presence of a jet stream containing average tailwinds of 133 miles per hour.

The Yukon aircraft of 437 Squadron have been flying regularly between Trenton and Marville for almost 4 years now, but the shortest flight time achieved up to now had been just over 8 hours.

Police Resume Laying Careless Driving Charges

Belleville city police have commenced withdrawing careless driving cases for court hearings starting next week.

A full file of charges have been held by police since a November bench ruling invalidated the Highway Traffic Act section pertinent to the charge.

Late this week the ruling was successfully appealed and the charge restored by the Ontario Supreme Court.

Deputy police chief J. Clair Hayes says police will treat careless driving counts have been hanging fire since the controversial ruling. Those will now be brought before the courts.

Malefactors, however, did not escape police action during the surveillance. Charges are closely related as possible to infractions. It would normally be equated with careless driving were laid by traffic officers.

Keep Close Check on Positive Reactors to Tests

The regular monthly meeting of the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association was held recently, with the president, Mr. C. W. Fraser, presiding.

Two good reports were presented by Dr. J. E. McSherry, medical advisor. The tuberculin testing of students in Grades 9 and 12 of high schools in the county had recently been completed by Dr. McSherry and the details of the testing were presented in graphic form. He stated that the number tested was 1,402 students and 30 staff members, compared with 1,182 students and 37 staff in 1963. The number of positive re-actors was 32 students (2.28%) and 6 staff (20%) as against 28 students (2.35%) and 7 staff (18.9%) in 1963. There was an improved attendance rate this year, he noted, especially in the Trenton High School. New positive re-actors are later x-rayed as are positive re-actors from previous years in order to keep a close check on these students.

Dr. McSherry also gave a detailed report on the annual meeting of the Ontario Thoracic Society held in Toronto, which he had attended as a representative of the local Association. A part of the meeting consisted of a trip to the Johns-Manville plant at Port Union, where the delegates were shown how industry copes with the dust problems, and thus reduces the incidence of dust diseases of the lung. The remainder of the two day meeting covered panels, talks and discussions on such subjects as emphysema of the lung, difficulties of treating tuberculosis alcoholics, reactivation of inactive tuberculosis, BCG vaccination, tuberculin negative TB, sarcoidosis; the admission chest x-ray program, drug resistant bacteria, surgery in tuberculosis, etc.

During the business part of the meeting, it was suggested that perhaps the members should give some thought to concentrating some of their efforts toward associated diseases of the chest and see if there were new ways in which the association could be of service. Three of those present, Dr. J. R. McSherry, Dr. A. C. McKenzie and Mr. M. Atkinson, were appointed to make inquiries in this matter and report back to the members at the next regular meeting, when this matter will be discussed further.

The latest figures on the Christmas Seal Campaign still show a drop over the same period as last year. However, it was the hope of the members that improvement may be shown before the final reports are given, and that the 1964 campaign will at least equal the final figure of the previous year.

Mrs. Rebecca L. Sine, 102, Is Healthy, Keen of Mind

STIRLING (Staff) — Her bedroom has a pleasant view over this village's Memorial Park.

When she was born the events which caused historical upheavals remembered by such spots of green had not even been hatched.

She can count the cars on the street outside without the aid of glasses — though she uses glasses for reading her daily newspaper.

When she was born the continental telegraph was still a latter-day wonder. News from Europe still arrived weeks later aboard sail-assisted steam packets.

Today Mrs. Rebecca L. Sine is in "very good health — hard of hearing — but very keen in mind".

Today, she has more reason than enough for keen satisfaction — because of what happened 24 hours before.

On Friday, January 22, 1965 she celebrated her 102nd birthday.

The last of nine brothers and sisters, she was born the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sine in what was then known as the Sine Settlement and Rawdon township.

She can recall her father clearing the land — using a team of oxen to augment his own muscle power.

She can recall 30-mile trips to Belleville by horse and cart over rough dirt roads. Those calling at the farmstead to cut basswood logs for baskets; her uncle being chased by wolves.

Today, she is alert as ever, although bed-ridden for several years from a hip injury suffered in a fall on a street here. She takes the Ontario Intelligencer daily, and the local Stirling News-Argus each week.

"She can also say the alphabet backwards faster than anyone", says a close acquaintance.

When she was "about 20" she married W. T. Sine and they lived for many years on the Sine Settlement. She has two daughters, Mrs. William Wannamaker, Belleville, and Mrs. Percy Ford, Toronto, and a son, Karl, in Belleville.

Through the years 13 grandchildren, eight great grandchildren and a great, great grandchild have been added to her family.

Exactly two years ago more than 100 guests attended open house for her when she celebrated her centennial. Messages poured in, among them congratulations from her Queen, the Prime Minister and Ontario public men.

Yesterday, it was more relaxed. Clergy and townfolk were among the first to call and pay their respects earlier in the day. The occasion was a little quieter, but no less happy. Rebecca L. Sine is only starting on her second century.

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

"I don't like you in stripes."

Survey Shows Agreement Family Counselling Needed; Children's Aid Takes Lead

Doctors, lawyers, teachers and law enforcement officials here are of the opinion that there is a real need for the establishment of a family counselling service in the community.

This was outlined at a special meeting of the board of directors of the Children's Aid Society held here yesterday. A four-page report was submitted by the committee concerning a recent survey.

The special meeting was called at the request of Mrs. Douglas G. Burr, Rev. A. McDowell and Mr. E. McQuarrie, members of a committee appointed to the Board in November of last year, to make recommendations concerning the establishment of a counselling service in the area.

In a four page report the committee indicated that a survey of between thirty-five and forty local medical doctors in the field of general practice, lawyers known to be regularly consulted by persons with family problems, members of the clergy of both the Protestant and Roman Catholic faiths the principals or teachers of, guidance in the local secondary schools, the heads of the personnel departments of the city's major industries, the local Judge and Magistrate, the Chief Constable, the Crown Attorney, the manager of the local branch of the National Employment Service, the City Welfare Administrator and others, nearly all favored the establishment of such a service. The survey was conducted between December 28, 1964 and January 8, 1965. With the exception of two members of the Protestant clergy, who expressed some reservation, all persons interviewed were of the opinion that there was real need for the establishment of a family counselling service in the community.

TWO RESERVATIONS

Both of the clergymen expressing reservation endorsed the need and the principle but, without full information available, expressed concern as to the auspices under which it might be operated.

It was estimated by the five members of the medical profession interviewed that they saw between 250 and 300 such persons and families annually who could benefit by such a service. The six members of the legal profession contacted estimated they saw another 150 to 200. The Chief Constable stated roughly two hundred per year, although not all suitable for referral". The Crown Attorney estimated 50 to 100 a year. The Magistrate referred to the Court records as an index of the need. The personnel directors of the larger industries, department of government and commissions though naturally reluctant to state statistics, gave complete endorsement to the proposal. Each of the other persons contacted added to the list.

After lengthy discussion, during which mention was made of Alderman Ross David that the survey of Belleville's social service resources conducted under the auspices of the Canadian Welfare Council in the summer of 1964 and published in November, showed the need for some form of marriage and family counselling service in the community, the board moved to adoption of the report.

ADOPT MOTIONS

Several motions were adopted. These motions were, "that the Society support the principle of the proposed establishment of a family counselling service to be available to all persons resident within the city of Belleville and the County of Hastings"; that the Society believe to sponsor the service by making available such essentials as administrative supervision and physical accommodation, clerical aids, etc., and that it be made known to the community at large from the very beginning, that the Society though pleased to sponsor the service, would welcome the opportunity to relinquish control to an independent authority should it at any time become apparent that the best interests of the community will be further-ed by so doing"; that the county of Hastings, through its' county council, be given an opportunity to participate in the project "from the very beginning."

The meeting decided that the service should be operated independent of any or all municipal bodies, and should be founded, should operate on funds received by way of donations from private citizens and contributions made through the United Appeal, municipal grants and any fees charged for services rendered.

A committee of the Board, including municipal representatives, will be appointed to administer and to continue to explore and become familiar with family counselling in all its aspects, including the charging of fees.

At the close of the meeting it was announced by the society's president, Dr. S. C. Rose that the Rev. G. Gaughan, Director of the Peterborough Family Counselling Service, would be the guest speaker at the Society's annual general dinner meeting in March.

Hastings Council Informed Tourist Trade Is Becoming County's Largest Industry

Tourism, agriculture and reforestation were the topics of discussion at the Friday morning session of Hastings county council.

The value of the tourist industry to the county was stressed by Jasper Holt, chairman of the Highlands of Hastings tourist association. He told council that tourists left close to five million dollars in the county each year.

He said the tourist industry was fast becoming the most important industry in the county.

But he said that efforts should be made to encourage more Canadians to travel in Canada. If two dozen tourists could be attracted to the county each day, the economic result would be the same as a million dollar industry.

One way to publicize the county would be to have manufacturers put on cards with a "Made in Hastings" label, according to Mr. Holt.

AGRICULTURAL NEEDS

Douglas Tipper, county agricultural representative listed the objectives, principals and goals of the department of agriculture extension branch at Stirling.

Objectives for agriculture were to develop levels comparative to other types of business, according to investments and abilities; maintenance of social standards and home life to place the farm on the same level of attractiveness as other vocations and, third, the highest possible level of agricultural education so that the farmer can use more readily use the technology available to him.

In reference to education, Mr. Tipper suggested that a more concerted drive in agriculture be provided in at least one county high school.

This school might better fit some of our young people for further work in higher agricultural school or colleges.

Some of the extension work he outlined included co-ordination of many farm organizations into groups; the increase of grain corn and grain acreage to double that of today; a higher percentage of rural young people in 4-H club work, and bettering dairy, cattle production and improvement of marketing practices.

CO OP SOUGHT

Last year's Agricultural and Reforestation Committee chairman told of a meeting earlier this month at Coe Hill held with the view of setting up a farmers' co-operative.

More than 90 persons attended the meeting with 25 of those present expressing interest in forming a potato growing co-operative.

Last year's warden Thomas Burnside, complimented the group and said their interest could be translated into concrete action.

PINE DISEASED

Reeve S.J. Carr of Monteagle said something should be done with the Hastings county reforestation plantation at Bird's Creek.

He said disease was creeping into the acreage of white pine and was hampering the efforts of the department of lands and forests to promote healthy plantations. Boll weevil and blister rust were the two diseases mentioned.

The county has about 200 of red and white pine reforestation at Bird's Creek, although the disease mentioned affected only the white pine, representing a comparatively small part of the total acreage.

Council referred the matter to the agricultural and reforestation committee with direction to decide whether the white pine should be cut out.

Assistant Agricultural representative Lyall McLachlan told council that his department sponsored several forestry clubs while also this year there was a conservation club.

During the morning session, council took a second look at a Lanark county resolution on which members decided earlier to take no action.

The resolution asked that provincial subsidy be made applicable in such cases for Children's Aid Society wards between 18 and 21 years who were going on to higher education.

On the recommendation of Bancroft Deputy Reeve Mrs. Audrey Sexsmith, the resolution was re-introduced and after a few moments discussion was concurred in.

Under present regulations societies may apply to continue support for such wards but no provincial subsidy is paid.

Like Change In Name of County Home

Residents of the former Hastings County Home (now known as Hastings Manor), appreciate the name-change made by council in December.

At the 1965 inaugural session of council this week, the manor superintendent, Kenneth Yorke, told members that a quite a few of the residents had expressed pleasure at the name change.

But regardless of the name, Hastings County Home or Hastings Manor, the residence still is a mail under a multitude of names. These range all the way from Sunset Lodge to Twilight Haven.

"But people at the post office realize the intended destination and so far we've had no problems."

CADETS RESIGN

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The U.S. Air Force Academy announced Friday night that 25 cadets have submitted resignations in an investigation of cheating on classroom examinations. The resignations brought to 29 the number of cadets who have voluntarily withdrawn from the academy since the investigation began.

STUDEBAKER ANNOUNCEMENT

G. Thom Leslie

Mr. W. C. (Will) Blake, General Regional Manager, Studebaker of Canada, Limited, announces the appointment of G. Thom Leslie as "District Sales Manager for Eastern Ontario.

A native of Belleville, Mr. Leslie has had extensive experience in the automotive business both retail and wholesale and now makes his home in Unionville.

OPP Corporal Promoted, Transferred

The duty's reward caught up last night with the policeman known simply as "Gord" to hundreds of citizens in four Eastern Ontario counties.

An officer who has policed both its northern and southern townships on many assignments, Ontario Provincial Police corporal Gordon Stout is now a sergeant — and has been transferred to a command post in charge of the force's Lindsay detachment.

A native of the Kingston area, Gord Stout carved himself a wartime career in the RAF and RCAF.

For years he policed a wide area out of the force's Northbrook detachment — the days when an officer worked single-handed, seven days a week, 24 hours a day if need be.

Just 10 years ago he was posted to the Belleville detachment and became corporal.

In that posting he ranged through all branches of police work — from traffic to special assignments around the province.

In the interim he also made himself a host of friends.

Sergeant Stout is married and he and his wife Jean have three children; 10, eight years and one-month old.

Given 7 Years On Rape Charge

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Ronald James Campbell, 31, of Windsor was sentenced Friday to seven years in penitentiary after he was found guilty by an Ontario Supreme Court jury on a charge of raping a 45-year-old woman.

A neighbor said she saw Campbell beat the woman unconscious Sept. 30 and then drag her to the rear of a house.

Will Present Budget Early In February

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts told the Ontario legislature Friday the provincial budget for the 1965-66 fiscal year will be presented in early February.

The premier said he would like to see debate on the speech from the throne finished before calling at the farmstead to cut basswood logs for baskets; her uncle being chased by wolves.

Today, she is alert as ever, although bed-ridden for several years from a hip injury suffered in a fall on a street here. She takes the Ontario Intelligencer daily, and the local Stirling News-Argus each week.

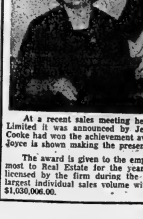
Government To Pay Costs of 3 R.C. Schools

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government will assume the cost of operating three private training schools for juvenile offenders in the province at an additional cost of $100,000 a year, Allan Grossman, minister of reform institutions, announced Friday.



The Roman Catholic training schools previously had received government grants of $4.25 a day for each youngster in care. Roman Catholic religious orders operate boys' training schools in Alfred, 40 miles east of Ottawa, and Uxbridge and a girls' school in Downsview. Uxbridge is near Toronto and Downsview is a Toronto suburb.

The department of reform institutions operates eight training schools in the province.

Mr. Grossman said the private schools are faced with an increased number of young people in care because of a rising juvenile population. The cost of operating services made it difficult to maintain high standards of treatment.

By taking over the operating costs, the government will spend a total of $1,110,000 on the three private schools, Mr. Grossman said. However, the religious orders would lose none of their autonomy.

Receives Award For Million Dollar Sales in Real Estate

At a recent sales meeting held by Gerald Joyce Realty Limited it was announced by Jerry Joyce that Marguerite Cooke had won the achievement award for the year 1964. Mr. Joyce is shown making the presentation.

The award is given to the employee who has contributed most to Real Estate for the year. Out of 13 sales persons licensed by the firm during the year, Mrs. Cooke had the largest individual sales volume with her total sales reaching $1,038,006.00.

Super-Highway Problem

Ever travelled Highway 403 or Highway 407? No. Do not worry you have lots of company. These roads are just lines on the traffic engineers' design boards, two additional super-highways intended to prevent Toronto from strangling in its own affluence.

Some Toronto authorities dislike the proposal. They argue that it would be much preferrable to spend the money on the extension of the city's "rapid transit," (that is public transportation), system.

In this they are almost certainly right, but regardless of what is done in the Toronto area it seems certain we are destined to see the Ontario countryside criss-crossed by a regular network of super-highways.

If these are to serve the purpose for which they are intended, they will have to include the "limited access" feature which is part of the design on the existing super-highways, the Queen Elizabeth Way, Highway 400 from Toronto north to Barrie and Highway 401 — oops, pardon us, the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway.

One difficulty with this feature is the continual demand for the addition of more interchanges or the construction of overpasses. Here at Belleville we have seen an interchange and an overpass built within hailing distance of the city since the MCF — all right, then 401 — first rolled past our doorstep. The interchange handles traffic on the Wallbridge Road, the overpass is at Sidney Street. From Kingston comes word that the Ontario Department of Highways has decided to proceed immediately with an overpass on the Joyceville Road east of Kingston.

These interchanges and overpasses, particularly the former, cost a lot of money. Many of them are the unavoidable result of growth. But the need for some of them springs from a basic mistake in the location of the superhighways now existing — they have been built too close to large centres.

It is easy to understand why this was done. In the first place, most of our communities originated on trails or stage-coach routes which took the easiest and most direct path, terrain permitting, from one large centre to another. Thus to get from Toronto to Montreal by the shortest route, the road must pass near Oshawa, Belleville- Kingston, Brockville and Cornwall. Secondly, even where the most direct route would not closely follow existing highways, centres, on the old route would raise a howl if the new road was not close to them.

The difficulty is that this results in the super-highways being heavily used by local traffic, which perhaps is not so undesirable, and in the limited-access highway cutting across a number of heavily used other roads which produces a heavy demand for interchanges and overpasses.

If these limited access highways did not pass close to any large communities, we would be justified in limited overpasses to one every three miles or so. At the most, this would add only six miles to a trip on these secondary roads, just a few minutes, driving at prevailing highway speeds.

It may be necessary for future super-highways to take routes as far away as possible from larger centres, instead of as close as possible to them. Even with Canada's vast spaces, this will still bring the highways within twenty miles or so of most of the centres whose residents might want to use them. The money saved on overpasses could be used to better advantage in improving secondary roads.

To Your Good Health — Craved Sweets for 80 Years Too Late to Change Habit

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother is a diabetic. When I am at work during the day she looks all over the house to find sweets. I blow a fuse when she has eaten candy, cake or ice cream.

She has had infections and operations on both feet, and then I have to stay home until she gets her diabetes under control. What can I do for her craving for sweets? She is 80 years old. — M. R.

At this stage, you can't do much about her craving for sweets. She's been acquiring the taste for almost 80 years, and a habit can't then be changed quickly.

Other than resigning yourself to the situation, my suggestion is: Don't have her come in the house. Keep sugar, candy, cake or other sweets in a locked cupboard.

Provide a moderate amount of soft drinks, cookies or other goodies which are prepared with artificial sweeteners.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about a vaccination for limited foreign travel, to prevent intestinal disturbances? Mrs. O.

It is the typhoid-paratyphoid vaccination, and very frequently used — although perhaps not often enough. The reason for the typhoid is obvious enough; the paratyphoid prevents a good deal of intestinal upsets.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son has been having cloudy urine. What does this mean. — Mrs. C.

Cloudy urine, without any distress (burning or the like) is usually due to small crystals. They are too small to see, of course, except as the cloudiness. If, then, the urine is alkaline, these crystals are usually phosphates. Eating a good deal of fruit will cause this. Or if it is acid, the crystals usually are urates or oxalates.

Either way, it is an indication that the urine is rather concentrated, and perhaps more water or other liquids should be consumed. The crystals are normal enough, basically.

If the cloudiness is the result of pus (indicating an infection which should be attended to promptly) there would be such symptoms as a burning sensation, frequency for urination, and fever.

Or if the cloudiness is due to traces of blood, which also requires prompt and careful attention, the urine is a reddish, "smoky" color, and there usually will be distress on urination, too.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is ringworm a blood or a skin disease? What causes it? If a mother has several patches of it, will it affect an unborn child? — Mrs. M. H.

Ringworm is strictly a skin disease, caused by a fungus. It will not affect the unborn child. But the mother ought to get it cleared up so that she won't pass it along to the baby later.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been taking Vitamin C tablets daily for three months, to build up my resistance to colds. Are there any bad effects from this? — G. A. F.

No, because the body will easily dispose of any Vitamin C. beyond the amount you need.

Ottawa Offbeat
Diefenbaker Unhappy Victim Of Resignation Rumor Trap

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The political rumor-mongers are getting to Conservative Leader Diefenbaker.

In almost desperation, they've been attempting to do him to political death by the whisper and gossip of wishful thinking — and just possibly, in the prevailing circumstances, they might succeed.

The technique is as ancient as it is shabby.

You start the rumor — this time that Dief is thinking of, preparing to, being forced into resignation.

And no matter how many times he shoots down the kited story, it can never be completely destroyed.

For even as he denies it, unwittingly, helplessly, he gives it added circulation.

In the situation, the man any political leader caught in such a deliberately set trap — can do little.

If he fails to deny it, he still gives it further circulation, for then his reluctance to comment, his silence, is interpreted as a sort of back-handed confirmation that, indeed, he "may" be thinking of retiring.

For while others, including some English-speaking as well as most French-speaking Conservative MPs, have been clamoring to "dump Dief," the man himself has said nothing, repeat absolutely nothing, about retiring. In fact, time and time again, he has emphasized he is in the leadership for the long haul.

COFFEE CONFERENCE

The current retirement rumor initially was floated over the two nationally syndicated political columnists, neither of them of Conservative leanings, over the abashed Liberal, even a Pearson partisan, and the other a propagandist for one of the splinter groups.

The general belief is that the political journalists had had their baker retirement came to the surface as they stirred their morning coffee.

It's always possible that Diefenbaker may retire, for a number of different reasons, but as it is equally possible that Prime Minister Pearson might step down.

But at this particular time, and in these special circumstances there was nothing to indicate that retirement — for either leader — was closer now than it ever had been.

Both columnists finished their coffees and left, each hoping — in the parliamentary recess when ideas are in relatively short supply — that the other would use what then wasn't even a rumor.

But each did, and the gossip, building with each report and denial, went into increasing circulation.

Just before he left for his brief Caribbean sunning in Tobago, Dief, perplexed as to how properly to kill the rumor, was heard ing it off: "What, me retire? Don't be ridiculous."

But it didn't work.

Twice from Tobago, once by long distance phone, and again by cable, he denied it. Absolutely. Volubly. Indignantly.

OVERSIGHT

But the story, kicked around with quotes from both Liberal and Conservative "Organization Men," refused to die.

When Dief came home, it confronted him first at Montreal's Dorval Airport, then again at Ottawa's Uplands terminal.

He knew it was coming. Knew all too well that it had been a deliberately kited rumor, flown by his enemies to do him the damage precisely where they thought it would do the most party damage.

Who started that rumor," demanded the harassed Conservative Leader when reporters tossed it at him, again, on his Ottawa homecoming. "Was it you? Or you? You?" he cried, sweeping an accusing finger around a circle of faces.

It was none of them, and he probably knew it, although each, in following up the rumor, had helped give it further circulation.

So there it flies, high and out of range of effective denial. It can't be shot down — it will simply have to blow away.

It's a strange thing about Dief and the Parliamentary press. While the news reports and comment out of Ottawa, particularly on the CBC and the Toronto Star, sometimes seem to have a Finnish sleigh, while the Finns reported the Red Army had suffered heavy losses in fighting in Finland.

Strictly Personal
Children Have No Sense of Age

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One thing that adults tend to forget, if they ever know, is that children look upon grown-ups as an entirely different species. To a child under 10, adults were born grown-up and were never children themselves.

This is hard to believe, for children seem to accept the fact that their parents were once babies and grew up. But although the child may know this intellectually, some deep part of himself does not believe it.

And this is why children become so frightened and insecure when they witness their parents or other adults, behaving in an infantile fashion. It threatens the firm structure of their universe, and weakens their implicit confidence in the stability of the adult world.

A young child is periodically flooded by his sense of weakness and smallness and impulsiveness, by his feelings of aggression and hate. If the adults closest to him also display childish tendencies, then he becomes confused and worried, and may even try to regress to an earlier stage of childhood.

Why do children, on the whole, respond to teachers better than they do to parents? It is because the teacher, in her public role, seems assured and authoritative and wholly adult — while parents, in the privacy of the home, often indulge in infantile conduct.

It is easy to see that children love to use words of age, once they look beyond the confines of childhood. An adult of 20 is little different in these terms than an adult of 40. When one of my sons was five, he asked me if I had ever known Franklin Delano. My other son wanted to know if I had met the cavemen in my youth.

To them, their parents had lived forever, and always as grown-ups. I once knew a little girl who thought that children died and were reborn as adults. She had no conception of time or age.

Now, as children grow into an adult of 40. When one of my sons was five, he asked me if I had ever known Franklin Delano. My other son wanted to know if I had met the cavemen in my youth.

To them, their parents had lived forever, and always as grown-ups. I once knew a little girl who thought that children died and were reborn as adults. She had no conception of time or age.

Now, as children grow into adolescents today is that the lines of distinction have become blurred, and young people no longer know for sure what they can and cannot do. They think they are looking for more freedom, when they are really looking for more structure—but by then it is too late for the parents to provide what his year lacking for a dozen crucial years.

Single Program

London Free Press

Originally, public school graduation marked the end of formal education for the majority. This is no longer so. Few adolescents leave school today without some secondary school experience, and for those who do, life presents other problems.

A single program of education from kindergarten to university entrance, directed by a single authority, would bring education up to date with modern thinking.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Jan. 22rd, 1945

Associate Chief of the Dairy Products, Grading and Inspection Services of the Agriculture Department, said today that production of cheese scoring 94 points in Quebec and Ontario in the 1944 grading year "more than offset" the decline in the total of first grade cheese produced in these two provinces during the year. It was said "New Brunswick was the only province to show an increase in the percentage of first grade cheese over 1943."

In Quebec and Ontario, the main cheese-producing provinces, output of first grade cheese declined 1.34 percent and 0.29 percent respectively. However, output of 94 score cheese had increased 4.71 percent in Quebec and 0.70 percent in Ontario.

Mr. Paul Duranleau has returned home from Ottawa where he witnessed the opening of parliament ceremonies.

Mr. and Mrs. Hillis Fowle of Niagara Falls, are visiting the former's father, Mr. A. H. Fowle, Bellevue Apartments, Pattenson St.

Dr. Jack Marshall delivered an interesting address on the life of the Scottish poet, Robert Burns, at a meeting of the Y's Men's Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bryant, two of the oldest residents of their 62nd wedding anniversary on January 22. They were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Reed, in Foxboro, by the Rev. John Sills, on January 22nd, 1873. At present Mr. and Mrs. Bryant reside with their daughter, Mrs. Arthur Casey, in Thurlow Township. Another daughter, Mrs. W. Mrs. John Boldrick of Picton, formerly of Belleville, has left to visit her son, Mr. Sam Boldrick, in Denison, Texas.

The Rev. A. S. Kerr, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, went to Toronto this morning.

The Rev. A. R. Sanderson, pastor of Holloway Street Methodist Church, and the Rev. H. B. Kenny, pastor of the Methodist Church in Bowmanville, will exchange pulpits on Sunday next.

Lieut. Col. W. N. Ponton was a guest at the banquet tendered at the York Club, Toronto, to H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, Governor General of Canada, on the evening of January 22nd.

Angel Scouts Are Not Soft

Ottawa Journal

"Too many people associate Scouting with bad weather — 'mothers angel's' who go around in short pants looking for old ladies to help across the road," writes editor C. E. Levy in the first issue of "World Scouting," now published four times a year by the World Scout Bureau. It portray the figure of a young teenager on a winter camp in Northern Canada building shelters for earthquake refugees in Iran, sailing a one-man dinghy in Australian waters.

The magazine deserves success. The Scouting movement provides varied and challenging projects for youth all over the world. A Scout may indeed help old ladies across the street but no one dares sneer at a gentlemanly act and, thanks to Scouting, he is also apt to be self- reliant, physically tough and agood comrade. What a misconception it is to think angels are soft!

Khajuraho's Erotic Sculpture Truly Depicts All of Life

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

KHAJURAHO, India — Every Sunday morning, in the chill of the Indian pre-dawn, a DC-6 of the Indian Airlines Corporation departs New Delhi for the two-hour flight to the dirt airstrip at Panna, a small town southeast of Delhi and about 35 miles from Khajuraho.

The iron bird's arrival is the event of the week here. Barefoot farmers and robed ladies with rings through their noses and babies shawled to their backs are permitted to climb aboard in small groups, try out the seats, and marvel at this 20-year-old invention of modern science. The tourists, meanwhile, are piled aboard an ancient bus for comparison with which the DC-3 is as luxurious as the first class compartment of the Queen Mary jet in which we arrived at Delhi.

The bone-jarring, kidney-stone-dislodging ride to Khajuraho takes about an hour, to the deafening accompaniment of rattling windows and two horns — one inside for cars, and a klaxon outside the driver's window for shooing cows and buffalo off the road.

By this time the small group of passengers has become acquainted. There are an architect and his wife from Canada accompanied by their daughters ages 10 and 13; a widowed Belgian countess and her lady companion; a fat gray English woman and her thin gray English man friend; a jocular middle-aged couple from Honolulu; and the inevitable, ubiquitous camera - draped German and Japanese men, sans wives as usual.

PARSIMONIOUS HINDUS

Probably without exception, each passenger has been wondering what the other is doing here. Is it whether inspired by historical interest or just plain prurience, the Khajuraho is famed as the most extensive example of ancient erotic sculpture in the world. Or is it merely praised as profound and religious, and damned — even by some scholars — as just plain pornography?

The subject, we found, is irrelevant and academic. Khajuraho defies all such "dirty little stories," which constitute only a small percentage of its thousands of sculptures. It is a comprehensive and lucid collection of 10th and 11th Century Hindu-Aryan style temples, set in the rising eye a panorama of life and art 1,000 years ago that is without equal in all of vast India.

Once 85 great temples stood here, the splendor-gilded capital of a mighty Hindu-Jain dynasty that ruled all this part of India from about 900 to 1300 A.D. Only 22 remain 80 square miles, but the ravages of time have left only 22 temples. Only about a dozen are accessible to visitors.

Built exclusively of interlocking stones, some of the temples are more than 100 feet high, tier upon tier of scalloped towers curving domes terminating in graceful spires, their steeples encircled by crenated collars of stone. The insides and outsides of each are covered with thousands of miniature relief friezes and statues depicting, with breathtaking humanity and art, all of human life.

IS MUCH MORE

The Hindu system of worship envisions its temples as repositories of all facets of living, hence the scattered erotic "pairs. But there is much more.

Greek statuary was technically perfect, but cold lifeless. Hindu plastic art was much more concerned with conveying meaning, and the figures on and in these temples graphically represent a broad spectrum of emotion.

Stances of the figures are arched and relaxed, occasionally convoluted, as women sculpting ceremonial paint, to finger soles or removing thorns, dancing, scratching their backs, or forming intricate yogas.

Some are humorous, as the angry man striking with a stick a monkey who is disturbing him in an amorous embrace; his amusement, meanwhile, smiles in amusement.

The women are all voluptuous, full - bodied and wasp-waisted, according to the Indian ideal. They are seen writing love letters, or reading them, their faces marked with emotions of longing. Others admire themselves in convex mirrors, their faces abstracted with self-love, or twisted into sneers of vanity, nostrils flaring and eyebrows arching. In one panel, a woman playfully pulls at a man's beard in others they are tying on ornaments and washing their hair.

Many of the figures are lushly bare with the famous Elgin Marbles from the Parthenon in Athens, considered the glories and depradations of a conquering army.

ERIC GRAPHIC

As for the famous erotic carvings, they are indeed graphic. But few are in bad taste, and even those are not offensive on a historic definition of taste. Many of the key ones depict royalty, and are symbolic rather than pornographic. One shows a man standing on his head, said to be a representation of the yoga achievement of spiritual contentment as completely as possible. Some of the servants, incidentally, depict the ideal servant, and sometimes other emotions.

The Japanese and German gentlemen solemnly snapped their pictures, the Americans and the fat English lady and the architect's children seemed unconcerned at what they were seeing and the fat English lady even made the only pertinent comment on her friend: "Ghastly, isn't it?"

Is it? That would seem to depend on the eye of the beholder, as well as what the Hindu artists of a millenium ago had in mind.

The insides of the temples house impressive shrines with dense and exquisite Hindu deities, many of them ingeniously designed and illuminated to cast a supernatural glow.

But it is the very, very human sculptors of Khajuraho that will remain longest in the memory.

Question: Here is one of your male readers making an odd request: how to bake bananas? Years ago I was posted to the Orient and our Japanese cook used to serve us baked bananas for dessert. He claimed it is an amateur effort. Keep up your good work. How do I?

Answer: Since I think Baked Bananas are a real treat I'm delighted to give you this recipe.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Consomme with Lemon Bits
(see Thursday); Glazed
Baked Back Bacon; Bread and Butter Pickles; Creamed
Onions; Parkerville
Shredded Lettuce and Endive with French Dressing; Lemon Cake Pie; Tea.

BAKED BANANAS
(Serves 2 or 4)

4 medium-large underripe bananas (the skins should show some green), ¼ cup lemon juice, 1-3 cup water, 1-3 to ½ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon butter.

Peel bananas and cut in halves crosswise. Cut in halves again lengthwise. Thus you have eighths or quarters. Place on buttered shallow glass or metal dish (a pyrex pie plate is ideal), overlapping a little. Mix together all other ingredients and bring to boil. Taste if now to see if it is sweet enough for you. If not all a little more sugar. Pour over bananas and bake at 350 deg. Fahr for 25 to 30 minutes, turning bananas over once at half-time. The underside is rosy by this time. During last half of baking bananas become a rosy shade all over. Serve as dessert warm or cold, spooning some of the pan syrup over each serving. NOTE: As you know, baked bananas are often served with meat, fish or fowl entrees in the Orient.

QUESTION

I would like the recipe for Chinese Noodle Soup.

Mrs. W. E.

ANSWER

CHINESE NOODLE SOUP
(Tong Min)

3 beef bones or 1 lb. pork bones,
10 cups water,
1 onion,
6 dried or fresh shrimp,
2 teaspoons salt,
½ cup seaweed or spinach,
2 oz. fine noodles (Chinese if available),
2 teaspoons sesame seed oil or peanut oil,
2 teaspoons soy sauce,
2 slices, ham, cut julienne,
2 slices roast pork or beef, cut julienne,
3 scallions or green onions, chopped fine,
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped coarsely,
¼ teaspoon accent.

Wash the bones and combine in a saucepan with the water. Bring to a boil and skim the top. Add the onion, shrimp, salt, and seaweed or spinach. Cook over medium heat 1½ hours. Strain, cool and skim off fat. Reheat. Cook the noodles until tender. Drain well. Divide the noodles among 8 to 10 soup bowls. Sprinkle with a mixture of the oil and soy sauce. Pour soup over them and garnish with the ham, pork or beef, WOMEN'S INST. Dentks scallions, eggs and accent.

Plans Made For Annual VON Dinner

Final arrangements for the annual dinner meeting were made at the January meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses held at the Y.M.C.A. Mrs. J. E. Boyd the convener of tickets, informed those present that the tickets are printed and ready. Notice was received that Alderman H. J. Allen has been appointed a member of the V.O.N. committee for the ensuing year. Miss Doona Lash, regional director visited and supervised the branch for a week during the month of December.

NURSES' REPORT

Miss D. Connor, nurse in charge, made the members of the board familiar with the contents of the V.O.N. nurses' bag. Miss Connor's nursing report disclosed that December had been the busiest month of 1964 for the staff members. Home visits made numbered 615, giving nursing care to 140 patients. A total of 142 patients. Three half days were devoted to Douglas Atkin and Holy Rosary Convent's Schools.

V.O.N. is a member of the Belleville United Appeal.

PARKDALE L.M.F.

The Ladies' Missionary Fellowship of Parkdale Baptist Church held its first meeting of the new year at the home of Mrs. C. Breaton.

Mrs. Stone read an interesting letter from the Greenslade's, missionaries in Peru. There was also a note of thanks from the Peru Church on the Gaspe, for the Christmas gifts the ladies had sent.

The evening's business included the election of Mrs. Pauline Russell as the new treasurer, Mrs. Johnstone and Mrs. Ruth Johnstone and the ladies were asked to bring their used Christmas cards to the next meeting.

The devotional was given by Mrs. Donald.

The president, Mrs. Blake, closed in prayer and a time of fellowship, and refreshments followed.

ALBERT COLLEGE
(A Story of a Church School)

"The ideal of the church school is the Christian society." — Dr. W. E. L. Smith.

Grateful acknowledgement is made of the splendid informative aid which "Albert College, 1857-1957" offered in preparation for this story of a church school. Interested readers have expressed their desire to possess copies of this fine book by Dr. W. E. L. Smith, who is Professor of Church History at Queen's University.

Since the time when the Grove of Academus became Plato's home where pupils came to him to study and learn (in fact, the olive tree of that grove still stands in Athens today; a sole survivor of some 2,300 years ago!) the origin and stories of schools of learning never fail to excite and stimulate the mind and soul of man.

Like rings in a tree they indicate civilization's growth.

Society, we are told, preserves. It's long roots concealed in the past, it is said, sustains all that is moral and humane that have won. It gives continuity to a community.

A community such as ours of Belleville undergoes crises, hard times, joys and achievements as does a living being. The history of Albert," says Dr. Smith, "is the story of endeavor for the spiritual ideal and its history is intricately woven with the threads of faith into our community's fabric of history. I. is enriched, enhanced and given greater depth of meaning thereby.

Dr. Smith concludes:

"So accordingly, when Albert's material handicaps at times that only complete devotion to that ideal has brought it safely through . . . Albert College now has the buildings and equipment. It has established a good academic record. Its purpose is to maintain a community of spiritual quality and the accessibility of the school to those who need it.

"Albert College has lived by faith of those who looked past things that were seen to the things that are not seen, knowing that the things which are seen are temporal but the things which are not seen are eternal."

Long may Albert College prosper and continue, is the hope of us all. Much of a community's well-being depends on the solution of new life. New people, it is realized, always bear new gifts for society. A citizen," Hahdan Koht says, "always has the strength of youth in it . . ."

Thus in naming we use the pleasure through the kind permission of Mrs. Bert Simpson, principal of Albert College, to present the impressions of Peter Kennick, a Grade eleven student who is attending "Albert College Today":

Albert college is a world within a world.

This is illustrated many ways within its distinctive walls.

Here lives a student body of 181 students, natives of Canada, the United States, Rhodesia, Columbia, British Guiana and Denmark, of many different faiths. Their problems are solved by approximately 56 bells, daily telling them what to do and when to do it.

AVERAGE WEEK

The average week day begins raucously with radio and record players at 7:00 a.m. The fact that the majority of students do live in boarding houses and record experience the equal of which they are not likely to meet again, lead to problems later in life.

One of the main advantages of residence is that in many ways, one learns to live communally and cooperatively with others of one's own age group. This life is not a very easy one, due to the lack of privacy, but the students realize this, and do not normally impose on each other, thus making life easier.

All tidy their rooms and look after their own personal needs. The residences themselves are continually being renovated and kept in good repair to maintain a pleasant atmosphere.

After that to prepare externally for the day, the students go to the massive dining hall to eat a wholesome breakfast, thus nourishing their bodies physically.

At meals, proper table manners and courtesies are practiced, the boys rising out the girl's chair beside them, and rising whenever a lady comes late or to speak to them. This adds dignity to the tables and causes pleasant surprises at home in the vacation.

Kinette Club Views Films On Driving

TWEED — The regular monthly dinner meeting of Tweed and Kinette Club was held at Hotel Tweedsmuir on Monday evening. The meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Marlene Spencer and Mrs. Ruth Crawford was Sergeant-at-Arms.

The guest speaker, Chief of Police Paquette showed two films "A Day in Traffic Court" and "The Last Prom." Both films left members in deep thought about their driving habits.

Mrs. Shirley Smith thanked Mr. Paquette on behalf of the members. The reports were given from the committee members. The three-act play which the Kinettes hope to present was discussed and by the reports, rehearsals should be under way shortly.

Perhaps the most important part of the day follows. This is the chapel service which is the heart of the school. It starts the day off with a spiritual uplift which awakens the mind and prepares for the day's classes. The services are unique since teacher may lead student in prayer or vice-versa. This a sign of real unity within the school, being a large factor in good student-teacher relationships.

In classes, the standard educational courses are followed supplemented by religious knowledge. The classes in general are small in comparison to those of public high schools. This gives the opportunity for emphasis of specific points, and discussions and individual attention.

Lunch is served at noon, the students themselves acting as waiters. After afternoon classes complete the day's nine.

After school on certain days, intramurals, competitive sports take place as well as various club activities. These include communities, public appreciation, chess, bridge and others. Or there are opportunities to study. After supper is the main meal of the day, a compulsory hour study hall is attended by students, giving them time to do their homework under supervision. At least two more hours of study for extra study in one's own room after an evening lunch.

Albert College is one of Canada's few co-educational residential schools, and it is certainly the right way to run such an institution. The students learn to judge others not by race, color or creed, but by those internal characteristics which make up a good personality.

This is a wonderful foundation to have for life, and it is soundly laid in Albert College today.

UNIONDALE W.I.

January meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Faul, 8th concession of Sidney.

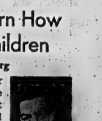
A letter from Janet Munroe was read giving the name of the next 4-H Club for girls, "What Shall I Wear," the leaders, Mrs. H. Grills and Mrs. H. Sine will attend the class on Feb. 2nd and 3rd at Stirling. "Creative cooking" for the extension service will be Jan. 28 at Scott's Church Hall.

Mrs. Alton Sine gave current events, the main event being the raising of the age of marriage licence $2.00, this being the only raise in history.

Mrs. Chambers Sine had the topic "Cancer Research" and gave a very thorough talk on seven rules to watch for cancer and in have a check up once a year. Men as well as women have the cancer germ and should follow the same rules.

"Cancer is not contagious" or root hereditary" as has been proven by research.

COBALT BOMB



Princess Margaret Hospital at Toronto has the heavy Cobalt bomb, the largest and strongest available, Mrs. D. Sine suggested a donation be made to the cancer fund and it was moved that a donation of $25.00 be given for this world wide fund. Mrs. Faul was thanked for her hospitality in opening her home for this meeting. Lunch was served and plans for the Jr. Farmer banquet were finished.

February will be an International Day program by Mrs. B. Bush and Mrs. E. Anderson, 5th con. of Sidney.

Lines on Life

All of Us Need to Learn How To Walk With Our Children

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Recently I asked a mother whether she also took castor oil every time she gave it to her children. She laughed at first, but soon came to understand what I meant by the phrase I had used to describe her family's religious life.

Unfortunately, her situation is not unique. She is part of a large company throughout the land who practice a kind of religion which is no religion at all. It is a "castor oil religion."

"Religion" comes from a word which means "to bind together." Too many parents think well of the religious ties, but neglect to include themselves in the knot.

Castor oil religion is practiced by parents who spoon out rituals and reverent habits to their children, but who themselves have little to do with religion.

They say, "It is good for the children," but I do not touch it myself!"

Children, of course, have microscopic eyes. They can detect our real feelings sooner than we realize. They find us out — as parents, as teachers, as friends. Tell them to behave in a moral way, you have marked out for them, and then break the laws you pursued them to obey, and soon you will be hearing, "But, Mommy, you do not do this. Why should I?"

Perhaps at the very core of parent-child relationships, above and beyond the theological and psychological explanations, the ethical questions are the most crucial.

You cannot impose double standards upon your children in matters that deeply touch their souls, and have them come out unscathed. You cannot inculcate habits of prayer in your children without praying with them.

The great, the deep, the abiding values of life are not much taught as they are caught. To have a friend one must be a friend. To have fine children, one must be a fine parent.

Perhaps instead of imposing we need some exposing. Better still, we need a double exposure — parents together with their children exposed to common concerns and shared values.

Abraham's idea of one God lives yet today, in the hearts of millions all over the world, because he transmitted his faith to his son Isaac.

"And they walked together."

We need, all of us need, to learn how to walk with our children. To talk with our children. Too often we are too busy walking away from them, or talking at them.

ST. THOMAS' AFTERNOON W.A.

The regular monthly meeting of the Afternoon Branch of St. Thomas' W.A. was held in the Parish House recently with a good attendance.

Correspondence including several thank you notes were read. Acknowledgment of the Christmas gift parcel to a clergyman and his family also the receipt of four bales of used clothing were received. Mrs. Bromfield, flower and card convener reported that a number of greeting cards and roses had been sent to older and sick members over the Christmas season. A few moments of silence was observed in memory of a member, Mrs. Dora Hutchinson, who passed away New Year's.

Annual reports were given by the various convenors showing a busy year completed. The Living Message secretary reported 34 new subscriptions. One gift subscription from a member is placed in the hospital. The Red Cross convener, Mrs. Goddard reported 42 articles knitted. Mrs. Goddard was honored by the Canadian Red Cross Society at their annual meeting for her many years of service. Mrs. E. E. Morton, Little Helpers secretary reported 139 children on the roll. Mrs. H. Smith gave hospital report and said 14 roses had been sent to out-of-town W.A. members. This department comes under social service and is a Diocesan project. Rainbird reported receipt of $63.35 for the Extra-Unit-a-day fund, the same being forwarded to the Diocesan treasurer. Social convener, Mrs. Alker has supplied the needs of the tea hour every meeting with assistance of the members.

The correspondence and public relations convener reported on letters sent and received. Correspondence in connection with the annual meetings held in St. Thomas' parish and attendance in Kingston in this regard were compiled.

Mrs. F. Leach, educational secretary presented the study book at the service meetings.

Mrs. F. Clarke, Dorcas secretary gave a detailed report of this department. It is always surprising to find so much accomplished by this small group of women. The members of the W.C.V. assisted greatly with beautifully sewn and knitted articles for hospital bales. The contents of this bale are all new material. A letter from the hospital in Pangfrutung showed how much this bale is appreciated.

A total of 215 calendars have been sold with 40 of these sold by the Evening W.A. Several of the members have visited the Hastings Manor.

Mrs. B. Feather, convener of nominations presented the slate of officers as follows: president — Mrs. H. Smith; 1st vice — Mrs. F. Leach; 2nd vice — Mrs. S. E. Morton; recording secretary — Mrs. B. Feather; treasurer — Mrs. C. Coleman; L.M. — Mrs. G. E. Beamish; Red Cross — Mrs. Goddard; flower fund — Mrs. F. Bromfield; Extra-C — Mrs. F. Rainbird; social — Mrs. A. Alker; correspondence — Mrs. A. S. McConnell; Dorcas — Mrs. F. Clarke, Mrs. G. E. Beamish, Mrs. A. Lesser; educational secretary — Mrs. F. Leach.

Following adjournment tea was served.

Ann Landers

Neurotic Relatives Can Make Well Persons Sick

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am about to marry into a family of pill-takers and heavy drinkers. Charley's mother is a neurotic who goes for tranquilizing pills as if they were lemon drops. The minute she is faced with an unpleasant situation she stops eating and dopes herself up. She's not responsible for what she says when she's on pills so everyone must overlook her mean tongue.

Her daughter does the same thing and she is only 20. Her two older sons are confirmed alcoholics who take pills right along with the booze.

ANN LANDERS

Charley is the only one in the family who is normal. He doesn't drink at all and I have to fight to get an aspirin down him when he has a headache.

I've discussed this problem with my doctor and he says such behavior is more environment than heredity—"usually"—which leaves me with questions in my mind.

Do you feel Charley and I could raise normal children despite his background? I need your help. — OUT-DOPED.

DEAR OUT — A person who married into an unstable family always runs a risk since we do inherit our nervous systems.

You don't say how old Charlie is but he seems to have done immeasurably better than the other members of his family. If you marry him I hope you will move to another city, as added insurance. Sometimes nutty relatives can make a well person sick.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm 53. My husband is 57. We've been married 10 years. This is a second marriage for both of us. I was a widow. Clancy divorced his wife because he found out she was a tramp.

Our marriage was wonderful until last year — when Clancy's former wife re-discovered him.

When Clancy was married to her he never had a home-cooked meal. The house was a mess, there were no clean sheets and no groceries (so he couldn't even fix his own meals.) He carried his laundry and dry cleaning to the corner. She was such a cold proposition he nicknamed her "Ice Cube."

For the past three weekends Clancy has taken her up north and I have sat home. She leaves gloves, scarves and earrings around so I will be sure to know she has been in the car.

I'm sick of this and have told him so. He says it's don't like it I can leave. This is my home, Ann. What shall I do? — V.C.

DEAR V.C. — The ice cube has melted and spring is here. When ex-mates re-discover each other the flame can get pretty high.

Tell Clancy he can move out and now, but insist that he send their support cheques in the mail. Chances are he'll suddenly remember why he divorced the doll.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We are five high school girls with a very serious problem. Last year there were five big dances but not one of us got asked to any of them, so we went stag. A whole string of fellows showed up, also stagging it.

They just stood around, holding up the walls, looking everybody over but not one of them asked a girl to dance. We had to dance with each other, which I hate.

Why do fellows come to a dance if they don't want to dance? How can we break the sound barrier and get these guys to shake a leg? Help! Help! — SENIORS NOW.

DEAR SENIORS — One reason boys don't ask girls to dance is because they don't know how to dance.

Why not your school needs is dancing instructions for both boys and girls. Ask your principal or dean if you can organize dance classes after school or on Friday evenings. Make posters and promote it big. Generate some excitement. When the fellows can shake their legs with some confidence they'll do less standing around.

Women's Institutes

BAY OF QUINTE W.I.

2ND OF SIDNEY — A pleasant time was enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Howe on Wednesday evening when Mrs. Howe was hostess to the Bay of Quinte Women's Institute. A good attendance helped to make the meeting most successful, giving encouragement to the convener, Mrs. Howe.

During the business session an invitation to attend a two-day training school on February 2nd and 3rd at Stirling was received. Thank you notes were received from several people for gifts received from the Institute at Christmas time. A note of thanks was also received from Mr. and Mrs. Benson Bonisteel of Frankford for a gift of a quilt at the time of their 60th wedding anniversary. Mr. Geert Vanschepen sent his thanks also for the lovely basket of fruit he received.

Mrs. Cecil Jeffery introduced Mrs. George Greer of the Trenton Cancer Society who spoke of the Canadian Cancer Society which was started in 1937. The interest from the King George V. Jubilee Fund for cancer is used to help keep in touch every person who gives toward that fund every April help, too. She said that this is solely a Canadian Society, although the American and Canadian Societies conduct their campaign at the same time to obtain the maximum value in publicity. This society is made up of a group of men and women volunteers from all walks of life dedicated to the fight against cancer by co-operation with scientists and the medical profession by assisting the cancer patient, and by informing the general public about the disease.

"Early diagnosis and treatment is the key to the cure of cancer" said Mrs. Greer. The Trenton Cancer Society have a room above Vollas Fashions Store in Trenton, where about once a month ladies come from the different neighborhoods to make dressings. These dressings are ordered by the doctor and do no cost the public anything. The Cancer Society also tries to get free transportation for those who have no way of going to clinic. Drugs are also supplied free for those who cannot pay for them. Anyone needing films and a speaker on cancer are asked to get in touch with the Trenton office.

Mrs. Greer showed a film based on cancer and called upon Dr. DeGroot a surgeon at Trenton Memorial Hospital formerly of Regina, Saskatchewan and originally from Amsterdam to speak to the group, at which time he stressed that especially after 35 everyone should have a check-up at least twice a year.

Mrs. Greer was thanked by Mrs. Don Sandercock and thanks were expressed to the doctor by Mrs. Greer.

Mrs. Alva Meyers read a letter from the adopted boy Heleh Lock Chi in which he thanked the Bay of Quinte Institute for the birthday and Christmas gifts of money which he received.

Recipe books were distributed and these may be obtained by signing up there. Mrs. Howe the convener of health distributed various charts.

The Experts Say

Concern Is Expressed Over Food Fad Effects

By JEAN SHARP.

TORONTO (CP)—If a food is good for you, it's not necessarily true that more is even better. If you are normally healthy, few foods will do you harm unless you eat too much of them.

"In our society people should be well-fed," says Mrs. Garnet Brooks, nutritionist with the Visiting Homemakers Association in Toronto. "Yet in our work, we find both under- and over-nutrition. People think if a little of something is good, more is a lot better. Your body can only utilize so much food value in a day.

"We tell low-income families particularly, that if a child only needs the vitamin content of a four-ounce glass of orange juice, there is no need to give him more."

WORRY OVER FADS

Mrs. Brooks says nutritionists are concerned about food fads and misunderstandings about the effects of various foods.

"Some fads are the ideas that come down through the family. Some are a result of misreading a story in a newspaper or magazine.

"People often say, for instance, I can't eat potatoes, they're fattening. It's only the excess of a food that is detrimental. Except for people who have special problems, nothing is detrimental in limited amounts.

"Nowadays people take vitamin pills to make up for things they think have been processed out of foods. With a good basic diet, adults have no need for vitamins unless they're prescribed.

"If natural products are processed out of a food, the food is often enriched to make up for it."

Mrs. Brooks is in favor of the current concern with overweight.

"Overweight can be a form of malnutrition—of bad nutrition. It was once considered a prosperous thing to see a man with a pretty good pot. It meant he could afford to eat well. Now we know better, people should keep their weight down.

"If it's only a few pounds, and you know you're snacking or eating too many desserts, you can cut down. Otherwise, though, you should see a doctor and be put on a diet."

MAKE A LIST

Mrs. Brooks says that from the point of view of both nutrition and economy, women should shop carefully, especially since 20 to 25 per cent of a family income is spent on food.

"Women should give a little more thought to meal planning and shop with a list. Women are great impulse-buyers. If you have a list, you're likely to stick to it.

Plan a week's menus in advance, and if you want to use a prepared menu as a guide, don't be discouraged if it includes food your family doesn't like. You can substitute.

A simple way to determine whether you are satisfying basic nutrition needs is to be sure each meal includes some animal products and some plant products.

There is a Canada food guide published by the nutrition division of the national health and welfare department which lists the type of food everyone should have every day.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Nothing, thanks—I'm just reminiscing."

It includes milk, two servings of fruit, one of potatoes and two of other vegetables, preferably yellow or green and often raw. Bread with butter or fortified margarine and one serving of whole grain cereal should be on the menu.

Every day should include one serving of meat, fish or poultry, although you may substitute eggs, cheese, dried beans or peas. You should eat liver occasionally and eggs and cheese at least three times a week.

WOMEN AT COLLEGE

MONTREAL (CP) — Women constituted only 27 per cent of the undergraduate students at Canadian universities in 1964 despite tremendous growth in recent years in women's education, Howard Ross, Chancellor of McGill University said at the opening of the new Muriel Roscoe wing of Royal Victoria College here.

FISH A FAVORITE

HALIFA X(CP)—Outside the Atlantic provinces, the average family eats fish no more than once a week, says Janet Robblee, home economist for the federal fisheries department. Her job is to increase fish consumption in Canada.

COLORFUL CROSSBILLS

Have you seen any crossbills yet this winter? This is the season when they are most likely to be found near civilization. There are two species, both breeding in our boreal forests but whereas the white-winged has never acquired the habit of wandering over our southern border, the red crossbill frequently flies far down and back. Their territories actually overlap, but that of the white-winged extends farther north. Both kinds migrate irregularly, their routes being somewhat oblique — from west to south east.

Although both are smaller than our familiar English sparrow, the males at least can hardly be missed because they are not the red crossbill like red brick, the so-called white-winged a beautiful rosy red with conspicuous white wing bars. The females are not so easy to detect, being dull olive, but the white bars on the dark wings differentiate the two.

PRETTY SIGHT

Parrotlike in their movements all crossbills use their bills as well as their feet for clinging to branches as they clamber over a tree, consequently they do not look like ordinary perching birds. This behaviour stems from their love of the seeds found in cones of spruce, fir, and hemlock. They travel in flocks, and are a pretty sight in a winter landscape as they cling to evergreens in all positions, looking like Christmas decorations.

On seeing one of these birds at close range, or through binoculars many people have been fooled into thinking that it must have been in an accident. So Mother Nature has given them crossed bills on purpose. Both mandibles are crooked and sharply pointed, the top one crossing over the lower ones. This makes a perfect tool for extracting seeds from cones.

ERRATIC NESTERS

Red crossbills are erratic not only in their migratory movements, but also in their nesting. The great majority of birds brings up families in late spring or early summer. We consider nesting time of goldfinches unusual because these birds wait until August when there is plenty of down for nest lining. The late August cedar waxwings surprises us also; but only then are their favorite berries ready to feed the babies. Apparently for no good reason, red crossbills may choose any date from January until August.

Some birds always build on the ground, others place their homes quite high. But the red crossbill's nest may be found anywhere from five to 80 feet up in a tree.

Parliamentary Notebook

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—It now appears that only a miracle of reconvening unstuck friendships can prevent changes in the seating plan of the House of Commons when it reassembles Feb. 16.

Observers are expecting Opposition Leader Diefenbaker to choose a new seatmate even if his Quebec lieutenant, Leon Balcer, does not leave the party.

This Parliament, which Social Credit Leader Thompson christened a House of minorities, has been particularly prone to troubles with its seating plan.

First it was the split in the Social Credit Party which saw Mr. Thompson and Real Caouette, his deputy and seatmate then, sitting together but not liking it very much. Because of the physical arrangement of their double desk, they had to sit shoulder-to-shoulder, but they generally looked the other way.

When Mr. Caouette and his followers formed the Ralliement Creditiste, the New Democratic Party became the third force in the Commons and the Social Credit and Creditistes were relegated to the far end of the Commons chamber from the Speaker's chair. As leaders of separate parties, Mr. Thompson and Mr. Caouette received new seatmates—respectively, Guy Marcoux (Quebec-Montmorency) and Gilles Gregoire (Lapointe).

Earlier in opposition, Mr. Diefenbaker's seatmate was George Nowlan (Digby-Annapolis-Kings), who some observers see as an interim leader of the party if Mr. Diefenbaker should retire.

RELATIONS STRAINED

But when Mr. Balcer was named deputy leader of the party early last year he moved into a double desk with Mr. Diefenbaker. Then their relations grew steadily more strained.

Until the Commons adjourned its session just before Christmas, however, there was little outward show of the differences between Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Balcer. To avoid embarrassment, one usually slipped out of his seat while the other spoke.

This was the case, for instance, when Mr. Balcer rose in the commons to ask the government to impose closure to end the long drawn-out flag debate. Mr. Diefenbaker—who usually is prompt on his attendance at prayers each day when the Commons sitting starts—was absent from his seat and took it a few minutes after Mr. Balcer sat down.

Now the split between Mr. Diefenbaker and his Quebec lieutenant is out in the open, with Mr. Balcer making public a letter to party president Dalton Camp sayin the Conservatives "can no longer carry on even as a great national party under its present leadership and the policies that leadership has engendered."

The 10 Quebec Conservatives want an executive meeting before Feb. 16 to call a party convention. Mr. Balcer and his immediate followers have said if that doesn't take place, they will have to consider their position.

It seems clear that unless a miracle of reconstitution can be performed, Mr. Balcer will have a new vantage point from which to participate in the business of the House—not as a deskmate of the opposition leader.

Careless Driving Charge Restored By Appeal Court

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario Court of Appeal decision Thursday restored the charge of careless driving in Ontario.

Mr. Justice Edson Haines of the Ontario Supreme Court had ruled Dec. 2 that the careless driving charge in the Highway Traffic Act was inoperative and invalid.

The attorney - general's department appealed the ruling and the Appeal Court unanimously allowed the appeal, which in effect restores the charge.

Since Mr. Justice Haines' ruling, no careless driving charges were validly laid and courts were directed not to hear any of the charges.

Crown attorneys were instructed by the attorney - general's department to amend such charges to ones of dangerous driving, if evidence permitted, or to postpone trials.

WITHDRAWAL ADVISED

If a court ordered a careless driving charge to proceed, Crown counsel were advised to withdraw the charge.

Thursday's decision, written by Ontario Chief Justice Dana Porter, said that reasons for the ruling will be given later. Five judges heard the appeal Jan. 14.

The judges agreed that the careless driving section of the act is within the power of the provincial legislature to enforce.

In a case involving taxi driver Allen Mann, 38, of Toronto, and argued by lawyer John Weingust, Mr. Justice Haines had ruled that the federal Criminal Code charge of dangerous driving wasusbtantially the same as the provincial careless driving charge.

Mr. Justice Haines said that because the federal statute covered the field, the careless driving charge was inoperative.

AIR CRASH KILLS THREE

PAMPA, Tex. (AP) — Three men and a pet dog died as a Cessna-180 light plane nosedived out of a clear sky and crashed in an oil field west of here in the Texas Panhandle Thursday. The victims, all from Pampa, were Wesley Lewis, 53, operator of a flying service; Henry Collier, 35, owner of an oil well servicing firm; and Don Davis, 28, an independent oil operator.

Thomson Makes First Purchase In New Field

LONDON (CP)—Lord Thomson, Canadian - born publisher, has made his first move into the industrial field in Britain with the purchase of a Glasgow firm manufacturing data systems and electronic equipment.

J. J. Coltart, deputy chairman and managing director of the Thomson organization, said Thursday his group has purchased G-Mac Ltd. of Glasgow, which recently joined the department of scientific and industrial research and Oxford University Press in developing a fast electronic method of map-making.

Coltart said it is hoped the first diversification into industry will be followed by further Thomson investments "in Scotland, in Scottish skills and in Scottish potential."

He did not disclose the purchase price.

The factory will be expanded, Coltart said, and the staff of 80 will be doubled within the next 12 or 18 months.

Previously, Thomson's interests were restricted to newspapers, magazines and Scottish commercial television.

URGES CAUTION

It is more important than ever for Canada's house-building industry and lending institutions to assess carefully the soundness of projects to be undertaken and financed this year, says M. J. Firestone, professor of economics at the University of Ottawa. Writing in the January issue of Engineering and Construction, a quarterly publication of Daily Commercial News Ltd., he says there is justification for expansion activity but short - term uncertainties counsel selectivity and prudence."

UP 10 CENTS A SHARE

Crush International Ltd. had net earnings of $1,142,704, equal to 84 cents a share, in the year ended Oct. 28, 1964. This compares with $949,993, 74 cents a share, the previous year, said the company's annual report released Thursday.

RAISE MORE MONEY

Mining and oil companies listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange raised $40,445,912 through underwritings, options and rights in 1964. This was a 135-per-cent increase over 1963. The increase was due largely to Texas Gulf Sulphur's discovery of a huge copper deposit near Timmins, which drew many small mining companies to the area.

SEES NO CLOUDS

The chairman of the governing committee of the Montreal Stock Exchange said Thursday he doesn't see "any clouds" on the economic horizon in the next 12 months. L. A. Martin said he didn't necessarily believe economists reports there will be a slowdown in business later this year. He predicted at a press conference that the gross national product will increase by 10 per cent this year, compared with six-per-cent in 1964.

SELLS DELHI SHARES

The investment firm of Nesbitt, Thomson and Co. has sold 4,918,351 common shares of Canadian Delhi Oil Ltd. at $1 a share to the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio. This represents 90.22 per cent of the outstanding shares of Canadian Delhi. Canadian Delhi has operations in Alberta, British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario. It produces daily about 3,500 barrels of oil and natural gas liquids and 65,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas.

ADDS NEW BUSINESS

The Manufacturers Life Insurance Co. added $791,000,000 of new business to its books last year, a gain of 8.9 per cent from 1963, the annual meeting was told Thursday. Business in force at the end of the year was $5,209,000,000.

IMPERIAL EARNS MORE

Imperial Oil Ltd. had estimated net earnings of $79,000,000 or $2.50 a share in 1964, compared with $71,000,000 or $2.25 the previous year. The company said in a preliminary earnings report that capital and exploration spending totalled $88,000,000, compared with $80,000,000 in 1963. Product sales of 342,000 barrels a day were four per cent higher.

Public Thaw Against China Still Small but Significant

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Public opinion polls say evidence Americans are thinking much more about better relations with Communist China is growing.

A group of U.S. West Coast businessmen, affiliated with the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, has called for improvements leading toward trade. Their report cites the growing volume of business being harvested by Britain, France, Canada and others.

This sort of U.S. public thaw is still small, but significant.

However, the time is past when the United States could easily kiss and make up after the U.S. pondered recognition of Communist China in 1950 and then ran into a Korean War.

SET HIGH PRICE

The informed American relief is China has set her price sky-high with her first nuclear blast, the downfall she welcomed of Nikita Khrushchev in Russia and continued Communist successes in South Viet Nam.

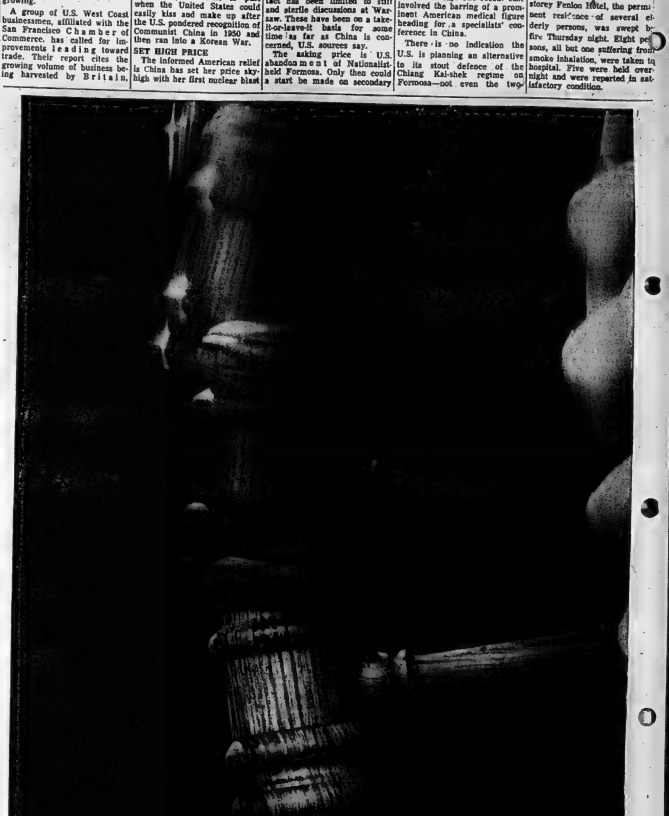
There is even some doubt Communist China, even if it finally did have the necessary votes, would accept a United Nations seat. Its leaders say no, unless Nationalist China is banned from every UN branch.

U.S.-Communist Chinese contact has been limited to stiff and sterile discussions at Warsaw. These have been on a take-it-or-leave-it basis for some time as far as China is concerned, U.S. sources say.

The asking price is U.S. abandonment of Nationalist-held Formosa. Only then could a start be made on secondary channels of better relations.

Thus, when the U.S. proposed an exchange of journalists, China wasn't interested, Americans say. There still are some 50 American reporters who have full authority to go to China but who can't get Chinese permission.

MEDICAL MAN BARRED



There have been other examples. Chinese polity, the Americans say. One recent case involved the barring of a prominent American medical man heading for a specialists' conference in China.

There is no indication the U.S. is planning an alternative to its stout defence of the Chiang Kai-shek regime on Formosa—not even the two-China policy in the UN proposed by Canada and other countries.

But there are signs that the U.S. is reviewing ways to broaden contact including trade—if China lets it.

HOTEL CATCHES FIRE

RHINELANDER, Wis. (AP). The upper floor of the four storey Fenlon Hotel, the prominent residence of several elderly persons, was swept before Thursday night. Eight persons, all but one suffering from smoke inhalation, were taken to hospital. Five were held over night and were reported in satisfactory condition.

Is a jail sentence news?

Most of the time, the answer is "yes". Newspapers report crime because it is in the public interest. Without crime reporting, you would get only part of the day's news. Criminals could continue to break the law in a cloak of secrecy. Potential criminals, ignorant of the courts' action against offenders, would not be deterred.

Most known criminals shun publicity. Publicity is one of the law's most powerful weapons in its fight against crime. For, if the public is uninformed, there can be no public pressure to stamp out crime. Wrong-doing, on any scale, cannot withstand the pressure of newspaper-aroused public opinion. To suppress news about crime, doesn't suppress crime! Consider this when you read a newspaper report of a crime or a jail sentence. You'll know that your daily newspaper is acting in your best interests—as always.

AN INFORMED PUBLIC IS THE BEST GUARANTEE OF FREEDOM

Seeking a Haven? Try Trinity Bay

By ED WALTERS

TRINITY, NFD. (CP) — This town of about 400 nestled on a damp shelf of land below Ryder's Hill exudes tranquillity the way a wet sponge oozes water.

The slow pace of life, rugged by beautiful surroundings and progress bargains may soon lead to its rediscovery by outsiders seeking escape from the pell-mell rush of modern life.

It probably already would be a popular summer resort except for its location. Situated on the north side of Trinity Bay, it is 300 miles by road from St. John's and about 220 from Gander.

The Trans - Canada Highway passes within 80 miles of Trinity at Clarenville, a railway and shipbuilding town at the head bottom of the bay.

The main road to Bonavista from Clarenville dips down toward one of the three arms that constitute Trinity Harbor to bring abruptly into view one of the most striking scenes of natural beauty on the east coast.

The shoreline is indented in places by small coves fringed with crescents of beach comprised mostly of blue - grey stones and clay sand, but the clear days it's possible to see starfish on the bottom in water up to 15 feet deep.

The edge of the harbor meanders around points, ledges and headlands, some of which most of it uninhabited and reachable only on foot or by boat.

The harbor entrance is guarded by Green Point which acts as a two-mile-long natural breakwater against giant billows summoned by autumn hurricanes. Cannon mounted on the point two centuries ago for defence now rust French and still be seen lying in shallow water on the seaward side.

Just off shore in the entrance is a rock islet called Admiral's Island and on the other side is the high blood red cliff Skerwink, a flat-faced promontory named by some ancient sea-rover.

Inside Skerwink is Louzy Island where sailors from old British men o' war regrief on Sundays to pick lice from their shirts.

Directly across from Fort Point is the broad shelf on which most of the town's houses are built. The 20th century has intruded here in the form of electricity, telephones, television and late-model cars.

Towering above the town is Ryder's Hill, locally called Gun Hill. Until recent years the remains of a powder magazine dating back to the 1700s could be seen.

POPULATION SHRINKS

The population appears to be decreasing. The younger people leave for jobs in St. John's or other urban centres as they finish school. Some go to university.

A few of the men find summer employment on Great Lakes ships and spend the winter months sitting around a stove in one of the half-dozen stores.

In summer the town is left to old people, women, children and a few middle-aged men who remain on call to do whatever odd jobs are available.

The gradual movement of people away from Trinity has resulted in the occasional portable property for sale at prices that would stagger buyers in most Canadian cities.

One advertised recently 80-year-old house with a piece of land and beach covering 100 feet of bay front was offered for $900 last year. In 1963, the former parsonage, containing den, living room, dining room, kitchen and bedrooms, and with electricity installed, sold for $1,000.

The properties usually are bought by fishermen who move them by water to sites on the most - abandoned communities farther in the bay. Other pieces of land are bought for cabins or beach have lain idle for years.

This makes the town ripe for invasion by cabin speculators and vacationers from St. John's who are gradually discovering the wonders of Trinity Bay. The abandoned properties probably will eventually be bought by locals and converted into summer homes in out-of-the-way places with easy access to the sea.

CNR vs. CPR

Twain Don't Meet On Passenger Service

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's two big railways took off in opposite directions during 1964 on the issue of passenger train improvement in the future.

The privately owned CPR said flatly that it would like to get out of the passenger business, and probably will.

The government-owned CNR said it is determined to remain in the passenger business and is in the process of make trains travel popular again.

In recent months Chairman N. R. Crump of the CPR and R. A. Emerson of the CPR have criticized the railway's disillusionment with continuing passenger train deficits.

Mr. Emerson said in Winnipeg in Mr. Crump said in a Vancouver speech.

There will be a steady reduction in rail passenger service until it disappears entirely," Mr. Emerson said in a Winnipeg audience.

But Pierre Delagrave, CNR vice - president for passenger sales, said at Hamilton:

"We are making improved train schedules, upgrading of passenger - carrying cars, improving our food and beverage services, all of which we are developing, will increase the attractiveness of trains."

LOSING MONEY

Both railways have been losing heavily on passenger services in recent years. The CPR dropped about $19,000,000 in 1963; $6,000,000 with more lines about double that.

This financial situation will be eased slightly if the new railway legislation now before Parliament is approved. Under it railways will be allowed to scrap all passenger runs that lose money serving communities which have other satisfactory way links.

The legislation would give the railways five years to get rid of their losing lines and pay them a subsidy in the meantime to cover passenger train deficits.

This five-year subsidy arrangement would provide a total of $120,000,000 for the CNR and $60,000,000 for the CPR.

Even the CNR, dedicated as it is to the revival of railway passenger travel, has indicated it expects to take advantage of this plan.

They will abandon those lines that the public has already abandoned," Mr. Delagrave has said.

But it isn't expected to go much beyond that in this regard. There have been complaints in Parliament during debate that the CPR has been deliberately cutting service and revising schedules.

Last fall a barrage of such complaints prompted the Board of Transport Commissioners to freeze CPR plans for the reduction of 26 train services in various parts of the country. Hearings are to be held later on each one.

Hitler's Elusive Deputy They Seek Him Here They See Him There . . .

BONN (Reuters) — Officials behind West Germany's drive to bring Nazi war criminals to justice, a drive gathering momentum in recent years, repeatedly come across the name of one man—Martin Bormann.

Like the elusive Loch Ness monster, Hitler's bulky pasty-faced deputy, described by the Fuehrer in his last testament as "my most faithful party comrade," hits the headlines of the world's press at regular intervals.

Dr. Fritz Bauer, Frankfurt prosecutor general, former inmate of a Jewish concentration camp and a key figure in the hunt for wanted Nazis, now claims he has sufficient evidence to prove Bormann alive and well and living in Brazil 19 days of the war and is hiding in South America.

Bauer says he is almost convinced Bormann found asylum in Paraguay, where the notorious former Auschwitz death camp doctor, Joseph Mengele, also has been reported to be hiding.

MADE BURIAL CLAIM

Interest in Bormann reached a new peak last summer when a Czechoslovak farmer who headed a burial squad in Berlin after the collapse of the Third Reich in 1945, claimed he had helped bury Bormann.

The East German later reported the grave had been opened and failed to yield Bormann's remains.

Almost from the moment of his disappearance there were doubts that Bormann perished when he and a few other Nazis were trapped with Hitler in his bunker to the end made a desperate dash for freedom under Russian artillery fire on May 1 or 2, 1945, two days after the Fuehrer's suicide.

Erich Kempka, Hitler's driver, told the Nuremberg war crimes tribunal in 1946 he believed Bormann died when a German tank exploded next to him on Berlin's Weidendammer Bridge.

SENTENCED TO DIE

The tribunal, nevertheless, sentenced Bormann to death in his absence.

Albert Speer, a former state secretary and a former Hitler Youth leader claimed they saw Bormann alive after the tank explosion.

Only four months after the establishment of West Germany a volco broadcasting over a secret radio station heard a group of Nazi officials to have been Bormann's.

Bormann's escape was reported to be in various parts of Germany. Later it was said he had escaped to Argentina in a submarine. In 1947, someone claimed to have seen him in Spain.

In the years that followed he was hunted in Austria and the Middle East. He was reported certain of being in southwest Africa, Chile and Spain.

In 1952, Bormann was reported in Tangiers and in Morocco. From 1953 he was said to have died in Italy. In 1960 news of his death came from Argentina. Three years later, in Germany, three men were arrested as Bormann but all were released.

A Spaniard called Alcazar said in 1962 he had helped Bormann escape in South America and had met him again in Paraguay.

Last February, Bormann was hunted by police in Peru, while in Chile a Nazi hunter claimed that he had seen him in Tenerife, Canary Islands, seven years ago.

B.C. Drawing Bead On Careless Hunters

VANCOUVER (CP)—A hunter who shoots at sounds has something in common with a person who jumps stoplights—both are likely to hit something and be sorry for it.

The comparison is made by Kenneth Jones, executive director of the British Columbia Federation of Fish and Game Clubs, discussing proposed provincial legislation.

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan says he intends to ask government plans to amend the Game Act in an effort to legislate against careless hunting.

He concedes that the most common cause of accidents in hunting stems from people shooting at sounds in the bush without being sure what the target is. And while it is difficult to prove an offence of this sort, he says, there's no question that some of the guilty will be not fit to have a hunting licence.

Andy Hecault, 40-year-old carpenter from Surrey, B.C., was hunting Burnaby, is a living argument against such shooting. His brother-in-law mistook him for a moose, fired two shots at him. One hit him in the shoulder.

BONE SHATTERED

Hecault was wearing a red cap, green jacket and brown pants as he walked through the thick bush in the interior Cariboo region. They were walking 300 yards apart toward a creek.

"I'd been following the creek a few minutes when I heard a shot, turned and saw my friend's rifle pointing toward me," Hecault says. "The second shot struck with a resounding thud as I raised my arm and yelled it was I.

His shoulder bone was shattered and doctors said that if the bullet had been half an inch lower it would have severed an artery and Hecault might have bled to death.

"My friend felt awful," Hecault says. "He kept saying he thought I was a moose. And he'd been listening to my sounds in the bush for five minutes and the instant I stepped into sight he fired at me."

The friend and another hunter carried Hecault in a makeshift stretcher to the first aid station at a nearby logging camp.

Hecault says it would be difficult to get proof of violations under the proposed legislation but he feels it would at least help. "Anything that makes it a hunter holding his fire until he's sure what he's shooting at.

Seek New Asia Aid From New Zealand

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND (CP) — As tension increases in Southeast Asia, there is question of greater New Zealand participation in that theatre is coming increasingly to the fore. Since the Second World War, New Zealand has accepted Southeast Asia as its front line of defence and has undertaken military responsibilities there.

New Zealand is one of the comparatively few Western countries giving active military assistance in the region. Britain that greater help would be appreciated by some perpetually from British and United States sources.

With the dispatch of British reinforcements to Malaysia and the possibility of intensified Indonesian activity, observers think that further pressures for greater New Zealand help is likely.

Existing New Zealand military forces in Southeast Asia are:

1. One Infantry battalion, based on Terendak camp in Malaysia as part of the British Commonwealth Brigade. This battalion is highly trained and experienced in jungle operations against Communist terrorists on the Thai border and against Indonesian commandos in Malaysia. It has not been in operations in Borneo.

2. Two air squadrons—a transport squadron flying Bristol freighters based at Singapore and Korat, in central Thailand and flying missions to most of South Asia; and a squadron of Canberra bombers based on Singapore, sent from New Zealand for an exercise in September and retained because of the emergency at least until March.

2. One warship, either a frigate or cruiser, serving in rotation with the British Far East Fleet and based on Singapore.

4. A field engineer unit serving in South Vietnam repairing roads and bridges. Officially classed as "non-combatant," it has in fact not been engaged so far in hostilities.

5. New Zealand also is supplying military equipment to Malaysia and is training a substantial number of Malaysians in various branches of the armed forces.

It is not known what form requests for additional help would be likely to take, but whatever the request New Zealand would have difficulty in responding while armed forces remain at the existing level.

No branch of the services could send large reinforcements to Southeast Asia without diverting strength from other commitments.

Present defence expenditure is too low to permit rapid expansion. The government announced a substantially increased defence program which will lift defence spending to $73 per capital annually. New Zealand, by contrast, is spending $60 per head, or $45 per capita.

All defence services are under review, but at present there is no indication that major increases are contemplated.

New Milk Bottles May Be Plastic

By DON PHILLIPSON

TORONTO (CP)—With initial skirmishes being fought in Toronto, the makers of milk containers are lining up for a Canada-wide battle this year. And plastic is in the weapon.

The wax - coated cartons that have captured a major share of the fluid milk container market in recent years appear to be on the way out.

Glass bottles are still holding their own on the door-to-door delivery routes and they are popular in the supermarket jug size as supermarket money-savers.

But two firms have been testing public reaction to a couple of new types of containers—one polythene-coated cardboard, the other plastic.

The research has been done on a small and gentlemanly scale so far, but it presages a vigorous campaign for the year goes on.

Most milk that is not sold in the big jugs or delivered to the door is packaged in wax-coated cardboard containers that open at the top into a pouring spout.

Ex-Cello Corp. holds the patent on the machinery that has hitherto controlled a large part of the market among Canadian dairies.

WAX IN MILK

Because of some difficulty for customers in handling the carton, and because of complaints of pieces of wax occasionally turning up in the milk, the firm has converted its polythene-coated cardboard cartons throughout the United States.

These are constructed the same way as the wax-coated ones. They are supplied in sheet flat, and the dairies inflate them and coat them, using machines controlled by contract with the Pure-Pak division of Ex-Cello.

The first polythene - coated carton tried out in Ontario appeared late last year. It was a three-quart size, opening directly with the glass jug, the only other container of that size.

Homogenized milk in the new container sells for the same and the container is not returnable The glass jug sells for 55 cents with a 25-cent deposit on the bottle.

Other firms are trying out Ex-Cello's big share of the packing market, however, and Dare Chemicals of Oakville has decided to compete. It placed two-quart plastic milk bottles at nine dispeal-a-Wee dairy-shop chain last November for market-testing in supermarkets.

TWO PRICES

The plastic bottle, also non-returnable, sells for 48 or 49 cents as opposed to 46 cents for the two - quart wax - coated cardboard carton. Dominion Dairies offered it at both prices just to see whether it would make any difference to the consumer. The results of a four-week test have not been released but one supermarket manager says his customers made no comment on the difference in price of a nickel or price, and sales are much as usual.

Dow officials are enthusiastic about their new bottle. It's cult to get proof of it, but the amount of milk to be seen and giving it a frosty appearance. They say, moreover, that it's easier to manage for a person with small hands.

Dow also has a prototype three-quart bottle which has a handle, as does the glass jug they put alongside the coated container has no handle.

The market Dow hopes to impress is not so much the retailer or the consumer as the dairy. The main advantage of the plastic bottle, a spokesman says, is that, with the addition of a new machine it can be filled by existing dairy equipment faster than any kind of paper container on the market is no need for the extra machinery to unfold and coat the packet of cardboard.

The spokesman adds that several dairies in Montreal, Ottawa and Winnipeg began to prepare their existing equipment for the use of plastic bottles even while the market tests in Toronto were still going on.

Has Hockey Dream Job

By ZEKE TYCOLLISTER

MONTREAL (CP) — Mike Trottier, 35, has one of those jobs most fans dream about.

He's official statistician at Montreal Forum for Ontario Hockey Association Junior A games and also helps out the statistician at National Hockey League games Saturday nights.

My job is to keep the shots on net by each individual player and to keep track of which players are on the ice when their team gets a goal," Mike says.

Mike started attending OHA games seven years ago with his father, Albert Trottier, until recently publicity director of the Montreal Canadiens hockey club.

During a game three years ago I asked my dad if I could try taking down the shots on net, and I've been doing it ever since."

The proud possessor of a National Hockey League pass.

Mike continues in his work even though his father has retired.

A Grade 11 student at Cardinal Newman High School, Mike doesn't mind missing games "because of my studies."

IN PRESS BOX

On the job Mike is assigned a seat in the press box where, occasionally, a sports writer who has trouble in particular play will call on him for a quick description.

Mike has built a fair knowledge of the game and has been invited to sit in on some television sports show three times. He was also interviewed between periods during a Saturday night NHL game.

He doesn't play hockey himself. "I can't skate. I was in a car accident four years ago. My collarbone was broken and my ankles, which were weak in the first place, were sprained. On top of that I'm flatfooted."

Among the pros, he has a couple of obvious favorites—Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks and Henri Richard of Canadiens. But there's one star he's particularly fond of.

"Gordie Howe. He plays dirty and gets away with it most of the time.

"I like good clean hockey."

The Golden Years

Farm Life at 65 Not Always Everything You Had Expected

By THOMAS COLLINS

"We are nearing the Golden Years — and we own a 150-acre farm in the Ozarks.

"Both my husband and I have jobs, and both of us work six days a week. The leisure of summer, fall, winter and spring looks very inviting to us.

"Our question is whether we will be as happy as we should be on our farm. We would be in a typical rural setting. We would raise a gaboon horses, would fish and attend country sales. There would also be horse shows, where we would ride and show our horses. There would be the other activities that go along with this type of living.

"Shall we convert to the Orarks life? Or shall we remain where we are, rooted on a little plot of ground just outside the city?"

You should go by all means. Because yours is the dream of retirement to its dreamier form. You will probably grieve if you pass it by.

You aren't going to like it, of course. At least the odds are that most city people wouldn't like it for long. Still you should try it, taking along a road map and enough money to get you back to the city — when and if.

STRUCK IT RICH

Some people who, at 65, have gone chasing such a dream as yours have struck it rich. They have filled their lives with meaningful tasks. They have set up shop as "country squires" and drawn people around them. Perhaps you and your husband have the personalities and the resources to do this. Perhaps you will be as happy as you "should be."

But there are four major factors working against you — or against other city people who try it — and they may send you retreating back to the city in a couple of years:

ONE—City Culture. Not the opera and concerts . . . you probably didn't attend anyway. But the everyday niceties of city life that a rural area can't match. Such as government-inspected meat instead of a leg of lamb from a neighboring farmer and washed vegetables in plastic bags instead of sprayed stuff from a garden; good TV reception and the best networks instead of static, country bands, and snuff commercials; stores of many varieties where the newest merchandise is available instead of a calico shop; splendid insulation against the raw and the ugly in life instead of personal involvement in highway wrecks, rural accidents and other human violence.

Most city people have grown too civilized for rural life.

TWO — Isolation. A 120-acre farm in a rural area would be far removed from doctors and hospitals, in case of emergency. The quality of such usually would not approach what you get in the city. Fire would usually be a disaster, since the fire station is too far away. Storms, station is too far away. Storms more terrifying in the middle of 120-acres because there would be nobody to yell to for help. Leaving a wife alone on the farm for a day, or even for a day in town, would give a husband pause.

Then there's the future. When age 65 becomes 75 and some of the mobility has been lost, or when one spouse dies to leave the other alone . . . what?

THREE — Entrapment. There presumably would be other living things to go along with the household horses . . . chickens, a cow, a dog perhaps. Some of them must be fed and watered every day. If you wanted a vacation you would find it difficult to hire this chore done as you would to hire a tenant to till your acres.

FOUR — Loneliness. It is real and it is constant when you live on an isolated farm. There are few people even to watch passing by on the road, and virtually none to come visiting. In many rural areas of the country to day, the people who have not already gone off to the city to find jobs will not make a social friends. You will see them at church on Sunday, maybe at PTA or farm meetings. That's about all. There would be your fellow-breeders of the Appaloosa. But how many nearby? And how many horse shows in a year? Your old friends back in the city won't be visiting much.

Many people now 65 were reared on a farm. They remember "hog-killing time" and "sewing bees," and Saturday trips to town . . . and all the fun these were. The trouble is that these were 1912, and they didn't hang around for 1965.

RCAF Neptune Falls, Burns; Crew Escapes

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. (CP) — An RCAF anti - submarine patrol plane plunged into a snow-covered field near here Friday and burst into flames shortly after the four - man crew scrambled to safety.

RCAF spokesmen said the twin - engine Neptune crashed about a quarter of a mile from the Summerside air force station as the pilot attempted an emergency landing. It was believed the plane had engine trouble.

Spokesmen said the four crew members were in hospital here. Names and conditions of the men were withheld. They apparently escaped severe injury.

The Neptune was one of 25 in service with the Maritime Air Command.

FLOODS ROUT TEXANS

GEORGETOWN, Tex. (AP)— Flood waters, rising after six inches of rain poured down in this area, routed occupants from 25 homes late Thursday night. Water up to two feet deep surged into the houses, occupied by about 100 persons.

Given 6 Years For Killing Wife

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—William Smith, 29, of Windsor was sentenced Friday to six years in penitentiary after his conviction by an Ontario Supreme Court jury on a charge of manslaughter in the death Nov. 6 of his wife Barbara, 27.

He was found not guilty on a charge of non-capital murder.

Mr. Justice Campbell Grant said the crime would not have occurred had Smith not been drinking. Mrs. Smith died of asphyxiation caused by strangulation.

The jury was told Smith had been drinking most of the day prior to his wife's death and "had not been himself."

Prisoner Dies In Kingston Pen

KINGSTON (CP)—A prisoner from the psychiatric ward of Kingston Penitentiary died in the prison hospital Wednesday, it was announced Friday.

Prison officials said Peter Votel, 34, was found dead in his bed. He was being treated for aspiration pneumonia — blockage of the lungs following regurgitation of food.

Coroner Dr. Stewart Patterson of Kingston will open an inquiry will be conducted into the death prior to an inquest to determine the degree of medical attention administered to Votel may have contributed to his death.

Votel was finishing a seven-year term for armed robbery imposed in Winnipeg. He was scheduled for release in June.

Fire Damages Town House

PICTON (Staff) — A fire, broke out Friday night in the two storey frame dwelling of Victor Hemmings at 50 Bridge Street, Picton. Firemen fought the blaze from the time they arrived at approximately 9.50 p.m. until 12.30 a.m. in near zero temperatures.

The fire apparently broke out in the area of the bathroom of the house where an electric heater was in use. The house was occupied at the time the fire broke out. An apartment in the East side of the house was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Hemmings' son, and Mrs. Hennings lived in the other side with their son Ken. Mrs. Hennings had just undertaken at the time of the fire. Mr. Hennings was downstairs watching TV, Mrs. Hennings called downstairs to her husband saying that she smelled smoke.

At approximately the same time the other residents also advised Mr. Hennings that the house was on fire They all left the house with what clothing they were wearing.

Firemen from Picton's volunteer fire dept. fought the blaze efficiently and appeared to have the flames under control about 11 o'clock.

The house was badly damaged inside and a great deal of the damage was caused by smoke and water. Some of the house furnishings were salvaged and some papers and small articles of clothing but most of the belongings of both families were destroyed in the fire.

Mr. Hennings has been an insurance salesman in the Picton area for many years. Both families accepted the generosity of friends for accommodation. To prevent a further outbreak, firemen stood by for the remainder of the night. There has been no estimate as yet as to the amount of damage caused by the fire.

A REAL WHOPPER — George Dingman of Picton, proudly displays his first catch this winter, a 14½ pound Northern Pike taken from Consecon Lake, Friday afternoon. This fish measured 38 inches and was landed by Mr. Dingman following a 45 minute fight.

Big Pike Hauled From Consecon Lake

PICTON (STAFF) — George Dingman, a Picton resident, wasted no time Friday afternoon transferring his prize catch, a 14 and three quarter pound Northern Pike from the icy waters of Consecon Lake to the freezer in his Picton home. This is the first fishing Mr. Dingman has done this winter and he stated this afternoon that the fishing had been rather slow and he was about ready to go home when the big one struck.

He had previously caught a smaller pike and had also seen a very large one pass by his bait.

When the big pike struck the battle was on. This is real sport according to Mr. Dingman, trying to get the big fish to the hole and then through. The contest lasted about 45 minutes, each time the fish was brought to the hole he was sideways to the opening and could not be taken through.

Finally after getting the fish head first through the ice, and about half way through, the line broke, and he started to slip back into the water. Mr. Dingman brought the fish all the way out by putting his foot into the water and scooped him onto the ice. The lucky fisherman was alone in the shack at the time.

Two other local men have also been in the fishing shanty but they did not accompany Mr. Dingman on this occasion.

The fish measured 38 inches from snout to tail. Local fishing enthusiasts are wondering if this might be the fish that was lost last week by John Colden, local business man, when he was fishing in the same locality and could not get his fish through the small hole in the ice.

Four Groups To Go to British Arts Festival

LONDON (Reuters)—The Toronto Symphony Orchestra, the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, Le Theatre du Nouveau Monde and a Quebec folk group of dancers and singers called Les Feux Follets, will represent Canada at the Commonwealth Arts Festival to be held in Britain next September, it was announced Friday.

This is believed to be probably the largest cultural delegation ever sent from one country to another.

The festival is to be held in London, Glasgow, Cardiff and Liverpool.

son, professed "errand boy" between Rivard's friends in Montreal and Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay; Robert Gignac, a murder suspect in a gangland slaying here; Eddy Lechasseur, a fraud suspect and possessor of a criminal record, and Marie, 32-year-old tuism-haired wife of Rivard.

Except for Lechasseur, all these persons and others got the back of Rivard's hairy hand when he testified in coarse French Friday before the commission headed by Chief Justice Frederic Dorion.

REPROACHES WIFE

Rivard said he had reproached his wife for giving Masson $1,090 for expenses to go to Ottawa to see Denis. He described Gignac and Masson with a four-letter word.

Liberal MP Guy Rouleau, until Nov. 24 parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, has said he made "normal representations" to the justice department in the Rivard case.

Mrs. Rivard and Lechasseur have testified that Rivard sent them to see Raymond Rouleau to enlist the aid of his MP brother.

They said Raymond reported back that Guy couldn't do much of anything.

In the witness box Friday, Rivard said he visited Guy Rouleau in Ottawa a few days before his arrest June 19 and seek Mr. Rouleau's aid in getting transferred to Montreal from a British Columbia prison and liberated."

Yves Fortier, a counsel at the inquiry, suggested that the transfer of Tremblay, serving 20 years for attempted murder in a Vancouver narcotics case, was effected 10 days after Rivard and Gaz Rouleau.

"I swear I don't know," Rivard said.

(Warden John Maloney of the New Westminster, B.C., penitentiary, said Tremblay was transferred to St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary here last summer.)

RE DENTICAL

Paul Joliu, counsel for the New Democratic Party at the inquiry, said Rivard's account of a meeting with Mr. Rouleau is "identical" with the case being investigated by the commission.

"I have plenty to do already," said Chief Justice Dorion with a broad smile.

The commission is probing allegations by Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne that he was offered a $20,000 bribe July 14 by Denis and subjected to political pressure to agree to Rivard's release on bail. Mr. Lamontagne represents the U.S. justice department in Rivard's extradition hearing here.

Rivard, who admitted he has a criminal record, had a blasting reunion with his wife during an inquiry recess. The two sat together smiling and talking — they have been married 3½ years, both testified—on a bench beside the witness box.

WEARS DARK GLASSES

Rivard wore dark glasses which he was ordered to remove when testifying. He put them back on momentarily when asked to read his criminal record, which Chief Justice Dorion said could not be made public.

He has not yet completed his testimony. The inquiry resumes Tuesday morning.

QUESTION: I understand that there is an interesting aquarium at a place called Marineland in Florida. Just whereabouts is this town located and how big a town is it?—L.T., Bloomfield.

ANSWER: Marineland of Florida is on Route A1A, 18 miles south of St. Augustine and 35 miles north of Daytona Beach. It is one of Florida's most outstanding attractions. There are two large outdoor aquarium tanks containing a great variety of deep-sea life. An unusual feature is that the fish and other marine specimens are not separated, but live together as in their natural habitat. The species ranges from colorful, small tropical fish to giant sharks, porpoises and whales. Portholes in the sides of the tanks make it possible for visitors to view and photograph this undersea world. There is also a stadium where shows are put on half a dozen times daily by trained porpoises and seals. The official permanent population of Marineland is given as 9.

QUESTION: Next summer, I plan to do some motoring in Europe. I don't expect to have too much trouble about it, but I am a little worried about getting used to driving on the left-hand side of the road. Is this the usual practice in European countries? — Miss A. K., Trenton.

ANSWER: The only European countries in which this rule is in effect are Great Britain, Ireland, Sweden and Iceland. In Sweden, it is planned to change in 1967 to driving on the right. It is estimated that this will cost the country $80 million.

QUESTION: We hope to have a chance for a trip early in March, and in addition, would like to visit Williamsburg, Va. Are the old buildings and exhibits open to visitors at that time of year, and what is the cost of admission to th. exhibition buildings? — R. F. D., Belleville 8

ANSWER: Exhibition buildings of Colonial Williamsburg are open daily from 9 to 5 all year, except Dec. 25. A combination ticket for the Capitol, Public Gaol, Raleigh Tavern, Magazine and Guard house, Brush-Everard House, Wythe House and the Governor's Palace and gardens, is available at the Information Centre or at any of the exhibition buildings. The combination tickets cost $3 each for adults, $1 for children 7 to 12. Tickets are also available for the individual exhibition buildings. Admission to the Governor's Palace only is $1.50; the six other major exhibition buildings are 75 cents each. A free motion picture, describing the historical significance and the restoration of Williamsburg, runs continuously from 9 to 9 daily at the Information Centre. Free buses make a complete circuit of the historic area every few minutes.

Sharp Declares Revolution Is Needed in Businessmen's Outlook on External World

By JOHN LeBLANC

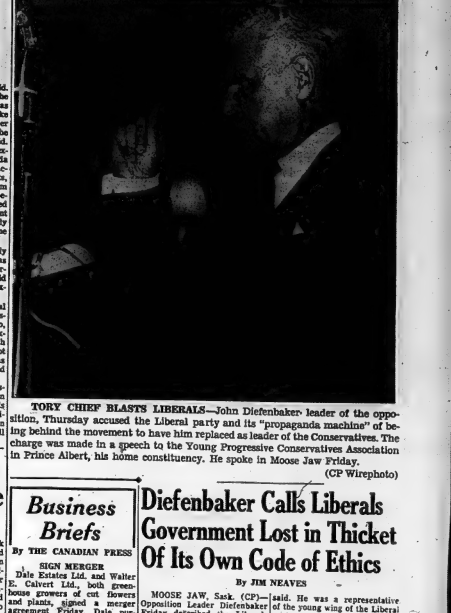
LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A revolution is needed in Canadian businessmen's outlook toward the external world, Trade Minister Sharp told a business conference Friday.

He and a group of corporate leaders agreed that Canadians selling abroad must know more about the people and countries they deal with. The minister promised government support to any programs designed to educate management in this area.

About 100 executives met at a one-day conference on international business called by the University of Western Ontario's school of business administration. They discussed the extent to which Canadian business might be affected by international developments and the need for familiarity with economic, political and cultural environments abroad.

A sequel to the session is likely to be the establishment by Western of short, intensive courses in international trade aspects for executives and the widening of its regular courses to cover the same field more broadly. The businessmen approved the idea.

PROMISES SUPPORT



"You can depend on the government to be extremely interested in the success of an enterprise like this," Mr. Sharp said. While he was hearing of the idea for the first time, he was sure it would be willing to make available personnel and other encouragement, though he stopped short of financial aid.

Mr. Sharp said the main export trade issues before Canada were the expansion of manufactured exports to world markets, improved access for her farm exports, expansion of trade between developing and developed countries and the enlargement of trade relations with centrally planned economies such as the Iron Curtain countries.

He said he saw the Kennedy round of tariff negotiations as assuming "primary importance" in the long run. It should provide new and increasing export opportunities.

Dealing with the international aspect of education for businessmen, J. M. McAvity of Toronto, president of the Canadian Export Association, said a crash program is needed. It could not be left to government but was up to management, labor and the whole social order."

David S. R. Leighton, professor of business administration at Western, said Canada is heading into a world of intensified international competition and survival in this field will depend on advance planning.

TORY CHIEF BLASTS LIBERALS—John Diefenbaker leader of the opposition, Thursday accused the Liberal party and its "propaganda machine" of being behind the movement to have him replaced as leader of the Conservatives. The charge was made in a speech to the Young Progressive Conservatives Association in Prince Albert, his home constituency. He spoke in Moose Jaw Friday. (CP Wirephoto)

Deposed Cabinet Minister Brass-lunged, Acid-tongued Orator in Old Quebec Style

OTTAWA (CP)—Yvon Dupuis is a young, brass-lunged, acid-tongued orator of the old Quebec school.

He has turned his wit and French vitriol against the late Maurice Duplessis, against Real Caouette and against separatism.

It was his comic but telling oratory—especially in the 1963 federal election campaign against the Creditistes — that once in the 1963 federal campaign by stumping Quebec in a won him appointment to the cabinet a year ago as a minister without portfolio.

Since then he had dropped out of the limelight.

Until Friday, with the terse announcement that Prime Minister Pearson had asked for and received his resignation from the government. No reason was cited.

Mr. Dupuis is 39. He was, the youngest member of the cabinet.

He was only 28 when first elected to the Quebec legislature in 1952 for Montreal Ste. Marie. His father, Hector, had been in the provincial house for eight years.

Yvon immediately began sniping at Premier Duplessis' heels—trying to find' the fatal political tendon—with a brashness and sarcasm that even flustered his own Liberal colleagues out of countenance.

Mr. Duplessis took on the young upstart, calling him 'Le P'tit' Jeune, The Kid.

SCORES WITH RIPOSTE

Mr. Dupuis retaliated by calling the premier La P'tit Vieux striking with a single phrase at two unmentionables—the premier's age and height.

Later, Mr. Dupuis recalled that the premier once said in the legislature:

"I don't understand why the member for Ste. Marie attacks me this way. His father is one of my best friends."

"I have never chosen my father's friends," Mr. Dupuis shot back.

In the next provincial elections he was defeated and sold his telecasting and insurance business in Montreal, moving to St. Johns, Que., where he set up a music store and became an exporter and importer of books and recordings.

In the 1958 federal general election he won election in St. Jean - Iberville - Napierville despite a Conservative sweep that took 50 of Quebec's 75 seats.

He took a seat in the back row of the Liberal opposition benches.

But he wasn't so far removed from the core of house debates that other MPs could miss the flourish, the vigor, the demanding tone of Dupuis oratory.

His speeches would delight even some English - language MPs and press gallery members who couldn't understand a word he uttered.

BATTLED CAOUETTE

He rose to national prominence in the 1963 federal campaign against the Creditistes — that once in the 1963 federal campaign by stumping Quebec in a one-man battle with Real Caouette and his followers.

In a grand style that his Quebec rural audiences loved. he would harangue them on the the perils of Social Credit. Once he threw pre-war German money into the audience to illustrate the inflationary effects of misguided monetary policy.

He was one of the first Liberals in Quebec to recognize the threat to the party posed by the Creditistes, and organized a series of 15 - minute television programs to counteract the TV campaign used so successfully by Mr. Caouette.

Mr. Dupuis also has delivered his sharpest anti - separatist speeches of any leading Quebec politician.

He coined the term "Ottawa-maniacs" to describe Quebecers whose only political philosophy was a negative approach to federal government.

Mr. Dupuis is married, with four children.

Given 10 Years For Attempt To Murder Man

WHITBY, Ont. (CP)—Frederick Edward Wilson, 38, of Hanmer, Ont., near Sudbury, was sentenced Friday to 10 years in prison for the attempted murder last June 22 of a man he accused of having sexual relations with his wife.

Mr. Justice Edson L. Haines, in passing sentence, told Wilson he was "fortunate not to be charged with capital murder."

Wilson was found guilty last week by an Ontario Supreme Court jury. He fired two shots from a .22-calibre rifle through the beverage room door of an Oshawa hotel, one of them striking Joseph Kloster, 33, of Oshawa in the stomach.

Wilson testified that following a conversation with his wife Bertha, the night before the shooting, he believed Kloster had raped her but he later found out this was not so.

Rivard Case Postponed Till Jan. 28

MONTREAL (CP)—The case of Lucien Rivard, who is fighting extradition to the United States on charges connected with narcotics-smuggling, was postponed again today.

Date for the arguments in the case to be heard was set at Jan. 28 by presiding Judge Francois Caron who said he would hand down his judgment later that day.

At issue is the merit of a writ of habeas corpus which was issued to Rivard after his extradition to the United States was ordered last fall.

Involved with him in the matter are three other men, Raymond Jones, Emile Groleau and Julien Gagnon.

Rivard is a central figure in the current Dorion inquiry which is investigating allegations that a federal official offered a $20,000 brib et ohelp with the freeing of Rivard on bail.

Says Time Ripe For Tax Cut

SUDBURY (CP)—A. J. Little, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, says the time is ripe for a tax cut which is probably the most important step in an expansionist program for Canada.

Speaking to the Sudbury and District Chamber of Commerce, he said there are rumors that the royal commission of taxation may advocate the removal of certain tax incentives extended to the mining industry.

He said "it would be wrong to destroy or remove certain tax features that have made mining the greatest industry in Canada."

"... This is a disturbing thought, particularly at a time when taxes generally ought to be lowered and when every encouragement should be given to the mining industry to grow and expand just as fast as it possibly can."

Labor's Byelection Defeat Weakens Government Image

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The devastating defeat in the Leyton byelection not only weakens the British Labor government's image abroad but virtually cripples its plans to introduce highly controversial legislation such as re-nationalization of Britain's steel industry.

It also increases the prospect Prime Minister Wilson may be forced into a general election at a time not of his own choosing. He now has an effective majority of only three in the 630-seat House of Commons and the nine-member cabinet majority has warned him they won't give him any more help if he keeps on caterpil to the whims of left-wing socialists.

The Liberals, Conservatives and one or two Labor anti-socialists' opposed to steel re-nationalization, which was one of Wilson's major election campaign planks.

CAUGHT OFF GUARD

There is no doubt Wilson was caught off guard by the Leyton results. This London East-End riding had been in the hands of Labor for 30 years. Patrick Gordon Walker, the now-ousted foreign secretary, had been beaten in the Birmingham riding of Smethwick last October but he was scheduled to play vital issues were involved and Gordon Walker would have no trouble in Leyton.

The workers, pensioners and housewives of Leyton did not favor Gordon Walker. Part of the reason for his defeat may be that he also rather grave and reserved personality. But undoubtedly part also may have been due to the government's own policies.

Retention for Labor of the seat is the other byelection at Nuneaton, in the Midlands, with a sharply reduced majority appears to indicate some apathy on the part of Labor supporters and perhaps some disappointment with the administration's performance in the first 100 days of office.

Food prices, petrol prices and mortgage interest rates all have been issues in the byelections as to go up in the spring; so will personal income taxes.

Quebec Wing of PC Party Asks Views on Diefenbaker

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says the Quebec wing of the Progressive Conservative party has mailed letters to more than 100 key party members across Canada seeking a consensus of the leadership of John G. Diefenbaker.

The letter, signed by J. Marcel Bourbonnais, executive director of the party in Quebec, asks that comments be forwarded to Dalton Camp of Toronto, national president of the PC Association.

The newspaper quoted Mr. Bourbonnais as saying in a telephone interview that the letter had been sent to senators, members of Parliament and defeated candidates, presidents of local riding associations and newspapers.

Included in the letter, the Globe and Mail says, was an editorial by Claude Ryan, editor of the Montreal daily Le Devoir, which sets out the current crisis in the Conservative party and its problems with Quebec.

CAMP NOT CONSULTED

Mr. Bourbonnais is quoted as saying that the letter, which asks for opinions on the editorial, was sent at the direction of the Quebec party executive but with not consulting Mr. Camp. Mr. Camp is on a business trip to New York State and was not available for comment.

"We want Mr. Camp and the national executive to be well aware of the facts and the attitudes of members across Canada," Mr. Bourbonnais is quoted as saying. "We want them to know that the present situation is not the state of mind of a few Quebec members."

Mr. Ryan's editorial says sections of the party showed an understanding of Quebec at a fall conference in Fredericton, but failed to carry the spirit to the party ranks.

"According to all indications, the enlightened members of the party, having to choose between discreet action and open confrontation with their leader have chosen the former," Mr. Ryan wrote, and he chided party members for their silence.

The editorial appeared before the current criticism of Mr. Diefenbaker by several members of the party.

WILL ISSUE STAMPS

OTTAWA (CP) — Two five-cent postage stamps honoring the provincial flowers of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick will be issued Feb. 3, the post office announced Friday. A stamp in blue, pink and green will bear the Nova Scotia coat of arms and the provincial flower, the trailing arbutus which sometimes is known as the mayflower. Another in red, purple and green will have the New Brunswick coat of arms and the purple violet.

REPORTS TRADE SURPLUS

Strong gains overseas offset a sharply-rising deficit with the United States to produce an over-all trade surplus in Canada's world-wide commodity trade in the first 10 months of 1964, the bureau of statistics said Friday. The surplus a year earlier was $256,800,000.

AWAITS REPLIES

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Wilson is likely to announce soon that a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference will be held in London in June, informed sources said Thursday. They said most Commonwealth leaders have already replied to Wilson's proposal to hold a conference and only one or two replies are still awaited.

Diefenbaker Calls Liberals Government Lost in Thicket Of Its Own Code of Ethics

By JIM NEAVES

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker Friday described the Liberals as "a government lost in the thicket of its own code of ethics," blindly floundering from crisis to crisis and stumbling ahead without direction.

No previous administration had committed more indiscretions than the current Liberal government, he told a Progressive Conservative meeting attended by about 800 persons.

He accused the government of "schizophrenia," which he defined as "unrational behavior, delusion, impetuous acts and incoherence."

It was the second straight day that Mr. Diefenbaker has blasted away at the Liberals. In Prince Albert, Sask., Thursday he said the Liberal "propaganda machine" was behind a move to dump him as Conservative party leader "to take the public eye off their ill-behavior of government."

In his address Friday Mr. Diefenbaker made only brief reference to the dismissal earlier in the day of Yvon Dupuis from the federal cabinet. He had no idea why Mr. Dupuis was asked to resign. It was the responsibility of Prime Minister Pearson to reveal the details behind the action.

"We have only seen a small portion of what might be unveiled," he added.

Mr. Dupuis, minister without portfolio, was one of the most powerful speakers in the Commons, the Opposition Leader said. He was a representative of the young wing of the Liberal party.

"No other prime minister ever found it necessary to advise his minister what was honorable . . . Mr. Pearson seems to have to," Mr. Diefenbaker said the prime minister has "blindly floundered" from crisis to crisis in the last few months.

'HAVE YOU EVER . . .?'

"Have you ever known a government which got into more difficulty in such a short period?"

Defending the Conservative stand on the flag issue, Mr. Diefenbaker said no country can be great that forgets its past. "We have no apology to make . . . the issue has torn Canada apart."

He called the flag issue the "most divisive action taken by any government during the last 40 years" and said he remains convinced the Progressive Conservative stand was right.

Mr. Diefenbaker said his government from 1957 - 1963 had never deceived the public.

"It was an honest government . . . my ministers did not have lapses of memory and not condemn the policies of the previous government and then follow them."

He said his government had made mistakes in the past and would make some when a party is returned to power.

"But they will not be mistakes of the heart. Providence guiding me, I'll never be on the side of wrong."

Ten Jailed for Incidents During Visit of Princess

PORTLAOIGHISE, Ire land, (Reuters) — Ten men were jailed Friday on charges arising from incidents during a visit to Ireland by Princess Margaret earlier this month. Their imprisonment followed a wild melee earlier in the day, when club - swinging police charged through a crowd gathered outside the local courthouse during the trial.

Most of the accused men were jailed because they refused to sign bonds to keep the peace for two years.

All 10 were given the alternatives of signing guarantees to keep the peace or getting four months in jail for their part in incidents during the Royal visit.

Two of 'them were jailed for a month and a third fined £5 (.$15) for damaging Mountmellick Courthouse, scene of disturbances during an earlier hearing.

Three others were given the choice of keeping the peace for two years or four months in jail for their part in incidents outside the courthouse Friday in Portlaoighise, a town 90 miles west of Dublin.

All the men received jail sentences rather than sign the bonds.

Friday's melee occurred when the court was adjourned after the defendants complained they had not been since morning. A crowd collected outside the courthouse during the adjournment and refused to disperse despite orders by police.

Seconds later a large force of police charged the demonstrators with clubs. Two persons were injured and stood flowed.

Windows were smashed and storekeepers barred their doors as the police battled with the demonstrators.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Is George Chuvalo the Canadian heavyweight champion who is casting longing eyes on the world title — and the accompanying loot, getting the "rub-off" from Muhammed Ali, born Cassius Clay of Louisville?

The self-dubbed "world's greatest" recently called Chuvalo a "weaherwoman fighter," then reversed his lamellar gears and gave Chuvalo the nod over Floyd Patterson.

Despite the fact the boys in the seats of the odds mighty rate Patterson a 3-1 favorite in the upcoming brawl, a cotcie of New York sportswriters visited the Chuvalo camp, liked what they saw and wrote it "thataway, hurp".

In boxing lingo Chuvalo could transform from a "chump" to a champ practically overnight. If he whips Patterson he'll go on to some sort of glory — and a helova lot of loot. If he loses — he can go back to that meat-car biz.

The big Canadian heavyweight is putting everything on the line in his brawl with Patterson. By the same token the former world champion, wealthy from former ring rainbows, has a matter of prestige involved.

Now enters the Big Blah from Louisville who has been signed as a consemistar for the "big fight". Next to loot, Cadillacs and one Cassius Clay, the guy who "whupped" Sonny Liston loves the public spotlight. And no muscle-bound ring gladiator from Canada, Ball-Rill-or Alsike is going to hog it all as long as he is around.

He drew part of it the other day when he visited Chuvalo's training camp and clowned his way through a session while the sports writers and ringsiders roared, then wondered what those two guys in the ring were doing. He followed this with a "rabbit-ear-ball" act. The sportswriters ate it up.

Chuvalo could turn out to be the first consemistar sports hero since way back when Tommy Burns, a "diminutive" heavyweight wore the world crown until he was disintegrated by one Jack Johnson in Sidney, Australia, and they picked up the pieces and shipped him home aboard a cattle boat.

We had one last year but he turned out to be a horse called "Northern Dancer". And whoever heard of a hangtail shaking hands, signing autographs, being kissed by admiring females, driving the latest model cars, starting with Zip foam or rubbing his hair with some ungreasy kid stuff.

We had a couple of also-rans in this country in the persons of James J. Parker and the herring collector, Yvon Durelle. Both proved excellent bait for the teeming suckers north of the border when goaded'd Archie Moore, boxer, philosopher, diet expert and collector-de-luxe of folding lettuce and cabbage that hankers throw on, cast his lines.

The sportswriters wrote beautiful scripts for the Parker spectacular. The promoters set a stage that was nothing short of brilliant. They even dressed the writers, casters and other hangers-on in rented monkey suits. Archie, hearing about the fantastic promotion, immediately ordered two extra suitcases to accommodate the loot.

Moore could have gone home shortly after the opening bell rang. But he liked the lush atmosphere, the white shirts and evening gowns.

For eight rounds he gently prodded Parker with feather-dusting jabs accompanied by whispering lullabies. In the ninth he remembered he could catch the night plane for Chicago, looked to see that whatever had held Parker up had gone to the powder room, plunked James in the puss, grabbed the loot and took off.

Durelle put up a better argument down Morryall way and the take-home pay was so good Moore figured another bye-election was in order. The fisherman floored Ole Arch three times in the first round. The customers figured that's all there is—there aint no Moore.

But by the time Archie's entourage had finished counting the customers — and figured they hadn't been shortchanged (the suitcases were loaded anyway and the weight was the same) Moore decided that his crown was not going to be a bouwsprit for a herring boat and did something about it.

He administered a leather anaesthetic, saw to it that Yvon was reverently laid away, left him a dollar for carfare home in case the income tax boys raided his dressing room and departed on the last-laden night plane for Chicago.

44 Goals In 22 Games ★ ★ ★ ★ Howe Tops In Loot

Joe Malone Set Unbeatable Record

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull is scoring goals as if tomorrow is only a rumor, but it's doubtful that Hull or any other player will ever match a scoring pace that has stood since the first year of the National Hockey League.

The champion of scoring proficiency is Joe Malone, who potted 44 goals during a 22-game season in 1917-18 with Montreal Canadiens. Malone even missed two games in getting his average of two goals a contest.

Malone, now in his mid-70s and living in Montreal, failed to score in only three games. He scored twice in five games, three times in two games and had four goals in two other matches.

He had three five-goal games.

Such information was disclosed to the world this week by the NHL's department of incidental intelligence. Other startling revelations included:

—Gordie Howe failed to get a shot on goal during Detroit's 4-3 loss to New York last Sunday night, the first occasion that the automatic finest has been blanked this season.

—After 39 games, 39 misconduct penalties have been handed out to 27 players, four less than at the same time last season. The NHL's intelligent players' fund has pocketed $1,450 in automatic fines of $25 for 10-minute misconducts and $50 for game misconducts.

—Hull may cash several bonus checks this season, but he has a long way to go to catch Howe. Hull has received $19,300 in NHL prize money in eight seasons while Howe has banked $61,850 in individual and team awards.

—Chicago Black Hawks are enjoying a 10-game unbeaten streak at home with one defeated streak on the road. They have eight wins and two ties since losing 5-3 at Montreal last Dec. 5. The record is 13 (8 wins, 5 ties), set by Boston in 1940-41.

—Montreal is the only team with an undefeated record against another club this season. They have beaten the Bruins six times and tied one game in seven games.

—Boston hasn't tied a game on the road this year, but likely wish they had. They've lost 16 and won four.

The constantly-juggled NHL standings could undergo another face-lifting in the five games scheduled this weekend.

The Bruins visit Montreal today in the night's feature of a home - and - home series while New York Rangers meet the Maple Leafs at Toronto.

On Sunday, Montreal visits Boston. Toronto plays the Red Wings in Detroit and Chicago Black Hawks play host to the Rangers.

Two veterans will return to action this weekend. Jean Beliveau, out with a leg injury for 11 games with a knee injury, will play for Canadiens uniform and Andy Bathgate will dress for Toronto, but will be used only if necessary.

Win Three From Trenton HS

Quinte Scores Sweep

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA

Quinte Secondary School's Basketball teams combined victories over Trenton High (63-41) Friday, to record a triple-header sweep of the season. The seniors won an impressive 63-41 victory, the third in four games. The Quinte Junior edged Trenton 54-51 and the Bantams scrambled their way to 51-45 win.

In the senior game Trenton fell behind quickly as Quinte scored well from outside. Although behind by 10 points after the first quarter, Trenton managed to come within a few points before Quinte pulled away again in the final quarter. A superb Quinte defence held the losers to just four points in the last quarter.

Tony Meddings paced the winners with 18 points, while Bill Leslie scored 17 and Rick Taylor 10. Ron Chambers with 15 points, was high scorer for Trenton.

The Quinte Juniors nearly let victory out of their grasp, ahead by 21 points after the first half, they relaxed, and Trenton narrowed the margin until halfway through the final quarter the score was tied. Quinte rallied to squeeze out the victory.

For Quinte, Doug Rickey and Larry Seeley netted 16 and 14 points respectively. Phil Buddle and Rod Reid contributed eight points apiece.

Harley Lane and Cole of Trenton had 16, 18 and 14 points to lead the losing attack.

The Bantam game went much the same way as the Junior contest. Quinte led by 15 points after the first half and Trenton came back to narrow the lead to six. Schaufele of Trenton was outstanding, as he scored the high total of 21 points and played a good defensive game. Munn, Coyette, and Reid all scored six points for the losers.

Ted Shaw's 16 points was a Quinte high. Paul Goodfellow hooped 12, while John Mywaart and Don Parliamentl had 6 and 8 points.

'Glitter' Field At Track Meet

TORONTO (CP) —Gold and silver will glitter at the Telegram - Maple Leaf Gardens track and field meet here next Friday night when four of the top Olympic competitors of the last few years clash in the 600-yard run.

The field will be made up of Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., Canada's outstanding athlete of 1964 and second - place silver medallist in the 800 metres at the 1964 Tokyo Olympics, Mike Larrabee of Fillmore, Calif., a double first-place gold medallist in the 400 metres and 1,600-metre relay, Jack Yerman of Santa Clara, Calif., 1960 gold medallist in the 1,600 - metre relay, and George Kerr of Jamaica, who finished fourth in the 800 metres at Tokyo.

The meet tops off a two-day program with more than 100 other separate meets. Thursday, Jan. 28, the public and separate school high school meets in the afternoon, with an Ontario high school meet at night. Friday, a university meet will be held during the afternoon, followed by the international meet at night.

The Ontario high school meet alone has an expected entry list of 850 students representing 176 schools in the province. The competition is sanctioned by the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations.

Send Back Contracts

Top Cards Demand Another Deal

of St. Louis Cardinals appear likely to be having more trouble with their employer than their employees had with New York Yankees in the World Series.

The Cardinal players, who defeated the Yankees in seven games last October, have been slow in agreeing to terms for the 1965 baseball season. Numbers have been more than just slow — they've been outright dissatisfied.

Latest to complain publicly is outfielder Carl Warwick, whose comment came on the same day that two players traded away from the world champions, pitcher Roger Craig and outfielder Charlie James, signed with Cincinnati Reds.

Among others signing Friday were Brooks Robinson of Baltimore Orioles, the American League's Most Valuable Player, and pitchers Dick Radatz and Earl Wilson, third baseman Frank Malzone and outfielder Tony Conigliaro, all of Boston Red Sox.

Only four Cardinals have signed for the coming season, and that figure includes just one regular — shortstop Dick Groat, who agreed to terms earlier this week. The others are outfielders Tito Francona and rookie Bob Tolan and reserve infielder Gerry Buchek.

WANT TO CUT PAY

Warwick, who tied a series record with three consecutive pinch hits, disclosed Friday that the Cardinals have asked him to take a $1,000 cut in pay.

"I think this is an insult and think the rest of the team will feel that way, too," Warwick remarked, adding that he had returned the unsigned contract with a "letter containing appropriate language."

The day before, second baseman Julian Javier sent back his contract unsigned because his employers refuse to accept a $3,000 reduction. In previous weeks, pitcher Bob Gibson, catcher Tim McCarver and rightfielder Mike Shannon—all series heroes—openly criticized the Cardinals' proposals.

Four others — pitcher Curt Simmons, left - fielder Lou Brock, first baseman Bill White and third baseman Ken Boyer, the National League's Most Valuable Player — are awaiting second offers.

Team officials, however, appear undismayed. General manager Bon Howsam said earlier this week:

"When a club makes money, the players should get some of it. They make it possible, not just because we win, we can't give everything away. I don't anticipate any trouble. Most of the players are easy to handle. Some may be more difficult and then we'll act accordingly."

Kingston Wins Goal Orgy 13-9

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Kingston Frontenacs outlasted the Belleville "B's" 13-9 in a goal-scoring orgy before one of the better crowds to witness an OHA Eastern Junior "B" league fixture this season here last night.

The fans went home happy if they liked goals. The clubs started potting them at the 18 second mark of the opening heat and never quit until 18.49 of the third.

Despite the large score, the game was far from a route. Belleville outshot the winners 43-36, led the game itself 3-2 after one period and was in contention until late in the final period.

Kingston scored seven times in the second frame and held a 9-3 lead when the period dust had settled.

It was a rough night for goaltending, both teams had little-experienced men in the position.

Belleville, with regular Bob Moon out for five weeks with a broken hand, elected to give Jerry Cullen a workout in the nets. He gave it all he had but was definitely no match for the Kingston sharpshooters.

Juvanile Larry DeFulre, playing his second game of the season in the Kingston nets, faired little better.

The clubs concentrated on scoring early in the wide open night from the start. Belleville led 2-0 and 3-1 at times in the first period as did early in the second. Two Kingston quickies tied it up in a matter of 20 seconds.

Three goals in less than a minute opened up as 8-5 Frontenac lead around the 15-minute mark but the locals struck back for a trio of fast ones in less than two minutes, near the period's end to trail 9-8. The B's had outshot Kingston 20-10 in the initial stanza and 16-15 in the second.

The "B's never quite caught up but the clubs traded goals early in the third for a 10-8 score. Two penalties cost the locals a pair of goals in the third and 15.49 and that was it. The final goal was just the icing.

There were only ten penalties called in the game, including misconducts to Dennis Keayna and Ed Leeman, all Kingston. Belleville had just three minors.

Gary Lavalles, with his hardriving rushes, was the best of the Frontenacs and earned himself three goals.

He had to take a back seat to one Belleville line which looked after all the club's scoring. Bob Boyle scored four goals, all in the second heat, and put three assists. Jim Rutherford topped all-point-getters with three goals and five assists. Grant Hagerman, third man on the line, scored the other two goals and added one assist. This trio dominated play whenever on the ice.

Single assists went to Jerry St. Denis, Roy Marsele, Harold Townsend and Bob Ethier.

Chuck Conwery topped the Kingston pointmen with two goals and three assists. Guy White and Danny White each had two goals and one helper. Les Colligan ons and three, Ed Leeman two goals. Wayne Clancy one and Brian Roe three assists.

KINGSTON: DeGuirre,Keerna, Balsom, Leeman, Watts, Conwery, Lavalles, Roe, Carr-Harris, D. Smith, Colligan, Clancy, Landon, G. White, D. White.

BELLEVILLE: Boomhower, Townsend, Ethier, Rutherford, Hagerman, Boyle, Fleming, St. Denis, Townsend, S. White, Woodcock, Stewart, Bennett.

Lema Readies Champagne

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (CP) — Tony Lema warned a thirsty entourage of golf writers Friday night not to count their champagne bottles till they pop.

The bubbly flowed freely a year ago when Tony won the Bing Crosby golf tournament and again his customary winning round for the writers will be moved into the third round of this year's renewal of the $84,500 event today with a tidy three-stroke lead.

But Lema refused to "put say-body's hopes up.

"I don't believe anyone leads this tournament until everybody has played all three courses," he said.

Each golfer plays each of the three layouts — Cypress Point, Monterey Peninsula and Pebble Beach — in the first three rounds. Today, the cycle will be completed.

The big names of the game today hit the monster of them all, Pebble Beach, a 6,336-yard, par 36-36—72. Survivors of the 54-hole cut challenge it again in the final round Sunday.

Lema had 71-66—136.

Al Balding of Markham, Ont., the leading Canadian again at the halfway mark this year, had a 70-71—141, five strokes off the pace. A stroke behind him was George Knudson of Toronto, who added a 69 to his first-round 72, and Stan Leonard's second-round 74 left the Vancouver veteran another stroke behind back at 143.

Nearest to Tony were Charley Sifford, 71-68, and Bill Collins, 69-73, each with a 139 total.

Jack Nicklaus, the 1964 money winner, shot a 68 Friday and was in the 140 group, along with Dave Ragan, Don January and Bill Casper Jr.

Arnold Palmer, with a 72, was back at 145, and U.S. Open champion Ken Venturi, after an 81-76, was far behind at 153. PGA champion Bobby Nichols' 72 gave him 141.

Regals Snap Loss String

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Regals moved to within one point of league-leading Galt Hornets Friday night with the help of the three top scorers in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series.

Guelph defeated the last-place Welland Blacks 7-4 and Regals' Dave Luciuk, Don MacGregor and Joe Malo, who are one-two-three in the scoring race, all fattened their totals.

In the other game Friday night, Woodstock Athletics extended their winning streak to five games with a 4-3 victory over Oakville Oaks. Athletics now have 24 points, six behind second-place Guelph.

Luciuk and Malo each scored twice for Guelph. Luciuk had three assists and Malo two. MacGregor had one goal and three assists. Other Guelph scorers were Erwin Grosse and Butch Edgar.

George Montague scored three for Welland and Gerry Maney added the other.

Woodstock's Ricky Eckert, a rookie, scored the winning goal in the second period against Oakville. Jake Smola, playing his first game in three years, opened the scoring for Woodstock. Gerry Stringle and Bill Power scored the others. Oakville goals came from Bill Ford, Jim DonaKeans and Norm Sibbick.

The Blabber Calls Chuvalo In Five

— Can 'Whup' Em Both'

MARLBORO, N.Y. (CP) — Ilcity fillip to the Feb. 1 fight between George Chuvalo of Toronto and former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, talked himself into a father during a visit to Patterson's training camp Thursday.

Then he insulted the mild-mannered Patterson by calling him a "white man's slave," an "Uncle Tom Negro" and a "quitter."

Was it all part of the act the Clay travelling circus has rehearsed so well?

Clay made the entire scene when he "worked over" Chuvalo during a visit to the Canadian training camp Tuesday. Rarely was he called Muhammad Ali. He was Cassius or "champ" and he didn't protest then.

GOES ALONG

The good - natured Chuvalo went along with the gag when Clay presented him with a scrub bucket and a mop.

In Clay's over - worked lexicon, Chuvalo is the "Washerwoman" because Cassius says he can't punch straight and Patterson is "the Rabbit because he fights scared like a rabbit."

After six hours of listening to Clay's painfully witty banter Tuesday, the nicknames for Chuvalo and Patterson on Thursday seemed as attractive as an overripe persimmon.

Nevertheless, Clay showed up at the Patterson camp in the Catskill Mountains 80 miles from New York City with six tried to oblige with "Mr. Ali," but never got off the launching pad in mid-ring.

Nevertheless, Clay showed up at the Patterson camp in the Catskill Mountains 80 miles from New York City with six carrots and two heads of lettuce. He had a brief poem, too, entitled The Truck and Face.

SAYS IT TWICE

He recited it twice, once for the press party at a luncheon, and then at the training camp for Floyd's benefit.

"George the Washerwoman will win, no doubt,

"Because the Rabbit has a habit of being knocked out,

"But no matter who wins on Feb. 1st,

"I'll whup them both if worse comes to worst."

Clay presented Patterson with carrots and lettuce. Patterson, a half-smile on his face, said "all right" and went along with the gag.

Clay made a mocking "no chance, no chance" comment in appraising Floyd's chances against Chuvalo. Clay picks the Canadian to win by a knockout within five rounds of the 12-round bout.

"Patterson looks in good shape," he said. "He was holding back, he just didn't show us all he had. He's boxing as good as he ever did."

Soccer Star Moved For $112,000

LONDON (AP)—Johnny Crossan, a star British soccer player, was transferred to Manchester City from Sunderland Friday for a reported $112,000.

The hard-shooting inside forward, a Northern Ireland international, used to play for Standard Liege of Belgium.

In 1957, Crossan was banned for life from British soccer after allegedly receiving illegal payments on a transfer deal. He went abroad and played for Rotterdam Sparta.

Later he joined Standard Liege and was the hero of its line bid for the European Cup of Champions three years ago. After that, British soccer officials decided to forgive him and he came home to play for Sunderland, helping it win promotion to the English first division last season.

SELLS SOVEREIGN

LONDON (AP)—Tony Boyden said Friday he has sold Sovereign, Britain's flop in the America's Cup yacht race last year, to a French syndicate for $61,000. The 12-metre yacht cost Boyden $112,000 to build.

Marlies Win, Habs Tie

Flyers Thump Petes 6-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Flyers haven't a single player near the top of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A scoring race but they're rugged as stars with a strong team effort.

Hap Emms, manager, coach and owner of the Flyers, admitted recently he couldn't tell which of his club's three lines are the best.

"One night the (Ted) Snell line looks the best, the next it may be (Derek) Sanderson's, then another time (Rossjo) Palamaker."

Friday night it was the Snell line as centre Ted Dehrody fired three goals to pace the Flyers to a 6-1 whipping of third-place Peterborough Petes. The victory left Niagara Falls two points ahead of Toronto Marlboros with 56.

In other action, Toronto posted their second win in two nights as they downed Kitchener Rangers 5-3. Montreal Junior Canadiens battled to a 3-3 tie with St. Catharines Black Hawks.

Snell, Bill Goldsworthy and rookie Jean Pronovost collected the other Niagara Falls' goals while Andre Lacroix, the current Hart Trophy ace with 91 points, scored his 31st goal of the season for Peterborough.

Brit Selby hit for two Toronto goals with teammates Mike Corrigan, Mike Byers and Jim McKenny adding the others. Bob Jones, Bill Hway and Sandy Fitzpatrick scored for Kitchener.

Christian Bordeleau, Carol Vadnais and Craig Patrick netted the Montreal goals while Paul Trebenchke, Wayne Maki and Ken Hodge tallied for St. Catharines.

But Some Are On Solid Ground

Answers Critics Who Rap Minor Hockey

By JACK SULLIVAN

Canadian Press Sports Editor

Over the years, organized minor hockey in Canada has been rapped by people who say the sport is over-organized, that parents interfere with coaches who in turn teach the kids one thing: win at any cost.

In some cases the critics are on solid ground and they'll probably have something to say about it when Canada celebrates minor hockey week starting today.

But there's a chap in Toronto, who asks anonymity and who says he'd "love to punch these people in the nose because they are the ones condemning thousands of persons for the faults of only a few."

"Everything these people say may be true of about one per cent of the coaches and parents, but they overlook a few important facts and one is that there are nearly 11,000 teams in organized minor hockey in this country and nearly 300,000 kids under 18 years old playing the game.

"If this sport weren't organized, the kids wouldn't have any hockey. The American way—efficiently forget this little fact of life."

FEW ZEALOTS

This particular minor hockey supporter has been working with youngsters for nearly 10 years and has a son playing in an organized league.

"Ninety-nine per cent of the kids playing the game—or given the opportunity to play hockey—are getting fun out of it. The results of organized games and leagues can only be good. They give kids a much better chance to develop physically and I don't think they are hurt psychologically, that is they don't adopt a 'gotta-win' attitude. If so, it is a really small percentage.

"A boy playing hockey soon develops into a family affair. Everybody in that family is interested and what is wrong with that?"

He thought that the mothers should be given credit for helping kids getting into the game.

"In our particular league nearly half the kids are driven to the rink by their mothers. You'll find mothers cheering and yelling at games but they are supporting teams, not individual players. They aren't pressuring the kids to win."

Minor hockey in this country it is big business.

Each year the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association grants $3,000 to each of its nine branches for the promotion and administration of minor hockey.

Jack Christie of Toronto, secretary of the Minor Hockey Committee of the CAHA, estimates that minor players, their teams and governing bodies pour more than $2,000,000 annually into the cash registers of sporting goods stores, gasoline stations, restaurants, bus companies, arenas and other suppliers of commodities necessary to keep Canadian boys as ice.

He and his committee have been issuing pamphlets for weeks and all stress the idea that it is "just a game" and the kids should have fun playing it.

'Too Many Old-Timers'

Says Canadian Pro Football Is Doomed

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — One of the outstanding linemen in the Canadian Football League says the organization will collapse within seven years.

John Barrow, an all - star tackle with Hamilton Tiger-Cats since he joined the Eastern Conference club in 1957, told a Grey Club dinner Friday night "too many old-timers" are connected with the professional game in Canada.

"We just aren't selling the game like the American and National Football Leagues in the United States," said Barrow, an All-American at the University of Florida before he turned professional with the Tiger-Cats. "We have to get young blood, young promoters with new ideas, if Canadian football is to survive."

Barrow was critical of the CFL playoff setup, under which nine teams play through an entire schedule—14 games in the East, 16 in the West—to eliminate three from post-season play.

"Most of the players make less money on a per-game basis during the playoffs than during league games," he said. "I know the extra money is needed to help pay the bills but it would be much more sensible to have a 20-game schedule, then have the pennant - winners in each conference meet for the Grey Cup."

He urged the immediate erection of stadiums with at least 50,000 seating capacity. "Otherwise we'll be relegated to minor-league status not unlike the United Football League."

Rule May Extend To League Games

Spare Goalies For NHL Playoffs Clubs

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Hockey League, at its Feb. 2 meeting, is expected to adopt a rule requiring teams to have a spare goaltender dressed and on the bench during the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Jim Norris, co-owner of Chicago Black Hawks, said Friday the league's board of governors later may extend the same rule to all league games.

"The rule will cover only the playoffs this time," said Norris "but we hope it can become a permanent practice to dd reference to fans who now must wait 20 minutes or so if an emergency goalie has to dress and warm up."

Every team in the league except Boston Bruins, carries two goalies, but the non-starter watches the game in street clothes from the stands.

Norris said the board proposed the new rule for playoffs to eliminate such situations as prevailed in the Black Hawks-Detroit Red Wing Stanley Cup playoff last year.

Terry Sawchuk, then regular Red Wing goalie, twice had to be excused in the middle of games because of a back injury. His replacement took about 25 minutes to don pads and warm up each time.

Aim Of Canadian Association

'Bring Lacrosse Out Of The Dark Ages'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Lacrosse Association opens its annual meeting here today with one of the main aims, in the words of president Ed Blair, to "bring lacrosse out of the dark ages."

The weekend meeting will set up a series of working committees to mull over problems and make reports Sunday. The site for a lacrosse hall of fame—New Westminster, B.C., and Cornwall, Ont., both have bids in—and locations for playoffs are among the decisions to be made.

But a prime problem for the executive will be how to promote more interest in the game that CLA members feel has an earlier and stronger claim to being Canada's national sport than any other.

It is a game the white man learned from the Indian in Canada and, whether ever officially recognized as the national sport or not, that settles the argument for lacrosse devotees.

CLA members admit that communication has become a problem in the decline of lacrosse. The sport has become one of regional interest, with hotbeds flourishing in British Columbia and Ontario.

SEES RESURGENCE

But it is coming back, with support growing in Manitoba and particularly Quebec. And Blair feels that with better communication, "so that we know what's going on in other areas," and some diligent work there will be a real resurgence.

Blair, from Huntonville, Ont., says there has to be "a revolution, a renaissance, or whatever you want to call it."

There are about 30,000 lacrosse players in the sport in Canada, he said in an interview. The game has been reorganized as a great one for physical conditioning and 62 universities in the United States have picked it up.

A row To film on lacrosse has been prepared and will be distributed in Canada through the National Fitness Council. All these things are helping put the sport more in the public eye.

The association also has plans for a sort of world lacrosse title to be played in Canada during 1967, the centennial year.

England will be sending a team to the eastern United States in 1966 and Australia and New Zealand will be sending teams to the western United States. It is hoped that Canada can get a western representative into the western U.S. and an eastern team in the eastern seaboard. Arrangements then would be made for a championship game for Canada in 1967.

Win Triple-Header

BCI Defeats Brighton

By DAVID TEMPLER

The BCI squads scored a triple victory on the Brighton court last night. The seniors completely overwhelmed Brighton with a 101-27 victory. The Juniors won 56-44 and the bantams squeaked out a 37-36 decision.

In the senior game, a hard-pressing collegian team held Brighton to 9 points in the first half while scoring 49. The press continued throughout the game and the inexperienced Brighton squad had difficulty in moving the ball past centre. The smooth precision of the Belleville five was always in evidence.

Dave Anderson, the playmaker of the squad, played an excellent game. The deadly accuracy of Murray Swan (29 points), Ron Walsh (27), Doug Perks (18) and Allan Mott (15) was displayed as the collegians' passes invariably opened holes in the Brighton defence.

The other scorers for BCI were Don MacCormack (6), Dave Anderson (4), Dick Gillis (4), Mike Reddick (4) and Ian Wilson (2).

For Brighton the Brown brothers scored 13 of the 27 points and pumped a fair defensive game.

In the junior game a good defensive effort by John Chalmers (8 points) stopped many a Brighton basket. Tom Loenie hit for 16 points while Jim Mc-Creary (6) and Bruce Sheridan, playmakers of the squad, scored 14 and11 respectively.

The other scorers for BCI were Boulma, Joynes, Harder and Thibeau with 2 points and MacFarlane with one.

For Brighton the high scorers were Hamilton (18), Markvart (12), Pierson and Rogers with eight apiece.

For the bantams, David Cass ran wild and scored 22 points of BCI's 37-36 margin. Brian Shea played an excellent offensive and defensive game. Rod Ridley's playmaking set up a number of BCI's scoring plays.

For Brighton the high scorers were Blanc with 10 points and Graham with 8 points.

Liston Has Brush With Cops

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Another brush between Sonny Liston, former world heavyweight boxing champion, and police was disclosed Friday.

Police stopped Liston's car last week when they observed the temporary licence sticker was two days past the expiration date.

They said the fighter told them: "I've been having a lot of trouble getting a licence."

He is scheduled to be tried Jan. 29 on a charge of driving while under the influence of alcohol Christmas Day.

NEW ADVENTURE FROM HARLEY-DAVIDSON

Meet the M-50. New from Harley-Davidson. Continental styling, American standards of quality. Under an all-steel, welded frame, the M-50 packs a spirited 50 c.c. engine that's so easy on fuel it puts nearly 300 miles between filling stations. Take a test ride. Glide through the gears, level off at 40 mph. for some of the smoothest cruising on two wheels. Husky internal expanding brakes bring you back down safely, swiftly. And its personality! Adventuresome, undemanding, but definitely split — one side for fun, the other for low-cost, practical transportation. One ride and you'll agree — the Harley-Davidson M-50 is the greatest new go on wheels. See it at:

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

Inasmuch as hockey is trying to improve its "image", I think the National Hockey League would do well to have a scientific study made regarding maintaining ice conditions on artificial rinks.

The NHL certainly made an improvement of the game when they decreed that the ice should be resurfaced after the period's injury warm-up period before a game.

The need is greater than ever these days in the major stadiums where NHL games are played, because of their use for other events.

For instance, recently we played an exhibition game in Pittsburgh. There had been a circus there ahead of us. Instead of taking up the ice, they laid fibre mats over it because there wasn't enough time to make new ice between the time the circus ended and the time our hockey game was scheduled.

As a result, the ice was soft, spotty and sticky. It was hard to skate on. It was impossible to get puck control.

When you get these unfavorable conditions, it makes for a bad game. In addition to the players having trouble carrying the puck, passing is difficult because the puck will hop and skip instead of sliding along the ice.

Of course, the size of a crowd can affect the ice surface too. When there is a capacity crowd in a heated arena, the temperature goes up and it is tough on the players.

The warmth also results in poor ice conditions. When they have a sweaty ice surface, they have to be very careful in trying to eliminate it by lowering the temperature or the brine that controls the refrigeration.

If they drop the brine temperature too abruptly, brittle ice results. It will chip and when you go to make a sudden stop or turn your skates throw chunks of ice in the air like a blizzard.

The next thing you know your skates are digging into the concrete. A scientific study of ice conditioning would benefit all hockey.

OPENS MONDAY

Versatile Shelley Winters Leads Starring Role As Famed Madam

More than 100 top-ranking stars were interviewed and auditioned before Academy Award-winner, Shelley Winters, was selected to play Polly Adler in the Joseph E. Levine presentation of her autobiography, "A House Is Not A Home", coming Monday for three days only to the Park Theatre, through Embassy Pictures release.

Several problems were involved in the complex role of a woman who rose from poverty to affluence and retired from the business of prostitution. Miss Winters, a native of St. Louis, Missouri, is the daughter of Russian immigrant. Following a tragic experience with the first man she loved, Polly would go on a progressive transformation from factory worker to small-time party hostess, providing racketeers with entertainment and ultimately becoming a cultured worldly and elegant proprietress of a sumptuous establishment catering to countless people of distinction of the New York professional, business and political scene of the 1930's. Polly was also the considerable action of being able to age visually with the passage of time.

Some of the stars initially interviewed were suited to play the youthful Polly and others, the mature able proprietress, but none of them could measure up to the demands of the complete transitional portrayal.

Then Joe Levine met Shelley Winters at a party in Rome and intrigued her with the story and a description of the main character. Miss Winters was fascinated by the role's complex personality and the challenge it presented to an actress when asked to return to the United States, the contracts were signed. Select short subjects will also be shown at the Park Theatre.

'Trotters' Win Over Greenwood

TRENTON (Special) — A rough and ragged third period which saw both clubs called to centre ice for warnings, highlighted Trenton RCAF Globetrotters' 8-3 exhibition win over the RCAF Greenwood Bombers here last night.

448 paying customers turned out to see the Trotters and the squad from Nova Scotia do battle.

Trenton, outshooting the Bombers 39-30, took a 2-1 edge in the opening frame and led 6-1 after two heats.

In the rugged third, Greenwood outshot the Globetrotters 6-4 and outscored them 2-0.

Both clubs used high sticking, elbowing and tripping tactics early in the third and at 8.05, Trenton's Austin Scott and Simpson of the visitors drew majors. Scott was cut on the head and retired for stitching.

A batch of minor penalties followed and shortly after that play was stopped. Referee McKitrick called both teams to centre ice and issued warnings all round. That slowed matters considerably.

Bernie LaLiberte was the game's top goal-getter while leading the Trenton attack. He clicked for three goals and teammate Joe St. Pierre got two more. The others went to Frank Lewis, Harold "Bugs" McDonald and Austin Scott.

Guy DeLorne sandwiched two goals around one by Doug Earle to account for the Greenwood scoring.

The Bombers were Maritime Armed Forces champions last season.

Globetrotters will play the first of two games against Cornwall Intermediates here next Friday.

Minor Hockey

Low scores and shutouts were prominent in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's novice and tyke games played last night.

In tyke games Canadiens nipped the Bruins 2-1, Leafs blanked the Rangers 4-0 and Wings edged the Hawks 2-1.

Scott James and Joe Saucy fired the Canadien goals with Eric Powell replying for the Bruins.

Peter Crawford starred for the Leafs with three goals. Ricky Culkin netted the other one.

Wing goal-getters were Howie Meeks and Claude Landry. John Lynch potted the Hawk goal.

In the novice division, Teepees shutout the Barons 2-0 and Maroons defeated the Hawks 4-1.

Billy Coughlin and Paul Williams were the Teepee marksmen.

Larry Kirby got a goal and assist to pace the Maroon victory. Shelly Morris, Bruce Sheppard and John Masterson also scored. Keith Pearce netted the Hawk goal, aided by W. Warner.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

Scots Win Four Games

SCHUMACHER, Ont. (CP) — The visiting Strathcona Cup curlers from Scotland won four of six games Friday, but one of their rinks had the biggest single end of the tour scored against it.

On the day's play in this Northern Ontario town near Timmins, the Scottish team collected 76 points to make its aggregate score 77 after the tour began in Vancouver Jan. 7. The Canadians got 44 to bring their total to 937.

No 'Boot Hill' for Adam He Will Ride Into Sunset

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Now it turns out that Adam Cartwright will not end up on Boot Hill in Bonanza brothers, he is unrelenting in his plan to leave. His departure date is Feb. 23, and Pernell sings it as something of a holiday.

His plans?

"I have none right now. Certainly I would like to get back to the theatre. I would like to do films and television, too, as long as I can do something that has depth and meaning to it."

At any rate, he has no worries about his immediate future. His original Bonanza contract called for $1,250 a show. The ante has been raised each year, but he has deferred payments. As a result, he calculates his income will be at least $500 a week for the next five years. Not bad severance pay.

Pernell scoffs at the notion that his departure from Bonanza will harm the series.

"I've heard the arguments that I am destroying the image' and 'breaking up a winning combination,'" he remarked. "I don't believe it. That is a money-oriented kind of thinking that's dwindling. There is another, more human approach that actors are expendable. I'm sure Bonanza can carry on without me."

"Lorne and I are not too compatible," Pernell commented.

Despite the pleas of the two Bonanza brothers, he is unrelenting in his plan to leave. His departure date is Feb. 23, and Pernell sings it as something of a holiday.

Olympic Gold On Display

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The form that won Olympic gold medals for four athletes will be on display tonight at the sixth annual Los Angeles invitational track meet.

And Bill Crothers, Canada's Athlete of the Year for 1964, is the favorite in a rugged double in the 800 and 1,500-yard runs. The Markham, Ont., druggist was a silver medalist in the 800-metre run at Tokyo.

The quartet of gold medalists is comprised of Mike Larrabee in the 500 - yard dash, Rex Cawley in the high hurdles, Billy Mills in the two-mile run and Wyomia Tyus in the women's 60-yard dash.

Harry Jerome of Vancouver, who won a third - place bronze medal in the 100-metre dash and just missed another in the 200 at Tokyo, drops to a shorter distance in the 60-yard sprint.

Old Ball Eagle Retires

NEW YORK (AP) — Y. A. Tittle, the old Ball Eagle quarterback of the New York Giants, retired Friday after 17 years in professional football—the longest career of any player in modern history.

Tittle said he figured it was time to quit at the age of 39 when rookie quarterback Gary Wood of Cornell not only "took care of me" but started to ask permission to date my daughter."

"That's when I figured it was time to get the heck out of here."

Actually, Tittle's daughter, Diane, is only 15, and he was only kidding about Wood's interest.

But I did not want to be a coach—not even a head coach," said, "a player just hanging on, and I certainly was a mediocre player this past year."

The Giants fell from first to last in the Eastern Division of the National Football League last season and Tittle ranked at the bottom of the list of passing statistics.

Tittle will be retained by the Giants as a public relations man, scout and general booster of friends. He will not coach.

The 6-foot-4 Tittle will retire his number, 14, and turned the jersey and helmet over to Tittle.

Tittle played 10 seasons in the NFL, one fewer than Sam Baugh, and with his two seasons in the All - America Conference set a pro record for longevity.

He played 10 years for San Francisco 49ers of the NFL before he joined the Giants.

The NFL record book lists a full page of Tittle's records, including career marks for passes in a season, 37; most passes, 3,817; most completed, 2,118; most yards gained, 29,934; most touchdown passes, 212; most touchdown passes in one game, seven; most games played, 178.

Aces Defeat Lancaster 7-2

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Jim Forrest paced Kingston to victory with three goals in a 7-2 Ottawa - St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League game over Lancaster Dodgers here Friday night.

Ron Earl, Pete Robertson, Wally Travis and Ed Long added other Kingston goals while George Sinfield netted both Lancaster markers.

McKenney Scores In A.L. Debut

Don McKenney barely got his suitcase unpacked before leaving the National Hockey League for the first time in 11 years because scoring notes on his ex-players that he's homesick.

Toronto Maple Leafs sent their slumping forward to Rochester of the American League to recover his shooting eye. In his first outing with the Americans Friday night he scored a goal as they downed Springfield Indians 7-3.

It was only an insurance tally in a five-goal outburst in the third period, but it offered "no onto coach Punch Imlach a hint that all McKenney needed to recover his effectiveness was liberation from the far end of the Toronto bench, where he has spent most of his time in recent weeks.

While the Americans were strengthening their hold on first place in the AHL's Western Division, Leo Gravelle and Providence Reds scored a 5-3 victory over Quebec Aces, the Eastern Division leaders. Cleveland Barons dumped Hershey Bears 7-3 and Baltimore Clippers whipped Buffalo Bisons 5-2 in Friday's other games.

'Wrong-Way' Marshall Does It Again

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The Dallas Bonehead Club said Friday Jim Marshall went the wrong way again—and wound up in Chicago instead of Dallas. Tex., where he had supposed to receive the annual Bonehead Award of the Year Football Award.

Marshall, defensive end for Minnesota Vikings, was selected for running off on the wrong way in the Viking-Green Bay National Football League playoff loser resulted in a two-point safety touch for the 49ers but the Vikings won.

Brad Angers, who handled arrangements for Marshall's visit, said a delegation went to Dallas' Live Field to greet Marshall as on a routine flight. No Marshall.

Then Angers learned he had a long-distance telephone call.

"Hello Brad," said the voice on the phone, as Angers related it, "this is Jim Marshall. I'm in the air terminal in Chicago."

"It's absolutely on the level," said Angers. "Somehow he got on the wrong plane."

The club decided to go ahead and present the award in absentia to Marshall at a luncheon.

Dawn Fraser 'Takes' Bike, Arrested

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Olympic swimming champion Dawn Fraser was arrested in the Tokyo police only a few hours before she carried Australia's flag in the closing ceremonies of the Olympic Games last October, it was learned today.

The story of Miss Fraser's arrest is reported by a Melbourne morning paper, The Sun, in the first published excerpts from her autobiography, Gold Medal Girl.

The newspaper reports that Miss Fraser was in the garden of Tokyo Imperial Palace and was "borrowed" a policeman's bicycle without his consent.

During the chase that followed, she badly injured her left ankle in unsuccessful attempt to make a getaway swim across the palace moat.

Miss Fraser won gold medals in the 100-metre freestyle in the 1956, 1960 and 1964 Olympics, a feat unmatched by any other swimmer, man or woman.

Demorestville

DEMORESTVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Hagar and Mrs. Shirley Welsh have started on a trip to Tennessee. Paul and David Turner are staying with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wood, while their parents are on a trip to Tennessee.

The Women's Institute meeting was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Covert. Miss Catherine McDermaid gave a report of her trip to California, Florida, British Columbia and Nova Scotia. Those were thoroughly enjoyed.

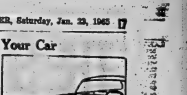
Kiwanis Club Marks Golden Anniversary

TWEED — Tweed Kiwanis Club celebrated the golden anniversary of Kiwanis with a Kiwanis Ladies' Night on Thursday, January 14th. The dinner served by Tweed Rebekah Lodge No. 236. The guest speaker for the evening was Squadron Leader E. Martin. Mr. George Waldrum, president of Tweed Kiwanis Club presided over the meeting. All charter members of the Tweed club were present for the meeting which had been planned by a committee composed of the past presidents of the club under the chairmanship of charter president, Ray Weldrew.



Following the remarks of the speaker the Tweed Club pledge was given. In recognition of efforts on behalf of community service, Mr. George Waldrum, the president, said he believes that our golden anniversary is significant because it marks a half-century of service in an idea of service that has grown until it touches directly or indirectly practically every man, woman and child in the area we serve."

Reeve Guy Hughes honored Tweed Kiwanis Club by declaring this to be Kiwanis golden anniversary week in the Village of Tweed and urged citizens and every citizen to join him in wishing this organization of fellow citizens a happy birthday and many more to come in the years that lie ahead.

POLIO HITS LOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Infantile paralysis declined to a record low in the United States last year, lower even than health officials expected. The public health service reported Friday that, throughout 1964, only 121 cases were listed in the United States, contrasted to about 40,000 annually only a decade ago, before the advent of the Salk and Sabin vaccines.

Your Car

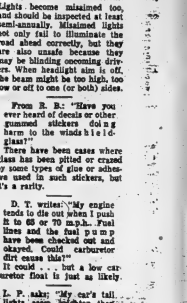
Be Sure Car Can 'See' After Dark

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Many a surprised driver has been ticketed for driving with just one headlight — proving that too little attention is given to these vital safety parts. Even knowing that headlights are working isn't enough . . . they must be working properly.

Dim lights are fairly common and definitely a hazard, particularly on the open road. They may be caused by loose or corroded lamp sockets or wiring — or a weak battery — or, as often the case, by heavy corrosion which has formed at the battery terminal connections. Lights become misaimed too, and should be inspected at least semi-annually. Misaimed lights are the fail to illuminate drivers used in such stickers, but it's a myth.

D. T. writes: "My engine tends to die out when I push it to 65 or 70 m.p.h.. Fuel lines and the fuel pump have been checked out and okayed. Could carburetor dirt cause this?"



It could . . . but a low carburetor float is just as likely.

L. P. asks: "My car's tail lights seem brighter than the stoplights. I know this is the opposite of what it should be . . . why?"

They're not properly installed. Remove them — turn them halfway around and re-insert.

From A. Y.: "Oil doesn't wear out, so why never changing it so often?"

No, it doesn't actually — but it does get dirty, diluted, contaminated, and breakdown to such point where it loses effectiveness.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For January 24

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Be aware of comfort of guests, loved ones. Combine practical approach with imaginative and sensitive to needs of others. Then you are appreciated. Heed spiritual counsel.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Good time to make plans which involve contact with public — circles of friends. Concentrate on expansion. Move forward instead of backward. Key is optimistic deliberation.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Check details. Be observant. You can perceive clues which others overlook. Act accordingly. Best to be moderate where eating, drinking habits are concerned.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Good lunar aspect highlights attention to children, hobbies. Plan for travel, recreation. Many observe. Be charming, creative. Appreciate possessions.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Get sufficient rest, relax. Emotional fulfillment indicated. You are closer to success than you imagine. Be calm and tactful. Then you can make major gains.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 23): Don't allow minor matters to irritate you. Be beyond immediate indications. Obtain valuable hint from today's Taurus message. Important letter remains to be written!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Ideas sparkle. You may find ways to increase income. Handle responsibility with aplomb. Important individual due to offer suggestion. Express gratitude.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Be discriminating. Choose the best. Overcome temptation to scatter your forces. Fine for being good guest or host. Surprise contacts indicated. Good!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): If you hang on to past methods . . . there is delay. Key is self-confidence. Take initiative. Try original ways. Express independence of thought.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Combine intellect and emotions. Strive for balance. Friends and romance are highlighted. Your wishes can be fulfilled. But you must put forth extra effort.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Good to study ambitions. Don't permit pride to dominate direction. If change is indicated, make it. Consult expert. Heed words of individual with experience.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Friends ask for your advice, decision — analytical. Study various angles, methods. What glitters may not be of lasting value. Attend church of your choice.

If today is your birthday . . . you are home-loving, capable of understanding those with problems — and your creative energies demand outlet. This could come in form of music, acting.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricorn. Special word to Cancer: Avoid actions based purely on impulse. Don't jump from frying pan into fire!

To order Sydney Omarr's 50-page booklet, The Truth About Astrology sends 50c to Omarr Booklet, Box 2940, Grand Central Station, New York 17, N.Y.

For January 25

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Best to curtail plans which involve huge expenditures. Investigate . . . you may not be aware of all facts. One you admire returns the compliment. Be gracious.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Restrictions now pose challenge. Element of luck on your side. But don't be authority you seem to "bear down." Stand firm. Maintain calm, dignity. Adhere to principles.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Expects good. Minor mishap should not be blown up out of proportion. Day features change, travel — creative endeavors. Message received contains valid information.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Get final word from authorities. Good time to question those who teach. Time to widen professional scope. There are variations on theme . . . you could find short cut.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): You've been working hard. Don't permit tension to disrupt personal relations. One who pays for your efforts deserves civil explanation. Cycle on way up . . . get needed rest.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 23): Display ability to handle responsibility. Past responsibilities due to "catch up." Press hard for what you know to be right. You earn added respect. Hold off on unnecessary travel.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Key is finishing what you start. You show grin where there has been frown. Superiors impressed. Listen to individual who trusts you. Problem that is "confused" is serious one.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Cycle continues high. But tendency is to see loved one through rose-colored glasses. Don't be too very practical. Then you overcome major obstacle. Key is being logical.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Investigate. Utilize your sense of curiosity. Ask questions. Find reasons why. Be factual rather than emotional. Exceptional degree of progress indicated. Go to it!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Hold tight to purse strings. Tendency is to be extravagant. Member of opposite sex figures prominently. Be charming without going overboard. You can't buy love.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Don't attempt to mix business with friendships. Be aware of responsibilities, regulations and rules. Adhere to regulations. Then you are admired, praised.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): You recently learned valuable lesson. Now apply that knowledge. Changes made too quickly could prove costly. Move ahead with planning. Don't step on toes of one who admires you.

If today is your birthday . . . you are introspective, often considered a dreamer. But more often than not you come up with ideas which prove you are somewhat a genius.

General Tendencies: Where money and security is concerned — this simply is not a favorable day.

Enthusiastic Student Wants to Study Abroad

DEAR DORIS — Would you please tell me something about the finishing schools in Switzerland? Things like how long it will require me to stay there, what you learn, and how much it costs? How much schooling do you require?

I thought my languages might help me there. I speak French, Spanish and English (of course.) — SWITZERLAND OR BUST.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR S. OR B. — There is an assortment of attractive boarding schools, French, German, and Italian. There are schools for boys, for girls, and for both boys and girls. Some start at six, some at 16. Chiefly the schooling is at secondary school level, although the variety is terrific: languages, commerce, trades, arts, combined with sports, crafts; may lead to matriculation diploma or to a degree.

A handsome little brochure was supplied to me by the Ambassador of Switzerland on your behalf, and I am sending it on. It goes into all this, and the preface says in part: "Our schools educate their pupils in a free spirit. They help the young generation to open their hearts and their eyes to the problems of the present and the future."

Life in the heart of such picture book scenery would in itself open anyone's eyes toward some lofty thinking!

DEAR DORIS — G.W. asked for other people's point of view about using good linen, dishes, silver and eating in the dining room. I would say a good idea. We always start the New Year in this festive mood, then Valentine, Easter, each birthday as it comes, then Christmas.

Each new year starts the pleasant changeover again. Although we are alone now we still keep up the custom and enjoy it, even though we miss our children joining us upon those occasions. — KEEPING OUT OF A RUT.

DEAR KEEPING — If you've kept yourself flexible enough to stay out of a rut, you're in the groove!

Confidential to GLORIA — Your message is charming — but too late in arrival to make a Christmas issue. I'm saving it.

DEAR DORIS — I am 11 years old and I love the Beatles. My father thinks that I'm crazy. He says that they are a bunch of wild nuts singing together.

Every time I sing or play a Beatle record he goes nuts. I think I should have my own choice on who I like in singing. What do you think I should do? — THOUGHT OF BEING CRAZY.

DEAR THOUGHT — Make a bargain with Pop to play one of the records he loves for him, if he'll let you play one of yours.

Flying Bishop of Cariboo

Girdles Globe for Anglican Church

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — Rt. Rev. Ralph Dean, Anglican Bishop of Cariboo, has landed a job that will take him twice around the world in the space of six months.

London-born Bishop Dean, 51, whose diocese covers 60,000 square miles in the British Columbia interior, took up a five-year appointment in November as executive officer of the Anglican communion. Since then he has made a global trip, taking in India, Hong Kong, Japan and Canada, and plans second, involving Africa and Korea, late this spring.

Bishop Dean's job is to act as liaison officer and co-ordinator of the 18 churches within the 44,000,000-member communion. His headquarters are a luxurious, book-lined office in London's aristocratic Belgravia but he expects to spend almost as much time in airport lounges as he does behind his desk.

"My main concern is with missionary and ecumenical matters," Bishop Dean said in an interview. "I haven't any over-all authority. I'm something like a roving ambassador doing a public relations job."

CHURCHES MERGE

Bishop Dean is likely to have close connections during the next five years with the disappearance by merger of several of the churches within the Anglican communion. As a firm believer in the ecumenical movement, nothing would give him greater pleasure.

Anglicans, Methodists, Baptists and other Protestant churches united in 1947 to establish the United Church of South India. During his recent trip, Bishop Dean found discussions well advanced for a similar move in northern India, Pakistan and Burma.

"I visited Durgapur, a new industrial complex about 100 miles north of Calcutta, and found a united church already at work.

"This is a tremendously significant move. A united church will be established in Nigeria next May and possibly in Ghana later in the year.

"These churches, although they leave the Anglican communion, become part of something we call the Wider Episcopal Fellowship. We Anglicans don't feel we are giving something up when unification takes place. We feel we're adding to something larger."

MUST BE FLEXIBLE

Bishop Dean is convinced the Anglican community must remain fluid and be prepared to adapt itself to the winds of change blowing in various parts of the world.

For instance, he is fairly certain there will never be another worldwide Anglican congress as there was in Toronto in 1963.

"The effective unit will be the regional congress. We found it hard enough to handle 1,200 delegates in Toronto and grant them all freedom of speech in a 10-day period. It will be even harder 10 years from now."

When he isn't travelling, Bishop Dean's main task is to supervise the various mission-ary projects that have developed out of the declaration of mutual responsibility and interdependence issued at the Toronto congress.

His office maintains and revises a check list of the needs of each of the various churches and keeps track of the progress other churches have made to meet these needs. The Anglican Church of Canada, for instance, has committed itself to several projects in west AQFRICA.

The bishop has also found he needs to be something of a journalist in his new post to keep up with the requests for magazine articles and papers. On top of this he will play a major part in organizing the Lambeth conference of 600-odd Anglican bishops in 1968.

At least once or twice a year Bishop Dean hopes to return to his Cariboo diocese "just to see how things are going." During a five-day stopover there in December on his way back from Japan, he dedicated two churches, conducted a confirmation service and ordained two deacons.

Although he spent his first years in the priesthood working in London slum churches and is delighted to be back in England, he is also firmly attached to Canada and determined to return to the Cariboo when his work here is over.

Former Marine Engages in Gun Battle

MONTROSE, Calif. (AP)—A former U.S. marine engaged law officers Thursday in an hour-long, pre-dawn gun battle that terrified neighbors for blocks around in this foothill suburb of Los Angeles.

Burt L. Secrest, 39, then started to surrender, officers said, but whipped out a small pistol hidden in his right sock and aimed it at a free-lance photographer who had taken his picture.

Sheriff's deputies said the gun didn't fire but the photographer, Albert L. Walters, 23, said Secrest got off one shot before the gun jammed. Five officers overpowered Secrest.

During the siege, officers said, Secrest fired at least 20 shots at them while crouched behind a concrete stairway at his apartment house. They said they returned four shots. No one was hit.

DEATH COMES TO CHURCHILL

Freezing Rain, Snow Snarled Weekend Traffic

Storm Took 7 Lives; Heaviest Fall in City

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Snow followed by freezing rain snarled weekend traffic across southern Ontario, and early today many city side streets and country roads were still coated with ice in hazardous driving conditions.

At least seven deaths were attributed to the storm, which dumped up to a foot of snow on most of the region Saturday and then crusted it with heavy rain Sunday.

A storm front from the mid-western United States reached the Lake Superior area Sunday night, bringing cloudy skies and some light snow to Northern Ontario. The weather office said it could extend into southern Ontario later today as temperatures moderate to near the freezing level.

Meanwhile, the weekend disturbance moved east out of Ontario after dropping about five inches of snow in the Ottawa area Sunday.

The storm struck late Friday night and reached a peak Saturday evening. During that time Hamilton received 16 inches of snow and 55-mile-an-hour winds that piled drifts six feet high.

WORST SINCE 1944

Street Commissioner William Mutrhead called it the worst storm to hit Hamilton since 1944, when 48 inches of snow fell.

The snowfall varied from nine inches in Toronto and one inch in Windsor to six inches in Chatham. Most southern Ontario centres reported about six inches.

Police closed several sections of Highways 4, 73 and 8 in the London - Stratford area and motorists were advised not to use the Queen Elizabeth Way between Toronto and Hamilton Saturday night.

Two Kitchener men died Saturday when their car slid into a CNR passenger train in downtown Kitchener. An eight-year-old boy was struck and killed by a car Saturday. A woman was crushed against a parked car in Hamilton Friday night and a month-old infant died of head injuries after a traffic accident outside Hamilton. The other dead, a 29-year-old man, was killed in a four-car pileup on the outskirts of Windsor Sunday.

Belleville and the Bay of Quinte district is still digging out from under the heaviest snowfall of the winter received over the weekend.

The city pump house in West Belleville reported nine inches of snow fell, along with .03 inch of freezing rain which yesterday caused added misery for the motorists.

In some areas of the Quinte district up to 11 inches of snow fell.

Snow removal crews in the city were still busy this morning cleaning up from the snowfall while many of the city's sidewalks were still to receive a first visit from sidewalk plows.

City engineer Wilbur Purcell said this morning that plowing is progressing very well.

He said snow removal was almost completed in the downtown area, but bedgaus of traffic, crews were being pulled off until evening.

Plowing was still continuing on side streets, however.

Sidewalk plowing was also almost up to schedule although the sidewalk plows were finding the going a bit tougher because of higher snow banks.

Yesterday's freezing rain and sleet coated plowed roads with a sheath of ice making driving treacherous, while the ice also created windshields and rear windows, reducing visibility and adding to the driving hazard.

Today a few school buses were running a bit behind schedule as heavy country roads in some instances slowed the morning trip to high schools in the city.

A check of schools, however, revealed that all but one bus actually got in before nine o'clock and the start of classes.

The very bitter intensity of the weather acted in favor of road safety.

At one point Sunday afternoon, its severity virtually swept traffic from roads and highways.

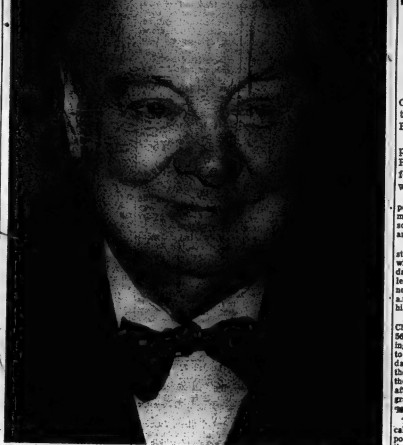
This in turn greatly reduced the possibility of accidents.

Coldest mishap over the weekend was on Sation Street Saturday night when cars driven by Gerald Hughes, 64-A South Foster Ave., and Mrs. James Alexander, 92 Emily St., collided, causing $1,000 damage.

Viscount Alexander Heads Churchill Memorial Appeal

LONDON (CP) — Field Marshal Viscount Alexander of Tunis, former governor - general of Canada, will launch an international appeal for a memorial to Sir Winston Churchill, it was announced Sunday night.

Prime Minister Wilson, in the course of a statement on funeral plans, said Alexander will soon announce details of the appeal, which is "being organized on an international basis by close friends and colleagues" of Churchill. Wilson said that Churchill himself regarded Churchill College, Cambridge, as his national memorial.



"The new appeal will enable the public in this country and abroad to show their respect for his memory by contributing further to that foundation and to other similar causes which the organizers will announce in due course."

The House of Commons is to have its own statue of Sir Winston. The stone likeness will be placed at the Churchill arch, through which members enter the chamber.

Alexander, one of Churchill's best - loved wartime commanders and later defence minister in a peacetime Churchill government, said in his tribute, to the dead leader:

"The greatest Englishman of our generation now has gone to the rest he has so well earned. We mourn his death."

Symbol Of Human Valor Conquered By Inevitable; State Funeral Saturday

'Greatest Man Any Have Known' Dies Quietly, Peacefully Sunday

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Amid a tumultuous outpouring of sorrow, Sir Winston Churchill, the great human symbol of courage and freedom, will be borne through the streets of London in a state funeral unrivalled in solemn grandeur in Britain's long and colorful history.

Saddened by "inexpressible grief" as the 90-year-old warrior-statesman slipped into death Sunday morning, the Queen knelt at the tiny Sandringham Parish Church. She immediately requested Parliament set aside next Saturday for a state funeral to high-domed, battle-scarred St. Paul's Cathedral where she will attend.

Death came quietly and peacefully to the brilliant statesman Prime Minister Wilson described as "the greatest man any of us have ever known."

Gradually weakened by a stroke announced Jan. 15 but which may have occurred some days previous, the wartime leader slipped into unconsciousness and died shortly after 8 a.m. (3 a.m. EST) Sunday, with his family by his side.

For the 79-year-old Lady Churchill, Sir Winston's wife for 56 years, the long and exhausting vigil was over. Death came to her world-famous husband 54 days after his 90th birthday, on the 70th anniversary of his father's death and just two days after death of his third great-grandson, also named Winston.

'MANY-SIDED GENIUS'

Tributes to what the Queen called "the many-sided genius" poured out from all corners of the world. Flags were leveled to half staff. The powers of his orator, writer, prime minister, painter, parliamentarian and bricklayer were recalled in scores of television programs that brought sharply to mind his jutting jaw, his celebrated cigar and his famous V-for-victory sign that brought cheer in Britain's darkest hours.

French President de Gaulle called him the greatest human who helped in the salvation of France during the Second World War. Canadian Prime Minister Pearson described him as "the supreme incarnation of the human spirit." President Johnson thought of him as "history's child."

The Queen's request for a state funeral, rarely accorded a commoner, was approved by Parliament today in a brief session of tribute for the parliamentarian who occupied a Commons seat for more than 60 years. Political wars will be set aside. The nation virtually will observe a week of national mourning.

From the unpretentious home at 28 Hyde Park Gate where he has spent his declining years, Sir Winston will be borne to the huge, cavernous Westminster Hall to lie in state for three days starting Wednesday. His flag-draped coffin, lying on a high bier in this ancient Hall of Kings and Queens, will be viewed by thousands filing slowly by from dawn to dusk.

Then, like the Duke of Wellington, the great conqueror, Sir Winston will be carried through the streets of London on a gun carriage preceded by massed battalions signifying the magnificent might of the British Realm. Many of the world's leading statesmen will be among the mourners who will follow the coffin on foot to the funeral service in St. Paul's.

Sir Winston's body will be taken by train to Bladon, near Woodstock, Oxfordshire, for burial in the churchyard of St. Martin's Church, where his parents and other members of his family are buried.

Whole World Poorer – Queen

LONDON (Reuters) — The Queen said Sunday Sir Winston Churchill's death "causes inexpressible grief to me and my husband."

She sent a message of sympathy to Lady Churchill which read:

The news of Sir Winston Churchill's death causes inexpressible grief to me and to my husband. We send our deepest sympathy to you and to your family.

The whole world is the poorer by the loss of his many-sided genius, while the survival of this country and the sister nations of the Commonwealth in the face of the greatest danger that has ever threatened them, will be a perpetual memorial to his leadership, his vision, and his indomitable courage.

Start Work Preparing Catafalque

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—In Westminster Hall, ancient and echoing stone edifice adjoining the Commons on whose site, 700 years ago, the British Parliament began, workers have started setting up the black catafalque for the greatest parliamentarian of them all—Sir Winston Churchill.

Here, alongside the spot where King George VI lay in state in February, 1952, the body of the man who rallied Britons to their finest hour in 1940 will lie in state for three days from Wednesday to Saturday morning, before his state funeral in St. Paul's Cathedral. Many thousands are expected to pay homage to the best-loved Englishman of the century.

The scene Sunday afternoon was surprisingly quiet. Only a red television van could be seen at the entrance to the hall, on the east of the great deserted forecourt of the Palace of Westminster. A solitary, impassive London policeman kept insistent newspaper men and curious passersby at bay.

In the pale spring-like sunshine the flags atop Parliament's Victoria Tower and Westminster Abbey drooped sadly at half-staff, but many of the rest he has so well earned. We mourn his death."

Churchill History's Child

WASHINGTON (CP) — The text of President Johnson's statement issued Sunday on the death of Sir Winston Churchill read:

"When there was darkness in the world, and hope was low in the hearts of men, a generous Providence gave us Winston Churchill.

"As long as men tell about that time of terrible danger and of the men who won the victory, the name of Churchill will live.

"Let us give thanks that we knew him. With our grief let there be gratitude for a life so fully lived, for services so splendid, and for the joys he gave by the joy he took in all he did.

"The people of the United States — his cousins and his fellow-citizens — will pray with his British countrymen for God's eternal blessing on this man, and for comfort to his family.

"He is history's child, and what he said and what he did will never die."

LBJ May Attend Funeral

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, recovering rapidly from a heavy cold, said, Sunday that if doctors permit he will fly to London for Sir Winston Churchill's funeral.

In his second bedside press conference at the suburban Bethesda Naval Hospital, Johnson said he wants "very, very much" to attend the funeral Saturday. "A lot depends on how I feel in the next day or two," he added.

As five reporters talked to him, the president seemed markedly improved.

Cheerfully, the president said: "It's all over with."

The doctors were not so sure. However, They want to keep him in the hospital until Thursday, for rest and to make sure the cold is licked. He entered the hospital at 2:30 a.m. Saturday.

Press Secretary George Reedy reported that the president's "cough is practically gone" and his temperature was slightly above normal.

IN SAME HOSPITAL

Mrs. Johnson also is in the same hospital, recovering from a heavy cold.

The president ordered the American flag to be flown at half staff through Saturday in mourning for Churchill who died Sunday.

As far as anybody could determine this is the first time such an honor has been accorded to a foreigner.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Weak disturbances now in the western United States do not seem to present a very definite threat in Ontario weather at present and settled weather is forecast for all regions during the next 36 hours.

Former Foes Heap Praise On Man Who Toppled Their Rulers

LONDON (CP)—Former foe joined with friend today in mourning the death of Sir Winston Churchill. The onetime Axis powers heaped praise on their unrelenting adversary of the Second World War.

The Germans and Italians, Churchill's great wartime enemies, voiced tribute for the man who sparked the struggle that toppled their Fascist rulers.

West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard said: The United Kingdom has lost one of the great statesmen of its history, the world a great fighter for the free democratic order."

Italian President Giuseppe Saragat: "Our glory which surrounded him in life will continue to shine from him even after death and so long as there is a free man on this earth his name will be remembered with gratitude."

Japanese Premier Eisaku Sato cabled the "deepest condolence" of his government and people and called Churchill's death "a great loss for the whole world."

French President De Gaulle, often a trial to Sir Winston during the war, hailed him as a message to Lady Churchill as "my wartime companion and my friend."

To the Queen, De Gaulle telegraphed that Churchill "contributed powerfully to the salvation of the French people and to the liberty of the world. In this drama he was the greatest."

The first message to reach the Churchill household after his death came from the Queen, last of the six sovereigns he served, who told Lady Churchill:

"The whole world is poorer by the loss of his many-sided genius, while the survival of this country and the sister nations of the Commonwealth, in the face of the greatest danger that has ever threatened them, will be a perpetual memorial to his leadership, his vision and his indomitable courage."

Prime Minister Wilson, a political opponent of Churchill while they served together in the House of Commons, said:

"He will be mourned all over the world by all who owe so much to him. He is now at peace after a life in which he created history and which will be remembered as long as history is read."

Canadian Prime Minister Pearson said: "We shall not see his like again."

President Johnson, in a statement issued from his sickbed in Washington where he is recovering from a bad cold, said: "He is history's child; and what he said and what he did will never die."

Pope Paul went to his chapel to pray on hearing the news of

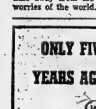
From Edmonton to P.E.I., Curlers Coming for Quinte Fifth Three-Club Bonspiel

The big event in the curling season for this district will open on Wednesday evening at the Quinte Curling Club when the fifth annual Tri Bay of Quinte bonspiel will officially commence. This spiel is sponsored by the three clubs in the district, the Trenton Curling Club, the RCAF Station Curling Club and the Quinte Curling Club of this city. There will be six competitions and the finals will be played on Saturday night at the RCAF Club and the Quinte Club and on Sunday night at the Trenton Club. The official opening in this city will be graced by His Worship, Mayor Jack Ellis and Mayor James MacDonald of Trenton will do the honors in Trenton on Sunday evening.

When the original spiel first conceived the entry list was set at 96 rinks and in the early stages there were hard to get but today there are 72 rinks entered and some had to be refused due to the time limit. The Rinks will be present from every part of the Quinte district, from other parts of Ontario and from as far away as Edmonton, Alta., and Charlottetown, P.E.I.

This spiel was designed for good fellowship, a spot of curling but generally for a good time away from the cares and worries of the world. Skidmore



FINALS ON SUNDAY

On Sunday evening before the final games are played at Trenton, there will be a buffet luncheon for the curlers, their wives and sweethearts, again at the RCAP Mess Hall. In the meantime entertainment will be provided for visiting curlers at the homes of the district curlers participating while at the clubhouses of the various clubs there will be plenty of hospitalities. There will be six competitions, for the Corby, Seagram's, Quinte Transport, Elliott Motors, Pepsi-Cola, Bata Shoe and B. A. Quinte Shield events. The entries are outstanding in each event.

Although the official opening will be held on Quinte on Wednesday evening there will be draws at the other two rinks on the same evening. The first draw's number of entries that have been accepted. Bill Lewis of the Quinte Club is convener of the spiel and he has done a terrific job in placing these teams, their times of starting and the rink at which they play. All of the schedules will be placed in the three clubs and there should be no confusion about knowing where and when to play. The curlers are asked to conform strictly to schedule in order to avoid delays. The games will be of ten ends, with the finals in all events twelve ends and all games will be played off. The rule against going over the "hog" with any part of the body or equipment will be strictly enforced.

The committee under the direction of Neal Ramsay of the Trenton Club has worked hard and long hours to prepare for the big affair and it is now up to the curlers to enjoy the fruits of their labors to the fullest.

Born in Manchester, England, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Odell Smith. He had lived in Belleville for the past seven years after coming here from Niagara Falls, New York.

He was a retired stationary engineer and a member of the United Church of Canada.

Surviving is his wife, the former Mary Elizabeth Vanderwater. He had no children and was the last member of his family.

Funeral on Thursday afternoon from the Grant Funeral Home, 68 North Front St.

JAMES WINSTON CHURCHILL
Foxboro, Ontario

The funeral of James Winston Churchill of Foxboro was held on Saturday afternoon from Christ Church, Bellleville, conducted by Canon R. J. Wright, assisted by Rev. James Smith.

During the service members of Christ Church choir sang "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes," "I Was Glad When They Said Unto Me" and "I Heard a Voice from Heaven." Following the service organist John Whitbeck played a recessional hymn, "Jerusalem the Golden" as the body was being carried from the church.

Members of Christ Church choir formed a guard of honor at the doorway.

Interment was in Foxboro Cemetery vault.

Bearers were Frank Sorrics, Reginald Skinner, Donald Stoughton, Oakley Gough, Milford Waller and Jack Hill. Arrangements were under the direction of the Thompson Funeral Chapel, 38 Everett Street.

Ceremonies Will Feature Flag Exchange

A touch of pomp and pageantry will attend the official visiting of Canada's new flag at the Bridge Street Armouries here on February 15th.

Lieut.-Col. H. J. Willcox, commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment said today that spectacular ceremonies will mark the "turnover" from the Red Ensign to the Maple Leaf.

The flag-raising exercises will be featured by the roll of drums and the blare of trumpets.

Mayor Jack Ellis will head a number of municipal, political and other dignitaries when invitations will be extended, to members of war service organizations.

The general public is invited to attend the function which will be followed by a special weapon and other demonstrations by members of the regiment.

The regiment, Col. Willcocks said, is now in the new phase of training with emphasis on the 7.62-MM recoil-less rifle Special instructors from Combat Command are here in official capacities.

Guns of the Madoc armouries ordered closed recently will be retained for some time to provide for the training of regimental cadets of the area.

Major Alec Cunningham, second-in-command, will be in charge of the regimental flag-exchange ceremonies.

Dr. J. S. Barlow Re-named Head Planning Council

Dr. J. S. Barlow, one of the Directors of Quinte Conservation Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, was re-named as chairman at the board's inaugural meeting earlier this month.

At the same time Mr. Ralph Plumpton of Thurlow Township was named as the planning board vice-chairman.

Other members of the planning board are Mayor J. R. Ellis, Alderman Donald G. Joss, G. G. Bussey and M. Paul Wiggand of Belleville; Reeve Ernest E. Kells of Sidney; Reeve Horace G. Wright and E. G. The Belleville and Suburban Planning Board has control over planning in the city of Belleville and over suburban areas in Sidney and Thurlow Townships. Planning director is Mr. P. J. Beavis.

Planning board meetings are held on the third Thursday of each month.

PRISONERS NOW EQUAL

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — A government decree here is aimed at ending racial discrimination—with a difference. Home Minister Mainza Chona said discrimination will end in all principles, whether, Africans and Asians will be discontinuance of separate foods for the different races. Even African staple for jailbirds—unless a doctor orders otherwise — is corn porridge.

Home Club Rink Is Winner Of Mixed Bonspiel Saturday

A successful mixed bonspiel was conducted at the Quinte Curling Club on Saturday under the direction of Goldie Livingstone. Mrs. Jean McMahon assisted by the women's section of the club under the presidency of Mrs. Mary Mott. The ice was in excellent condition, probably a little too fast for some of the curlers and the competition and good fellowship were at a bolling point throughout the day. Rinks from Trenton, Cobourg, Picton and Napanee were welcomed and a special welcome was extended to a Barrie rink, the first time that town has been represented in competition in this city.

A rink of Mrs. Gladys Lewis, Bill Lewis, Mrs. Helen Symmonds and her husband, "Corky" McCorquodale of the Quinte club sat sickly, was the high three-game winner of the spiel while a rink of Mrs. C. C. Chesebrough, Mrs. Alma VanRaesell with C. Charlton of Trenton skipping, was a close second in the scoring.

The two-game high score was won by a rink of Miss Elizabeth Black, Wayne Wilkinson and Mrs. Connie Wilkinson with Ernie Wilkinson as skip and in second place in this category was a rink of Mrs. Kathy Mooney, Mrs. Mary Mc. Kay Smith with George Cameron of Cobourg as skip. Another Quinte rink of Mrs. Barbara Deacon, Fred Deacon and Mrs. Doris Carruthers with T. A. Carruthers as skip won the one-game high score.

At the conclusion of the matches Don McKinnon acted as master of ceremonies and distributed the prizes and Mrs. Mott thanked the various rinks for their attendance. During the day the women of the club also served light refreshments and in all a most delightful day was enjoyed.

Dead Driver Lay Unseen In Trailer

BRANTFORD (CP)—A truck driver who apparently died of a heart attack while rearranging his load lay unnoticed in the trailer as the truck was driven from Kitchener to Brantford.

Gordon Maddock, 46, of Brantford, had driven the truck to Kitchener Friday afternoon to pick up a load of castings from a foundry.

The foundry called Noakes Transport Limited in Brantford to report the truck had not been backed into the loading dock. So the driver could not be found. Company officials drove to Kitchener and returned with the truck.

Maddock was found behind a pile of tires about midnight Friday when a search was made of the truck in Brantford.

13 Militia Group Officers Are Honored

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Retiring officers of No. 13 militia group headquarters in this city were honored at a dinner here Friday night.

The group is being disbanded in the reorganization of the militia.

Peterborough's other units, the 80th Field Regiment of Royal Canadian Artillery, and the 20th Technical Squadron, Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers, are not affected by the economy moves announced several weeks ago by Defence Minister Hellyer.

Presents were given to retiring officers Lt.-Col. Thomas Duffield, Lt.-Col. J. E. Saxby, Maj. J. M. Venters, and Maj. Harvey Hall, all of Peterborough, Maj. Terry Manuel, Cobourg, and Maj. C. K. Johnston, Lindsay.

Brig. H. E. Clark, formerly group headquarters commander and now appointed militia adjutant to Maj.-Gen. George Kitching, was commander of the Central Ontario Command at Oakville.

Five Youths Arrested for Joy Riding

WIARTON, Ont. (CP) — Police investigating a ring of joy-riders in this Bruce Peninsula area 13 miles north of Owen Sound arrested five youths during the week-end.

James Burley, 16, of nearby Stokes Bay and George Anning, 18, of Wiarton, were each charged with three separate counts of auto theft.

Gordon Smith, 18, of Stokes Bay was charged with auto theft and breaking and entering and left.

Eugene Weir, 20, of Wiarton was charged on two counts of auto theft and Wayne Ellis, 18, also of Wiarton, was charged on two separate counts of taking a car without the owner's consent.

Urged to Run In Federal Election

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Templeton, a vice - president of the Ontario Liberal party, said Sunday he has been urged by prominent Ottawa Liberals to run in the next federal election.

Mr. Templeton, defeated by Andrew Thompson last September in his bid for the provincial Liberal leadership, said he has not yet made up his mind whether he will run.

In an interview, he declined to name those who were doing the urging or to say which riding he has been mentioned for.

But he said that three Toronto-area seats have been under consideration.

Mr. Templeton is president of a new manufacturing company.

By next month, he said, he should be making more speeches and after attending his first Ontario Liberal executive meeting next Sunday, he may be given more responsibility in the party.

Sales Mission Leaves for Philadelphia

TORONTO (CP)—An 11-member Ontario government sales mission leaves today for Philadelphia to open new or expand markets in the eastern United States.

Among those taking part in the mission are John E. Fischl, vice-president of Louis Fischl Ltd., Ottawa; L. Prescott; Carl Hentschel, president of Hentschel's Fine Furniture, Waterloo; Edward Kirk, exports officer for J. M. Schneider Ltd., Kitchener; and C. E. Livermore, general manager of Nickson and Cates Ltd., Burlington.

Lewis Thomson, a Stratford-area farmer, will attempt to open new markets for Ontario-grown rutabagas.

Calls Warning 'Purely One Man's Opinion'

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Premier Robarts" has discounted as "purely one man's opinion" Thursday's warning Hogan, secretary of the Ontario Progressive Conservative organization that the party might dost survive another 30 days.

Mr. Hogan, writing in the Toronto Telegram, said that if there is not an overwhelming show of loyalty, "it is entirely possible the party will not survive. . . ."

The Progressive Conservative premier made his statement to reporters during the weekend following a meeting of the London Progressive Conservative Association.

Secret Tunnel Collapses in Nicosia

NICOSIA (AP) — A secret tunnel under the no-man's and between Nicosia's Greek - Cypriot and Turkish - Cypriot quarters was discovered Sunday when it collapsed after heavy rain.

Interior Minister Polycarpos Georgadjis accused the Turkish - Cypriots of planning to blow up Greek - Cypriot buildings. The 300-yard tunnel had been burrowed directly beneath police headquarters and the adjoining telegraph office.

A Turkish - Cypriot spokesman said his people built the tunnel last June for "purely defensive" reasons to counteract Greek - Cypriot fortifications.

IN MEMORIAM

THOMPSON — In loving memory of Ernest Thompson who passed away January 25th, 1964.

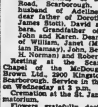
God knew that he was tired,
And knew that he had had enough.
So He closed his weary eyelids,
And whispered "Peace be thine."
Ever remembered by wife, children and grandchildren.

THOMPSON — In loving memory of our dear mother who passed away January 25th, 1956.

One sad and lonely year has passed,
Since our great sorrow fell the blow.
We've received that day,
That we'll never know,
But we've grown to be stronger to meet it,
And we've learned to be brave and true.
Because we know you would have it so,
No one will ever know,
How much we miss you,
We miss you more each day,
For life is not the same to us,
Since you were called away.
You always loved and remembered
By son Vernon and family.

COLLINS — In loving memory of our dear father Edward Collins who passed away Jan. 26, 1961.

We lost a dear father that day,
God gave us strength to meet it,
But never a day goes by,
That we don't long to see you,
No one will ever know,
The pain we've had to bear alone,
We miss you more each day,
In the pattern God has set us,
Since you were called away.
You always loved and remembered
By son Vernon and family.



COLLINS — In loving memory of our dear father Edward Collins who passed away Jan. 26, 1961.

We lost a dear father that day,
God gave us strength to meet it,
But never a day goes by,
That we don't long to see you,
And in our sad and lonely hearts,
We keep a memory,
The reason is hidden somewhere,
In the pattern God has set us,
We must believe and trust in Him,
In sadness we'll understand,
Always loved and remembered
By daughter Elizabeth Reid (Mrs. Ralph) and granddaughter Merrill, and Tom and grandchildren.

COLLINS — In loving memory of our dear father Edward Collins who passed away Jan. 26, 1961.

Not one hour to us then wealth or stock,
Without thyself he fell asleep,
Since then we've had for us to keep,
We have lost but God has gained,
And now we gather memories of thee,
—Loving daughter Elizabeth Reid (Mrs. Ralph) and daughter-in-law Ruby.

Report Shows Satisfactory Library Year

MARMORA — Mr. Howard Bleecker presided at the annual meeting of Marmora Public Library held in the library recently.

The following officers were elected for the year 1965: chairman, Mr. Howard Bleecker; secretary, Mrs. Jack Monk; treasurer, Mrs. C. A. Loreman. The duties of librarian will be combined by Mrs. A. M. Monk and the book committee will consist of Mrs. A. M. Jones, Mr. Howard Bleecker, Mr. Norman Brady and Mr. Kenneth Gillies.

The librarians report showed a satisfactory library year. A substantial increase was shown in book circulation, both adult and juvenile, the total circulation for the year being 8,773. There were 641 juvenile members, an increase of 50, and 76 adult members, a decrease of 4. The number of books bought during the year was 228 and there were 696 books discarded. Total number of books in the library is 6,539.

A letter of instruction was being made of the library service, in that books unavailable at the library may be obtained upon request from that source.

It was agreed that a membership campaign should take place with a personal canvass to be made to non-members of the library. Marmora Boy Scouts will be offered magazines and newspapers disposed of by the library.

UIS Overhaul Too Risky For Minority Government

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—As the unemployment insurance fund sinks slowly towards the red, political Ottawa prepares for its annual question — and answer — game known as the Gill Gambit.

Almost as certain as taxes, one of the first opposition questions when the Commons resumes Feb. 16 will be:

"What action is the government taking to implement recommendations of the Gill report?"

The usual reply goes something like this:

"The report is under active consideration and a policy decision will be announced in due course."

Then may be protests from opposition members that action has been delayed too long and interference by Liberals to the effect that if there's such concern why didn't the former Conservative government do something about it.

Behind the blustering, everyone concerned will know full well the realities of the situation. Nobody, however, will refer to them.

The Gill committee report, setting out a solution to the unemployment insurance fund's annual deficit, has been gathering dust since it was tabled in Parliament Dec. 21, 1962, by then prime minister Diefenbaker.

GOVERNMENT WARY

Privately, all sides agree its proposals should be adopted to put the fund on a sound financial basis. But they also accept that some of the Gill committee's ideas are unpopular with a goodly number of voters and no minority government is going to take the risk of introducing them.

One government source put it this way:

"The Gill report will be acted on by a majority government in the first session after an election. That way, the public will have about three years to get used to it before another election."

For his words "get used to it", substitute "forget about it" and you have the situation in a nutshell.

Right now the unemployment insurance fund is headed for the extent it will be in the third successive annual deficit. In the spring of 1963 it went $37,000,000 into the red and last spring it dove to a $25,000,000 loss.

Each time, government loans kept the fund going until the summer rush in unemployment let premiums catch up on claims.

This year, even with unemployment substantially lower, a deficit of at least $1,000,000 is believed to be unavoidable.

WOULD END EXEMPTION

To remedy the situation, the Gill committee suggested that persons on casual workers — dropped from the plan and that most workers now exempt — those earning $5,000 of them—be brought into it.

This would halt the heavy drain caused by casual claimants and add more than $50,000,000 a year to premium collections.

There was a host of other suggestions for closing two main gaps in the cost of the political dynamite.

Those now exempt are workers earning over $5,460 annually all teachers and employees of universities, hospitals and charitable institutions. Many of them feel they don't need unemployment insurance because of job security and would resent having to pay maximum premiums to cover the risks.

Seasonal workers, on the other hand, would count on unemployment insurance as part of their annual income and would probably benefit if they were excluded. The Gill report proposed that a new scheme be developed to meet the needs of seasonal unemployment.

The insurance fund was set up in 1941 with employees and employers paying compulsory matching premiums based on a wage-related scale. For every $1 thus raised, the government adds 20 cents and also assumes administrative costs.

HIT PEAK IN '58

By 1956, riding a wave of high employment and national prosperity, the fund's reserves hit a peak of $626,776,000. Then a recession set in and rising unemployment nibbled away at these reserves until they vanished early in 1963.

"In July of 1961, with the fund's slide towards bankruptcy all too clear, the government named a committee headed by Ernest C. Gill of Toronto, president of Canada Life Assurance Company, to find a remedy.

When the report was presented to Mr. Diefenbaker was faced with a minority government situation. He did not act on it and the problem was inherited by the present Liberal administration.

When they were in opposition the Liberals demanded action on the Gill report. Now the Conservative opposition has taken up the refrain.

The arguments will continue, because that's the way of politics, but nobody really expects anything will be done until a majority government is elected.

Death News Spread Slowly In Sleepy London Sunday

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — Londoners awoke Sunday to the news expected for nine days, that Sir Winston Churchill was dead.

On a sleepy Sunday morning the news spread slowly. Most of the people first realized what had happened when "they" switched on radios during breakfast and heard; instead of the advertised pop tunes, classical music interrupted by solemn bulletins:

"It is with great regret that we announce the death. . . .

Churchill's death, coming exactly after 8 a.m. was too late for the Sunday morning papers, ritualistic reading throughout Britain. All they carried was Saturday night's bulletin that Sir Winston's condition had further deteriorated.

At Hyde Park Gate, the quiet Kensington cul - de - sac where Churchill had lain mortally ill for more than a week, a small group of newspaper men heard the news shortly, after 8.30 a.m.

Minutes later the flag on the Royal Netherlands EMBASSY, Royal Netherlands Embassy flanking the entrare to Hyde Park Gate, was hauled down to half staff. By mid-morning every flag in Britain, from the Parliament Buildings to the Russian Embassy, was dipped in tribute.

Church bells throughout the city tolled and Londoners, many dressed in black and quieter than usual, went to their various places of worship.

Many of the churches emptied and the pubs remained closed as there was only one topic of conversation.

But in some places it was as curiously muted and—at times tribute to the colony in human terms as having a "rich diversity of races of people in city streets. Harris says the colony has also had a bearing on the violence of recent years.

Churchill's death left the British Guiana, including missionaries and persons associated with the Anglican Church, are Gregg's concern as Canadian commissioner. All 38 are indexed in the Georgetown offices where a staff of five Canadians and five Guianese are employed.

VISITED BAUXITE PLANT

One of his trips took him to the Canadian - owned plant 60 miles up the Demerara River from Georgelown where the Demerara Bauxite Company extracts the ore for aluminum.

On another he took his wife, the former Mrs. Isabelle Blenkhorn of Sussex, N.B., to visit the northwestern area of the colony on the Venezuelan border.

Gregg's own background appears to fit him admirably for the job he is expected to do here.

He has been a schoolteacher in his native Nei. Brunswick and was later in the automobile business in Halifax, leaving at the invitation of Conservative Prime Minister R. B. Bennett to take the ceremonial post of sergeant-at-arms of the House of Commons.

He was elected to Parliament as a Liberal in 1942 and represented the New Brunswick riding of York-Sunbury for 10 years, holding the fisheries and veterans' affairs portfolios before moving to labor.

His own province he was born at Mountain Dale, N.B., April 10, 1892—is never far from his thoughts and he draws comparisons between it and British Guiana.

"The population of the two is just about the same, and though it will be a long time before either British Guiana or New Brunswick has the advantages and disadvantages of a dense population, in the second country a good chance to develop their resources for their benefit."

DELAYING TACTIC

NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE, England (CP) — Safebiowers who stole $200 from a restaurant here left a duplicate padlock to the one they damaged on the outside door to delay discovery by police patrol cars.

Famous Canadian Carves New Career as Diplomat

By BURCHELL O. WILLS
Canadian Press Correspondent

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (CP) — Milton F. Gregg, VC, soldier, teacher, businessman, politician, is gradually settling into a new career as a diplomat in this troubled British colony on the northeast coast of South America.

Since his appointment as Canadian commissioner to British Guiana in March, 1964, Mr. Gregg has concentrated on exploring how the two countries can work to their mutual benefit.

Chatting about his work as he sat in the windward part of a flat in a former Georgetown house where his Georgetown offices are located, he admitted his job hasn't been easy. That's because of the political situation.

The colony has lived through some of the tensest days in its history during the last year. Racial violence became so widespread that responsible government was suspended by Britain for the second time in little more than a decade.

Leftist Premier Cheddi Jagan failed to win re-election in the Dec. 7 general election, however, and Britain is pinning its hopes for peace on a coalition government formed when no party got an over-all majority.

MET PREMIERS

Mr. Gregg has met with the new premier, Forbes Burnham, to discuss how Canada can help the country.

Being close to crises—physical or political—is not new for the 72-year-old Canadian.

In 1917 he won the Victoria Cross for gallant action against the Germans in France.

In 1930, as a freshman labor minister in the Louis St. Laurent cabinet, he saw Canada through an 11 - day railway strike, one of the country's most far-reaching labor conflicts.

In his work and travels here he has found some parallels between Canada and British Guiana, notably in the Rupumui River area of the interior where farming, hospitals and that of early times on the Canadian Prairies.

He has seen more of the country than most Guianese and describes the colony in human

Rabies Increase Discussed by Veterinarians

Increase of rabies in the Quinte district was discussed at length by members of the Quinte District Veterinary Association at the Belleville OSS and held recently at the home of Dr. J. B. Parliament, president of the association.

Most of those present were of the opinion that the general public were not aware of the public health significance of the disease and the dangers that can result from contact with a rabid animal.

Favorable comments were heard in connection with the Quinte District Veterinary Association Award of $100 which is presented annually to a student from the Quinte district, living in the counties of Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward, Hastings or Northumberland, in the first year of the Ontario Veterinary College.

The recipient is selected each year by the executive of the association from a number of applicants and is to be presented at the local high school commencement when the recipient has been a student.

Dr. J. F. Cote, associate professor of the Department of Clinical Studies at the Ontario Veterinary College in Guelph was the guest speaker at the association's first meeting of the new year.

The speakers' address was keynoted by a description of the large animal practice in the state of New Jersey. He said that practice there differed very little from that in Ontario with the exception of larger milking herds.

Dr. Cote also stated that there was an increasing number of veterinarians adopting dairy herds health programs. These programs include a regular "herd checks", usually every 30 days, at which time nutritional problems, calving, sterility, vaccinations, dehorning and mastitis control are attended to.

Dr. Cote also emphasized that the advantages to the herd owners were many. He stated that the program was aimed at eliminating waste by decreasing the calving interval, decreasing the number of services for conception, decreasing mastitis cases and lost production. This would keep the cows in the herd longer, be said, and control parasites.

The disease prevention program reduces production costs and increases profits to the farmer.

Officers of the Association for the new year are as follows: president, Dr. B. Parliament, Belleville; past-president, Dr. Earl Lister, Picton; secretary-treasurer, Dr. J. Fulton, Brighton; directors, Dr. A. M. Cameron, Belleville; Dr. J. F. McCorquodale, Belleville; Dr. K. B. Harrison, Roslin and Dr. H. W. Burns, Belleville.

Liberal Calls Scandals 'Shame And Calamity'

QUEBEC (CP)—Auguste Choquette, Liberal member of Parliament for Lotbiniere, said Saturday night scandals in Ottawa in the past year are a shame for French Canada."

He blamed the whole situation on "the old guard in Montreal" and said party renewal is vital if the Liberals is to "free Canada" in Quebec.

He spoke at the Reform Club here to the Young Liberal Association of St. Sauveur.

Mr. Choquette, 32, said in an interview he believes Premier Jean Lesage should go to Ottawa.

Mr. Lesage could restore popular confidence and build up the Canadian party."

He said another departure from the Pearson cabinet is imminent. A Quebec member would be leaving, he said.

Maple Leaf Flag Replaced By Ensign at Moira S. S.

Indecision about which flag should properly be flown continued in city during the latter part of last week after Hastings county council decided in favor of a red ensign.

Saturday Moira Secondary School was flying the new Maple Leaf Flag.

Then on Sunday with the passing of the flag of Sir Winston Churchill, the Maple Leaf Flag came down and the red ensign was run up at half staff.

The county buildings also flew the red ensign at half staff as did government buildings.

But as late as 10.00 o'clock this morning there was no flag of any kind flying atop the city hall.

None Seriously Hurt When Trains Collide

TIMMINS (CP) — All crew members escaped serious injury when two Ontario Northland Railway freight trains crashed head-on Saturday at Connaught, 22 miles east of here.

Train No. 414 was travelling eastbound from Timmins with a load of plywood when it collided with an empty freight train, No. 345, bound for Timmins. The crews of both trains were able to jump into deep snowdrifts beside the single track before impact.

One engine rode up onto the other, but no freight cars were derailed. A crew with an auxiliary engine from Cochrane had the line cleared and in operation Sunday.

Crew members of the Englehart - bound freight, R. E. Smith, and C. L. Knight, both firemen, engineer E. M. Smith, and brakeman E. J. Green and Don Mills — were taken to hospital in Iroquois Falls, about 25 miles northeast of Timmins, for a checkup.

Crew members and Brucef Downing, both brakemen on the other train, were also taken to hospital. None was reported seriously hurt.

Jules Gravel, the engineer, and John Flemming, the fireman on No. 345, were unscathed.

Second Rabies Warning Issued

BRANTFORD (CP)—Another rabies warning was issued to area farmers during the weekend after a fox was shot on the rural farm of Campbell Rider.

Mr. Reilly discovered the fox in his cattle barn and phoned provincial police. Const. Roy Anderson shot the animal as it threatened to chase him.

This was the second rabies warning issued by health authorities here in two weeks.

Fire Destroys Dundalk Arena

DUNDALK, Ont. (CP)—The North Dufferin arena at Honeycrest, 15 miles east of here, was destroyed by fire Sunday. Fire departments from Sheeburne, Creemore and Dundalk were unable to save the building, valued at $35,000.

Firemen believe the blaze may have resulted from an electrical storm that passed over this area, 35 miles north of Toronto.

Ventiane Airport Destroyed

VIENTIANE (Reuters) — A series of explosions Sunday destroyed Vientiane military airport, dealing a serious blow to the Laotian air force's power to attack Communist targets.

Discussing the possibilities of sabotage or accident, an airport spokesman said: "It is still too early to know, but so far it appears to be an accident."

One version was that a 50-calibre machine - gun which was being fired into the air burst and went off, hitting a fuel tank which blew up, causing bombs on the T-28G fighters to detonate.

The explosions followed close on the heels of a pro-Communist Pathet Lao warning that further air attacks on Pathet Lao-held areas of Laos would be more "severely punished."

Military sources said as many as nine T-28s, almost half the Royal Laotian Air Force, may have been destroyed in the blasts and the fire which followed.

The T-28s have been flying daily missions against the "Ho Chi Minh Trail," used by the Communists to send men and supplies from North Viet Nam through Central Laos to Communist Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

Weather, Roads Said Cause Of Accidents

TRENTON (—Saturday was a busy day for the Trenton police department, with the weather conditions and icy roads giving rise to eight separate accidents between 1.45 a.m. and 11.05 p.m. Some resulted in minor damage, others in the treatment of passengers in the emergency ward.

Starting off the chain was an accident on Dundas Street East near Loblaw's at 1.45 a.m. Stewart Dahl of 6 RD, RCAF lost control of the car he was driving. The car struck a snow bank on the north side of the road, veered across to strike another bank on the south side, and went on to hit a hydro pole. Mr. Dahl suffered a leg injury and Willam Hooker, an injured back; Kenneth Bloomfield, an injured shoulder and Barry Dahl an injured right leg. All were from 6 RD. Damage of the car was $600 and to the hydro $200.

An unusual accident at 3.50 a.m. saw a Gould's taxicab, parked in the yard of the Dundas Street East take off across the road in reverse, with a passenger inside, and crash guard rails at the CPR freight office. The passenger, Ronald Bruce Green of 6 RD, was not injured. The cab was damaged to the extent of $273; the guard rail, $15.

Throughout the day, minor accidents were reported to the police station. At 8.25 a.m. a two-car collision at the intersection of Front Street with Dundas Street West, resulted in $800 property damage and the driver of one car, Joseph E. Gaudreault of the RCAF suffered a bloody nose and a bang to the side of his head. Driver of the other car, John Welland Byron of Middleton Park was not injured.

At 11.05, a truck driven by Melvin B. Lawes of 145 Bay Street and a parked car on Front Street, near Allore's Lumber yard, striking a hydro pole. Mr. Lawes, and a passenger, eight - year - old William Lawes of Wooler were not injured.

On Sunday at 5.05 a.m., a two-car collision at the intersection of Carrying Place Road and Dufferin Street resulted in damage to both cars, no injury to the drivers, Milton Edward of Batawa and Clarence Jasmin of R.R. 3 Carrying Place.

Provincial Police at Brighton report only four minor accidents over the weekend.

Labor Council Hits Ontario Medicare Plan

TRENTON — The Trenton and District Labor Council is opposed to any provincial medicare plan such as the one now under consideration by the province of Ontario, which is not comprehensive enough in scope and would fail to be universal card for all age groups and all income levels.

A resolution to the above effect was recently passed by the Labor Council, along with a motion to visit the MLAs by Hastings West and Northumberland, to discuss the problem.

The resolution stated the Trenton and District Labor Council was opposed to any provincial plan operated in such a way that would obstruct and interfere with the implementation of a national health plan for all Canadians.

The Council urged Ontario Premier John Robarts to consider the damage which, it said the plan as government is now considering will do to the national plan when it is introduced and requested that he and his government, as Canadians, not to do anything that would retard the progress of Canadians in the future.

District Rinks Take Part In Bonspiel

TRENTON — Saturday saw 16 ladies' rinks taking part in a one-day invitational bonspiel at the Trenton Golf and Curling Club with rinks from Kingston, Trenton, Belleville, RCAF, Napanee, Cobourg and Picton curling.

High two-game winner of the first draw was a rink skipped by Jennie Walsh of Kingston, with the runner-up a Trenton rink skipped by Jean Condette. High one-game winner was a rink skipped by Margery Pearce of Napanee.

In the second draw, a rink skipped by Dorothy Beatty of Kingston was high two-game winner with a rink skipped by Dorothy Beatty of Trenton runner-up and the one game winner was a rink skipped by Ruth Stevrie of Trenton.

Two ten end games were played with the ladies pausing for lunch midway.

Immortal Rendezvous

Churchill is dead.

To say more is to risk much.

Only the great can safely pay homage to the great.

Good intentions are not enough to lay a sound foundation for the tribute such a man as Churchill deserves.

Nothing that a thousand editorial writers will say today about him is likely to match in vigor and vividness, in memorable phrasing, what he himself would have expressed in tribute to another man of like stature—if he could have found one in all the world.

Yet something must be said. We cannot let him descend into the grave without doing him the honor of adopting his code, never to shrink from a task no matter how difficult.

In such a pass, we may perhaps be pardoned for borrowing from a more gifted pen—and here we have had foresight enough to lay up great treasure, a poem written by Joseph Schull, the well-known Canadian TV-playwright, which appeared in the Saturday Night" during the early years of the war, when the curtain of "blood, sweat and tears" still hung between men and any clear vision of mankind's future . . .

"Blood of great words, great purpose, you have sent storming through the slumberous veins till, with a shudder thrilling through all the earth, the strong loins tense, the giant heaves erect and a great arm again wheels in the sun before a marching people the bright hope and dazzling vengeance of Excalibur," wrote Schull.

Great words! Were they all that Churchill offered his countrymen and the world in those dark days of the forties? No, for to them was added a great example. And words and example were enough, for these men to whom Churchill spoke were blood of his blood, spirit of his spirit. Otherwise he could not have stirred them; as it was they responded because Churchill told them that what they so agonizingly desired was not beyond hope, that it could be achieved. And they believed him.

Schull again: "For to some men a single, high and lonely hour of time waits from all time, immortal rendezvous with all their kind; and coming to that hour — the last stroke of the tool falls on the block of the hours and the work stands forth hewn to the adament flame, the naked line, the ultimate simplicity that is God."

". . . There, at the rendezvous, the beacon flamed. The blind, imperishable light of a man's soul that held and gave, between the earth and heaven, between the storming of the gods and devils, between the lost years and the years to be, this purpose only: to be strong, to be free, to live that life tastes clean and sweet in your mouth — or else to die.

"That you have given us, Churchill."

Shakespeare wrote, "Some are born great; some achieve greatness; and some have greatness thrust upon them." From his early carefree schooldays, past the misgivings of a brilliant military career to the stormy years of politics that culminated in his outstanding achievement as the leader of his country in its "finest" and darkest hours, Churchill gave ample evidence that he did not achieve greatness nor was it thrust upon him.

Churchill felt—and this is part of his true greatness — that no man can achieve the ultimate in loyalty and service unless he feels his life belongs to his race and that what God gave him, He gave it to him to use for mankind.

This Bulldog of Britain; this human bulwark of Empire, stood alone at the head of his "island" hurling defiance at the common enemy in what was his "finest hour"; This was part of his greatness.

Another was his utter disregard of danger. He recked little of personal exposure to the hazards of war. Many times he walked hand in hand with death, and laughed at his company. The flaming holocaust that was showered on Britain in 1941 when Hitler's aerial armada hurled death and destruction from blazing skies, held no fears for him.

Another cog in the wheel-of Churchill's greatness was his utter confidence in ultimate victory. His famous "Give us the tools—and we'll finish the job" is a historical quotation. Setbacks in the various theatres of war disturbed him not for he believed that defeat was an education, a step to something better. He often recalled Harriet Ward Beecher's "You are never so near to victory as when defeated in a good cause."

Perhaps, Churchill's strongest claim to greatness lay in an unshakable faith in what he thought was right and just, whether in war politics, war, government or rugby. In the Second World War he exemplified J. F. Clarke's "All the strength and force of man comes from his faith in things unseen. He who believes is strong; he who doubts is weak. Strong convictions precede great actions."

He has been called the "Greatest Englishman". Who in Valhalla's valiant ranks will deny this gallant old warrior the right to "fall in" with the world's greatest men?

Tributes Paid Sir Winston

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Following are excerpts from editorials in representative Canadian newspapers on the death of Sir Winston Churchill:

Toronto Globe and Mail: Sir Winston Churchill goes now to take up his residence in history. His friends will pay him tribute with flowers, with tears, with pomp and with circumstance, but most of all with a floodtide of words. Which is as it should be. For words were his greatest weapon.

Montreal Gazette: . . . Sir Winston Churchill will be borne to his grave as the deliverer of his nation, and of all to whom freedom of life was precious. This is the honor bestowed upon him for his part in history. But history will recede. New generations will arise that have had no not. What, then, will be his claim upon them? The answer is simple and deep. For his vaster and enduring claim upon mankind is for the example of fortitude that he set.

Saint John Telegraph - Journal: Few men down through the centuries have left such an impression on the events of their age. He was more than the invincible leader of his country in its time of direst peril — he was the ringing voice of freedom rallying men of valor everywhere in the common cause. . . .

Halifax Chronicle - Herald: We cannot think of Winston Churchill today in terms of the soldier, the statesman, the great parliamentarian, author, orator, artist, wit. He was all these, and more. He was a renaissance man in the Leonardo Vinci of our times, a man larger than the normal, mortal run.

Moncton Times: The lion heart is stilled, the indomitable spirit dead. But "if the British Commonwealth and Empire lasts for a thousand years, men will still say" this was their finest hour." Winston Churchill will not be forgotten.

Toronto Telegram: He marches today in the glittering procession of history. He marches erect, strong and determined. Probably no man in history has come closer to the attainment of immortality than this great commoner. The elements of his personality and his character contrived to achieve this.

Montreal Le Devoir: National heroes are legion: Much more rare are the men whose action equally benefits the world and their country. He belongs to Great Britain, Churchill also belongs to the world and in particular to the Western world.

Ottawa Journal: We mourn and think of Winston Churchill's supreme architect of victory when freedom was under siege and no man knew what tomorrow might bring. We grieve for the unchained political genius who gave us in awesome storm the gift of his courage.

Ottawa Citizen: His words carried such force that they became deeds in themselves. His deeds in the service of freedom can never be forgotten. . . . No one can possibly fill his incomparable achievement: That he was ready to provide exactly the right kind of leadership at exactly the moment when it was most desperately needed.

London Free Press: What was mortal of Sir Winston Churchill is dead. . . . It was given to him, as to no other man, to make history and to write it. Generations still unborn will hear and read of this almost-legendary Englishman who was soldier and statesman, author and orator, artist and humanitarian.

Montreal Metro-Express: . . . Churchill was, during the darkest moment of contemporary history, the rock upon which the wave of Hitlerite fascism broke itself. . . . Had it not been for this rallying point, this raised flag facing the hordes of the wehrmacht which smashed all frontiers, we might today be living under the "aryan social order."

Montreal Matin: . . . The man who won the war of free men is no more. Hero of the century, he leaves it in a time when great men are rare. The void will not be filled . . .

Red Deer Advocate: His was the voice that echoed through the noise of failing mastery as the bombs tore the heart out of London and Liverpool. His was the beacon that guided the free world across the storm-tossed sea that threatened to engulf democracy. Now the light has finally gone out.

Vancouver Province: . . . Communists showman he was, but this was the showmanship, Master of words he was, but this was more than mastery of words. This was the ancient from of England embodied in tough English flesh. He was Britain . . . one thing is sure: It is with courage that he walks, with that dogged stumpy step of his, to meet the unknown.

Newfies Like Japanese Jig

Vancouver Sun

The Japanese jig is not a dance. It's the jig that's up on the old squid-jigging grounds. And Newfoundland fishermen thoroughly approve.

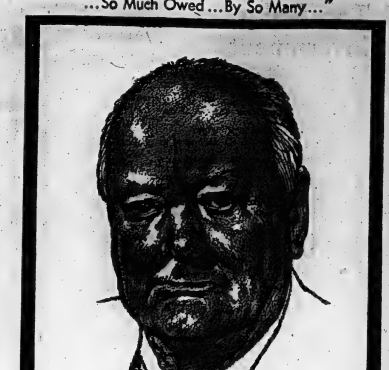
Otaikin-clad fishermen by the hundreds bobbing around the coasts of Newfoundland in the spring jigging for squid were a colorful sight and good tourist bait. But it was hard, cold work and often enough failed to produce enough bait for the fishing fleet. Now the end of it all is in sight.

The federal and Newfoundland Departments of Fisheries and a commercial fishing firm "hired" a couple of Japanese fishermen from the Japanese North Atlantic factory trawler Tyyo Maru.

Japanese also use squid for cod bait, but they long ago gave up jigging by hand for it. The Tyyo Maru men took some scrap lumber and metal, half a dozen reels, trolling pulleys and in quick time had them assembled and mounted on the rail. It's a comfortable deep-sea longline boat. It was a simple rig scarcely more complicated than a Newfoundtroller's hand gurdy.

The secretary of Newfoundlanders were at first unenthusiastic. But when the two Japanese pulled in a hundred pounds of squid in an hour operating the gadgets by hand, the Newfoundlanders changed their tune. For two of them in a day, 600 pounds would be an excellent catch in that time.

The Japanese jigs cost little or nothing, require no special skill to operate and can be hooked up to a motor if there is one. In the larger boats the fishermen can follow the squid migrations as they do and they have hopes of thus eliminating years of "bait-famine", which have not been uncommon.



They doubtless will continue to sing about the old squid-jigging ground, but now, for the first time in two or three centuries, they are hopping to get off it in a hurry. And fruitfully, at that.

It's a simple but, to Newfoundland fishermen anyway, pleasant little story. If you are one of those people who must have a moral to every tale, there seem to be three: (1) It's easy when you know how; (2) Clever, these Japanese, and (3) There's more than one way of kidding a squid.

Planning Advance

London Free Press

President Lyndon Johnson fired no rockets in his State of the Union message to the Unified States Congress. Nor did he raise any alarms. Instead he laid out a "national agenda" for his countrymen and their legislators embracing a relentless step-bystep advance toward a better society at home and the removal of friction abroad.

To Your Good Health
Everyone Should Be Protected Against Tetanus

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it necessary to have tetanus, penicillin or other shots when you get a dirty laceration?

If the leaders and nerves are cut, should they be repaired? At the time or several months later? — L.W.E.

I'm no sure what you mean by necessary. It isn't necessary to teach children not to play with matches — but if you don't a certain number of tragedies are bound to result.

If germs are present in a dirty laceration, and nothing is done to control them, a bad infection can develop. Many scores of years ago soldiers died from comparatively minor wounds because of infection. In World War II men recovered from wounds which were a hundred times worse, because sulfa and sterile surgical techniques thwarted infection.

As for tetanus, or lockjaw, a the U.S. armed forces had virtually no cases because most of our fighting men were inoculated against it. Otherwise, many thousands of them would have died.

A dirty laceration isn't dangerous in itself. But if tetanus germs are present, anything becomes sealed in some airless part of the wound, they will breed, and in so doing produce a poison which paralyzes and kills.

All people should be protected against tetanus, because the germ doesn't exist just on battle fields. It is everywhere — on farms, in street dust, in your back yard.

Inoculation every two to five years protects against this hazard. In case of a wound, a booster injection gives assured safety.

But a person who has not had tetanus protection beforehand, cannot depend on a booster. Instead, safety requires both shot or tetanus antitoxin. This is prepared with animal serum, to which some people can be highly allergic. Even so, the risk of allergic reaction is a lesser risk than that of tetanus. But the best way by far is to have tetanus inoculation in advance, and then keep it effective with boosters every few years.

Your second question cannot be answered categorically. In general, wounds are best repaired immediately, but there are many exceptions. Considerable tissue must be allowed in some cases to make certain which torn tissues can be saved or should be removed. Sometimes the patient's condition is such that he or she needs to recuperate before having surgery. There are many technical considerations.

Severed nerves grow slowly, but given a suitable chance they can repair themselves. A good example is the case of that youngster near Boston whose arm was torn off but replaced by surgeons. Some of the surgical repair had to be done over a span of many months, but it was successful and, indeed, it made medical history.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 52 and have had no period for 18 months. My husband thinks there is no danger of pregnancy. What is your opinion? I don't want to take chances. — Mrs. E. T.

Your risk is practically nonexistent, but nobody can say that pregnancy is impossible. However the chances under the circumstances, is quite remote.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you advise a woman of 43 to have a baby if she so desires, or is this too late in life? — Mrs. J. B.

The ideal time is earlier — the 20's or 30's. In the 40's, the chances of pregnancy decrease, stillbirth, or malformation increases a little, but the added risk is so small that my answer is: If you want a baby, go ahead.

Strictly Personal
Theatres Close With Nostalgic Fanfare

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

An old chain of movie houses closed the last of its theatres in the city last month, with nostalgic fanfare. Later, at dinner, we were talking about the impact television has had on the movie industry.

One of the guests was reminded of a similar situation 30 years ago, when the advent of "talkies" panicked the prodnocers into making drastic retrenchments and cutting salaries and studio rosters to a bare minimum.

He told us what he swore was a true story of that era. It seems that a widely - known writer had been hired to come to Hollywood and write scripts for $2,500 a week. The "talkie" craze broke, and he was forced to sit around week after week doing nothing but collecting his pay.

The producers, of course, thought this enforced inaction would prompt him to tear up his contract and leave, but he showed no such inclination. Finally, in desperation, he was called in the front office and told that his new job was to show people around the studio.

He refused, naturally, and was curtly informed that his refusal was tantamount to breaking the contract. So he agreed, a sinister plot forming in his mind.

A week or so later, some of the movie company's biggest stockholders from the East were to be shown about the lot. He took them on the official tour, and paused before a large, imposing building. One of the visitors asked what the building was.

"Oh," he said casually, "that's where the company stores the films it makes which are no good."

"Do you mean that the whole building is stocked with wasted film?" whispered an anxious stockholder.

"Yes, certainly," the guide answered. "And those two new buildings you see over there will also be used for the same purpose, as soon as we finish remodelling them."

"But," protested another stockholder, writing his lips apprehensively, "that must represent a loss of at least a million dollars!"

"A million!" exclaimed the guide. "More than five million! But this company doesn't care about money. It does everything on a lavish scale. Take me for instance, I'm the highest-priced guide in the world."

Then he pulled his latest paycheque out of his pocket with a dramatic flourish. "Do you realize," he waved it at the group, "that I get $2,500 a week just to show visitors around the lot!"

LOOKING BACKWARDS
GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Jan. 20th, 1945

One hundred and eighty-six years ago on January 25th, 1759, Robert Burns was born in Ayrshire, Scotland. In his brief life span he became the greatest writer of songs in Scotland and English and one of the supreme song-writers of the world. From the earliest he has held the praise of Scotland, England and Ireland English speaking countries and the other peoples of the world. Not many poets have the distinction of being remembered by their birthdays. To Scots at home and abroad, January 25th is a day that will ever live in the calendar not only for them but for humanity down to the farthest stretches of time.

He is one of the geniuses of the world, a master of song and feeling, his songs poured from his spirit like the songs of the birds. He spoke the emotions of the people with a mastery which cannot be equalled. His artistry is so natural as to appear artless, so natural to him was it to voice himself in song.

30 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. Charlet Massey of the 8th Concession of Sidney township, will celebrate the 50th anniversary of their wedding on Monday, January 28th. and will be "at home" from three o'clock to five-thirty o'clock in the afternoon and from eight o'clock in the evening.

At a meeting of the Men's club in connection with St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, the minister, the Rev. W. J. Wallace, gave a highly interesting address on the poet Robert Burns. The chair was occupied by the president, Vern Weir. Following the address the nominating committee which was composed of Ken Hill, E. V. Ilsley and Arthur McGie, presented the slate of officers for this year and the same was accepted. Following are the officers: Pres., L. E. Mc-Lean; 1st vice-pres. Morley Anderson; 2nd vice-pres. J. Arnold Thompson; sec.-treas. Ransom; treas. David Waters.

Miss Jessie Tuite of this city, who assisted at St. Paul's Flower Mission concert in Lindsay recently, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Wenman, during her stay in the city.

Mrs. O. McAvoy of Sloco was pleasantly surprised recently by a number of members of the C.W.A. of that parish when they presented her with a silver casserole and a silver entree dish as a token of esteem for her. Mrs. McAvoy and her husband have taken up residence in Stirling, after a years residence in the Sloco district.

At a meeting of the Belleville Radio Club, which was held in the Chamber of Commerce quarters last evening, arrangements were made to conduct a radio building contest during Radio Week, which will be the first seven days of February.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—The chatter of tickers was stilled for two minutes this morning as the Toronto Stock Exchange paid tribute to the memory of Sir Winston Churchill. The two minutes silence began at 11 a.m.

Industrials posted higher prices in moderate morning trading. International Mineral and Chemicals gained 1¼ to a high of 50¼. CPR and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce each rose ⅝ to 64⅛ and 70¾.

Canada Cement dropped ⅛ to 57¼ in profit-taking after last week's rise.

Other sections of the market were generally quiet. Denison led senior base metals with a ⅛ drop to 27¼ after hitting a high of 29¼. The stock, recorded in rumor, traded 135,000 shares in the first hour of action.

Golds were dull.

On index, Industrials fell .13 to 172.41, the TSE index .11 to 181.57 and base metals .13 to 78.15. Golds rose .01 to 117.32 and western oils .36 to 90.97. Volume at 11 a.m. was 882,000 shares compared with 823,000 shares traded at the same time Friday.

COULD RIVAL RIO

MONTREAL (CP) — Attention generated by the 1967 world's fair here will give the city the chance to join London, Rome, Paris and Rio de Janeiro as one of the most popular cities in the world, says Ernest J. Little, president of the Canadian Public Relations Society. But, he warned in a speech, Montreal's popularity and prestige could be damaged if the image of a divided house —discord between English and French Canada—is projected.

KIWANIS OFFICERS

MADOC — Lt. Gov. Harold Marans of the Kingston Kiwanis Club, along with other members from Kingston visited the Madoc Branch where the Lt. Gov. installed the following officers for 1965: president — Don Smith; vice-president — Don Henderson; secretary — Jim Cox; treasurer — Ken Nicol; directors — Gordon Johnson, Kel Mikaid, Jim Mc-Nab, Bill Naylor, Glen Nickle, Harry Roscoe, Bruce White and Paul Jones.

WINTER FROLIC

A first for the district will be the Madoc Prisoners of War Frolic to be held south of the railway overpass, Moira Lake next Sunday, January 31st. Festivities will be enjoyed sleigh rides, a fishing derby for prizes, skating on two rinks, a giant bonfire and a coffee booth.

H.S. "AT HOME"

February the twelfth is the date of the Madoc High School annual "At Home". Doug Robbins is in charge of the ceiling decorations, while Linda Parsons, Pat Adams and Mary Jane Brady are working on murals and posters. A dance will be held from 10:00-2:00 a.m. with Ifel MacFarlane and his orchestra from Peterborough to supply the music. The theme for this year is "Story Book Land". A story book princess will be crowned at this event.

MARCH OF DIMES

The committee for the March of Dimes for this year is headed by Mr. George Deville, chairman; Mr. P. Rowe, manager of the Toronto Dominion Bank, as finance chairman and Mrs. Harold Pigden, campaign chairman and Chief Marching Mother. The canvass blitz will take place on February 1, between the hours of 7 and 6 o'clock.

FIRST AID COURSE

The St. John Ambulance First Aid Course will begin next Monday night, held in the Canadian Legion hall at 8.00 p.m. Twenty-four persons, young and old, are required to make it worth while.

COMBINED SERVICES

The various denominational showed the true ecumenical spirit during the past week. For the first time in the history of the community, the Week of Prayers and Christian Unity was put into practice. The three ministers, Rev. David Potter, United Church; Rev. Father P. Kelly, Roman Catholic priest, and the Rev. J. H. Thompson, Anglican, conducted services together in the Anglican Church, on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings. Each cleric gave an address or assisted in the reading of lessons or in the service. The theme was "One Flock, One Shepherd," and the addresses were entitled "Prayer in Unity," "Love in Unity" and God's Will in Unity." All three services were well attended by many different church members.

Services in the Free Methodist, Standard and Pentecostal churches were supported as well in this octave of Christian unity.

Elephant on Sick Leave!

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — After 43 years' service, Jamuna, an elephant at the Auckland Zoo has been given sick leave.

Jamuna is believed to have given rides to nearly 1,000,000 children since she began work at the zoo in 1923. Lately she has been out of sorts with a hormone imbalance. She has been responding well to treatment, the zoo authorities have decided to give her a prolonged rest.

She is not retiring, however. At 55 years, she is hardly into elephant middle age.

New R. C. Cardinals Include Quebec's Archbishop Roy

From AP-Reuters

VATICAN CITY (CP)—Pope Paul named 27 new Roman Catholic cardinals today including Archbishop Maurice Roy of Quebec, raising membership in the Sacred College to 103, the greatest number in history.

The new cardinals were the first named by Pope Paul in his 18-months old reign.

The new prelates of the Roman Catholic church will be formally elevated to the purple at a secret consistory Feb. 22.

Archbishop Roy's elevation to the purple gives Canada three cardinals. The others are Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger of Montreal and James Cardinal McGuigan of Toronto.

Another is Archbishop John Heenan of Westminster, England.

Gen. American, Archbishop Lawrence J. Shehan of Baltimore, was created a cardinal.

JAMES SOUTH AFRICAN

Other new cardinals are: James McCann, Archbishop of Cape Town, South Africa; Lorenz Jaeger, Archbishop of Paderborn, Germany; Joseph Marie Martin, Archbishop of Rouen France; Branjo Seper, Archbishop of Zagreb, Yugoslavia;

Jean Villot, Archbishop of Lyon, France; William Conway, Archbishop of Armagh, Ireland; Agnelo Rossi Archbishop of Sao Paulo, Brazil; Maximos IV Saigh, Melchite Patriarch of Antioch; Paul Pierre Meouchi, Maronite Patriarch of Antioch;

Stephanos I Sidarouss, Coptic Patriarch of Alexandria; Josef Slipyi, Archbishop of Lvov, Poland, and Prime of Ukrainian Catholics;

Thomas B. Cooray, Archbishop of Colombo, Ceylon; Leon-Etienne Duval, Archbishop of Alger, Algeria; Cesare Zerfin, Archbishop of Milan, Italy; Archbishop Ermenegildo Florit of Florence, Italy.

BISHOP ELEVATED

Paul Seagrave, Archbishop of Guatemala, Upper Volta; Enrico Dante, Archbishop Prefect of Ceremonies on the Vatican Curia; Cesare Zerfin, Archbishop Secretary of the Congregation of Sacraments of the Vatican Curia; Angel Herrera Y Oria, Bishop of Malaga, Spain; Rt. Rev. Joseph Cardijn, founder of the Catholic Youth movement in Belgium;

Rt. Rev. Charles Journet, a leading Roman Catholic sociologist, of Lausanne, Switzerland; Rt. Rev. Giulio Bellavegna, an Italian of the Vatican Curia and Pope Paul's confessor and Rt. Rev. Federico da Lori di Vignale, an Italian member of the papal household.

The last consistory for the creation of cardinals was held on March 19, 1962, when Pope John elevated 10 men in the Sacred College and brought its membership to 87, the largest in history.

Since then 11 cardinals have died.

ERROR ONLY HUMAN

OFFHAM, England (CP)—For the second time, a British Railways train has crashed into crossing gates in this Kent village. Investigators found that an automatic warning ball, which brings the gatekeeper into action, sounded too late. British Railways, replying to infuriated villagers, said: "We are satisfied this was a human error."

Ford Assists Educational Institute

OAKVILLE — For the fifth consecutive year, Ford Motor Company Fund, Dearborn, Mich., has granted $250,000 to the Institute of International Education (IIE), which will conduct the Ford International Fellowship program for the 1965-66 school year.

The 45 fellowships to be awarded under the program will provide for a year of graduate-level study by outstanding free-world scholars at the university or research centre of their choice in the United States.

IIE, with headquarters in New York, has established committees in various countries to nominate candidates for the fellowship awards.

Ford Fellowship grants are high among the scholarship awards eagerly sought by talented men and women throughout the world, according to Ernest O. Holland, president of IIE. "One of the impressive features of the program is that it enables young scholars to contribute to the advancement of their own countries, and to acquire a better understanding of this life, the institutions and the culture of North America."

At present, 43 fellows who received awards in the 1964 program are studying in the United States. Canadians among them are Peter R. Burpee, 24, of Exeter, Ont., studying at the University of Pennsylvania in his doctorate in International Economics; Lawrence B. Smith, 24, of Toronto, forward for his Ph.D. in Economics, and Rodrigue Tremblay, 24, of Maiane, P.Q., now in the first year of his doctoral study towards a Ph.D. in Economics at Stanford University, Palo Alto, California.

Ford Motor Comany Fund is a non-profit corporation that operates for educational, scientific and charitable purposes and is supported by contributions from Ford Motor Company, Dearborn, Mich. It is in no way related to The Ford Foundation.

How to save on income tax

Guaranty Trust explains how a Retirement Savings Plan might save you hundreds of dollars on your income tax. But you must act before February 28. Read these important details then mail coupon today.

A GUARANTY TRUST Retirement Savings Plan gives you two major benefits.

One. You save on income tax because contributions are deducted from your 1964 earned income.

Of course, the amount you save depends on your income and the amount you put into the Plan. The table below illustrates savings for a married man without dependents.

Two. You save money for the day when you retire and cease to earn a regular income.

The choice of retirement date at any age before 71 is entirely yours. At that time, your savings in the Plan can be used to purchase an annuity to meet your needs.

There are other advantages to joining a Guaranty Trust Retirement Savings Plan. Here are a few of them.

Savings earn interest. Your contributions are invested carefully in a trust fund designed to provide stability, income and growth. Based on previous experience, your contributions will earn between 4½% and 5% net interest. This income is tax free.

No membership fees. Guaranty Trust does not charge for membership in the Plan. The only charge is a modest administrative fee (¾ of 1%) deducted from the income of the fund.

No Regular contributions. You make no fixed commitment. You may contribute whatever amount is suitable to you (within the legal limits). You may contribute at any time. However, to get tax savings on your 1964 income tax you must contribute before February 28th.

We will be pleased to let you have a comprehensive folder which explains all the important benefits of our Retirement Savings Plan.

All you have to do is telephone Guaranty Trust (number below). Or visit us in person. Or mail coupon today and we will send you our free folder.

But do it now. You could receive hundreds of dollars back from the government as a refund on your 1964 income tax.

Annual Income	Maximum Tax-Free Retirement Savings Permissible	Income Tax Saved (Single Person) (1964 Rates)	Income Tax Saved (Married Person) (1964 Rates)	Annual Tax Saving for Married Participant
$5,000	$ 500	$ 840	$ 435	$ 105
7,500	750	1,260	825	165
10,000	1,000	1,690	1,430	260
15,000	1,500	3,390	2,815	575

Susanna's Family Fare

CORRECTION PLEASE!

One considerate reader is a pointed out that Imperial measure was not used when quoting the number of cups per pint and per quart in a recent column. Her thoughtfulness is appreciated. Here is how it should have read:

2½ cups equal 1 Imperial pint or 20 ounces;

5 cups equal 2 Imperial pints or 1 Imperial quart!

At the same time, many other kindly souls have written to suggest another simple method that "Confused Connie" could use for measuring shortening. Here is one of the letters:

Dear Susanna: Having seen "Confused Connie's" letter in your column, I would like to suggest an easy way to measure shortening.

If the recipe calls for ¼ cup of butter, fill the measuring cup half full of cold water. Add butter until the water reaches the full mark. Pour off the water and there is a cup of butter left.

If your recipe calls for 1 cup butter, repeat above hint (measure twice). The same applies to other amounts. ¾ of a cup of water if you want ½ cup of butter, and so on. After the water has been strained off, the butter comes out, without sticking to the cup.

Hoping this is a help to "Connie" or to others who may have been looking for a similar solution. — "A Friend"

BOO!

Dear Susanna: For that dark closet somewhere in the attic or basement — or even in the spare bedroom, where you don't wish to go to the expense of installing electric wiring and a fixture, you might try our solution.

Tie a strong cord to a small square of wood, and nail this to the ceiling a few inches from the wall but inside the door opening. Cut the cord off about waist level, and tie an ordinary flashlight to it.

It will hang there suspended, ready for you to reach around the corner and flick it on.

Mrs. E. S. Tucker

Listening to see the light! — SUSANNA

Early Days of Bayside School Were Difficult for Pioneers

SIDNEY TOWNSHIP — Mrs. Bessie Hennessy opened the January meeting of the Bayside Home and School Association with a request for executive reports. Mrs. Doreen Pelletier read the minutes and Mrs. Jennie Michaud gave the treasurer's report. It was decided to mail a shower for $10.00 to Mrs. Myyrs to help out with the Boy Scouts. The Home and School members will sponsor a dance in the district for Scouts and Cubs and it has become the custom to make an annual donation.

Mrs. Hennessy thanked all the members who had worked to cater for the open house for the new school in the section, and she announced the date for the annual Fun Fair as April 8. A request was made for small toys suitable for the fishpond. Three films for the projector purchased by the Home and School for the teachers' use had been obtained from the Inspectors' office, and Mrs. Michaud volunteered to demonstrate the same to the teachers after the meeting. Mrs. Campbell decided to use it first in Quinte View School, then Belcrest School will use it, then Mrs. Hawley's new school and then Bayside School so all of the children in the district will benefit. The room count prize of $5.00 was presented to Miss Garrison by the president.

FINANCE OWN SCHOOL

The evening's speakers were introduced by the president: Mrs. John Reid, sister of Glenn Meyers, the local school board representative, whose family have been going to Bayside School for five generations; Mrs. James Palmer, whose father-in-law's mother's "Uncle Jake" had been one of the three men who walked through the forest to Fort York in August 1831 to ask the Upper Canada Government for money to build a school. The government had no money but gave the men 288 acres in Sidney Township from which to make enough money to finance their own school.

Mrs. Reid told many amusing stories, some concerning her brother. She remembered travelling to school in a stagecoach run by Mr. Rathbun's father, and getting warmed up in the post office the corner. This house is now occupied by the Latchford family. Sometimes it took them until recess or dinner-time to get warm. They travelled in a carry-all to the Deaf School to hear the Governor-General, but sneaked out and visited an ice-cream parlor in Belleville instead.

Mrs. Robson, grade 4 teacher at Bayside School, contributed stories of an Indian fight on the island near the airport, a Hallowe'en prank at Bayside in which a wagon was left in the school overnight and they had no school for four days, and a thrilling account of a canoe down the Bay of Quinte to Kingston, with the bride's dress ruined in a group of Indian women.

Mrs. Reid had brought along some old textbooks and the prices were very different from today's. A book with work for 8 grades cost 17 cents. The Geography book was the most expensive, it cost 75 cents. Mrs. Reid had been active in Home and School work when the associations began in this district and gave some interesting tips on Fun Fairs to the executive. She was presented with a Bible by Mr. E. M. Brown when she left Bayside School and has used much information from it when preparing programs for Women's Institutes.

Mrs. Palmer displayed the deed from August 4, 1831, loaned by George Caves. The Bayside Crown Land was given in the name of William the Fourth and it is described on the deed as "waste land". This property had to be turned over to the new area school board when January 1st came into being without an order-in-council. A picture of the present principal, Mr. Ken Bird, learning to knit with his Grade 1 class at Marsh Hill 50 years ago was contributed by Mrs. Jermyn Palmer. Information about schools in early pioneer days was given when Mrs. Ruth loaned by Eva Baker, secretary-treasurer of the Trenton Schools. A display of old books completed the program, and notices from the Hastings County Museum were circulated.

The Belcrest School lunch committee under Mrs. Ruth Marvin served refreshments.

DESERONTO P.S.

DESERONTO — Last Thursday, over 200 parents of the pupils of the Deseronto Public School visited the school to view the work of the children and to discuss their progress with the teachers concerned.

So great was the enthusiasm shown by the parents that interviews were in progress from 7.30 to 11 o'clock. To facilitate matters room mothers volunteered to assist in arranging the order and term of each interview.

The principal and staff are appreciative of the interest shown by the number of parents in attendance.

Refreshments were served by members of the Board of Education and their wives.

Discotheque Spirit Evident at Style Show

By JANET KASK

MONTREAL (CP) —A gay, youthful look in wild prints, swinging pleats and frivolous ruffles dominated the spring-summer 1965 collection of Canadian ready - to - wear fashions previewed to the press here Friday.

The show is sponsored twice a year by the International Ladies' Garment Workers union and represents more than 100 Canadian manufacturers.

The "discotheque" spirit which hit the world's fashion centres last season was evident throughout the show, from crisp navy-and-white day-time suits to frothy black Chiffon evening wear.

Suits and coats were slim. Suit jackets were longer, than in past season and many were in double-breasted peajacket styles over short, pleated skirts. The "pulled out" body look was shown in creations that were slim to the thighs, then flared out in pleats. Coats had tight sleeves and low or waist-length half belts. Some had "rope" belts of the same fabric and a number came with elaborate back pleats.

COLORS ABOUND

Favorite colors for daytime suits and coats were the traditional navies, whites, pinks, yellows and beiges, with checks and flamel hair also popular. One striking newcomer to the spring color scene was a bright green. Another popular color combination was black with beige—or "cafe au lait."

Dresses were ruffled, pleated, low-neck and often sleeveless. Several came in such glaring colors as burnt orange and raspberry. Others were in bold prints.

One interesting new look was the "trumpet" or umbrella skirt made of several gores.

In sportswear the look was blatantly colorful and young. One deck-pant suit had a tunic appliqued with enormous colorful flowers. In general, contemporary prints were worn well above the knees.

U.C.W Meetings

IVANHOE U.C.W.

IVANHOE — The January meeting of the Ivanhoe United Church Women was held at the home of Mrs. Ted Fleming. The president Mrs. Malcolm MacMillan opened the meeting with a reading on courage, followed by prayer.

Mrs. Arthur Wood, treasurer gave the financial statement for the year 1964 showing the allocation and other obligations were met with a slight balance on hand. The budget for 1965 was read. Plans for future activities were discussed.

The annual meeting of the Belleville Presbyterial is to be held in King Street United Church, Trenton, January 27 and 28.

Mrs. Arthur Wood and Mrs. Hugh MacMillan were honored by the United Church Women, Ivanhoe at their regular meeting when they were presented with life membership pins and certificates. Mrs. Clifford Mitz read the presentation and Mrs. John Stephens presented the gifts. The recipients thanked all for the lovely gifts and the honor bestowed upon them.

Mrs. Lois Fleming was in charge of the worship service. Mrs. Mabel MacMillin conducted the study book.

A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess and lunch was served and a social get-together was enjoyed.

PLAINFIELD U.C.W.

Mrs. Harry McCreary opened her home for the January meeting of the U.C.W. with an attendance of seventeen.

President Mrs. Clarence Hall welcomed the members to the first meeting of the year and gave each the program for the year. Each member gave a New-Year's resolution.

Delegates were appointed for the Presbyterial at King Street United Church in Trenton on January 27-28.

The devotional was in charge of Mrs. A. Scoro, assisted by Mrs. C. Marshall.

The Bible study, prepared by Mrs. H. Harrison, was conducted by Mrs. F. Hodgen. It took the form of a Bible quiz.

The Mission study, prepared by Mrs. H. Harrison, was given by Mrs. G. Kerr, assisted by Mrs. R. Sullivan and Mrs. A. Marshall. It was the geography and history of the Island of Trinidad, most southernly island of the West Indies, northeast of Brazil.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her two committees and a social half hour enjoyed.

Parents Should Teach Kids To Be Kind and Courteous

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A neighbor of mine has hated me ever since last December when I got the last good Christmas tree on the lot. She was right behind me and missed out on the tree by two minutes. This woman is teaching her children to hate my children and I don't know what to do about it.

Saturday I took my youngsters to the matinee. We ran into the woman's children in the lobby. My 11-year-old son said, "Hi" to her son aged 12. The boy replied, "Shut up, you ugly rat." My son was hurt and puzzled. Finally he turned to me with tears in his eyes and asked, "Why would he answer me like that, mother?"

ANN LANDERS

Is there something I can do to combat this awful thing? — NO WORDS FOR TELLING.

DEAR NO WORDS: The best way to "combat this awful thing" is to teach your children to be kind and courteous to everyone although at times it may demand almost superhuman self-control. When the neighbor children behave like savages explain it is because they don't know better and that you hope one day they will learn.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Please pass the word to all middle-aged men who are tired of their "unexciting wives" and believe a new life with them after they got a divorce and marry a younger woman. Don't do it.

My wife became involved with another man. What she really wanted was more attention from me. But I was too busy. Instead of dealing with the problem intelligently, I decided to get even with her by chasing a young girl.

To make a long story short, I chased the young girl until she caught me. I married her and what a horrible mistake that was! She hates keeping house, refused to eat out all the time and whines when she doesn't get her way.

I can't spend my energy (and money) running around every night. I have to work hard to support two families. Her "cute little ways" now make me sick. A man 45 is too much for a young girl — physically, financially, socially or any other way.

So who's sorry now? My ex-wife, my three children, the young girl I married and most of all me, because it's all my fault. Again I say, don't do it. — BEN THAR.

DEAR BEN — Your fault? Not 100 per cent. Your wife should not have handed you a divorce so fast. A trial separation would have made much more sense.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am 18 years old and in the 10th grade. I wanted to look especially pretty at a party last week so I asked my mother if I could shave my legs. She said, "No." I went ahead and shaved them anyway. Honestly, Ann, I had to do it.

Now, one week later, the hair seems to be growing back awfully fast. I think I will have to shave my legs again very soon if I want to look like a human being instead of a gorilla.

Please tell me if it's true that the oftener a person shaves the faster the hair grows. I'd hate to have to shave my legs every day. Thank you a lot. — MISS BRISTLES.

DEAR MISS — Shaving does make hair grow faster but once every other week should be often enough. Between times use a little liquid bleach.

Your druggist will suggest bleaches which are safe and non-irritating. Some people prefer hair-removing creams to shaving. Try it and see which works best for you.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Canadian Cooks Can Copy Chefs

by Mary Moore

Thirty-three thousand feet over mid-Atlantic seems to me to be a pretty special place to watch the total eclipse of the moon.

I had the view all to myself for the steward was too busy with his duties, and a fellow passenger across the aisle was so engrossed in his business papers he did not look up. It may be that he did not approve, or perhaps understand, my offer of a view from my best window (seat 1C), for when we left the aircraft at Dusseldorf I saw and heard his large family greet him in excited German. But a total eclipse is of worldwide interest and I thought the least I could do was to offer to share the heavenly panorama.

My maternal instincts got a tremendous lift when our Air Canada DC8 would land at the big airports at Montreal and Halifax and Prestwick and London and Dusseldorf. It would come to a stop and all of the service trucks would immediately converge under it, and start unloading or loading, but looking for all the world like little pigs, nuzzling up to their mother — snout, curved tail and all — having their supper.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Creole Pork Chops; Baked Squash; Spinach; Cabbage Salad; Dutch Plum Cake; Touring Cream; Coffee.

As I told you on Christmas Eve I went to Soest in Germany to visit my daughter Marianne and son-in-law Herbie and their four children for Christmas.

All of the accumulated mail has been opened and answered and I'm back to serious cooking with some strong New Year's resolutions. We were entertained royally and the food that was served to me on Flight 851 inspired me to raise our culinary standards in this column.

I will mention a few items which I believe Canadian cooks could duplicate quite easily. On the hors d'oeuvres tray were little cornucopias of smoked British salmon, filled with a pitted ripe olive, and resting on a tiny triangular toast base. Paper thin slices of cured tongue were spread with white cream cheese, then roled up like a jelly roll and sliced in pinwheels which rested on crisp toast bases. The Vichyssoise was so good I made notes on its flavor and texture and if I can produce a reasonable facsimile you will be hearing about it in the future.

Bleached canned asparagus seems to be a great favorite with airline and European chefs. It was served to me on Bibb lettuce, banded with a strip of pimiento, garnished with thin slices of hard-cooked egg and the most delicious mayonnaise. On another occasion short fat stems of this bleached asparagus were standing upright in a scooped-out tomato, which had been slit to form petals. The bed of Bibb lettuce on which the tomato rested had stiff mayonnaise piped on as a border and this was sprinkled with sieved hard-cooked egg yolk. A very pretty salad that you and I can duplicate right now in mid-winter in Canada.

"I said—isn't it wonderful! You have a two-week vacation! NO WORK for two whole weeks!"

Heavy Burden of Grief Fell on Lady Churchill

LONDON (AP)—A heavy burden of grief fell Sunday on Lady Clementine Churchill, who bore up during Sir Winston's final illness as the soldier's wife she is.

Churchill's 79-year-old "Clemmie" has been practically inseparable from him since they appeared together in the window of their London home last November to receive cheers on his 90th birthday.

Since his final illness began on Jan. 15, she has left the house at No. 28 Hyde Park Gate only half a dozen times, the longest for three hours last Friday. She had a private lunch with friends, then returned to his bedside, where she sat for hours without sleep. Later in the day, less than 48 hours before the end, she went for a walk through the quiet streets of London's Kensington district.

Lady Churchill dressed plainly on her brief moments of respite from Sir Winston's sickroom. She appeared in a tweed checked coat, a printed scarf over her hair, and applied only a light line of lipstick.

Her last months with her husband have been hard ones. His health had deteriorated and he needed constant attention, even though he was up and about. But it was typical of Lady Churchill that until the last days, she never appeared in public without a smile.

Offers Bursary To Nurses

Miss Kathleen King, chairman of the Ontario Division Nursing Committee of The Canadian Red Cross Society, has announced that the bursary of $1,000 is again being offered to graduate nurses registered in Ontario. The candidate selected for this award is to use it to undertake further preparation in nursing at the degree level.

The Ontario Division of The Canadian Red Cross Society, recognizing the need in the nursing profession for qualified nurses to assume positions of responsibility and leadership, have established this award to encourage nurses to undertake graduate studies and qualify for senior positions.

Interested nurses should contact The Canadian Red Cross Society, Ontario Division, attention: Miss Elaine Dawson, Director of Volunteer Nursing Services, 460 Jarvis Street, Toronto 5.

To be eligible, applications must be submitted by April 15.

everything's new but the fun— and that's a corvair exclusive

Take a good look at this '65 Corvair. Different, eh? It ought to be, it's the rakish new 4-door hardtop that's all-new, from the ground up. It's like nothing else going. That's only right and proper, since there's no other car like Corvair, anywhere.

And this year, Corvair's even more of a sport than ever before. There's an adventurous new Corsa series at the top of the line, plus hardtop styling on all closed models. That makes every Corvair sedan into a glamorous sports sedan and every bit as much fun as the popular coupes and convertibles. Under that beautiful new look is a new, faster steering system, new front and rear suspensions, new wide-stance tread and a new choice of power from Corvair's winter-loving, air-cooled rear engine. It all adds up to easier handling, greater stability, smoother ride, faster response and just great fun. The kind of fun that's exclusive to Corvair and its devoted owners.

Like to join that happy group? Then take a little trip down to your Chevrolet dealer's. Membership is standard equipment.

Labor's Foreign Secretary, Michael Stewart, Virtually Unknown to British Public

By ANTHONY WHITE

LONDON (AP) — Michael Stewart, dramatically thrust Friday night into the role of Britain's foreign secretary, is one of the unknown men of British politics.

Many Britons could not have told you what job he held in the government. Many others would probably never have heard his name.

Yet if anything were to happen to Prime Minister Wilson, this shy, mild-mannered ex-schoolteacher would almost certainly take over as Labor party leader—and probably as prime minister.

For it is in Westminster, the seat of political power, that Stewart's name stands highest. Most Labor legislators rank him second only to Wilson. He easily topped last year's election for the labor shadow cabinet, the understudies chosen by every party in opposition for top government posts.

He has been described as the "best all-rounder" in the Labor team and is fond of quoting George Bernard Shaw's dictum: "If you cannot organize socialism, you cannot organize civilized life."

SHOWS DEBATING SKILL

He is no rabble-rousing reformer but a soft-spoken campaigner against what he considers social wrongs. But in a parliamentary debate, the placid, black-browed exterior breaks, and he shows debating skill.

Stewart entered politics 20 years ago, when he was 36, coming in on the great Labor landslide of 1945 that removed Sir Winston Churchill from power. Until then, he'd been a school teacher, with a typically upper middle-class background — "public school" and Oxford.

Minor posts came his way in the post-war Labor government, such as parliamentary secretary at the war office and ministry of supply.

In opposition he had a chance to develop as an all-rounder. He was an expert authority on housing, education and civil government.

When Labor won the 1964 general election, Stewart was widely promoted as housing minister, one of the toughest jobs in the government. But Prime Minister Wilson had other plans. He made Stewart minister of education and science.

Stewart is said to have something of the same academic approach to problems as Patrick Gordon Walker, the man he succeeds.

Former Foes

Sir Winston's death and saluted him in a message to Lady Churchill as a "great statesman and indefatigable champion of freedom, independence and peace. . . ."

Former President Eisenhower, supreme Allied commander during the war and one of Churchill's closest colleagues and friend, said:

"His indomitable courage, his indestructible faith in the society of free nations and in the dignity of free men typified our way of life."

Former President Truman, who succeeded president Roosevelt as Churchill's war partner, said: "Providentially his intrepid spirit came to the fore and proved decisive in defeating the forces of evil and darkness."

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin hailed Sir Winston's war role and said: "The grief of the British people in connection with this bereavement is shared here." But a Tass dispatch castigated Churchill as "the mastermind behind the cold war against the Soviet Union."

Polish Communist leaders President Edward Ochab and Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz called him "one of the greatest and most indomitable leaders of the anti-Hitler coalition of the Second World War."

Yugoslav President Tito hailed "this fighting spirit, tireless work and big contribution to the (Allied) victory."

Brazil, the only South American country which sent troops to fight in Europe during the war, declared national mourning.

In the little mud hut village of Kibera in Kenya, Chief Suleiman, one of the few surviving soldiers who fought against Churchill at the Battle of Omdurman in 1898, said simply: "He was a brave warrior."

President Ayub Khan of Pakistan said he was "deeply grieved."

Indian Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri said: "The lasting tribute we can pay him is to continue to work for the principles of peace and democracy."

NASSER JOINS TRIBUTE

President Nasser of the United Arab Republic called Churchill "one of the greatest men of our age."

Ghana's President Nkrumah praised his "great mind and generous heart."

The Duke of Windsor, former King Edward VIII, in New York, mourned the only major political leader who stood by him during the 1936 abdication crisis.

Earl Attlee, post-war Labor prime minister who succeeded Churchill in 1945, said: "He was not a very great peacetime statesman but he was a great war leader. . . . The country has lost a very great man."

The United Nations flag flew at half staff in New York and Secretary-General U Thant called Wilson his "particular grief at the death of one who played such a vital role in the organization's beginnings."

PARLIAMENTARY TRIBUTE TO LATE ELDER STATESMAN — The Union Jack flies at half mast from Victoria Tower above the Houses of parliament in London today in tribute to Sir Winston Churchill. Prime Minister Harold Wilson announced Churchill's body will lie in state Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in Westminster Hall, with funeral services Saturday in St. Paul's Cathedral.

'Great Society' Budget Almost Hundred Billion

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson told Congress today the first year of his "great society" with one of the United States' record $99,700,000,000. The president's budget message for fiscal 1966, which he himself may be the last U.S. budget to deliver, $100,000,000,000, called for:

—A $1,750,000,000 cut in excise taxes, without naming those to be reduced or repealed.

—A $2,100,000,000 increase in all social security cash benefits this year, amounting to seven per cent on the average, but followed by a steep rise in the payroll tax next year.

—Hospital care for aged persons, perhaps 19,000,000 citizens—with the taxpayers footing the bill for those not covered by social security. This would start in mid-1966.

—Quadrupled spending in the war on poverty.

Military and foreign aid outlays would be trimmed slightly, helping to reduce the budget deficit to $5,360,000 or $1,000,000,000 less than this year's record spending.

But federal outlays for education would be increased by by more than 50 per cent, to a total of $2,700,000,000, in the fiscal year starting next July 1 because "it (education) is our primary weapon in the war on poverty and the principal tool for building a great society."

He estimated that government revenues would total $94,400,000,000, also a record. This would mean a $3,200,000,000 rise in tax collections from 1964 to 1965, generated by an unprecedented fifth consecutive year of strong business expansion.

MACHINED COTTON

More than one-quarter of the Uzbek Soviet Republic's cotton yield of 3,500,000 tons of raw cotton in 1964 was harvested by machine.

Stolen Wallet May Be a Blessing in Disguise

DEAR DORIS — Not very long ago a person came to my house who I thought was a friend and when that person left, my wallet was gone. Every cent I had was in it.

I got so sick over it that I had to go to hospital and had to pay a doctor bill and nothing to pay with as every cent I had was in the wallet. I have been sick ever since. The doctor told me to get up and about a while for my health. I can't forget about it as I can't sleep at night and cry all the time.

Would you call that person a friend or thief? Please tell me what to do. — SLEEPLESS.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR SLEEPLESS — I'm sorry. It must have been a terrific shock. If you are quite sure the visitor stole it, the police should have been called in pronto. Since it must have been a large amount, why wasn't it in a bank?

And why compound the injury by crying yourself into illness? And more bills to pay?

But suppose you were to really lose your health? Or a dear one? Or your job? You can earn more money. You can have material help. Better straighten out your sense of values. If this one blow can help you with that, it just might be a blessing in disguise.

DEAR DORIS — I need some help about deciding what to do. I would like to be an airline stewardess, but since I wear glasses, this is impossible. I like to meet people, travel, file, anything in the field of mathematics — something providing a real challenge. — ANXIOUS TO SUCCEED.

DEAR ANXIOUS — Air Canada considers applications for girls wearing contact lenses, as long as the correction thus made is adequate. Had you thought of that?

There are challenges for you in many directions, but anyone who counsels you needs to know more about you. I am sending you my article "On Choosing a Career" to help with your thinking. (Available to other readers for ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Kidney Transplant Surgeon Wants More Rapid Access To Organs Following Death

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Joseph E. Murray of Boston, a pioneer in kidney transplant surgery, has called for a change in the law to permit more rapid access to human organs after death so other lives can be saved.

Dr. Murray, who carried out the first successful human kidney transplant 10 years ago, said some patients for whom a transplant is a last resort die before access to a suitable kidney can be arranged with next of kin of the donor after death.

The laws regulating the disposal of human tissue in most jurisdictions in North America holds that the body is the property of the next of kin. Even if a person gives his body to medical science before death, the Human Tissue Act of Ontario and similar statutes elsewhere would require next mothers permission of next of kin.

A new law under consideration in Ontario would permit a person entering hospital to sign away his body in the event of death without the necessity of countersigning by relatives.

Dr. Murray referred to the problem of getting kidneys for transplants in stressing major difficulties hindering efforts to develop the operation as a reliable treatment for kidney disease.

Doctors are reluctant to take a kidney from living donors, however enthusiastic the donor is. A person can live on one kidney, but if a donor should develop disease later in life he has no second kidney to fall back on.

The primary problem involved in kidney transplants is overcoming the body's natural "immune response" — the defence mechanism that rejects a foreign body of human tissue from another individual in a grafting operation.

Says Ontario Holds Key To Attitude

MONTREAL (CP) — Ontario holds the key to Canada's attitude on bicultural problems and should take a larger part in shaping this outlook, Claude Ryan, publisher of Le Devoir, said Friday.

"It is obvious that ounce for ounce an Ontario man has a better view than any other English Canadian will naturally have of the problems of Quebec," he told a meeting of Chamber of Commerce delegates from the two provinces.

"Yet," he added, "the difficulties that French - Canadians meet in Ontario are much more acute than those in Manitoba and Saskatchewan for example.

"Ontario has appeared to us in Quebec for many years the fortress of Anglo - Protestant forces. For a long time the most violent utterances against what he held dear were uttered in Ontario."

But the present attitude toward bicultural problems in Ontario and Toronto is "encouraging," he said.

TAKES INSTRUCTION

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for the Johnson family confirmed Friday night that the U.S. president's young daughter, Luci Baines, 17, has been taking instructions in the Roman Catholic religion. She is a member of the Episcopal (Anglican) Church.

Domed St. Paul's Cathedral Is Parish of Commonwealth

LONDON (CP) — St. Paul's, Cathedral, spiritual heart of London and sometimes called parish church of the Commonwealth, is the place where British honors her greatest national heroes and occasionally, as in the case of Franklin D. Roosevelt and John F. Kennedy, much-loved foreign heads of state.

National memorial services and thanksgiving services are held in the massive domed cathedral perched atop Ludgate Hill, and in the last 160 years two state funerals for national heroes—Lord Nelson and the Duke of Wellington—have taken place in it.

State funerals for sovereigns were conducted in Westminster Abbey until the present century, when they have been held at St. George's Chapel, Windsor.

A sense of brooding history creeps upon the visitor as he steps inside the vast pillared portico of Sir Christopher Wren's world - famous masterpiece.

During the blitz of the Second World War, the dome of St. Paul's became as much a symbol of hope and determination for Britons as Winston Churchill's bulldog profile. Londoners regarded it as miraculous that the great dome remained unharmed.

In 1941, the cathedral received several direct hits, but only the chapel and north transept were wrecked.

Many of England's most famous are buried or commemorated in St. Paul's. Over Wren's grave runs the famous Latin inscription: "Lector, si monumentum requiris, circumspice"—"Reader, if you seek his monument, look around you."

Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister, and other famous Commonwealth statesmen are commemorated by busts. Great English painters, scientists and writers are also buried in St. Paul's.

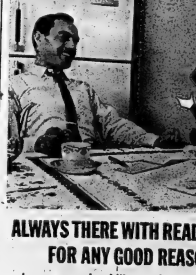
In 1947, a Bible was placed in one of the southern recesses in tribute to Winston Churchill's wartime leadership.

Death Toll Reached 26 Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Traffic accidents claimed at least 20 lives and six other persons died in fires across Canada during the weekend.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday local times also had other fatality-areas. Quebec youth who fell and cut his throat on a broken hockey stick.



British Columbia reported four traffic and four fire-deaths. Ontario had seven fatalities, all on the roads.

Alberta had four highway deaths while New Brunswick counted two on the roads and two in fires. Quebec registered three traffic deaths in addition to the hockey mishap.

Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Manitoba and Saskatchewan were fatality-free.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For January 26

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Time to make preparations. Be aware of future needs. Refuse to let matters slide. Be specific, practical. Check details. Break indicated with associate whose actions are eccentric.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Changes due. May involve member of opposite sex. Keep promises to family members. Stress moderation. Avoid going to extremes. When friend confides money problem . . . remain neutral.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Relax! Tension creates loss. You gain through diplomacy, tact. Don't try to fight city hall. You could lose by attempting to force your way. Be wary of legal entanglements.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Avoid being impatient with fellow workers. Be kind to those who serve you. You can meet same people on way down or on way up! Highlight maturity, golden rule. Think!

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Your creative powers urge to forefront. Good for writing, entertaining. Be yourself. Others want to know the real you. Shake off laziness. Day to shine and attract!

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Resist tendency to be smug. Don't be first to throw stones. Examine various angles of intriguing situation. Obtain hints from today's Gemini, Cancer messages. Many need you.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Be daring! Highlight independence, originality. Your great asset today is sense of humor. Embarrassing situation should be treated lightly. Then all relax — and profit.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Be conservative where money is concerned. One who poses as investment expert is no such thing. Be perceptive, skeptical. Only then will you get money's worth!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Cycle high. People desire your product. Personal magnetism attracts many. Key is finishing one task at a time. Then catch up on writing, advertising programs.

Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 19): Stress modern approach. Say no to one who urges you to move backward. Success lies in facing future with enthusiasm. Don't be frightened of the unknown. You are well prepared.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): How you conduct yourself now is of great importance. Set fine example. Younger persons are particularly observant. Be generous to friends. Strive to fulfill ideals.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Check with family member about expenditure. Higher-ups due to take interest in your proposals. Career matters spotlighted. Maintain quiet dignity. Remain confident.

If today is your birthday . . . you are skilled when it comes to judgment concerning investments. You seem able to perceive future "ups" and "downs."

General Tendencies: Cycle' high for Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius. Special word to Gemini: Do plenty of listening. Day to absorb knowledge.

ers will be in the cortege along with Churchill's widow and the three surviving children, Randolph, Mary and Sarah.

QUEEN TO BE CLOSE

At St. Paul's, which holds the remains of both Wellington and Admiral Lord Nelson, royal heralds will carry Churchill's banner, shield, crest and spurs. The Queen is expected to sit close to Lady Churchill.

Following the service, the body will be borne to Tower Pier to be placed on a barge—as Nelson's body once was carried — for a journey up the Thames to Festival Hall Pier for its final journey to Bladon some 70 miles northwest of London.

In the little churchyard of Bladon, with only Churchill's family in attendance, the body will be lowered into a family plot close to Churchill's mother and father.

In death, as in life, Churchill dominated the British press. For the first time in a half-century, the London Times shifted its front page advertisements to inside pages and devoted the front and 15 other pages to "the greatest Englishman of his time."

Inside was a special tribute from Poet Laureate John Masefield who spoke of Churchill as when "this England stood at bay, and stood alone, his figure, then commanding, stood as stone."

The Daily Express devoted its entire front page Monday to a photograph of Churchill, topped by the Queen's message to Lady Churchill:

"The whole world is the poorer by the loss of his many-sided genius, while the survival of this country and the sister nations of the Commonwealth in the face of the greatest danger that has ever threatened them will be a perpetual memorial to his leadership, his vision and his indomitable courage."

Amid death, there was pathos. A sleepy London was slow to get word of Sir Winston's death. Only a handful had kept vigil near his home.

Lord Moran, the frail, 82-year-old doctor who served Churchill as friend and physician, emerged from the Churchill home with a walk slower than usual. Would he rest? No, he would not. He retreated to his own home, closeted with his memories.

Saddened also was Sgt. Edmund Murray, Churchill's personal detective who had kept guard outside the house for some 18 hours a day during the last 10 days.

"I can't think of the man without getting tears in my eyes," he said.

the foreign and provincial tourists rolling up in chartered buses and strolling past the Houses of Parliament seemed unaware there was anything unusual about the day.

ABBEY CROWDED

Westminster Abbey, however, was packed with sombre-faced men and women of all ages as Bishop Max Warren and the dean of Westminster held a memorial service for Sir Winston.

Earlier, in the adjoining Church of St. Margaret's, Westminster—where Churchill and Clementine Hozier were married in 1908—former Tory premier Sir Alec Douglas-Home was among crowds attending a special service, and requested two minutes silence in honor of the great wartime leader.

There were no special services in St. Paul's Sunday, a verger said, but Sir Winston had been mentioned in prayers at the regular morning and afternoon services.

A trickle of the usual Sunday tourists wandered through the imposing, dimly-lit crypt. One Birmingham man asked a reporter what the workmen were doing.

When told they were preparing for Sir Winston's funeral, he said: "Oh no, is he dead? I hadn't heard. Of course he was an old man, but it's a terrible blow, the end of an era.

"There'll never be another like him."

Pearson Recalls He Helped Revise Famous Fulton Talk

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson says that, as a Canadian ambassador to the United States, he helped revise and modify Winston Churchill's famous speech at Fulton, Mo., in 1946.

Churchill, in that speech, coined his widely quoted "Iron Curtain" phrase.

Pearson, paying tribute to the great war leader, said in a BBC television interview broadcast Sunday that Churchill wanted the late prime minister Mackenzie King to go over the speech and Mackenzie King recommended that Pearson do the job in Washington.

Pearson said he was ushered into Churchill's presence and found him lying in bed. Churchill had a cigar in his mouth and a Scotch-whisky by his side.

Churchill glared and growled at Pearson, who took fright and urged that he be allowed to take the speech manuscript away for scrutiny elsewhere.

After looking over the manuscript, Pearson recommended that the introduction, which referred to the U.S. Civil War in a manner that favored the North, be revised because the speech was being delivered in Missouri, which had sentimental with the South.

Pearson described Churchill as the dominant personality of this century and said "we shall not see his like again."

But he suggested that Churchill was somewhat "uncomfortable" with the way the Commonwealth had developed in post - war years, especially with the inclusion of the new members from Asia and Africa.

Churchill would rather have had the Commonwealth developing in the image of the old British Empire.

Churchill "accepted" the emerging pattern because he was "realistic," said Pearson, though he was sure the British leader would not have chosen the pattern as his concept of the future of the Commonwealth.

Indeed, at one Ottawa meeting, Churchill said "something about color" which he later realized he had expressed imperfectly, Pearson related. So later, Churchill went up to the Indian high commissioner and suggested that, when the high commissioner wrote Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, he should convey Churchill's view that Nehru was one of the world's great contemporary figures because he had conquered prejudice and fear.

That seemed to please the high commissioner, Pearson said.

Churchill's First Illness Kept Secret

LONDON (CP) — The Daily Mail says today Sir Winston Churchill actually became ill Jan. 8 and suffered a stroke Jan. 11, four days before it was announced.

"The illness was kept quiet," the newspaper says in a detailed report on Churchill's illness.

"No one outside the family knew the real position. When Lord Moran (Churchill's 82-year-old doctor) visited Churchill that Friday afternoon (Jan. 15), it looked as if he had suddenly been called in. He had, in fact, been calling at the house every day for a week.

"On Monday, Jan. 11, he called in Lord Brain, the neurologist. Afterwards they told Lady Churchill that her husband had suffered a stroke. The news was kept secret. Churchill remained in bed."

The Daily Mail adds that, by Jan. 15, it became obvious that Churchill's condition was very serious. So the family, rather than risk rumors, made the statement to the news agencies that he was not well "following a heavy cold."

Five British Premiers Praise Winston

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Wilson, 48, led four former British prime ministers Sunday in paying warm tribute to Sir Winston Churchill as a statesman and war leader.

Wilson, first Labor party premier since Clement Attlee led the Conservative party to victory over Clement (now Lord) Attlee's Labor administration in 1951, said:

"He will be mourned all over the world, all who owe so much to him.

"But now at peace after a life in which he created history and which will be remembered as long as history is read."

Earl Attlee himself, who at 82 now is Britain's oldest living former prime minister and who served as Churchill's deputy in the wartime coalition, said:

"Sir Winston was one of the most remarkable men of his time. The Second World War gave him the opportunity for the full display of his talents.

"He had the power of expressing in a few words what the common people felt, what everyone felt . . . he was able to work with people of different views and different temperaments."

EDEN PAYS TRIBUTE

Lord Avon, 67, who as Sir Anthony Eden served Churchill's political heir, described Churchill as "the talisman of free men everywhere," and said:

"It is literally true to say but for him we and his leadership, we should not have weathered as we did the darkest days of the war and perhaps draw some inspiration from his example of tenacity, endurance and faith."

Harold Macmillan, 70, another Conservative party ex - prime minister, said Churchill was "the last of the heroic figures."

Macmillan, Churchill's wartime leadership, he said:

"Throughout the Commonwealth, in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, as well as through Africa and Asia, his was the voice that was the man, who stood as the defender of their present liberties and future aspirations."

Sir Alec Douglas-Home, 61-year-old former Conservative prime minister, said Churchill as "the greatest of Englishmen" swung the balance in the Second World War from defeat to victory.

"For it was Churchill above all above all others, with his passionate hatred of evil, who rallied the free world, and in many and, by his willpower and courage, swung the balance in the war from defeat to victory."

Rural Churchyard Will Be Churchill's Resting Place

BLADON, England (AP)— Winston Churchill will be buried in the quiet, rural churchyard cemetery of St. Martin's Anglican Church here behind the graves of his father and mother. He will rest among a crowded clutter of headstones with the people he loved.

It is a friendly churchyard, with a sidewalk leading through it. Villagers using it will walk within a few feet of Churchill's grave. Before infirmity overtook him, Churchill visited his mother's grave every year.

Off in the distance from the cemetery can be seen the battlements of Blenheim Palace, Churchill's birthplace.

The narrow streets of Bladon —population 413—are lined with neat, well kept stone houses, some with brightly painted shutters or doorways. Only a few steps from the church is a small fence painted bright red. A low fence of weathered stones surrounds the cemetery.

Down the road a mile is Hanborough Station where Churchill's body will be taken from the funeral train bringing it from London.

DATES TO 1853

It is a small wooden building dating to 1853 with a waiting room and ticket agent square and a room of the same size for selling tickets. Lacking gas or electricity, it is lighted by oil pressure lamps.

The funeral party will move from the station to St. Martin's where the service will be brief.

There will be no room in the churchyard for a monument which some Churchill admirers would like to see. All the graves of his father, Lord Randolph Henry Spencer Churchill, a simple stone cross about 10 feet high, has the inscription: "Thy will be done."

Apparently Churchill wanted it that way—to lie near his American mother, who once moved him to write: "She alone for me like the evening star."

Red Ensigns and Union Jacks Fly Half Staff Across Canada As Tribute Paid Sir Winston

Manning May Be Strong Man For Tory Party

EDMONTON (CP) — Agriculture Minister Harry Hays suggested Saturday night that Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta may be the "strong man" needed to save the Conservative party from ruin.

He said the federal party appears to be in serious danger of breaking apart under the leadership of John Diefenbaker, "this misguided man."

Speaking to the Alberta Liberal Federation, Mr. Hays said Conservative party executives have known for a long time about Mr. Diefenbaker's failings.

"No wonder men like Premier Manning are beginning to express their concern publicly. The historic role of conservatism in this country—the Conservative party—is strangling in its own leadership vacuum.

"It needs a strong man to save it and to restore the two-party system to our national politics.

"Maybe Mr. Manning is the one to do it."

Mr. Manning leads the Alberta Social Credit government.

SWEARS IN MINISTERS

SANDRINGHAM, England (AP)—The Queen held a privy council meeting at her country home at Sandringham Sunday for the swearing-in of three cabinet ministers. The three who took the oath were Michael Stewart, the new foreign secretary; Anthony Crosland, who succeeded Stewart as secretary of state for education and science, and Frank Cousins, minister of technology.

Flags dipped to half staff across Canada Sunday as Canadian politicians, vice - regal representatives, religious leaders and the man in the street joined in paying tribute to Sir Winston Churchill. Governor-General Georges Vanier said in a statement:

"I know I voice the sentiments of the people of Canada in conveying to Lady Churchill and to Sir Winston's family our deep sorrow at the passing of a man who, during the darkest days through which humanity has gone within modern times, stood out above all others.

"There can be no doubt in any mind that without his prodigious leadership, without his uncopyrable confidence, without his stirring eloquence, the tide of civilization in Europe might have ebbed for generations. . . ."

The three Red Ensigns over the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa were lowered to half staff and ordered sent out to defence establishments across the country by lower flags.

The Union Jack was raised and lowered to half staff over the Ontario legislature in Toronto at a special tribute to Sir Winston. This is the first time the Union Jack, recently approved by the Queen as Canada's official emblem of Commonwealth membership, has flown over Queen's Park.

Prime Minister Pearson and Governor-General Vanier were the first persons to sign the book of condolences in the office of the British high commission in Ottawa Sunday afternoon.

Similar books are to be open at British government offices in Vancouver, Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal, Quebec and Halifax.

Prayers were offered in churches across Canada. Some churches held one minute silences. Memorial services were also being planned for later in the week.

Radio bulletins first broke the news of Churchill's death to most Canadians.

Local radio stations specializing in popular music turned down their programs and many carried taped recordings of tributes from world leaders and specially - prepared programs giving stories of Churchill's best-remembered speeches.

One Ottawa station invited listeners to phone in their tributes to be broadcast, and a number of persons did.

The nation's English - language radio network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation began special news bulletin of the day to Churchill's death and continued through the day with excerpts of tributes from around the world. The network also broadcast six special programs devoted to Churchill during the day.

The French radio network produced similar programs.

The national television network of the CBC devoted several newscasts and special programs entirely to Churchill's death. A Newsmagazine program on Churchill replaced the scheduled Ed Sullivan show Sunday evening.

The CBC French television network produced one 30-minute special telecast on Churchill Sunday night besides regular news coverage.

The CTV national network ditched a regular commercial program for a special half-hour news report by Sir Winston's death at 6 p.m. EST. A scheduled film on the First World War was shown later Sunday evening.

Morning newspapers across the country headlined the news and devoted lead editorials and several pages each with photographs of Churchill, his life and speeches.

'All Took Cheer Content With Such a Captain'

LONDON (Reuters) — A 17-line poem in tribute to Sir Winston Churchill by Britain's poet laureate, John Masefield, was published in The Times today.

Entitled Sir Winston Churchill, the poem reads:

The Divine Fortune,
watching Life's affairs,
Hastily endowed him with what Fortune may,
With Sense of Storm and where the Centre lay,
With tact of deed, in some wise witty way,

Fortune of parents came to equal share,
With England's wisest mingling with the West,
A startling entrance, making better best,
A newness putting old things to a test. . . .

So, when convulsion came,
and direst need,
When, in mess of Nations
overthrown,
This England stood at bay,
and stood alone,
His figure, there commanding, stood as stone,

Or, speaking, uttered like the very breed
Of Francis Drake, disastrous being near,
One solemn watchword, to have done with fear.
Thence, without other drum-beat, all took cheer,
Content with such a Captain, such a Creed.

Vanier, Pearson, Diefenbaker Lead Canadians in Expressing Sorrow at Churchill's Death

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Governor - General Vanier, Prime Minister Pearson, premiers of the provinces and other prominent Canadians paid tribute Sunday to Sir Winston Churchill as Britain's wartime prime minister who died in London earlier in the day.

Mr. Vanier, in a message to Lady Churchill, said all Canadians share her sorrow over the loss of the 90-year-old husband. His message said:

"But for him night might have settled over Europe for generations! In the name of all my countrymen I thank you for being his inspiration."

The prime minister called Churchill "the greatest leader of our time." Mr. Pearson said:

"Sir Winston has passed on, but the example of his courage, the majesty of his words, the inspiration of his leadership and of his life, these will endure for all time."

Other representative comment:

John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative leader: "He was a faithful servant of the Crown. He served his country. He never exalted in victory; he was never daunted in defeat. He remained through the dark days of freedom's peril . . . shall be heard down through the years of time."

Robert L. Stanfield, premier of Nova Scotia: "He will always represent the utmost in courage, tenacity, resourcefulness and leadership."

Joseph Smallwood, premier of Newfoundland: "Every one of us alive in the world is a bigger man or a bigger woman because we have lived in the same world as the same time with this great human being."

Daniel A. Riley, acting premier of New Brunswick: "His memory can best be perpetuated by our instilling in the hearts of our children the inspirational examples of courage sacrifice, determination, perseverance, loyalty to the Crown and love of our fellow men which burned so fiercely in his heart."

W. A. C. Bennett, premier of British Columbia: Sir Winston was the man "who saved the world and people everywhere will always be indebted to him."

R. L. Hanbidge, lieutenant-governor of Saskatchewan: "In the hearts of free men everywhere the name and fame of Winston Churchill live forever."

Ross Thatcher, premier of Saskatchewan: "The work he did in years past and the leadership he once gave still have a profound effect on decisions of the day."

E. C. Manning, premier of Alberta: "His courage, faith and leadership became a guiding light for all men everywhere who cherished freedom."

J. Percy Page, lieutenant-governor of Alberta: Sir Winston was the outstanding and dynamic political personality of the 20th century and he was "a great bulwark in Britain's time of stress."

Errick Willis, lieutenant-governor of Manitoba: "I do not know of any individual in this century who has contributed as much to the democratic world as Sir Winston Churchill."

Duff Roblin, premier of Manitoba: "In the death of Sir Winston we have lost a noble spokesman of free people, a stirring voice of liberty. . . . With such a great spirit, no one dared falter; with him to lead no one did falter."

Robert Thompson, national Social Credit leader: "The death of Sir Winston Churchill marks the end of an era which at this time reminds all of us the debt of gratitude we owe this man."

Louis St. Laurent, former Canadian prime minister: "He was one of the greatest men the world has known. He was a man for whom I had the greatest admiration."

R. MacKeen, lieutenant-governor of Nova Scotia, in a telegram to Lady Churchill: "Nova Scotia mourns the death of Sir Winston, one of history's greatest and most beloved sons."

Most Rev. H. H. Clark, Anglican Primate of Canada: "The news of Sir Winston Churchill's death fills us with a sense of awe at the passing of one of the giants of history. We feel gratitude for this man whose words and deeds rallied a people threatened with destruction and gave the world a chance to meet the confusions of a new age with more freedom and justice than perhaps it deserved."

NINE INJURED

GALIEN, Mich. (AP) — Nine persons were injured in a derailment of nine cars of the New York Central's Twilight Limited passenger train near here Sunday night. Others among the estimated 170 to 200 passengers were shaken up when cars of the Chicago-to-Detroit train left the track.

CHURCHILL

"Heart of a Lion... A Bulldog's Courage"

Young Campaigner
Churchill in 1906

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill had the heart of a lion, the courage of a bulldog and a digestive system akin to a cement mixer.

His constitution was remarkable and his habits were the despair of his doctors.

He never believed in exercise, stayed up late, drank wine, whisky and brandy, gambled in Mediterranean casinos and puffed on Havana cigars.

It was his beloved wife Clementine who finally got him in an ambulance one day in November, 1960, when he injured his back. The ambulance drove him quietly through the streets of London to the x-ray which disclosed a small bone fracture.

Churchill suffered two strokes —one of which brought on a temporary paralysis of speech and interfered with his walking —before he resigned on April 5, 1955, as Britain's prime minister.

SCOFFED AT WHEEL CHAIR

Stricken, he scoffed at wheel chairs, struggled back to a life of robust action and at the age of 80 participated in an election campaign with the vigor of a man 50 years his junior.

He was back again at the age of 84 to campaign in the 1959 election. He steeled himself with large brandies and went on to make his speeches.

On one occasion in recent years, he asked his doctor, Lord Moran, whether a Cointreau—a strongly alcoholic liquer—was permitted after lunch.

"Do you want it or do you need it?" asked the physician.

"I neither want it nor need it, but I should think it pretty hazardous to interfere with the ineradicable habit of a lifetime," replied Churchill.

Even late in life, his resilience was almost fantastic.

One day he could be seen tottering along the corridors of the House of Commons.

"Poor old Winston," some would comment.

The very next day he would tread that same corridor with a step that suggested a lively old gentleman.

He fell asleep at a political meeting. Two evenings later he regaled dinner guests with midnight stories.

Sometimes his memory appeared to play him tricks. On other occasions he could remember minute details of events that happened 50 years in the past.

SUMMONED GENERAL

At the end of the Geneva conference in 1954, he summoned U.S. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith to come to see him on his way back to Washington.

Smith, then undersecretary of state, flew to London instead of directly back to the United States and hurried to Churchill.

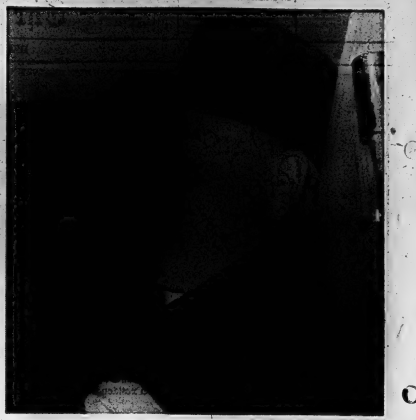
They talked about events at Geneva and when Smith was leaving his wartime friend, Churchill said to him as they reached the front door:

"How nice of you to think of coming to see me, Beetle (Smith's nickname). By the way, how did you happen to be in London?"

Churchill loved his bed and was a late sleeper. Hours after awakening he remained in bed, working, talking, eating and drinking.

"When one wakes up after daylight," he explained. "One should breakfast. Five hours after that, luncheon. Six hours after, dinner.

"Thus one becomes independent of the sun, which otherwise meddles too much in one's affairs and upsets the routine of work."



RELISHED LIFE

A man who relished life, Churchill despised talk about death or his advanced age.

On his 75th birthday he was less reluctant.

Asked whether he had any fear of death he replied:

"I am ready to meet my maker. Whether my maker is prepared for the great ordeal of meeting me is another matter."

For Canadians--A Defiant and Memorable Phrase

Ottawa 1941: "Some Chicken — Some Neck!"

That week after Christmas 1941 was one of the darkest periods for modern civilization.

The war in Europe had suddenly raced around the globe, setting the Far East on fire.

In Hong Kong, 2,000 were with the British garrison trapped by fierce Japanese onslaught.

In Ottawa a defiant figure stood before a microphone in the House of Commons and rumbled a solitary phrase:

"Some chicken! Some neck!"

His listeners rocked with cheers and sudden laughter. Winston Churchill had chosen the Canadian capital to hurl another taunt from his dictionary of defiance at the common enemy.

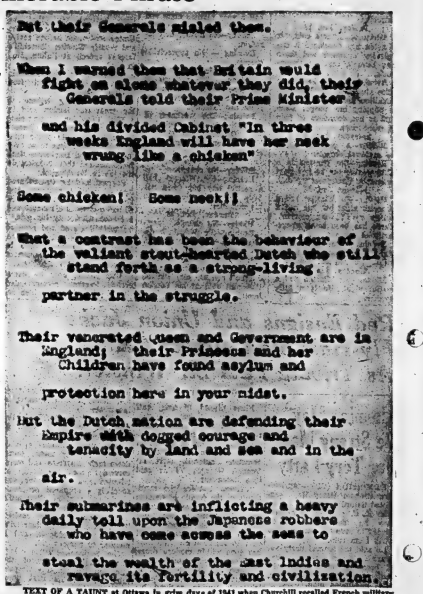
It became one of the most memorable wartime expressions.

Churchill was no stranger to Canada when he stood before its Parliament on that grim day — his first visit came when he was 26 and already famous for his Boer War exploits.

"I have been all over Canada," he once recalled, "and I have a most vivid picture in my mind of many faces from Halifax to Kicking Horse Valley and further on to Vancouver — where I caught a lovely salmon in the harbor in 20 minutes.

In 1943 and 1944 he met with President Roosevelt and Prime Minister King at Quebec City to plan vital war strategy.

In 1941 probably the most crucial rendezvous of the war took place between Churchill and Roosevelt — aboard a battleship in Placentia Bay, Newfoundland.



His last visit to Canada was in 1952 — after his re-election as prime minister.

On his departure then he told a crowd: "I am not going to say goodby. I am only going to say au revoir. I do not want to make an engagement as to when I shall be back."

However, it was on that last visit that he reminded Canadians — and his own countrymen — of a common bond, —

In doing so he set down another ringing phrase:

"We have not journeyed all this way across the centuries, across the oceans, across the mountains, across the prairies because we are made of sugar candy . . ."

TEXT OF A TAUNT at Ottawa in grim days of 1941 when Churchill recalled French military summation of Britain's survival as a wrung chicken. "Some chicken . . . some neck!" he growled.

He Might Have Been Great Artist

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill might have become one of the world's great artists.

"He had a true sense of color and design," said Sir Gerald Kelley, a past president of Britain's Royal Academy," and his craftsmanship was of the highest order.

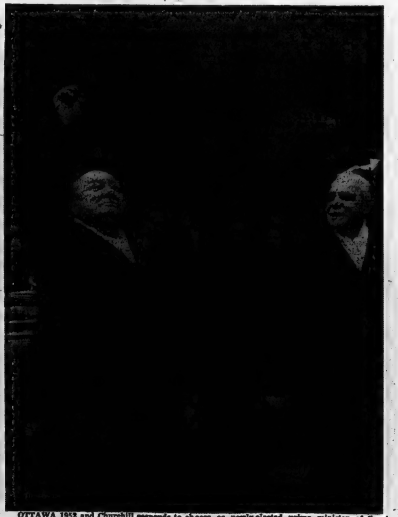
"Had he seriously pursued art as a career and commenced as a young man there's no telling how far he would have gone."

Churchill turned to painting for relaxation and as an outlet for his amazing energy.

"If it weren't for painting, I couldn't live," he once told Sir John Rothenstein, director of London's Tate Gallery, "I could not bear the strain of things."

BAD FLIPPANT APPROACH

When Churchill started daubing, his approach was flippant.



"I slapped on a great amount of paint," he confided to a friend, "and never looked back."

He urged the amateur—and he always insisted he was nothing more—to be generous with color and to paint boldly.

Churchill turned to painting in desperation during the First World War when he was a self-styled opposition member in a coalition government.

Britain's armored car division head engaged Sir John Lavery to do Churchill's portrait. After a few days of posing, the impetuous, self-confident Winston began giving the artist hints on painting.

Sir John countered with professional advice—which Churchill accepted.

'Real Peace' With Russia Eluded Him

LONDON (AP)—Real peace with Russia was the great prize that Sir Winston Churchill sought so eagerly and never achieved.

It always eluded him. But he never gave up hope.

"Patience and perserverance must never be grudged when the peace of the world is at stake," he told the House of Commons late in his career.

"Never flinch, never weary, never despair."

Near the end of his life, he was still convinced he could have brought it off. Time had passed him by and he was out of high office. Yet he dreamed of the prize that eluded him.

Sitting in a sheltered corner of the broad lawn at his country house Chartwell in 1958, he told visiting former president Harry S. Truman:

"If we were both running things today perhaps things would be different. Perhaps we could reach some true understanding with the Russians."

Some critics said Churchill never properly understood the Soviet Union or its tough, unsentimental, uncompromising leaders.

Even Churchill said in 1939: "Russia is a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma."

But the dream of Russia and the West living side by side in trustful harmony often flashed across his visionary mind.

On an autumn evening in 1944, towards the end of his last trip to the Soviet Union, he sat in front of a glowing fireplace in the British embassy in Moscow and thought out loud.

> "Russia Is a Riddle Wrapped in a Mystery, Inside an Enigma"

For nine days he had been talking to Joseph Stalin. The war was in its last stages, but Churchill was already thinking of the peace. And the looming problem of Communist Russia.

"We must find a way," he said in his slow measured voice, "a way to live in peace with these people and their leaders.

"If we don't find a way" he went on and the expression on his face grew grim, "we face a calamity almost too somber to contemplate."

Four months later and back in Britain, he told the House of Commons:

"There indeed would be the fortunes of mankind if some awful schism arose between the Western democracies and the Russian soviet Union, if the future world organization were rent asunder, and if new catclysms of inconceivable violence destroyed all that is left of the treasures and liberties of mankind."

In efforts to impress Stalin with his sincerity, Churchill often opened his heart to the Kremlin boss. But it was always through interpreters.

Churchill's warmth as a leader spoke no Russian and the grim Georgian no English. Stalin never got the real impact of Sir Winston's eloquence.

After the Yalta conference, the then British prime minister said this concerning Russia and its international pledges:

"I know of no government which stands to its obligations —even in its own despite—more solidly than the Russian government."

But in 1953, he said:

"The day will come when if will be recognized without doubt throughout the civilized world that the strangling of bolshevism at birth would have been an untold blessing to the human race."

In the same year, however, Churchill proposed a "parley at the summit" between the Western big powers and the Soviet Union to bring about peace.

And although Churchill never gave up hope, he was no longer prime minister when the first summit conference was held in Geneva in 1955 and had faded from political life by the time of the abortive Paris summit of 1960.

The Great Clarion Call
'We Shall Fight On'

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press Correspondent

In all of Winston Churchill's mighty speeches during the Second World War, one blazing passage most fully personified him and the spirit of Britain at the time.

It was the famous "we shall fight on . . . " speech.

It was designed to steel his countrymen in a critical hour when all hope of victory seemed shattered and Adolf Hitler's armies were rolling east across the narrow English Channel.

Churchill also considered the speech supremely important because, in his view, it had a profound effect in the United States.

These were the circumstances leading up to it:

In the early summer of 1940, the German armies collapsed the left wing of the Allied defence lines. Presently, at Dunkerque, in France, the British found themselves trapped. The only escape route remaining was by sea.

EVACUATION BEGINS

Evacuation began. Initially, it was thought that perhaps 50,000 men, at most, could be rescued. But, in a brilliant operation, the total was 335,000.

On June 4, 1940, Churchill delivered the memorable speech in Parliament. "It was my duty to lay the story fully before them," he said later.

He began by tracing the course of the battle that came to a climax, so far as Britain was concerned, at Dunkerque.

"The struggle was protracted and fierce," he said. "Suddenly the scene has cleared. The crash and thunder has momentarily, but only for the moment, died away. The miracle of deliverance . . . is a manifesto to us all."

But in spite of the huge number of troops snatched from the jaws of the German trap, Churchill said Dunkerque was not a victory. "Wars are not won by evacuations," he said.

LOSSES WERE HEAVY

British losses in weapons and equipment were heavy. Churchill candidly set forth the bitter facts. As for the larger consequences, he said:

"The whole of the channel ports are in his (Hitler's) hands, with all the strategic consequences that follow from that, and we must expect another blow to be struck almost immediately at us or at France."

Utter silence gripped the House of Commons.

Churchill then painted a grim picture of the methods that probably would be used in the invasion. Nonetheless, he said, he believed Britain could defend itself.

"At any rate, that is what we are going to try to do. That is the resolve of His Majesty's government, every man of them. That is the will of Parliament and the nation."

THUNDERED AND GROWLED

Finally, in a voice alternately growling and thundering, he came to the immortal peroration:

"We shall not flag nor fail. We shall go on to the end. We shall fight in France and on the sea and oceans; we shall fight with growing confidence and growing strength in the air . . .

"We shall defend our island whatever the cost may be; we shall fight on the beaches, the landing grounds, in fields, in streets and in the hills. We shall never surrender . . .

"There is a story that Churchill, breathless and panting after this long passage, muttered, "and, if need be, we shall bash their heads with bottles, for this is all we have now."

If he did say this, it was drowned in the mighty roar of cheering and applause that exploded in the House. The members of Parliament rose, as a man, clapping and shouting. No other speech surpassed this one in power and impact.

1964: "I Am Now Nearing the End of My Journey . . . "

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill gave up the prime ministership of Britain April 5, 1955—beaten in the end by the weight of years.

The advance of time did to Churchill what dictators' armies and warplanes failed to do. Time made him human.

He bowed to the pleas of his doctor, Lord Moran, at the helm.

He gave in to the urging of his wife, Clementine, who felt he must try to conserve his waning strength.

He surrendered to the tactful—but urgent—petitions of some Conservative party leaders who wanted a younger, more vigorous man at the helm.

The Churchill who stepped into history that day was in his 81st year.

SOMETIMES DODDERED

He was an old man who doddered, as old men will, on one day, but who rose to great heights of oratory and intellect on the next.

Sometimes, he nodded his balding, white-fringed head in sudden sleep midway in meetings of the cabinet.

Sometimes he momentarily forgot the names of world-famous men—men of power with whom he had joined and dined and matched wits across the table in wary intimacy.

"I am now nearing the end of my journey," he said in tones tinged with regret in his 80th birthday speech on Nov. 30, 1954.

But in his waning years is office he also stirred the British nation in ringing speeches.

"Never flinch, never weary, never despair," he said in his last major address as prime minister.

MOWED OPPONENTS

And while at times the old man had seemed to be fading, he revived regularly to mow down Laborite opponents, one after another, with quick shafts of repartee in the House of Commons.

In 1951 a sudden stroke laid him low at the French Riviera home of his friend, Lord Beaverbrook, the newspaper publisher.

The news was kept secret and Churchill was put to bed. Worried doctors hovered over him. They ordered him to stay quiet.

Instead the old man insisted on helping to phrase a misleading communique for reporters.

Then, as a friend left the sickroom to deliver the statement to newspaper men, he heard the shuffle of slippered feet behind him in the corridor.

Churchill, only a few hours after his stroke, was up out of bed—and chasing his associate down a drafty hall.

MADE A CHANGE

He wanted to make a change in the communique. And he did.

Again in 1953, a second stroke paralyzed him and left him speechless. People close to Churchill expected him to die.

A friend gave him a modern wheel chair with ingenious gadgets intended to make life easier for chair-bound invalids. It delighted Churchill at first. Then the thought struck him that the prime minister of Great Britain was dependent upon gadgets.

His friends say the idea so troubled him that he fought his way back to health.

After retirement in 1955, Churchill remained in the Commons as an ordinary member. In recent years, however, he seldom attended, showing up only on his birthday or other special occasions.

In November of 1960, he fell and fractured a small bone in his back. In June of 1962, he broke his leg in a fall while on a vacation at Monte Carlo. The old warrior came back from both these injuries.

He retired from parliament last year.

GREAT OLD MAN — A recent birthday photograph

"But Yesterday His Word Stood Against the World . . "

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill will be remembered as much for his words as for his deeds.

Both in war and in peace, he rose to descriptive heights—a verbal summit, he might have called it—as the great-phrase-maker.

During the Second World War, in the agony of early military defeat, he forged the English language into a mighty weapon.

With it, he roused his own people and stirred the free world. He called Hitler a "bloodthirsty gutterswipe" and Mussolini a "whipped jackal."

In the days of peace, his references to an "Iron Curtain" and a "summit meeting" came into general use.

Yet, when he took his first school examination he could think of nothing more than his name to write on the blank piece of paper before him.

MIND WAS REBELLIOUS

Though this didn't mean that his youthful mind was lazy. On the contrary, it was fertile and restless, but rebellious and undisciplined.

The schoolboy who couldn't pass written examinations lived to write millions of words that promise to be quoted by generations.

Some of his war sayings roll majestically down the avenues of time.

"We shall defend our island whatever the cost may be," he told a stunned British nation after Dunkerque.

"We shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields and in the streets, we shall fight in the hills, we shall never surrender."

And then his tribute to the RAF that had heroically stood up to massive odds:

"Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

And as he became wartime prime minister:

"If we don't find a way," he said in his slow measured voice, "a way to live in peace with these people and their leaders.

"If we don't find a way" he went on and the expression on his face grew grim, "we face a calamity almost too somber to contemplate."

Four months later and back in Britain, he told the House of Commons:

"There indeed would be the fortunes of mankind if some awful schism arose between the Western democracies and the Russian soviet Union, if the fu-

"Are You the Greatest Man in the World?"
"Buzz Off" Said Churchill

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—Some called Winston Churchill the greatest man in the world.

Sir Anthony Eden once told him so from a public platform. Sir Winston didn't contradict him.

There's even a trace of evidence that Churchill agreed.

A year before Churchill resigned as prime minister in 1955, a reporter was taken to meet the great man.

On the way to Chartwell, Churchill's country home, the boy's nurse tried to impress her charge with the high honor of the occasion.

"Don't forget that when you grow up you will be able to say that you have seen the greatest man in the whole world," she said.

Unfortunately, when the nurse and boy reached Chartwell they were told Sir Winston was resting in bed and that they would have to take tea alone.

On the way home the nurse turned to her ward and sighed: "I guess that means that you did not see Sir Winston."

"Oh, but I did."

The youngster had followed a butler going upstairs with a loaded tea tray. When the servant opened Churchill's door, the boy tip-toed in.

LAY ON BED

There on a big bed lay the master, propped up by a stack of pillows, reading through a pair of spectacles.

"Excuse me, sir," interrupted the small intruder," but are you the greatest man in the whole world?"

Britain's leader glared over his glasses at the audacious child.

"Certainly," he said. "I am the great man in the whole world. Now, buzz off."

Leading members of the opposition Labor party admired him greatly.

"Undoubtedly, the hour found the man," said Lord Attlee, the former Labor prime minister. "He said in unforgettable phrases what people had on their minds. He inspired everyone."

Lloyd George, the country's leader in the First World War, described him as a genius, but added:

"Unfortunately, genius always provided its critics with material for censure—and always will. Churchill is no exception."

'STRETCHED MINDS'

French President Charles de Gaulle, often critical of many men, said:

"Well-tried in politics, he possessed an extraordinary gift, which one hardly knew whether to call angelic or diabolical, for rousing the phlegmatic English as well as for stirring the minds of foreigners."

In 1963, President John F. Kennedy called Churchill "the most honored and honorable man to walk the stage of human history in the time in which we live."

Adolf Hitler, who above all men had every reason to loathe Churchill, once sneered:

"Between Churchill and (Sir Stafford) Cripps I have no hesitation in choosing. I prefer a hundred times the undisciplined swine who drunk eight hours out of every 24 to the puritan."

Although he liked the good things of the table and the wine cellar, Churchill made plain his views on drinking too much, too, saying:

"I have been brought up and trained to have the utmost contempt for people who get drunk."

On the same subject, but in a lighter vein, he said:

"All I can say is that I have taken more out of alcohol than alcohol has taken out of me."

OLD WAR HORSE

Even Stalin had something to say about Churchill.

"You can't shut Churchill out of public life," he once said.

When the British got into trouble again, they will send for their old war horse."

Franklin D. Roosevelt, a great admirer of Churchill, didn't approve of all of his ideas.

"Churchill has a hundred ideas a day," said F.D.R., "of which at least four are good ideas."

Told on one occasion no great man would have changed political parties twice as he did, Sir Winston smiled.

He didn't disagree, but he interposed this unique thought:

"Anyone can ral, but it takes a certain amount of ingenuity to re-ral."

His Marriage Long, Happy

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill is survived by his wife, a son and two daughters. Although his own marriage was a long and happy one, those of his children frequently ended in divorce.

Sir Winston married Clementine Ogilvy Hozier Sept. 12, 1908. Their only son, Randolph, was born May 28, 1911. His marriage in 1939 to Pamela Digby ended in divorce. He married June Osborne. He is a journalist.

Sarah, Churchills' eldest daughter, Diana, was born July 11, 1909. She was married in 1932 to Duncan Sandys, a member of South African millionaire, and later divorced. In 1935 she married Duncan Sandys, a member of Parliament and later a cabinet minister. The marriage ended in divorce in 1960.

She died in October 1963, at the age of 54 years after she took her own life with a massive dose of sleeping pills.

Sarah, an actress, was born Oct. 7, 1914. She was married in 1936 to comedian Vic Oliver, and subsequently divorced. In 1949 she married Anthony Beauchamp, a British composer. He died in 1957. She married Lord Audley in April, 1962. He died in July 1963.

The youngest daughter, Mary, was born Sept. 15, 1922. She was married in 1947 to Christopher Soames, also a member of Parliament and a cabinet minister. The Churchills had another daughter, Marigold, who was born in 1918 and died before her third birthday.

Reporters Who Waited for '30' Were Honoring Member of Clan

By LYNN HEINZERLING

LONDON (AP)—The reporters who waited quietly outside Winston Churchill's home during the last days of his life were honoring one of their kind.

Churchill gained fame at 25 as a war correspondent during the Boer War in South Africa. At one time, the Boers had a price on his head—dead or alive.

He could not resist the call of action or adventure. At the turn of the century, when Boers and Britons were fighting for South Africa, Churchill hastened there by ship as a correspondent for the London Morning Post.

There was plenty of action. One day, riding an armored train, he found himself in the middle of a Boer ambush. Bullets and shells brought the train to a stop and Churchill was captured.

The Boer who made him prisoner was Louis Botha, who later became prime minister of South Africa.

Churchill went into a prison stockade with other British prisoners, but his imprisonment didn't last long. He went over the wall one dark night and made his way through enemy territory for days.

WAS WANTED MAN

It was then that the Boers put a low price on his head. They also circulated a poster which described him as follows:

"Englishman, 25 years old, five feet eight inches tall. Indifferent build. Walks with forward stoop. Pale appearance. Reddish - brown hair. Small and hardly noticeable mustache."

The poster also said that Churchill "talks through his nose and cannot pronounce words properly."

Nobody ever collected the reward. Churchill found an Englishman who concealed him in a coal mine. Later, when the search slackened, he made his way to freedom in Portuguese East Africa (Mozambique), hidden under a pile of sacks on a train.

Word that Churchill was "missing" had reached England. When he wrote the story of his escape, it was a sensation.

It was, in fact, sensational enough to win Churchill his first seat in Parliament in 1900.

Between the wars, when the Conservative party leadership seemed to spurn his talents, Churchill turned again to newspapers for a platform.

WARNED OF HITLER

In the 1930s, he warned in articles after article of Hitler's rise and the catastrophe that would follow. The late Lord Beaverbrook, whose Sunday Express was a favorite Churchill vehicle, was among his closest friends.

Almost to the end, Churchill shared the reporters' sense of excitement at reading "tomorrow's news" in the first editions of the morning papers.

Every night, a messenger took them to his home from Fleet Street, London's newspaper row. Next morning a similar batch of last editions would be delivered. Churchill would read them in bed as the first business of the day, just as he did throughout the Second World War.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CANYER, Sports Editor

Two men who raised a lot of Hull in their younger days quietly shook hands in Memorial Arena Saturday afternoon.

One was Robert Hull Sr. of Point Anne, father of pro-know-who and his three brothers and seven sisters. The other was John Hull, who has seen twelve Hulls reel off the family assembly line down Ottawa way.

The Ottawa Hull producer showed no favorites. His family flesh consists of six boys and six girls.

The hockey flagship of the Ottawa flotilla is Stevie, an outstanding star with the Alta Vista team who were guests of the Belleville peewees and the Belleville Minor Hockey Association at the Minor Hockey Week observance over the weekend.

Stevie played outstanding hockey in the two games the Alta Vistas and Belleville played Saturday and Sunday. His speed, stickhandling and shooting in the Saturday engagement viewed by this corner marked him as one of the better players on the ice. The youngster should go places, hockey-wise.

Steve Hook, former Belleville softball pitching star, and manager of the five teams under the jurisdiction of the Alta Vista Suburban Hockey Association, predicts great things for the young Hull.

I do not know the calibre of the other four Alta Vista clubs but from their performance here Saturday, the peewees are the best team of its classification I have seen perform here. Their passing, shooting, positional and defensive play bespoke fine coaching.

Individually and collectively the Ottawa youngsters played outstanding hockey and thoroughly deserved their 6-5 victory. On the other hand the hard-fighting Belleville youngsters never gave up and fought hard to break the "spell." They were outclassed in not a few scoring chances and some heartbreaker came when Freddy Sickle broke into the clear, beat the Ottawa goalie—and hit the goalpost.

The teams presented a picture that was a credit to themselves, their officials and sponsors. Both were immaculate in full uniform with the red and white colors reversed. All players wore gleaming white helmets.

In sentimental style they exchanged gifts after Hooking up for the official opening ceremonies with Harvey Jack Billy dropping the puck—and after the game two long lines of players shook hands with one another. It was a fine spirit of sportsmanship.

"It cost $5,000 to equip the club," Steve Hook told us during a foot-warming session in the press box.. "The sponsors are very good and nothing is too good for the kids. We travel all over the eastern Ontario and parts of Ontario and parts of Quebec taking part in tournaments."

"We have no trouble with the boys. We see their parents when taking them on the team and each kid must keep pace with his schoolwork. Every one of them has high marks at school."

And professional scouts cannot get within a half mile of the youngsters. "We do not let them talk to the boys—and if they do—they are referred to us," Steve said.

A number of the Ottawa parents came here with the club and were entertained and looked after by President Ed Adamson and his executive of the BMHT and by President Allison Sickle of the Hockey Mothers' Association here. In recognition of the Alta Vista Club while the boys were billeted at the homes of Belleville players.

"We have never had such hospitality as we received at the hands of the warm-hearted people of Belleville," Mrs. Hull told me. "The boys love to come here and already have struck up friendships with the boys of your club."

Incidentally the two elder Hulls searched their family trees and could find no trace of blood relationship.

"Too bad," said Stevie, "who wouldn't want to be a 66th cousin of the great Bobby."

Lose to Guelph, Beat Oaks

Galt Splits, Still Tops

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jim Sanko picked up his first three goals of the season in an Ontario Hockey Association senior series game Saturday night.

They gave Guelph Regals a 5-2 win over Galt Hornets and, for one night, they helped Guelph into first spot in the league—ahead of Galt.

But the Hornets played Sunday night and beat Oakville Oaks 5-4, a victory that put them back into first place, with one point more than the Regals.

Another senior game, scheduled for the weekend, was postponed when the Regals were stopped by bad weather while en route to play Welland Blacks.

At Galt, Sanko scored for the first time in six starts while team-mates Jack McIntyre and Dave Lociuk collected the other two goals. Jim Dahmer and Carl Hall replied for the Hornets.

The Regals were behind 2-0 after the first 11 minutes, but counted once later in the first period three more in the second and a third in the final minutes.

In the Oakville game, Earl Palmer led Galt with four goals followed by Bob McKnight with two, and Joe Hogan and Ron Smith. Scoring for Oakville were Brien Fryce, Carl Hymers, Doug Hillman and Bob Bishop.

The Big Seven

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The big stars of the Chicago Black Hawks continue to dominate the Big Seven scoring parade in the National Hockey League.

Bobby Hull assisted in three goals on Tuesday's 7-3 pounding of the Toronto Maple Leafs to boost his league-leading 37 goals and 43 assists for 80 points.

Teammate Stan Mikita scored twice and assisted twice to stay in second place with 73 points. Mikita has 26 goals and a league-leading 37 assists.

Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings moved up with his third straight goal and assist in Detroit's 4-2 victory over Montreal Monday night.

The leaders:

	G	A	PTS.
R. Hull, Chicago	37	36	73
Mikita, Chicago	26	37	63
Ullman, Detroit	31	32	63
Provost, Montreal	31	32	63
Esposito, Chicago	26	33	59
Hodge, Boston	30	29	59
Goyette, New York	25	33	58

There is still little daylight showing between the positions of the top four teams following five weekend National Hockey League games.

Seven points separated Montreal Canadiens from Detroit Red Wings before the games started and seven points separate them now.

The league-leading Canadiens dropped Boston Bruins 5-1 in Montreal Saturday only to have the cellar-dwellers emerge from their winter hibernation on home ice and shut out Montreal 2-0.

Chicago Black Hawks remained within two points of the first-place leaders by thrashing New York Rangers 7-2 in Chicago Sunday, their lone weekend game.

Rangers shared the same fate as Toronto Maple Leafs. They tied 1-1 Saturday in Toronto then bolt lost Sunday.

Detroit Red Wings closed within a point of the third-place Leafs by downing Toronto 4-1 Sunday in Detroit in the Wings' single weekend game.

New York is fifth, nine points back of Detroit while Boston is 20 points shy of the last playoff position.

INCREASE LEAD

Chicago's big splurge helped fatten the big leads Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita hold over other NHL scorers. Hull was also scoreless in his race to break the league goal-scoring record of 50 goals but picked up three assists. He has 37 goals.

Chico Maki opened the scoring in the first period with a 50-foot shot and New York's Camille Henry tied the game before Ken Wharram scored to put the Hawks ahead for good.

Wharram scored his goal in the second period before teammates Mikita and Allied Mikita also picked up two assists to leave him 10 points behind Hull in the league scoring race and 19 points ahead of his nearest challenger. His assists are tops in the league.

Dennis Hull, Doug Mohns and Phil Esposito scored for the Hawks in the third period while Vic Hadfield scored the second Ranger goal.

Detroit bombarded Toronto goalie Johnny Bower with 42 shots Sunday including the last between third and fourth place.

GOAL DISPUTED

Parker Macdonald and Larry Hillman put Detroit ahead in the first to stay. Ed Joyal made it 3-0 on a disputed shot which referee Vern Buffey first waved goal although the goal light did not go on.

Gordie Howe ended the scoring with his 16th of the season. Andy Bathgate made his debut in the lineup for the first time since breaking his thumb Dec. 20 but had only two shots on goal.

Last-place Boston turned in its best effort of the weekend in the first game Saturday only to be outplayed by out-shooting and out-playing Montreal. Ed Johnston made 30 saves for Boston but Bob Pulford shot out of the season while Gump Worsley had to kick out 33 shots in the Montreal nets.

Tom Williams and Forbes Kennedy scored for Boston in the first period before Canadiens ended the scoring in the second with his fifth goal of the season and 100th of his spectacular NHL career.

The loss was Montreal's fist to Boston in nine games and snapped a four-game Canadien winning streak which started when Worsley replaced Charlie Hodge in the nets.

GOAL MARKS RETURN

Canadiens whipped the Bruins 6-1 the night before on home ice as Jean Beliveau marked his first appearance after an 11-game layoff by opening the scoring with a 40-foot shot.

Ed Westfall tied it in the second when referee Frank Udvari ajudged the puck goaltending a scramble had crossed the goal line, overruling the goal judge. John Ferguson scored for Montreal 19 seconds later.

Dave Balon scored in the third and helped set up both of Dick Duff's goals 37 seconds apart in the final 90 seconds of play.

Veteran Dickie Moore was both the hero and the goat in Toronto's tie with New York Saturday.

His poor clearing pass at the start of the third period was picked up and scored on by Donnie Marshall. Then Moore scored with less than five minutes to go by deflecting a hard slapshot from defenceman Kent Douias.

Moore's goal was his first since he came out of a year's retirement to test a gimpy knee.

Travellers Lose 5-3 To Napanee

Belleville A.C.T. "Travellers" dropped a 5-3 OMHA juvenile decision in Napanee last night.

Napanee jumped into a 1-0 lead in the first heat, made it 3-1 after two and each side scored twice in the final period.

The "Travellers" are scheduled to make their next start in Wellington this Wednesday night.

Jim Means, Larry Lupinetta and Frank Farrell scored the Belleville goals and Jim "Bud" Hodgins had the club's only assist.

Napanee markers were shared by Vallup, Ivey, Whitfield, Layfield and Owen. Lakins, Wager and Whitfield drew assists.

Only three penalties were assessed in the game, two of them going to the winners.

"Patterson all the way," says Jimmy Braddock.

"Patterson, 8½ to 5," says the odds-makers.

The two former world heavyweight champions made their picks after a weekend visit to the snowbound training camps of Floyd Patterson and George Chuvalo, while the odds favoring Patterson in next Monday's fight took a slight dip.

Patterson, former two - time champion attempting still another comeback against Chuvalo, has been a heavy favorite last week. Chuvalo the Canadian champion from Toronto, is ranked No. 3 among the world's heavyweight challengers by the World Boxing Association, Patterson is No. 2.

Their bout in Madison Square Garden is regarded as the last stepping stone to a shot at the vacant WBA version of the title. The fight is scheduled for 15 rounds, but Louis said it won't last that long.

"Chuvalo punches too hard for Patterson," said the old Brown Bomber, who held the heavyweight title from 1937 until 1948. "I watched him work out for two days and I never saw him take a backward step. He'll wear Floyd down in seven or eight rounds and then knock him out.

"A lot of men have knocked Patterson down, but he got up to win. When this boy knocks them down, I think he'll stay down. Don't forget he knocked out Doug Jones and nobody ever did that before."

Braddock, who won the title in 1933 and lost it to Louis, disagreed.

"Patterson won the title twice, don't forget, and he must have something to be able to do that," he said Sunday.

"I think he's got too much experience for Chuvalo. He's the fastest heavyweight I ever saw. His speed is in his hands, not his feet. I don't think his punch is enough to knock out George, so I look for the fight to go all the way with Patterson winning."

Wins 1,000-Yard Run

Crothers Sets 600 Meet Mark

LOS ANGELES (CP - AP — Canada's Bill Crothers scored a victory over Jack Bacheler in a 600-yard track meet Saturday, winning the 1,000 - yard run and establishing a new world record victory in the 600 yards. Crothers, 23-year-old pharmacist from Markham, Ont., was timed in 1:10.5 in the 600. He topped the mark of 1:14.4 set by Mal Spence in 1956 and matched by George Kerr three years later.

New Yorker Tom Farrell also came under the record with a second - place finish in 1:10.9 and Willie Atterbelly of the Southern California Striders was well back in 1:13.2.

Crothers, running here under the colors of the East York Track Club in Toronto, placed second to Peter Snell of New Zealand in the 800 at last autumn's Tokyo Olympics.

An Olympic teammate, Harry Jerome of Vancouver, was narrowly beaten by Darrell Newman of Fresno State College in the 60-yard dash here. Both men were timed in 6.1, with Larry Dunn of the U.S. Army third in 6.2.

And Crothers' East York teammate, Don McCafferty was third in the 500-yard run behind Hartford's Jack Yerman and Bill Tokomey. Yerman was timed in 59 seconds flat while Toomey hit 59.1 and McCarten 59.5.

A total of 20 Olympic medal winners competed in the invitational meet at Los Angeles' modernistic sports arena, with a crowd of 12,087 watching.

Seattle Rings Up Two Records

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seattle Totems stayed home during the weekend and rang up two records — the largest crowd in Western Hockey League history and Seattle's biggest scoring night of the season.

The big crowd — 13,563 — missed the biggest scoring night Seattle has turned up Saturday night to see visiting Portland Buckaroos come from behind to score a 5-4 overtime victory.

A crowd almost half of Saturday's was on hand Sunday when the Totems skated over San Francisco 8-3.

In other weekend action, San Francisco Seals edged Victoria Maple Leafs 5-4 Saturday and Vancouver Canucks defeated Edmonton Blades 5-4 in overtime Sunday.

The weekend play left Portland leading Western Division with 53 points, followed by Seattle with 51, Vancouver with 44, Edmonton with 43, Los Angeles with 37 and San Francisco in the cellar with 35.

The Gas - House Hockey League

The Komets and Mulrooney's Sunoco took one-game leads as the Gas House Hockey League opened its three-of-five semi-final playoffs here last night.

Komets shaded Joyce Realty 4-3 and Sunoco nipped Marysville 5-3 in a pair of close games. Second games in both series will be played next Sunday night.

Jerry Brennan sparked the Sunoco club to victory by scoring three goals and helping on another. Hugh Petrie and Doug Doyle were the club's other marksmen. Gerry Masterson, Ben Hurley, Pat O'Connor and Bill Hurley got assists.

Wayne Pascoe potted two Marysville goals and Carm Milligan had one. Bob McCauly and Bill Pascoe drew assists.

No Komet player scored more than one but Ray Hannaford led the attack with a goal and two assists. Lee McIlrien had a goal and assist, Frank Willis and Bill Muirhead one goal each and Dick Morgan an assist.

Jack Garvin triggered two Joyce counters with Tom Woodley scoring once and helping on the other pair. Jim Horwood and Don Raycroft also got assists.

Crampton Wins Crosby Golf

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Australian Bruce Crampton whipped the rugged Pebble Beach course with a three-under-par 69 Sunday and a 72-hole score of 284 to become the first foreigner to win the $84,500 Bing Crosby tournament.

The 29-year-old former Australian Open champion rallied from two one-over-par 73s with birdie putts of four and 55 feet on the 15th and 16th holes to insure his victory.

British Open champion Tony Lema, defending Crosby champion, shot a 72 to move into the runner-up spot with a 287, even par for the 72-hole event.

Jack Nicklaus, leading money winner of 1964, making his first start of the year here, made a run for the top spot but dropped to a 71 and 288.

Crampton collected $7,000 for his victory.

The monster Pebble Beach course, an ocean-bordering layout of 6,747 yards and par 36-36 added Masters champion Arnold Palmer to its list of victims. He finished the 72 holes with a last round 74 and 289.

Following Nicklaus with 289s were Al Mengert, who had a final 70, and Kermit Zarley, 73.

Rocky Thompson, the Wichita Falls, Tex., rookie who led through the third round, slipped to a 78 and 290.

The Legends of Vancouver ended with 71-74-75-73—293. Al Balding of Toronto was five strokes behind him with 70-71-78-79—298.

George Knudson of Toronto was alone Saturday with 73-69-85—230.

CARLETON WHIPS BISHOP'S

LENNOXVILLE, Que. (CP)—Carleton University gave Bishop's University a 60-44 gulping over Saturday in an Ottawa-St. Lawrence Intercollegiate basketball game. Leading scorers for the home squad were Bill Fennell with 21 points and John McDonaugh, nine.

Northern Title to Copperfield

SUDBURY (CP) — A rink skipped by Don Copperfield of Copperclift, Ont., curled to eight straight wins during four days to win the 78th Vankoul Northern Ontario Curling Association championship Sunday night.

Gathercole dea ted Don Harris, also of Copperclift, in the final. He was declared winner even though the game was not completed. His rink was ahead 13 to 4 in the eighth end and it was decided that Harry could not possibly win after using his first five rocks.

The competition was split into two divisions with 128 rinks divided into two groups of 64 each. Harry and Gathercole were winners of their respective divisions.

Want Davis Cup Play In Europe

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada will try to compete outside the North American zone of Davis Cup play this year to escape early defeat, officials of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association said Sunday.

The association hopes to raise enough money to defray a 10-man national team on a European tour which could coincide with the European zone of cup play.

James Maclean of Vancouver, association president, said the annual meeting here Saturday was confronted with the unhappy possibility of sending the national tennis team against the United States in the first round of 1965 Davis Cup play.

The association would prefer to see Canada advance through two or more rounds of play to gain experience under pressure.

The association also announced Sunday that Bob Pudicombe of Vancouver and Andree Martin of Montreal head national ranking standings.

Puddicombe heads the list among boys 18 and under.

Miss Martin is ranked both in the girls 18 and under and the girls 16 and under.

World Hockey In 1967!

CAHA To Make Request

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will seek formation of an international league and bid for the 1967 world championships as a centennial project.

Delegates to the semi-annual meeting during the weekend authorized the CAHA to submit proposals for both international projects to the International Ice Hockey Federation during the 1963 world championships at Tampere, Finland March 4-14.

A committee report said Canada would bid only for the A pool of the 1967 championships. The B pool would be held in Europe with possible CAHA financial assistance.

Failure to get the world tournament would see the CAHA ask IIHF support for a special centennial tournament involving Sweden, Czechoslovakia, the United States, Russia and Canada.

The report said the 1967 championships would likely be assigned to three major arenas —Montreal Forum, Maple Leaf Gardens and Winnipeg arena—with possibly some games scheduled for centres near Toronto.

WILL PURSUE PLAN

In conjunction with its world championship bid the CAHA will pursue its proposal for an international league composed of national teams from Russia, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, the United States and Canada.

The proposal calls for a 36-game schedule with each team playing three home games and three away games against each other member.

Delegates decided to turn down a request from Czechoslovakia that a Canadian junior team participate in a proposed world championship this year because of conflict with Czechoslovakia's March 1 for the world tournament.

A three - man committee to negotiate for affiliation of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union with the CAHA was formed.

Danny McDonald of Toronto, CIAU hockey committee chairman, said the CIAU needs CAHA sanction for a plan for an international collegiate tournament in Canada in 1967.

WILL COST $125,000

Juckes revealed it will cost an estimated $125,000 to operate Canada's national team in 1963.

The CAHA faced an unexpected $10,000 travel bill because many team members could not leave jobs and studies for the required 32 days in Europe.

This will force a platoon system which will see 17 players flown to Europe for the exhibition tour and the 15 in Finland March 1 for the world tournament.

Most of the meeting's opening discussion Saturday centred on playoff dates. It took six hours to resolve western finals dates after delegates said a playoff format-drawn up at the annual meeting in May would result in financial loss.

The CAHA decided to terminate its agreement with the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States because the U.S. organization is not abiding by terms of the agreement, particularly in regard to transfers and suspensions.

CAHA officers were directed to begin negotiations to draw up a revised contract.

HOCKEY COACH DIES

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—William J. (Pop) Harkness, a veteran coach of collegiate hockey and lacrosse teams and former Ottawa resident, collapsed and died at rinkside during Saturday's Cornell - Colgate hockey game. He was 76. Pop Harkness had coached Cornell freshman hockey team during the last two seasons, the last assignment of a long career in hockey and lacrosse.

Minor Hockey Observances

Smart Ottawa Team Wins Pair

Ottawa Alta-Vistas added to their proud victory record and impressed a good number of minor hockey enthusiasts here over the weekend.

Steve Hook's charges helped open "Minor Hockey Week" Saturday afternoon by blanking Belleville Rollins 6-0.

In a second meeting of the two squads yesterday Alta-Vista came out on the long end of a 7-3 count.

Mayor Jack Ellis dropped the first puck at the opening ceremonies and Belleville Minor Hockey President Ed Adamson and other minor sports officials also took part, on Saturday.

The Oddfellow bantams, who finished last place in district play, undefeated, were presented with an OMHA trophy.

Members of parents and other fans turned out for the games, many voicing their pleasure at the excellent brand of hockey provided. The clean play and excellent sportsmanship displayed by both teams also earned favorable comment.

The Ottawa players were guests, with Rollins, at a luncheon provided by the B.M.H.A.'s Women's Auxiliary at the Legion following Saturday's game. Ottawa team members were guests in the Rollins' players' homes over the weekend.

Alta-Vista outskated Rollins in Saturday's game, scoring once in the first, twice in the second and doubling their total in the third.

M. Drew paced the scorers with three goals. Steve Hull got two goals and one assist and D. Payman one of each. B. Hook drew two assists, D. Burle and C. McCormick one apiece.

The winners collected five of the six penalties but Rollins were unable to take advantage of the extra manpower. Rollins' only scoring chance came when Stickle got in alone on a clean pass, beat the goalie with his shot — and hit the goalpost dead centre.

The Belleville boys found their scoring eyes on Sunday but could not hold the Alta-Vista crew down, Ottawa led 4-1 at the end of the first period and Rollins cut that margin to 5-3 after two heats. An unassisted shot pair sewed up the decision in the third.

Mario Venutti triggered two of the Rollins' markers and Terry Meagher got the other one. Fred Stickle earned two assists with Rick Meagher and R. Adamson each getting one.

Bobby Coleman was a three-goal man for Alta-Vista with D. Payman notching two goals and helping on one. S. Hull got a goal and assist. B. Green a goal, B. Hook two helpers, M. Gordon and Billy Goodman, identical twin to Bobby, one each.

Again the visitors drew five of the six penalties.

Minor Hockey Week continues until next Sunday with games being played at Memorial Arena here on Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Sunday nights, Saturday morning and Sunday afternoons.

On Wednesday, O.M.H. scheduled games have Gananoque here against Rollins' Peewees at 7.00 and Picton against the Midget Oddfellows at 9.00 p.m. Cobourg and Riteways have a Novice exhibition at 6.00 and Picton meets the Bantam Oddfellows at 8.00 p.m.

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

Scoring slumps are funny things. I had a dilly recently that lasted 13 games, the longest in my 19 years in the National Hockey League.

When I ran into Ron Andrews, the NHL's statistician, I suggested he ought to add a new column in scoring statistics — SGM — Sure Goals Missed.

The first of the season I was picking 'em out quite regularly. Then I ran into this long streak, when I was even having trouble getting in the assist column.

It's a combination of many things. When you go as long as I did without goals, you figure you're not helping the club. This bothers you psychologically.

The harder you try, I think the tighter you get. It causes you to tire more quickly.

You find that you don't think you're skating as well, as you should. Because you're fighting the puck, you don't seem to have the control of the stick you have to have.

I wasn't making the plays and getting the shots. However, I was getting enough shots so that I actually didn't get frantic.

I like hockey and I want to stay in it. The only way I'm going to stay is by being helped to the club.

After using a No. 7 lie in my stick most of my career, other than placing the ends off my sticks, I finally switched to a No. 6 lie. Bruce MacGregor let me have some of his No. 6 lie sticks.

I said I'd use Norm Ullman's because he has some goals but Normie shoots left handed. When I finally broke my slump with five goals in four games I did it with MacGregor's stick.

One night against Montreal in a game at Detroit I was lucky enough to go all the way from behind the Detroit net right to the Montreal goalmouth.

I was shooting to Charlie Hodge's left. I had a little bit of net to shoot at. However, I got it up a little too high and he got a glove on it.

It came right back to me. I still had a good whack. But Charlie is real quick. He got his whole body in front of it. I tried to jam it, hoping there was a hole or it might bounce over him. But when they're not going in they're not going in.

Chelsea Leeds Play 2-2 Tie

LONDON (CP)—Leeds United tied 2-2 with second-place Chelsea Saturday and held on to its one-point lead in the English Soccer League's first division.

There was plenty of excitement for the 47,000 spectators—the biggest crowd at Leeds this season—who saw Chelsea take a dramatic lead in the third minute when George Graham scored off a post.

Jim Storrie tied after 17 minutes, and a thrilling battle developed in the second half after Barry Bridges had scored for Chelsea and John Giles had tied two minutes later.

An even bigger crowd of more than 50,000 saw Manchester United, third in the standings, tie a home game 1-1 with Stoke City.

United remained in third place.

The team has 39 points from 27 games, compared with Leeds' 41 from 26, and Chelsea's 40 from 27.

Bad weather caused the highest number of Saturday postponements of the season in England. Ice, snow and floods caused 12 league games to be put off.

Scots Split Six Matches

GALT (CP) — Scottish curlers took three of six matches and edged their Canadian hosts 71-67 in points here Saturday but failed to make much headway in denting the lead Canadians have built up in Strathcona Cup play. One game was tied.

Canadian curlers still hold a commanding 229-point lead — scoring 1,014 points to 785 for the Scots, after 11 of their 20 scheduled matches on the cross-country tour.

Scottish captain W. H. Robertson of Hamilton scored the most impressive win for the visitors, a 15-10 triumph over a Victoria foursome co-skipped by Bert Whitefield and Jack Patrick of Galt.

Other Scots victories went to R. T. Greene of Kirkaldy, 13-12 over Duncan McIntosh and Tom Rutherford, both of Galt, and D. A. Liddell of Glasgow 13-9 over Nels Findlay of Preston, Ont., and George Clemons of Brantford.

Jim Brown Named 1964 Pro Athlete

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Jimmy Brown, the great fullback of the champion Cleveland Browns of the National Football League, was named winner of the S. Rae Hickok Professional Athlete of the Year Award Sunday.

The 28-year-old NFL rushing champion won the $10,000 diamond - studded, gold - buckled belt trophy by a mere seven points over A. J. Foyt, the dashing auto race who won the Indianapolis 500 and many other top events in 1964.

Dean Chance of Los Angeles Angels, baseball's outstanding pitcher of 1964, was third with 18 first - place votes and 97 points.

Aces Slump, Lose Last 3 Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

About now, coach Bernie Geoffrion of Quebec Aces must be trying to remember what Toe Blake, coach of Montreal Canadiens, used to cure the Habs of mid-season slumps.

Geoffrion, who assumed Quebec's coaching duties this year after 14 seasons with Montreal, has watched his club lose their last three games, including a 5-3 setback to Hershey Bears Saturday night and a 10-1 drubbing at the hands of Rochester Americans Sunday night.

The defeats have cut Quebec's margin atop the American Hockey League Eastern Division to 10 points over Hershey while Rochester has opened a 14-point lead over Buffalo Bisons in the Western Division.

In other Sunday night action, Baltimore Clippers downed Pittsburgh 5-3, Springfield Indians defeated Providence Reds 4-1 and Pittsburgh Hornets bowed to Hershey 5-3.

Saturday night, Buffalo downed Cleveland Barons 5-4, Baltimore shut out Pittsburgh 5-0 and Springfield upset Rochester 5-2.

Bernard Parent, goalie for Niagara Falls Flyers, chalked up his second shutout of the season as Montreal Junior Canadiens were blanked 4-0 on home ice in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Sunday.

The win pushed the Flyers further into the lead in the league with 58 points. Toronto Marlboros, who tied 3-3 with Hamilton Red Wings Sunday, remained in second place, three points back.

Peterborough Petes trounced Hamilton 9-3 Saturday to lighten their hold on third place. St. Catharines Black Hawks edged to within three points of sixth and final playoff position Sunday by downing Kitchener Rangers 6-1.

Parent saved the day for Niagara Falls by stopping several hard shots from the Junior Canadiens as the Flyers got off to a slow start. However, right-winger Ted Hastl and Bill Goldsworthy and centre Derek Sanderson tipped the scales with three goals each after the nine-minute mark.

Defenceman John Arbour got the first goal for the Flyers with less than a minute to go in the third period.

PETES SCORES THREE

Captain Jimmy Peters scored all three Hamilton goals against Toronto Sunday. George Meehan, Wayne Mosdell and Doug Dunville scored for Marlboros.

Peters also scored a goal Saturday but was unable to stem the tide. Andre Lacroix led the scoring for the Petes with two goals, one each apiece to Mickey Redmond, Jim Paterson, John Vanderburg, Dan Grant, Dale Yaeger, Don Hierlihy and George Godson.

Nick Libbett and Gary Doak were the other Hamilton marksmen.

The Black Hawks were inspired Sunday by two goal efforts of Ken Hodge and Brian McDonald. Doug Reid and Bob Sicinski got one each.

Jim Keough's bid for his first Junior A shutout was ruined by Kitchener centre Sandy Fitzpatrick, who scored on a 13-foot shot early in the third period.

Trenton Juveniles Win Pair

TRENTON (Special) — Trenton Legion Juveniles seem to thrive on work and plenty of it.

The club travelled to Peterborough Saturday and defeated an all-star juvenile squad there 7-0.

Here at home last night, the Legion crew thumped Belleville's Junior "B" team by a 10-4 count.

In the other half of the double-header, Trenton Lions midgets edged Cobourg 3-2 in a close, hard-fought contest.

Trenton Apple Kings were scheduled to play an Eastern Ontario game at Kingston but the contest was postponed because of bad driving conditions.

It was also announced that the juniors will be playing their home games in Brighton. The Legion crew entertain Picton Merchants in Brighton this Wednesday night. Game time is 8.30.

The Legion boys led Belleville all the way last night, 3-1 and 4-3 by periods before pulling away in the third. The winners outshot the Junior "B's" 43-33 in the wide-open game.

Penalties were scarce but Hampson of Trenton, drew a third-period misconduct for back talk to the referee.

Andy Teeple and Al Ferguson paced the Trenton attack by scoring three goals apiece. Singletons went to Chuck Howard, Larry Meachman, Jim Bonn and Bob Fraser.

Notching a goal each for Belleville were Steve White, Bob Boyle, Larry Stewart and Jim Rutherford in the net. The losers were strengthened by one of their stars of the last few games, now overage, Stu Muirhead.

In the midget tilt, each club scored once in the first and it stayed that way until the third period. Shots on goal numbered 19 per team. While Cobourg got 10 of 17 total penalties.

Rick Munroe scored Trenton's first and last goals and assisted on the other one, potted by Jim Steenburg.

Cobourg marksmen were Reg Stevenson and Paul Massey.

Minor Hockey

Peewee and bantam games were played over the weekend by the Belleville Minor Hockey Association squads.

PEEWEES

Hawks and Canadiens tied 4-4. J. Vance starred for the Canadiens with three goals while Terry Pope got the other one. S. Burke drew one assist while Doug Wyley got a goal and assist for the Hawks. Other scorers were Roger Hines, Dale Hunt and Philip Kirby.

Maroons defeated the Barons 5-3, led by D. Bonisteel and G. Thompson with two goals each. W. Andrews scored once and helped on two others while D. Banks also got an assist. R. Foster and T. Heaven each had a goal and assist for the Barons with L. Brunnette also scoring.

Teepees edged the Rangers 4-3 as G. Gordon and D. Lynch collected two goals and one assist apiece. Moore also got a helper. R. Cranmer, D. Bracken and one assist, and G. Rogers, with a goal and two helpers, looked after the Ranger scoring.

Leafs also won a 4-3 decision over the Bruins. Dennis Pisech potted two for the Leafs. Rob Bonbour and David Pascoe one each. Jeff Dalton scored twice and David Taylor added the final goal. Dale Lorimer had an assist.

Red Wings and Generals played a 2-2 stalemate. Ron Maire scored both Wing goals and Bill Bleckman was the only marksman each time. Jack Ralph and Tony Sperachini scored unassisted markers for the Generals.

BANTAM

Leafs ran scoring wild to whip the Rangers 9-3. Robert Roy led the way with three goals while Damon Richardson got two goals and one assist. Steve Moore and Lawrence each had a goal and assist with Gord McCreary, Don Bonbour and Bill Storms also scoring. Sandy Cunningham got three helpers. Pat McKenzie two and G. Bridge one.

Barons and Canadiens tied 4-4. Barons' goals were scored by Rick Rosaire, Leu Burley, Bob Mulvihill and Steve Elmy. Jim Sled and Mulvihill got assists. Alan Reville, Alan Inson, George Harrigan and Jim Harvey potted Canadiens' goals. Jim Drummond and Norm Pope drew assists.

Bruins defeated the Hawks 9-5, led by Gary Sero's three-goal effort. He also earned two assists. Allen Armstrong and Ray Cormier each got two goals. Bill Morrison had a goal and two assists, Brad Atkinson a goal and Craig Adams an assist. Hawk goals went to Dave Eves, Bob Clarke, Reg Vesey, Michael Scarlett and Ray Dumont. Bill Arnold, Dumont and Clarke got helpers.

Royals took a 7-5 win over the Wings. Carol Mallory potted three of the winner's goals and assisted on another. Steve Tulloch got two goals and one helper, Greg Burkett had one of each and Richard Marin a goal. Bill Romain had two assists and Fred Thompson one. William Bunnett earned two goals and an assist for the Wing with Dick Robert and Jim Wood netting one of each. Jim Potts fired the other goal.

All Networks Were Ready With Churchill Programs

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The three major U.S. television networks were ready Sunday with special programs honoring Sir Winston Churchill.

CBS reached the air first, at noon, with a warm and moving summary of the long career of this giant of a man whose death is felt by many as a personal loss.

NBC's hour came in mid-afternoon, a more formal and perhaps less emotional program. The ABC special Sunday night stressed the character of the wartime leader and, in its approach, stayed rather close to Churchill's public character and the events of his latter years.

But all three noted the most famous of the prime ministers remarks — his reference to an "Iron Curtain" and the great "blood, tears, toil and sweat" statement. Once again we heard the familiar voice growling defiance to the Nazi enemy and, in a proud voice, speaking of Britain's finest hour.

CBS also plans another hour tonight, Some Friends of Winston Churchill, which will include a tape, never before broadcast, of a conversation the statesman had with Edward Murrow almost five years ago.

Recommended tonight:

The Stately Ghosts of England, NBC 10-11 EST—A filmed visit to some of the spectre-haunted English homes with Margaret Rutherford as tour guide; Some Friends of Winston Churchill, 10-11 CBS.

Peter Ford Prefers Singing Not Acting Or Dancing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Peter Ford, 19-year-old son of Glenn Ford and Eleanor Powell, does not want to act or dance. He wants to sing.

He's a rangy young man standing six-foot-three when he doesn't slouch, which he is inclined to do. He weighs 160 pounds and is athletic. A wrenched knee in a basketball game ended his competitive career.

He has the handsomeness of his parents — the most notable resemblance is his father's eyes. Indeed, he has the physical equipment, the name and the opportunity to carve himself in acting career.

But he doesn't want it.

HAS ACTED

"I've done a bit of acting in five of my father's pictures, usually playing an elevator operator or something like that," said Pete. "I have a ball doing it, and the money is great. But I don't really have any drive to be an actor, and I don't think you can make the grade without it."

Young Pete is hopeful of a career in a different field. He is recording songs for Capitol. If they score with the younger set, Pete might be the start of a new clean - cut American trend in the record field, dominated now by singing idiots.

Pete is no tyro in music. He was enjoying a brisk career with a local combo in night clubs until the vice squad stepped in and found he was only 19. They stopped him from working.

AT THE BELLE — Wednesday — George Hamilton and Susan Oliver in the Cinerama and moving picture of the late country-western singer Hank Williams, one of the most popular composers and entertainers of his time. The picture features ten of Williams' greatest song hits, sung on the screen by Frank Williams Jr., Hiram Hank's popular recording star. Also starred are Red Buttons and Arthur O'Connell. The Hank Williams story "Your Cheatin' Heart" opens Wednesday at the Belle Theatre.

Canadians Third
Britons Win Sled Title

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (CP-AP) — Britain's Olympic gold medallists Anthony Nash and Robin Dixon won the world two - man bobsled championships with two record - breaking runs Sunday.

The Canadian team of Vic Emery and John Emery, second after three of the four heats, fell back behind Italian Eugenio Monti in third before Lorenzo after a slow final run.

Canada's bobsledders now start practice for the four-man championships starting Feb. 26. They hold the Olympic championship in the event.

Nash, a 26-year-old engineer, and Dixon, an army captain, flashed down the mile - long course twice in the best times of the season for the 1,800 - foot country field by an aggregate time of nearly 3.5 seconds.

Their total time for four runs in the two-day race was 5:11.30. The second-place Italian time was 5:14.17 — a margin better than the Canadians' 5:14.90.

Emery and Young were a splendid second after the fast finish.

"There are no prizes for finishing third," said Young, a 21-year-old business administration student at the University of Western Ontario whose home is in Port Credit, Ont.

"There is room for being second, either," said Emery.

Emery, of Montreal, is captain of the Olympic champion team.

NAN INTO TROUBLE

His brother, Dr. John Emery of Toronto, paired with Peter Kirby of St. Jovite, Que., for Canada's second two-man sled, which ran into trouble on the final run Sunday.

The pair, in ninth place after three heats, fell at one of the tricky turns in their last run, but officials said they were not hurt.

Nash and Dixon held a slim one-third second overnight lead over Monti and de Lorenzo after two of the four heats.

In their third run Nash and Dixon set a sensational record for the track with 1:18.94, while the Italians fell behind with a 1:19.14.

The British pair clinched its victory by setting yet another record in their fourth run with 1:18.91, while the Italians confirmed their second place with an excellent time of 1:17.33.

US Swimmers Win Meet

By ARCH MacKENZIE

ARLINGTON, Va. (CP)—The United States won the 12th International swimming meet with Canada Saturday, piling up 355 points to Canada's 151.

American swimmers now lead the annual event with 10 victories to two.

Canada picked up six firsts in the 50 events, one tie for first and eight seconds.

Canada's individual star was Patti Rothwell, just-turned 12, a Toronto native now living in Chicago. She won the 100-yard three starts and took a second.

The other big gun was Sherry Sherry of Hamilton, a member of Canada's Olympic swimming team at Tokyo, who captured two firsts.

Patti won the 100-yard free-style for girls aged 11 to 13 in 58.1 seconds, breaking her 1964 meet record of 1:00.4.

She came first in the 50-yard butterfly, breaking the meet record of 29.1 seconds by a full second.

She came second in the 50-yard backstroke in 31 seconds, not good enough for first but better than the meet record of 31.1.

Sherry, 18, won the meet's 100-yard breaststroke by one-tenth of a second.

Sherry had a bigger margin in the men's 100-yard butterfly.

A host of meet records fell and so did two national U.S. marks — in the 100-yard freestyle for boys aged 11 to 12 and the 100-yard breaststroke for boys 13 to 14. Canadians were well back in each.

Would Cost Millions
Requests Training Centre

OTTAWA (CP)—Delegates to the Canadian Amateur Sports Federation Saturday urged the federal government to build a multi-million-dollar sports training centre.

They unanimously approved a resolution by Ken Giesen of St. Catharines which said there is a great need for a sports complex that could be used by athletes taking part in both winter and summer sports.

Melville Wales of Ottawa, president of the federation for the last 12 years, retired from office and declined to run for E. Ferguson of Vancouver to replace him.

Director Roger Dion of the national fitness directorate told delegates that the cost of the training centre would receive favorable consideration from the government if the federation sports bodies felt it was needed.

Dion also said the national fitness council now only considers requests from governing bodies of amateur sports for grants to cover administration costs and their national offices and annual meetings.

The fitness council now gives grants to help sports bodies put on national or international competitions and to hold training programs.

SIGNS FOR 8th SEASON

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Buddy Parker signed Saturday for his ninth season as coach of Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League. Parker, 51, came to the Steelers before the opening of the 1957 season after abruptly quitting Detroit Lions during pre-season training.

Many Items Discussed at I.O.D.E. Meet

CAMPBELLFORD — Members of Cenotaph Chapter I.O.D.E. of Campbellford met at the home of Mrs. W. G. Vandewater on Thursday evening for the regular monthly meeting.

Regent Mrs. W. A. Kingston presided with 46 members present.

Mrs. Murray Locke reporting for the dance committee announced the date of the dance as February 3rd.

The annual dinner is also being arranged under the convenership of Mrs. H. Beale, to be held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on February 10th.

Nominations were made from the chapter for Provincial and National Councillors. Mrs. J. O. Benor being the Provincial Nominee and Mrs. Donald Murray of Peterborough for the National. Both candidates have held similar positions for the past year or more.

FINANCIAL REPORTS

Mrs. D. Bennett as treasurer of the Chapter reported $2118 in the general fund, $1265 in the centennial fund and $576 in the Welfare fund to be used for relief to assist students educationally.

A junior seminar will be held in Hamilton in the spring at which members of Junior Chapters from all over Canada will be invited. This is part of Hamilton I.O.D.E. centennial project.

Each Chapter is being asked for a small contribution to help with the expenses involved.

Emmerysde Chapter has in previous years held a card party as a contribution to the Welfare Auxiliary of Campbellford Memorial Hospital. This project was held over the present time.

An invitation was received from Argyle Chapter, Belleville, to a Winter Fantasy.

Correspondence between Mrs. D. Watters described in some detail the Victoria Leagns in London investigations. Also the Commonwealth friendliness and to which the I.O.D.E. is affiliated.

Anyone visiting London from any of the Commonwealth countries is asked to register. Application has been forwarded, visitors are met at the ship, accommodation is found and they are entertained in homes as well as having tours arranged.

Mrs. Watters gave information about the Victoria League by contacting Mrs. C. L. Baldwin. This League's chief service is free of any monetary obligation. It is merely a friendship nature.

CENTENNIAL PROJECT

Mrs. E. Crydenman, education convenor, reported on the city centennial project of the IODE was a historical portfolio of the city which is being recommended as a school gift. Orders may be placed now but delivery will not be made.

It was decided to order Christmas cards for 1956.

Mrs. J. Thrasher, service at home and abroad convener, said that Christmas parcels had been packed, 58 were delivered to the hospital and one to a patient in the Toronto Sanitorium.

Mrs. Trimble had been busy recently in helping a family whose home had been burned. Formerly in Campbellford an Emergency Relief Organization had requested the fire or other emergencies. It has been in operative for some years while funds which had previously been donated were not being used. It is now suggested by Mrs. Trimble that this be handled by the organization with one representative from Campbellford and one from Cobourg. Also each township council and one from each organization in town, each organization will be asked for a donation of $25.

NEW MEMBER

A new member, Mrs. H. Shunert was inducted into the chapter. Mrs. Shunert was a former member. She lived for some years in Montreal and has now returned with her husband to live in Campbellford.

Mrs. R. Bennett and Mrs. R. Anderson will be the visitors to the meeting in March.

A nominating committee of Mrs. Jean Bodman, Mrs. J. Trimble and Mrs. J. Connor received nominations for the coming years. This was done by ballot and the slate of officers will be presented at the February meeting.

Following the close of the meeting lunch was served by Group 4.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (AP)—Sunstruck rushed into the lead soon after the start and won the $20,000 added Nassau Handicap at Hialeah Park Saturday as Chatsuguy, 7-4 favorite, finished fifth.

Sunstruck, bearing 118 pounds with William Boland in the saddle, had to make furious ground in 1:23 1-5, finishing five lengths in front.

Rainy Lake was second, Harbor View Farm's Morrey E. third and Knightly Manner was fourth in the field of eight.

Sunstruck, running as an entry with Big Kod, paid $13.20, $6.20 and $4.80; Rainy Lake was $8.80 and $6.60, while the show price on Morrey E. was $6.

Manchester Chamber of Commerce Elects Officers at Annual Meet

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Chamber of Commerce held its annual dinner and election of officers in the Legion Hall on Wednesday evening, Jan. 18.

Early in the year the Campbellford Chamber had received as an Ontario award; also a Canadian Tourist Association award for its tourist promotion program.

GUEST SPEAKER

Miss Dantes Tremblay of the market research division of Air Canada was the guest speaker who was introduced by Keith Bailey.

Her subject was her work of the selling of Canada as a country to other countries. She also suggested that Canadians should know more about the beauties and potentialities of their own country.

She was thanked by Jim Kerr and presented with jewellery made in Campbellford.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

Honorary President Ross Douglas presided for the election of officers as follows:

President, Douglas R. Mayhew; first vice-president, J. R. Connor; second vice-president, Bruce Wallace; directors, Mervyn W. Tanner, David Fraser, Bruce Sharpe, R. B. Bennett; secretary, Mrs. Barbara Lauson; treasurer, G. Avery.

Committee chairmen are: Membership, Donald Wilcox; tourists, Jim Kerr; publicity, W. Reid; retail, Roy McLaren; insurance, Glenn Collins; IODA appointment, D. R. Mayhew.

Projects conducted in the past year were the sponsorship of an Industrial Day, operation of a tourist information centre and the Santa Claus parade.

Tri-County Jail Object Of Discussion

CAMPBELLFORD — The council of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham met in Cobourg last week and will return Wednesday, January 27 to endeavor to complete the business.

Mr. A. Brown, reeve of Campbellford, reported much discussion and discussion also on whether the united counties will join with Peterborough and Victoria-Haliburton in the building of a $1,396,000 tri-county jail.

OBJECTION RAISED

One objection raised was that $50,000 had been spent the past year in renovations to the existing united counties' jail and which according to the department of reformatories would satisfy the needs of the counties for another ten years.

Another point which the council considered was the idea of having to build in ten years' time a new building at their own expense.

REEVE APPOINTMENTS

Reeve Brown received a two-year appointment to the E.M.O. committee. This was a position held by Reeve Hall of Campbellford reeve of G. Free.

Reeve Lloyd Hooton of Cavan township was also appointed to the committee

Day Churchill Got Fur Hat From Journalists Recalled

(Clyde Blackburn was a reporter with the Ottawa bureau of The Canadian Press when Sir Winston Churchill came to Ottawa in December, 1941, to address both Houses of Parliament. The Parliamentary Press Gallery at the time presented Mr. Churchill with a fur cap. Mr. Blackburn, who retired as an Ottawa Bureau chief in 1959, gives the following account of the presentation.)

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

It was with a number of press gallery reporters who went to Washington Christmas Day, 1941 with Prime Minister Mackenzie King and several of his ministers who had been invited there by President Roosevelt to meet the British prime minister who had made a dramatic arrival in Washington a day or two earlier. He was to address Congress next day.

On the night of Dec. 26 Mr. King came back to his hotel from the White House and gave us the exciting announcement that Mr. Churchill would go to Ottawa to address a hastily-summoned joint meeting of Senate and Commons members.

Thus it was that a few nights later I was in the press room in the Parliament Buildings tired from travels to Washington and back and the long hours incidental to my part in covering the Churchill activities.

It was a bitter cold night and there were few in the press room. The late Percy Philip, Scottish-born resident correspondent of the New York Times came in from the slight glowing with a brilliant idea which he brought to me because I was president of the gallery.

What more fitting, in this bitter weather, than to give Mr. Churchill a Canadian fur hat as our tribute to his greatness and a souvenir of our admiration?

WHARY BUTT AGREES

Wearily I agreed but where to get a hat late at night between Christmas and New Year, what size and what kind. And first I would have to consult my executive members.

Arthur McKenna, a native Canadian who recently retired as Ottawa resident for the Wall Street Journal, was in the gallery. He told me to get the authority and he would get the hat.

I called enough of my executive colleagues to satisfy protocol and all were enthusiastic and I left the rest to Arthur. He got the head size from one of the Churchill's staff at Rideau Hall and a friend in the Devlin firm (now Morgans) immediately took Arthur, he would get together a group of workers and make a special sealskin hat to be ready by nine in the morning.

There was a giant press conference at Rideau Hall, I think it was for 10 o'clock. In any case the hat was ready when I went to the press room at nine —and it was a beauty.

There were correspondents from Washington and London who had come with the prime minister, and a full turnout of the Ottawa news corps.

CONVEYED WISHES

Mr. King rose to present Mr. Churchill. I told him we wanted to have a few personal words before the press conference commenced and he conveyed this to the British prime minister. He stood and entered the room.

Tongue-tied and bumbling I managed to make the presentation while Mr. Churchill glowered at the "lousies" and other words which made me a bit unhappy.

I was quickly through and Mr. Churchill picked up the hat put it on and it was a perfect fit and he obviously liked it and said so. Then he picked up his cigar which had been on a tray before him and put it in his mouth, ashy, lighted and first. Nobody laughed but perhaps I took a bit of mean pleasure from the incident because he had heckled me. It looked funny in a remarkably good humor movie record made of the entire Press Gallery in the Aurora Cross of the Ottawa Citizen.

But it did not bother the prime minister. He was in his element as usual and all that day went about various outdoor duties. The Ottawa Citizen says the press gallery hat to the great satisfaction of all of us.

PRAY FOR WINSTON CHURCHILL — Throng filling London's Trafalgar Square offered prayers for Sir Winston Churchill who died Sunday morning in London. The crowd, attending a rally for Christian unity, represented all denominations. (AP Wirephoto via cable from London)

Churchill Coined Phrase 'Iron Curtain' In Address at Small Missouri College

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

FULTON, Mo. (AP) — Winston Churchill was a deposed prime minister, robbed of the fruits of wartime victory, when little Westminster College gave him a pulpit from which to voice his concern about "the iron Curtain (that) has descended across the Continent."

Churchill and his Conservative government had been discarded "after nine months before in Britain's first general election in a decade. Clement Atlee and his Labor government replaced them. Churchill had become an observer rather than a participant in world affairs.

Dr. Franc L. McCluer, president of Westminster College, wrote Churchill in the fall of 1945, inviting him to deliver the annual John Findley Green lecture the following March. McCluer asked a fellow Missourian, President Harry S. Truman, to endorse the invitation.

"President Truman wrote what amounted to an invitation to him at the bottom of my letter and assured Churchill he would accompany and introduce him if he should accept," says McCluer, now president of Lindenwood College in St. Charles, Mo.

On March 5, 1946, accompanied by Truman, Churchill came to Jefferson City, the Missouri state capital, and rode in a motorcade to Fulton, a city of 10,000 people.

30,000 WANTED SEATS

The gymnasium where Churchill was to speak had a capacity of 2,600 people. There were requests for 30,000 seats.

From loudspeakers all over the city — in movie theatres, parks and on Westminster campus — boomed Churchill's voice.

"What," he asked, "is the over-all strategic concept which we should inscribe today? It is nothing less than the safety and welfare, the freedom and progress of all the homes and families of all the men and women to all the lands. . . .

"To give security to these countless homes, they must be shielded from the two gaunt marauders—war and tyranny."

For half his speech Churchill continued in that vein. Then he said:

"Now, while still pursuing the method of realizing our overall strategic concept, I come to the crux of what I have travelled here to say. Neither the sure prevention of war, nor the continuous rise of world organization will be gained without what I have called the fraternal association of the English-speaking peoples. . . .

"A shadow has fallen upon the scenes so lately lighted by the Allied victory. Nobody knows what Soviet Russia and its Communist international organization intend to do in the immediate future or what are the limits, if any to their expansive and proselytizing tendencies. . . .

STATES FACTS

"We understand the Russian need to be secure on her Western frontiers from all renewal of German aggression. . . .

"From Stettin in the Baltic to Trieste in the Adriatic, an iron curtain has descended across the Continent.

"Behind that line lie all the capitals of the ancient states of Central and Eastern Europe. Warsaw, Berlin, Prague, Vienna, Budapest, Belgrade, Bucharest and Sofia, all these famous cities and the populations around them live in the Soviet sphere and all are subject in one form or another, not only to Soviet influence but to a very high and increasing measure of control from Moscow."

Churchill warned of the build-up of the power of the Communist parties in all these Eastern states of Europe "to preeminence and power far beyond their numbers, . . . seeking everywhere to obtain totalitarian control."

After the speech, Churchill, Truman, and Governor Phil M. Donnelly went to the McCluer home where they received 58 parents who had lost sons fo the war.

Ground was turned last year at the college for an unusual memorial to Churchill—a war-damaged church, removed stone-by-stone from its site in London and restored here as a non-sectarian chapel. Truman and McCluer attended the ceremony.

War's Big 3 All Died After Strokes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The big three of the Second World War — Franklin D. Roosevelt, Joseph Stalin and Winston Churchill—all died after strokes.

Roosevelt, 63, was stricken April 12, 1945, while posing for an artist at Warm Springs, Ga. He died at most at once.

Stalin, 73, was stricken in the Kremlin March 1, 1953, and was unconscious until his death on March 5.

Churchill, 90, was stricken Jan. 15, 1965, at his home in London, and lingered nine days.

COSMETIC COSTS

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Hungary's 4,000,000 women and teen-age girls spent 1,100,000,00 forints ($100,000,000 at the official rate) for cosmetics in 1964.

COUNTS DEATHS

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The total of Roman Catholic missionaries slain in The Congo since the territory became independent on June 30, 1960, has risen to 106, the International Fides service reported Saturday. Fides is an official publication of the Vatican's Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith.

Times Puts Advertisements Off Front Page in Tribute To Greatest of Englishmen

LONDON (Reuters)—The life and death of Sir Winston Churchill today dominate the British press as few other stories have done in history.

For the first time in 50 years the London Times moved advertisements off its front page to devote the entire page to photographs and stories of "The Greatest Englishman of His Time."

The staid and influential Times last carried news on its front page during the First World War. Since shortly after its beginning in 1788, it had filled page one with small advertisements.

The mass - circulation Daily Express published a head-and-shoulders photograph of Churchill, enlarged to full-page size, and enclosed it in a black box. All news was moved to inside pages.

The Sun, The Times, and The Daily Telegraph carry 16-page supplements on Churchill's life story.

REPORTS MIRACLE

The Daily Mail says in a story that people gathered around Churchill's deathbed Sunday morning "watched a little miracle familiar to anyone who has seen death. 'The years,' said one of them, 'fell away' from his face, and he looked again the way he looked during the war'."

The Independent Times says Churchill died "true to the majestic place in history and figures to his countrymen a name inseparable from the proudest and bravest memories."

The Sun says that Churchill, during the dark hours of the Second World War, "drew strength from the unconquerable will of the British people, and they drew strength from him."

The Communist Daily Worker says that, with Churchill's passing, "the capitalist system lost one of its most tenacious and able defenders."

But Churchill himself "would not expect those against whom he fought so bitterly to forget past battles and join unreservedly in the tributes now being paid to him," The Daily Worker says.

CITES GREATNESS

The Liberal Manchester Guardian says: "If one word can sum up his career, it is magnanimity — greatness in combat and also greatness in tolerance and reconciliation."

The right-wing Daily Express says: "If men — and not in Britain alone — enjoy liberty, if they live without shame, if they can indulge the hope of building a better world, then it is to this man above all men that they owe their priceless blessings."

The Conservative Daily Mail says: "It has been said that England always finds the right man in her hour of peril. If the man matches the peril, then truly can it be said that this country has never known so great a man as Winston Churchill."

The left - wing Daily Mirror says: "It is a moment outside political strife and rancor; old enmities and allegiances are forgotten. Churchill belongs to everybody, as once he spoke for everybody."

The Conservative Daily Telegraph says: "Such a man has the power to lift up the hearts of men. That was his supreme gift to us in life, and it may be his legacy to us in death."

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times publishes today a special eight - page section on Sir Winston Churchill.

TEST BYLAW

TORONTO (CP) — About 300 shivering demonstrators organized by the Ontario Young New Democrats to test the Metropolitan Toronto police commission's sign - censorship bylaw marched for half an hour in front of police headquarters Saturday without being arrested. A spokesman said the demonstrators had not submitted signs they carried to police in advance for approval as the police commission bylaw requires. It also requires seven days' notice before a parade.

Churchill Built Reputation In Widely Varied Fields

LONDON (Reuters)—Outside his amazing career as statesman and politician, Sir Winston Churchill built up a high reputation in other and varied fields: Soldiering, painting, writing, journalism, bricklaying.

Success in any of these fields might be counted a fairly satisfactory career by most men but, for Churchill, some of them were merely sidelines.

Bricklaying he learned by building a wall in his garden at Chartwell, his country home near London. He was made a member of the Bricklayers' Union.

Once, when he was laying a foundation stone at Bristol University, he embarrassed officials by insisting that the stone was not square. A carpenter's level was put on the stone and he was proved right.

One of his favorite ways of relaxing was oil painting. Britain's august Royal Academy made him an honorary member and his pictures have hung at several of its exhibitions.

USED ON CARDS

Each year he selected one of his pictures for his personal Christmas card, and a U.S. company bought the rights to some of his works for its greeting cards.

Churchill's writing career began in India when he was making his name as a young cavalry officer. Impatient for action, he got himself posted to the north-west frontier and took part in some heavy skirmishing.

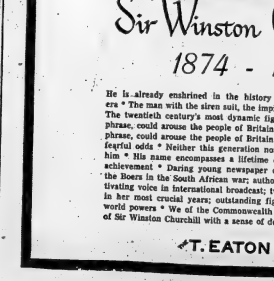
It was then he sent back his first stories to a London newspaper. A collection of these pieces formed his first book, The Story of the Malakand Field Force.

Back from the front he eased his boredom by rattling off a novel in two months, Savrola, the tale of a revolution in mythical "Laurentia."

Having tasted action and found it suited his temperament, the young Churchill, then 24, used all the influence he could muster in England to get himself attached to the forces of Gen. Sir Herbert Kitchener, fighting in the Sudan.

Later, his dispatches from the Boer War, in which he was captured and escaped, clinched his reputation as brave adventurer, vivid writer and a "young man to watch."

Among his many books were histories of the First and Second World Wars and his four-volume History of the English-Speaking Peoples.



In 1953 he was awarded the Nobel Prize for literature—for the most who win it the highest point of a career but, for Churchill, only one of many achievements.

Sir Winston Churchill
1874 - 1965

He is already enshrined in the history and legend of this turbulent era * The man with the siren suit, the impish grin, the "V" for Victory — The twentieth century's most dynamic figure * Who, in biting, brilliant phrase, could arouse the people of Britain to a new epic of sacrifice and phrase, could arouse the people of Britain to a new epic of sacrifice and fearful odds * Neither this generation nor those that follow will forget him * His name encompasses a lifetime of high adventure and mighty achievement * Daring young newspaper correspondent and prisoner of the Boers in the South African war; author, statesman and the most captivating voice in international broadcast; twice Prime Minister of Britain in her most crucial years; outstanding figure in wartime conference of world powers * We of the Commonwealth of Nations mourn the passing of Sir Winston Churchill with a sense of deep, intimate loss*

MYSTERY M.D. GAVE CAUSE OF DEATH

Red China Threatens To Form Revolutionary United Nations

PEKING (Reuters) — Red China has threatened to set up a rival United Nations.

Chinese Premier Chou En-lai claimed Sunday night the present world body was manipulated by the United States.

Speaking at an official banquet for visiting Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio, the Chinese premier said:

"The United Nations has committed too many mistakes. It has utterly disappointed the Afro-Asian countries. It must correct its mistakes. It must be reorganized."

He praised Indonesia's recent withdrawal from the world body, saying this had "opened the eyes of the peoples."

"They have come to realize that the U.S. imperialist-manipulated United Nations is by no means something sacrosanct, that one can oppose the United Nations and withdraw from it and that one can make do without entering it."

Countries like China, North Korea and North Viet Nam, who made up more than one-quarter of the world's population, were not in the United Nations but getting along fine, whereas several member countries such as The Congo had lost their independence and suffered aggression, the Chinese premier said.

"In these circumstances, another United Nations, a revolutionary one, may well be set up so that rival dramas may be staged in competition with that body which calls itself the United Nations but which is under the manipulation of U.S. imperialism and therefore can only make mischief and do nothing good."

Certificate Bore Signature Of Another Doctor

Dorion Inquiry Probes Death of Ovide Gagnon

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Guy Landriault testified today that he signed the death certificate for Ovide Gagnon without being present at the patient's death.

The Dorion inquiry in the last few days has been looking into the circumstances of Gagnon's death. Gagnon was said to have loaned $20,000 cash to Mrs. Marcien Rivard as part of a fund to assist her husband in getting out of jail.

Dr. Landriault said he had known Gagnon for seven years and the man suffered from hypertension.

He said he was called one morning in December from the Gagnon home by a person purporting to be a doctor who told him Gagnon had died of a heart attack.

He said this person had given his name and said he worked for an emergency clinic.

Chief Justice Frederic Dorion immediately ordered that the clinic in question be visited by commission investigators to locate any doctor who might have been present at Gagnon's death.

SIGNS CERTIFICATE

Dr. Landriault said he had no reason whatever to suspect that anything might be wrong about the telephone call and that he had signed the death certificate based on his knowledge of the patient.

He said he signed the certificate at the request of the assumed doctor at Gagnon's death-bed.

Chief Justice Dorion asked whether it is usual for a doctor to sign a death certificate when he is not present at the death.

Dr. Landriault said it is not usual.

Chief Justice Dorion asked whether such an occurrence is accepted by the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

IS 'TOLERATED'

Dr. Landriault said it is "tolerated."

The doctor said he conducted a post - mortem examination though he had gone to see Gagnon's body.

Ross Drouin, Conservative party counsel, said: "You signed the death certificate on the word of somebody who said he was a doctor and whom you didn't know?"

Dr. Landriault said yes.

In reply, to RCMP counsel Norman Mathews, the doctor said he didn't conduct a post-mortem before he signed the death certificate because there was no reason to suspect anything.

Mr. Mathews asked what good the death-certificate was in light of what the witness had said.

Dr. Landriault said he doesn't know.

USED 'PINCERS'

Earlier testimony at the inquiry has shown that Rivard and his associates used a pincer movement to bring pressure to bear on the federal government for Rivard's release on bail.

One arm of the pincer, several witnesses have said, went direct from Rivard in Bordeaux jail here through Raymond Rouleau to the latter's brother,

MONTREAL (CP)—The second missing witnesses in the Dorion inquiry, Bill Lamy, was found Monday and detained in provincial police cells.

Police have been trying to serve a subpoena on Lamy, wanted to testify as a witness.

Counsel Andre Desjardins told the inquiry Friday the Montreal grocer was "on a trip." Lamy had been identified as a man who contributed $17,000 toward bail for narcotics suspect Lucien Rivard.

Earlier, police found the other missing witnesses, Roger Aubin, a restaurant operator in St. Anatache, 20 miles west of Montreal.

P. M. Criticized For Silence On Dupuis Firing

Reporters Told $10,000 Was Given to Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Spokesmen for all four opposition parties criticized Prime Minister Pearson Monday for keeping silent on his abrupt firing of Yvon Dupuis as minister without portfolio Friday.

New Democratic Whip Stanley Knowles and Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson told The Canadian Press in separate interviews that the Commons should be recalled ahead of schedule to debate the Dupuis affair if the prime minister maintains his silence.

"Either the prime minister should come clean with the whole story," Mr. Knowles commented, "or he should call Parliament back into emergency session at once to deal with this increasingly disturbing situation of the cabinet and its question-able conduct."

Mr. Thompson, back from a holiday at his home in Red Deer, Alta., said he cannot understand why the government has not explained Mr. Dupuis' departure.

"It's not good enough for the prime minister's office to say there will be no statement," he said.

OWED TO PUBLIC

"The prime minister owes it to the public to explain the circumstances as soon as possible. If no clarification is forthcoming, the early recall of the House certainly is in order."

The prime minister's office said Mr. Pearson has no plans for a statement in the near future. Mr. Dupuis was not available for comment.

Conservative House Leader Gordon Churchill also said a full explanation from the prime minister is needed, but doubted that an emergency session is necessary.

Parliament is to resume the current session Feb. 16, and Mr. Churchill said that for the next week the prime minister and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker will be occupied in attending Sir Winston Churchill's funeral.

"By next week we'll be pretty close to Feb. 16," he said.

Mr. Dupuis, at 38 the youngest member of the Liberal cabinet, was fired Friday.

SHED NO LIGHT

An exchange of letters between him and the prime minister shed no light on the mystery and a spokesman for Mr. Pearson said Monday there is no plan "in the foreseeable future" to issue a statement.

Mr. Dupuis, who was interviewed by the prime minister last Wednesday, has denied any wrong doing.

He was appointed to the cabinet almost a year ago, largely on the strength of his leather-lunged campaigning in Quebec during the 1963 election campaign against Creditiste Real

Today's Chuckle

The trouble is that when success turns a fellow's head, it doesn't wring his neck at the same time.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Precipitation will end tonight as northerly winds bring in cooler air. However, cloudiness is expected to persist in all except the northernmost regions.

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says that Roch Delauriers, 31-year-old St. Johns, Que., chiropractor, told a group of reporters in St. Johns Monday that he gave $10,000 to Yvon Dupuis, former federal minister without portfolio, in connection with efforts to obtain a race track franchise from Quebec authorities.

Mr. Dupuis' resignation from the cabinet was announced last Friday. He said then he had agreed with Prime Minister Pearson he should resign while an RCMP investigation into a proposed race track in his St. Jean-Iberville - Napierville riding is under way.

The Globe and Mail says Mr. Delauriers, speaking to reporters in the St. Johns office of his lawyer, Henri Chenievre, "said he had been told the amount was necessary to prove his solvency and that it was destined to be used as support to the Quebec revenue department."

The newspaper adds:

"Mr. Deslauriers's lawyer said that, because of recent developments and because newspaper stories had appeared before the release of a full written statement he had promised, there would not be any such statement until a public inquiry—which he said he desired very much—could be held to shed light on the matter."

The Globe and Mail says it was reported Monday that the $10,000 was given to Mr. Dupuis in June, 1961.

Regulate Lake Levels First, Plea

QUEBEC (CP) — Resources Minister Laing said Monday night some system of regulating the water levels of the Great Lakes must be established prior to diverting water from other areas, such as James Bay.

He told the Canadian construction association that a major diversion project would not solve the immediate low-water problem. "It would take a matter of years" — and it would contribute to flooding in high-water years unless the diversion could be steered away.

"Without wishing to prejudice studies now in progress, I am inclined to think that regulation of all Great Lakes is the logical first step for us to take. So much the better if regulating the level of the lakes can also be done in a way which later on will accommodate any diversion that show themselves to be practical."

Mr. Laing said the low water levels in the Great Lakes are expected to continue at least through next year.

However, precipitation in the Great Lakes basin will return again to normal and even above - normal amounts, and water levels will once more rise to normal and beyond as has happened over and over again in the past."

In the meantime Canada and the United States have asked the International Joint Commission to make a study on increasing

Sombre Rehearsal Before Dawn Is Held for Churchill's Funeral

LONDON (CP) — A sombre rehearsal for Sir Winston Churchill's last journey was held before dawn today in the heart of the mourning capital as hours before the body of Britain's most beloved son was to be taken to Westminster Hall to lie in state for three days.

All traffic stopped as the two-man naval gun carriage which will carry Churchill's body in Saturday's funeral rolled through the darkened street to St. Paul's Cathedral.

While—the roll of muffled drums sounded, the procession marched from Westminster Hall to St. Paul's. Women office cleaners and early morning workers were the only spectators.

An RAF escort led the way, a Royal Navy officer, naked sword reversed, followed the funeral march.

Soldiers and airmen paced beside the sailors pulling the gun carriage, and empty limousines trailed behind.

Another rehearsal was scheduled Friday morning.

Scotland Yard launched a major security operation to protect the scores of foreign statesmen who will pay homage to Britain's wartime leader.

The Yard's special branch began a quiet check of all buildings overlooking the route. Others will be assigned to protect visiting leaders around the clock.

Tonight, shortly after 9 p.m. (4 p.m. EST), the oak coffin bearing Sir Winston's remains will be quietly taken from his family home at Hyde Park Gate, where he died Sunday of a stroke at the age of 90, to Westminster.

In the ancient hall, Churchill will lie in state atop a high catafalque, lighted by long-stemmed candles and guarded by military officer watches, attired in full ceremonial dress and changed every 20 minutes.

At Lady Churchill's request, the Archbishop of Canterbury will conduct the coffin to the catafalque. With only family mourners around him, the archbishop, Dr. Michael Ramsey, will say prayers. The family will take its leave and the military guard of honor will begin its vigil.

For three days starting at 11

Government Plans to Check Report Car Gauges Faulty

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is going to make a study of speedometers and odometers on cars, in the wake of a U.S. report which says mileage is being over-registered on new cars.

Odometers record the mileage on cars.

A spokesman for the trade department's weights and measure division said Monday "We'll have to move fairly quickly on this." The U.S. report said odometers on some new cars were registering mileage up to five per cent above actual miles travelled.

This gives the car owner the impression of improved gasoline mileage, it expires the warranty faster—and it would, it means higher profits for car rental agencies, and it means a higher salary for employees who drive their own cars for their companies on a mileage basis.

Reports from Washington said car manufacturers in the U.S. claimed the speedometers, operating on the same mechanism as the odometer, were set high for safety.

Will Aim at Co-ordination Of Demands of Rail Unions

WINNIPEG (CP)—Wage negotiations by Canada's rail unions will be studied by a newly - formed executive association with a view to effecting "co-ordination," a function that is not the same as a common negotiating." A union official said Monday.

Mr. Gibbons, secretary of the national legislative committee of the railway running trades unions, was commenting on a Jan. 20 announcement of formation of the Canadian Railway Labor Executive Association.

That announcement, by Mr. Gibbons and F. H. Hall, chairman of unions representing non-

LBJ Will Fly To Funeral

WASHINGTON (cp - AP) — President Johnson has recovered sufficiently from a bad cold to fly to London for Sir Winston Churchill's funeral Saturday, his aides said Monday, but his doctors want him to stay in bed another day.

Johnson has said he wants to attend the funeral "very very much."

The doctors fear that in his fatigued condition, the president might get a relapse during the trip to London. They want him to stay in bed at Bethesda Naval Medical Centre until Wednesday while continuing to take lesser amounts of antibiotics and build up his strength. The president was taken to the medical centre in the early hours Saturday with a bad cough and slight fever.

NORMAL TEMPERATURE

White House Press Secretary George Reedy reported that the president's temperature was normal Monday. But Reedy said the doctors planned to continue giving him reduced doses of antibiotics "for another couple of days—hopefully in the hospital."

The president indicated Sunday, at a meeting with five reporters, that his departure from the hospital would depend on when his fever was gone. He did stick to his hospital room schedule, however, even though he had no fever, which might indicate he was eager to prepare himself for the overseas trip.

Malaysia Given Aid By Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada strengthened its pro-Malaysian stand Monday in the growing Malaysia - Indonesia confrontation by announcing a $4,000,000 military aid program for the embattled Commonwealth nation.

Prime Minister Pearson said the program, as outright gift, will include four C-130 Hercules transport planes, 250 police motorcycles and special military training in Canada for up to 40 Malaysian personnel a year over the next two years.

He announcement came just six days after Canada cut off a proposed sale of 12 Otter air craft to West Irian, an undeveloped island part of Indonesia.

Indonesia, which has threatened to crush the 15-month-old Malaysian federation, has been cut off from most Canadian economic assistance programs in recent months. Some Indonesian military personnel, however, still are being trained here under a previous agreement.

Keep Dief The PC Chief Plead Ads

OTTAWA (CP) — Somebody wants to "Keep Dief the PC Chief."

Advertisements carrying this message have started appearing in Ottawa newspapers. They are unsigned, appearing in little boxes a column in width and about two inches deep and carrying only the five-word message.

Quebec MPs who have split with the Progressive Conservative party on some issues have asked that a party leadership convention be called to determine whether Opposition Leader Diefenbaker should continue to head the party.

PC Executive Asked Views On Balcer Convention Demand

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative party President Dalton K. Camp has asked the national executive whether it wants to meet within the next three weeks to decide on a leadership convention or delay the question until the next regular meeting, an informant said.

Mr. Camp's letter, written following the demands of the 10-member Quebec caucus for a convention to decide on John Diefenbaker's leadership, has already been answered by many of the 120-member executive.

The letter asks a "yes" or "no" answer to the following three questions:

—Are you in favor of holding an executive meeting to decide on a leadership convention?

—If so, should the executive meet before Feb. 16 as Quebec Leader Leon Balcer and his followers have demanded?

—Should the question be brought up at the next regular meeting of the executive?

Enclosed with the camp letter was the letter from Mr. Balcer which said the party's "national leadership" is turning a blind eye to the social-economic revolution in Quebec and distorting the meaning of French-Canadians.

"It is our firm conviction, reached after the most careful consideration, that the Conservative party can no longer carry on as a great national party under its present leadership and the policies which that leadership have engendered," Mr. Balcer's letter said.

The Quebec caucus at a meeting in Montreal about two weeks ago asked that the executive meet to fix a date for a leadership convention.

Normally, a convention is held only when there is a vacancy.

The caucus met following Mr. Balcer's pre - Christmas statement that he was considering bolting the Conservative party to sit as an independent.

Relations between himself and the opposition leader have never been easy, but became more strained over Mr. Balcer's annoyance with Mr. Diefenbaker's pronounced policies towards Quebec and provincial relations.

The caucus demand triggered a rash of comment among English - speaking Conservatives, with a number endorsing the call for a convention.

The party's executive met late last year and decided against holding an annual meeting until the executive determined whether a 1965 general election was likely or not.

U.E.L. Seek to Preserve House at Adolphustown

An appeal for the preservation of the Duffet house at Adolphustown, built back in the 1800's, was made at the meeting of Quinte branch of the United Empire Loyalists Association held last week in Picton.

The meeting was held in the Duffet house, now owned by the Seaway Commission, was in danger of being demolished.

It was felt that the large square brick building located along No. 33 highway, would be an ideal site for the United Empire Loyalist museum, rather than the present building which is some distance off the highway, and would permit a greater display of furniture and other articles of historic interest.

The meeting decided the matter should be taken up with the Seaway Commission.

TWO NEW MEMBERS

The meeting, in charge of Association president, Mrs. Gerald Allison, voted two applicants into membership, Mr. J. R. Bingham of Toronto (U.E.L. ancestors John Rowell and Gilbert Purdy) and Miss Candace Spencer, Watertown, N.Y. (William Spencer).

Guest speaker was Ron Johnson, special events officer of the St. Lawrence Seaway Commission who outlined the formation of Upper Canada Village and the many obstacles that had to be overcome.

He showed colored slides of the village, describing the buildings, monuments and other features.

Mrs. Wannamaker, past president of the association, expressed appreciation to the speaker, who was introduced by Captain J. A. C. Rogers.

The death of two members Mrs. Estella Fraser, Picton, and Miss Edith Forester, Vancouver Island, B.C., was reported.

ANAF Veterans Name Chairmen Of Committees

At a recent executive meeting of Branch 201, A.N.A.F., newly elected officers determined the chairmanships for 1963, under the direction of President J. R. Boyle, assisted by past president C. M. Brown, first vice-president, P. B. Kelly and 2nd vice-president, H. W. Mills.

The following chairmen were named:

Beverage and house, F. Carmichael; membership, C. Chapman; sports, G. Christopher; entertainment, W. A. Storms and publicity, R. C. Baker.

The 2nd vice-president, Comrade H. N. Mills was temporarily assigned to the chairmanship of the sick and visiting committee.

Special presidential appointments announced by President J. R. Boyle are as follows: Pipe Major K. McKevin to band manager; D. Kydd to sergeant-at-arms; G. Christopher to parade sergeant-major.

The following appointments were made to the Belleville Poppy Fund: J. R. Boyle, C. Chapman, M. Draycup of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

City Second In Decreased Welfare Costs

The city of Belleville placed second among Ontario municipalities in the percentage decrease of social welfare assistance payments for the first ten months of last year.

The city also placed second in percentage decrease in the number of persons receiving welfare assistance.

Ontario Department of Public Welfare statistics show that Belleville had a 25.4 percentage decrease in the number of persons receiving welfare assistance from January to October decreased from $264,636 in 1962 to $194,962 for the ten month period in 1963.

The number of persons in Belleville receiving welfare assistance last October was 329 as compared with 629 in October, 1962. This works out at 1.9 percent of the city's population.

Across the province there was a three percent decrease in welfare assistance payments from January to the previous year. In Ontario 1.6 per cent of the population received welfare during 1963 in 1964 as compared with 1.8 per cent in 1963.

The most notable decline was in the larger urban centres and was said undoubtedly related to better employment opportunities.

Arrest Suspect In Connection With Forgery

City police believe they may have cleared up a more than $2,000 forgery with the arrest of a suspect today.

The forgery involved a cheque drawn on a local business and cashed at the Royal Bank here in recent weeks.

Police kept the incident quiet at the time while making investigations around the province.

Full details still were not made known pending inquiries by Toronto detectives.

However, it is believed the cheque was forged and cashed after a man telephoned the bank, representing himself as the signee giving the bank permission to cash it.

The suspect was arrested last night in Toronto after police there ran down detectives linked investigations.

Teachers Hold Toronto Parley

On Saturday, January 23, the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation held a public relations conference at King Edward Sheraton Hotel in Toronto. This district was represented by Ronald Poste (Trenton) the public relations chairman for this area. Gary Stevenson (Bancroft) who is the chairman of the public relations committee of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation was present. Representatives were present, from all across the province.

The conference opened with a lecture by H. L. Hickey, B.A., the public relations counsel for Falconbridge Nickle Mines.

The morning session concluded with an examination of existing policies of Public Relations, and some possible suggestions for changes.

The afternoon was spent examining the present program for the students at Teachers' College. This was considered one of the most important phases of public relations, for it is the first contact new members to the profession have with their professional organization.

The conference ended with an evaluation by Bruce Mickelburgh, the editor of the Educational Courier, the official publication of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation and the Federation of Women Teachers of Ontario.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance Feted at Surprise Party

Representatives of 15 volunteer fire departments, numbering about 100 men, held a surprise retirement party to honor their retiring co-ordinator, Belleville's Fire Chief, Gerald Vance, held at the Club Canara last night.

Co-ordinator for the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Aid Association for the past 12 years, Chief Vance has turned the reins over to his successor, Deputy Fire Chief T. Poste, as Chief Vance will retire officially from the department in February, after 43 years of service with the department.

Mutual Aid was first introduced to this area in the fall of 1933 and began its operation with 10 volunteer departments. Today there are 16 such departments from as far north as Bancroft to Picton in the east.

As a result of Chief Vance's efforts as co-ordinator of the Association Hastings and Prince Edward counties were the first to install a "phone bank" and it was he who introduced the fire fighters' pin.

The "Chief" or "Gerry," as he was known to his many friends, received high praise from George Alexander of the Ontario Fire Marshall's Office.

Mr. Alexander told those present that "Gerry" stood up for his men at the county-co-ordinator meetings held at the Fire College and that he patted his men on the back several times.

As a small token of their appreciation for his guidance and friendship over the years, Chief Vance was presented with a plaque bearing the names of the 16 volunteer departments. The presentation was made to Chief Vance by Deputy Fire Chief Poste on behalf of the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Aid Association.

The Chief was also the recipient of a wallet containing a sum of money and a brass helmet - the helmet being presented by a representative of the Safety Supply Company.

The Fire Chief stated that it was a very great honor to receive the brass helmet carrying a shield inscribed, 43 years service.

Members of the departments present gave the Chief a standing ovation upon receiving the presentations, and sang, "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow."

In thanking his many friends who had gathered in his honor, the Chief said that although he was retiring from the position of co-ordinator, this did not mean that he was leaving the Association entirely.

He told his guests that he would be with them for many meetings to come and that if at any time he could help in any such way he would be as close as his telephone.

To highlight the evening, the Fire Chief's long-time friend, Art Duncan of the Bas Shee Company in Frankford was the guest speaker. Mr. Duncan is known by many for his story telling and the guests last evening were not disappointed.

Departments represented at the party were Belleville, Point Anne, Trenton, Batawa, Wellington, Bloomfield, Tweed, Marmora, Madoc, Deseronto, Frankford, Stirling, Picton, Sidney Township and Rawdon Township, Bancroft volunteer department was not represented.

Following the presentations, guests enjoyed a buffet luncheon and refreshments.

Asks Formation of Board To Review Various Appeals

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A brief to the royal commission on civil rights Monday recommended formation of a special board to review appeals of decisions given by such bodies as the Ontario Municipal Board and the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

The brief, submitted by Windsor lawyer Richard R. Walker to a commission hearing by Commissioner J. C. McRuer, said there is a growing need for such a board as bureaucracy continues to grow and infringe upon the rights of individuals. The commission later moved to London, Ont., for a hearing Thursday.

Mr. Walker said the sole body to which an appeal against a municipal board decision can be made is the Ontario cabinet. That did not provide sufficient scope to avoid encroachment on civil rights.

Mr. Walker also mentioned the power wielded by the water resources commission in its control over all municipal construction involving water supplies and sewage treatment and disposal.

The brief also accused the Ontario highway transport board, which makes recommendations on licensing, of having a three-to-hold on the commercial vehicle industry in the province.

Other briefs to the commission called for a change in laws to force industries to detail their process and products to establish the safety of these before moving into a municipality.

A buffer zone between industrial and residential zones was also urged.

Mr. McRuer is to hold hearings in Sudbury, Sault Ste. Marie and Port Arthur after the London hearing. Hearings have already been held in Ottawa, Hamilton, Toronto and Kingston.

Winnie Took House Guest For Servant

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Winston Churchill, despite his greatness, could have been a trying house guest.

U.S. Senator Harry F. Byrd recalled this less storied side of the famous statesman, who was a guest at the executive mansion when Byrd was governor in 1926.

On the first night of his visit, Churchill descended the stairway and came upon another guest, R. Gray Williams, former president of the state bar association and rector of the University of Virginia.

"My man, would you get me a newspaper," said Churchill, mistaking the dinner-jacketed Williams for a butler, and handing him a quarter. Williams went out and got the paper from a nearby hotel and kept the quarter for the rest of his life.

If Churchill spotted his error, he made no mention of it when Williams joined the party at dinner.

Winnie Helped Eisenhower in His Painting

NEW YORK (AP) — Former United States president Dwight Eisenhower said Monday night Sir Winston Churchill encouraged him to take up painting.

Eisenhower said in an interview that he once gave a portrait of Churchill, which he had painted, to a Washington hospital when Eisenhower had been a patient.

Years later, Eisenhower recalled, he and Churchill went to the hospital to visit, and he pointed the painting out to the former prime minister.

"And he said, 'Ike, yes, ah, hum,'" Eisenhower said. "And I said, 'That's one of my efforts at painting.'

"Well then, he bent over a little closer. He said, 'Not bad, not bad.'

"That's the nearest he ever came to giving me a compliment on my work."

RCAF Flies Doctor, Nurses To Help Amherst Isle Folk

KINGSTON (CP)—A four-person medical team reached Amherst Island this morning by RCAF search and rescue helicopter minutes before a freak rainstorm blocked access to the island.

The doctor-nurse team was sent by the Lennox and Addington County health unit to investigate what is believed to be an outbreak of scarlet fever on the island located about two miles from the mainland in Lake Ontario, mid - way between Kingston and Napanee.

On arrival the team set up a clinic at the public school where about a quarter of the 103 students have been away from classes. The helicopter left immediately for its home base at Trenton.

RCAF officials told Dr. R. A. McLelland, medical officer of health, that he, his three nurses and his wife would have to stay on the island overnight as weather conditions would rule out any further trips.

REPORTS SORE THROATS

A nurse who visited the school last Wednesday reported a high incidence of sore throats.

Dr. McLellan said Monday an outbreak of scarlet fever would be a relatively routine matter and no cause for alarm if the island was isolated. He also said today he suspected several cases of measles on the island.

The more than 400 residents of the island have been cut off from the mainland since February when the ferry Amherst Islander broke loose from its moorings while trying to push through the ice and jammed channel. The ferry made another attempt Monday but heavy snow and drifting ice clogged the channel.

Arrest Another In Connection With Huge Fraud

WELLAND (CP) — Emmett Sullivan, 54, of Welland was arrested at his home Monday and charged with conspiracy and fraud in connection with the delivery and receiving of metals at the Atlas Steels Company in an amount exceeding $1,500,000.

Sullivan was later arraigned before A. Ar Marshall, a justice of the peace, and remanded for further appearance until Thursday on $50,000 bail.

Two other men have been charged since early summer and with the two offences. Inspector Peter Sawatsky of the provincial police, who has been investigating the case, said Hyman Jack, of Welland, will be arraigned when he appears voluntarily in Welland today, but Sidney Treesman is still being sought. Both are of London, Ont.

Mr. Sullivan was a former employee of Atlas Steels, and a vice-president of Rio Algom Mining Company Limited.

An interim report on consolidated operations of Rio Algom issued on Dec. 31, 1964, showed a shortage of $2,400,000 in physical inventory stocks, as compared with book inventories. It had been disclosed by the introduction of new scraps inventory controls.

Agrologists Hear Address By Apiarist

BRIGHTON — The Quinte Group of Professional Agrologists met at the Agricultural Research Centre in Brighton on January 21. President Walter Rutherford, fruit and vegetable specialist for Durham County, opened the meeting. There was an attendance of 32. Provincial Councillor Frank Peterson reported on a meeting at Guelph on Jan. 19th and the decision to feature water resources this year. Some thought was given to student relations at the new University of Guelph.

Past president Ralph Bandsury was asked to be co-chairman with the secretary to see that publicity be given this year's meetings and reports made to the Ontario Institute of Agrologists. The speaker, Maurice Harvey of Codrington, was introduced by Blair Heaney, chairman of the membership committee. He referred to Mr. Harvey's wide experience as an apiarist and his remarkable ability in photography. The speaker first introduced several beekeepers, who attended, a series of slides showed the general activities of bee keeping with special emphasis on wintering and the control of swarms. He said that water was equally as important to bees as to animals and plant production. Discussion followed with much interest in how a spray manufacturer can be arranged to prevent the killing of bees. Sevin was mentioned as a killer of bees if not properly handled. Sprays with this product and chlordane for grasshoppers had created some trouble. Bees near were hurt by the spray getting on dandelions under the trees. It was felt that anything that could be done to suppress dandelions in the orchard would help the bee and other beneficial insects.

A film was shown on bird and animal life was shown. Some fascinating photography and photomicrography enhanced the showing. A series of native trees was instructive.

Vice-president Oliver Dalrymple, Agricultural representative for Durham County thanked the speaker and Andy Watson, Associate Agricultural representative in Northumberland County, presented Mr. Harvey and his wife with a box of apples featuring the best varieties grown at the Dominion Smithfield Experimental Farm.

Director Ken Wright distributed a groups of questions which are to be answered at a future meeting.

UN Assembly Showdown Begins Today

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United States goes before the General Assembly today seeking support for its demand that voting rights be denied the Soviet Union and other UN members if two years behind in their financial payments.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson was not expected to launch a major attack against Russia in his long-delayed policy statement at 3 p.m. EST. Despite the U.S.-Soviet deadlock over dues, the United States insists it is fundamentally an issue between the UN and debtor nations and not a big power dispute.

Informed sources said Stevenson would devote most of his speech to sparking out why the United States believes Article 19 of the UN charter—should be applied against members 24 months in arrears because of their refusal to pay their share of the cost of UN peacekeeping operations. The United States has informed other UN members that if the assembly lets the Russians and other delinquents keep their assembly vote, Washington will review its own policy of pouring large sums into UN projects.

TRUANT MARTIN TALK

Canada's External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, taking a personal hand in the search for a formula, met Monday night with Secretary-General U Thant after talking earlier in the day with the Soviet and American ambassadors.

His talk with Russia's Nikolai Fedorenko resulted from an impromptu corridor encounter. Later he had lunch with Stevenson.

The United States has agreed to allow a face-saving device whereby the debtors will not ratify Article 19 by making voluntary contributions.

The Russians have announced that they are willing to make a substantial contribution. But they insist that the assembly first set aside Article 19 for the current session. The United States has rejected this.

What Does Future Hold For Fraser Memorial Park?

TRENTON — What's going to happen to Fraser Memorial Park?

Many Trenton residents remember swimming and playing in the "slip" between the government dock area and the Cold Storage. Later, the land was reclaimed by garbage and landfill, dedicated to the Trenton Parks' Board and officially opened as the town's beauty spots. It resembles an English garden, with hedges and paved walks, where mothers push babies in go-carts in the summer and the Trenton Legion holds its impressive Remembrance Day ceremony each Nov. 11.

Last year's council talked of taking over the park, paving it and providing metered parking space for downtown shoppers. This is needed, said council, to attract shoppers to the downtown area, dying on its feet, said council, because of lack of parking space.

The parks' board, girding its loins for an all-out battle to oust council from the midst of its asphalt plans, announced its plans to erect a stone fountain in the middle of the park as a Centennial project.

Council proposed to "move" the park, bag and baggage, further west to Bayshore Park, where, council says, it would be a much more impressive tribute to the late Senator W. A. Fraser.

An Excellent Appointment

W. Elmer Sandercock, Progressive Conservative member of Hastings West, has been chosen deputy speaker of the Ontario Legislature. He will receive congratulations from friend and foe alike—political friend and foe, that is, for he might be hard put to it to discover any person who wishes him ill except insofar as his political fortunes are concerned.

An excellent representative of all the people of the riding which has elected him, Mr. Sandercock, by temperament, is ideally suited to the able discharge of his new duties. Appointments like this honor not only the man appointed but also those responsible for his selection for the position.

We join his other friends in wishing him well.

A Comforting Decision

Better late than never—and perhaps better late than early—may well be the reaction of most Ontario residents to the announcement by Premier John Robarts that Ontario will participate in the Canada Pension Plan.

Most people, we suspect, feel instinctively that it is preferrable to have a uniform pension scheme covering most Canadians to a situation in which there are ten separate provincial pension plans, even if arrangements are made for their integration.

At the same time, the delay in Ontario's final acceptance of the Federal plan will re-assure some who may have been disturbed by criticisms of the plan. They will feel, not without logic, that it is unlikely the Conservative Government of Ontario would have endorsed a proposal by the Liberal Federal regime if this proposal was not inherently sound.

Premier Roberts has once again confirmed the impression which most of us have gained since he became premier that he is more interested in promoting the welfare of all of Canada than in squeezing out the last drop of prestige for Ontario or playing politics. With precisely the opposite impression being given by some provincial regimes, this gives us a comforting feeling.

All Friends?

In the current controversy regarding the leadership of the Progressive Conservative Party in the Federal arena many things are being said which the speakers may live to regret, for one reason or another.

An observation by Gordon Churchill, party House leader, does not fall in this category, unless he should prove sensitive enough to blush at its hypocrisy.

"Basically," he said, trying to pour oil on the troubled waters, "we are all Conservatives and we are all friends."

If this is really true, then the plight of the Conservatives is dire indeed, for it means the party does not include two people with differing ideas who are interested enough in the party and its welfare to fight for what they believe to be best for it.

As anybody who has had anything to do with politics knows, the bitterest enemies are those in the same party. This can be the result of personal ambition, but is not always so. Ardent supporters of a party who see others within the same party attempting, from their viewpoint, to subvert the party, to alter what it stands for, regard these people with opposing views as traitors.

The situation arises most frequently in parties which are doctrinaire — which is why the history of socialist parties throughout the world is one of bitter internal strife.

One would not expect bitterness of this type to be so prevalent in a party like the Progressive Conservatives, which is more pragmatic in its approach to politics. Nevertheless, it is inconceivable that the party today does not include a few people who are bitter enemies, men of firm convictions and real concern about the party's future.

I think it is very good for women to reach a high standard of education, because if, after all, they are not going out to work but stay at home, it's worth while being educated because children have very blank minds, and they cling more to their mothers than to their fathers. And so, if a mother is well educated, she'll be able to train up the children in a certain kind of way.—Mrs. Elvira Tanoh, a Ghanaian housewife living in Britain

Diefenbaker's Old Comrades Flee as Tomahawks Waved

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It is extremely difficult to turn your back on Conservative Leader Diefenbaker.

The gifted Indians seem to be closing in around his wagon train, and there stands the grizzled Old Warrior fighting them off, as one by one, old comrades on whom he had every right to count, steal off into the sheltering darkness lest they be caught in the kill.

Some of them — and the names are surprising — are running out, as the in-fighting grows more savage, to join the attackers.

— Numbered, even openly named among them, are some of the favor-seekers of recent and more politically prosperous years — a few who personally profited during the wild wonwon-everything days the like of which will never be seen again.

They are ready to bear out the observations of the first Prime Minister, Sir John A. Macdonald, that to speak of sense in the Senate is to make a scene of enemies and one ingrate.

Then, then, Tom now.

What they now are saying about the leadership qualities of John Diefenbaker is so fundamentally different from what they were saying only four, five and six years ago that it does not seem possible they are talking about the same man.

Whether it is time for John Diefenbaker to go as leader is one thing—but what they are saying to John Diefenbaker as an old friend is something else again.

And it's not pretty.

That's what makes it so hard to turn your back on the tough, rough, unpredictable, flailing, fiery character that he is.

You don't have to remember, you know — you can see it watching the political stars rise and fall in the Commons—that the Mackenzie King Machine dominated Parliament.

And as Opposition Leader too, holding the Government in moral terror.

But here's a personal side to it all, the friendship part of what is now beginning to shape up as another bitter battle in the long and heart - breaking story of the Conservative leadership.

Sure, Dief sometimes seemed to be what former President Harry Truman liked to call an SOB.

You remember just the other day when Diefy put the new mood of suspecting all newspaper men of being assassins, was giving you a hard time interviewing in his office over really nothing.

WITH STRAW IN IT

Suddenly, to some of those lightening changes of emotion, he spun on his swivel-chair, leveled a finger, and with an accusing eye hooked:

"You know — the only difference between you and the press and the real barnyard product is that out in the barnyard it has straw in it!"

And with that, he nearly fell off his chair laughing. For something off the top of his head, like the flash of the moment's mood, was funny. But the quick laughter done, he refused the levity to the attack.

The same was the time you were out West with him when he was still Prime Minister, flying back from Calgary to Edmonton, and the plane landed briefly at Calgary for a quick refuelling and stretching.

You were talking on the phone to your mother who never forgave you for being a newspaper man when, she believed, in her heart, you were cut out for greater things such as international banking or world diplomacy.

And Dief, spotting you in the phone booth, slid across to ask what you were talking about.

Then snatching the receiver addressing the long distance line, he launched into a typical old character, this man who still puts such stock in friendship — speaking then with the great authority of Prime Minister — told your incredulous mother what a smashing success, what an incredibly trenchant observation you were, winking the while.

That ought to keep her happy.

The diplomat, handing back the receiver.

This and a thousand other times over the last 25 years come to mind, as now it seems so impossibly difficult to turn your back on John Diefenbaker.

"The years have led me to this day," he said, dramatically back in 1956 when they gave him the leadership.

Sad now to think that day may be ending.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Jan. 26th, 1945

With recurrent snowstorms adding regularly to the heavy depth of snow already fallen in the district, there is every possibility of an all-time record being established for snow removal costs this winter, it was indicated today by city and county officials.

To January 10th it had already cost the city a total of $5,200 for snow removal, while during December alone, approximately $3,000 was spent by the County of Hastings for snow plowing. Time sheets for January had not been figured for the county, but the total cost to Hasting thus far this winter was estimated considerably above the December figure.

Hauling of snow from the business sections of the city has been responsible for a great measure of the total snow removal costs, it was stated today by the City Engineer.

30 YEARS AGO

Jan. 26th, 1935

The estimates which were tabled in the House of Commons yesterday include the following of interest to this city: Belleville public building — addition to site, $17,500; Belleville — new gun shed, $9,600.

Mr. Charles A. Cameron, barrister, of this city, was unanimously chosen to be the Liberal standard bearer for the riding of South Hastings in the forthcoming Dominion elections, at a convention held in the city on Friday afternoon. Mr. Cameron was nominated by Mr. I. I. Moore, of Belleville, and seconded by Mr. James Hanley, of Read.

Miss Helen Tilley and Miss Margaret Tilley are spending the weekend in Oshawa and Toronto.

Miss Mary Haggerty was home from Queen's University, Kingston, to spend the weekend.

40 YEARS AGO

Jan. 26th, 1925

Messrs. Charles Hanna, M.P., and George Griffin of this city, will be guests at the anniversary meeting of the Kingston Kiwanis Club this evening.

Messrs. Jamieson Sone, H. Fryer, Scotland, and W. H. Springer and Charles Hanna, M.P., will leave here on the morning to attend the Ontario Dairymen's meeting in Quebec City. Leading public and business men of Ontario and Quebec provinces will be present.

The members of Camp Rob Roy, Sons of Scotland, will give a dance at Johnstone's Academy this evening in honor of the anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns, Scotland's national bard. A large attendance is expected. The officials in charge of the dance are: R. Brown, W. Givens, R. Browning, J. J. Ingram, Q. Boyd, and J. Browning, Secretary.

50 YEARS AGO

Jan. 26th, 1915

The handsome silver salver presented by the Dominion government for the highest agregate made during the season 1914, by members of the Belleville Rifle Club, has been received here. It was won by Mr. Arthur J. Stewart.

At the inaugural meeting of the Hastings County Council at Shire Hall this afternoon, Mr. Charles Ketcheson, reeve of Sidney township, was elected warden for the year 1915.

The City of Belleville has been fortunate in the sale of debentures, considering the state of the money market. Over $100,000 debentures, in broken lots, of 20 and 30 years, have been disposed of. The 20-year debentures brought $92.36 and the 30-year debentures brought $94.30. All bear interest at 5 per cent.

Brain Surgery Sometimes Possible for Young People

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Your articles have explained so many things I have wondered about. Here is a clipping about a seven-year-old boy who died of a brain tumor. Last year I had a friend whose son was 15 and died of the same thing. He had a headache, became unconscious then had seizures and paralysis and died in a few hours. Could you explain this? — Mrs. D. C.

Luckily this doesn't happen very often to the young.

The usual cause is the rupture of an aneurysm (bulgy, weak place) in an artery inside the skull. This may be a flaw with which the individual is born, or it can occur because of physical injury, of course, but that means a shattering type of accident. The skull protects against minor (or even pretty hard) bumps causing such damage.

When it happens, it is a "stroke," or at least one form of stroke, and precisely the same sort of thing which occurs with far greater frequency among older people, because in them the elements of high blood pressure and gradual deterioration of the arteries play a part.

But the result is the same. It may be a "little stroke," or one of maximum severity, or anywhere in between.

With young people, brain surgery sometimes is possible. The blood vessels in general are pliable and strong, rather than hardened and brittle. Hence, once a child has survived the original attack, such surgery can repair the ruptured area with remarkably good results.

In some instances, immediate surgery, to reduce pressures, can be attempted, but I must warn that this cannot always be done, or even tried. I stress this to avoid the false hopes of someone feeling that "they should have tried to do something for this child." There are cases, heart-breaking as they are, in which nothing can be done.

But at least strokes among children are rare and that is why, when they do happen, they receive considerable notice.

Dear Dr. Molner: Quite a few people in our locality draw their drinking water from a deep well at the town pump. I am sure the water contains lime. Is there any harm in it, such as kidney stones, or does the body pass off the lime or consume it? — O. R. B.

Unless you already have kidney or heart trouble, I wouldn't worry — and even then the presence of sodium or other materials would be more significant than the lime.

Dear Dr. Molner: Could you send me some booklets, pamphlets and pictures on artificial respiration, the respiratory system, first aid, the circulatory (folo spelling) system, shock and wounds? Send them as immediately as possible. — Miss A. McC

I could but I won't. In behalf of myself and lots of other columnists in all sorts of fields, I'll repeat: You've been assigned to write some sort of a paper in school. There's no reason why I should do your homework for you, and there are plenty of reasons why I shouldn't. You're supposed to start finding out how to look things up for yourself in the library.

While you're there, get a dictionary and find out what's wrong with the way you spelled "circulatory."

You probably will turn into a good student if you work at it — but you won't if I do your work for you.

• • •

Of all the problems that pediatricians encounter in childrearing, one of the commonest, I'm sure, is the newest method of treatment for this pest, write for that booklet, "The Commonest Pest, Pinworm," addressing your request to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., and enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover printing and handling.

Strictly Personal
Mis-spelling Of Love Just A Joke

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I brought home the book version of the new Broadway comedy, "Luv," the other night, and my 7-year-old daughter wanted to know why the author couldn't spell better than that.

"Huh," she snorted. "When I was still in first grade, I knew you didn't spell love l-u-v."

I hastily assured her that playwright Murray Schisgal knew that, too, and the misspelling was just a joke. Actually, it is more than that, as Schisgal explains in his preface to the play.

"The sense of it (the title) is that the emotion of love has been perverted and misused to such an extent that it can only be defined by using another word which comes closer to what we experience, to what we think, and how we behave," he says.

"It can be l-u-v, l-o-v, or x-y-z, but it certainly can't be a word that has been abused as much as l-o-v-e. L-u-v is the perversion of l-o-v-e. I don't have the audacity to define the other," he goes on.

In an interview with Ira Peck he was asked in what sense did he feel that love has been abused or perverted?

"In the sense that we use it as a respectable cover for insincerity, for physical desire, and perhaps primarily for money. I'm thinking of the cheap movies, of the cheap books, and the cheap slap dash psychological tripe that is continually being drummed into our heads.

"There's a financial value in perverting human emotion in suit adolescent fancy and it is the fault of those who cater to the gullible, and to which we ourselves are exposed at an age of near-discretion that proves so harmful when we are called upon to behave as adults . . . Love has become a commodity rather than an emotion."

I have quoted at such length because Schisgal's play is one of the first in which the author admits he doesn't have "the audacity to define" authentic love, and is content to deal mockingly with some of its grotesque counterfeits.

Perhaps no other word in the Western, world has been so abused as "love," in our literature as well as in our life, and at all levels, from the romantic to the religious to the parental. Perhaps, in the end, it can be defined only negatively — by showing what it is not.

This takes many of us a lifetime to find out, and by then it is too late. To be seduced and betrayed by different forms of "luv" may be the most characteristic experience of modern man, leading directly to the widespread present-day "crisis of identity."

Silver-plating The Drains

By WILLIAM HARRIS
In South African Financial Gazette

Nearly $600,000 worth of silver goes down South African drains each year in photographic hypo fixing solution — simply because the law in this country makes it difficult for people to reclaim the silver from the solution.

This statement was made by Mr. K. G. Collender, engineer in charge of the X-Ray Department of the Witwaters and Native Labour Association (Chamber of Mines).

"The law is obsolete and should be changed", he told me. "It should be an offence to throw silver down the drain but, at the moment, it is illegal to reclaim the silver without a licence.

Mr. Collender who has fought for years without success to have the law changed, added: "In Britain, on the Continent and in America anybody is permitted to recover silver and sell it to the open market — not in South Africa.

"I can and do reclaim an enormous amount of silver from our mass radiography unit each year.

"But I had to be certified as a proper person to mine silver" and I had to get a licence from the Department of Inland Revenue to carry out the work — at a cost of £75.

"When I have collected 30 pounds of silver or more the precious metals department of the South African Police must be notified. An officer must be required to come and weigh the silver, permits have to be obtained to remove it to the refinery and it moves under heavy armed guard and other security precautions.

"Is it any wonder that very few people are prepared to go to these lengths?"

Mr. Collender told me that under the present law it was a criminal offence for anybody to have unwrought silver in his possession—despite the fact that every one of photographic film, whether processed or not, all bromide paper and all used or partially used fixer contained unwrought silver.

"All we are doing at the moment is to have the waste and silver plating the municipal drains of the Republic," he said.

He added that in view of the present world shortage of silver the law should be simplified to attract other sources. Hospitals and radiography units and large commercial photographic concerns reclaim the silver.

"There must be dozens of establishments like mine in the country," he said. "And in the past three years that we have been doing it we have recovered more than £3,750 worth."

Until about five years ago, various methods of recovery were used but without much success. The method now in use depends on an electrical solution during recovery with the result that currents of up to 2 amps can be passed through the solution.

About 12 ounces of fine silver valued today at 84 cents an ounce approximately were recovered from one average week's test using eight gallons of exhausted hypo.

My rough calculations show that on this basis there would be no need to spend money on a licence for the department which is of tremendous importance to a large department dealing in photography," Mr. Collender said.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jan. 26, 1965 . . .

The Canadian Red Ensign was given official recognition 41 years ago today—in 1924. An order-in-council authorized the flag's display from "all buildings owned or occupied by the Canadian Government and situated outside Canada." This was later changed to read "within as well as without Canada." The Red Ensign remained Canada's official flag until the red Maple Leaf flag was adopted by Parliament in December, 1964 and approved by the Queen later that month.

1934 — Germany and Poland signed a 10-year non-aggression pact.

1950—India became a republic, the first within the British Commonwealth.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915 — the German government announced the confiscation of wheat and flour in that country. Russian troops advanced in the region of Pervyse on the Yser front; Russians pressed attacks on the Lower Vistula in Poland.

Caouette and his followers.

Gilles Gregoire, Creditiste house leader, predicted that the government will be forced to call a general election, for June, perhaps earlier, to end an impasse in Parliament.

"If there is a non-confidence motion relating to all the recent scandals, we certainly will vote against the government," he said in an interview, referring to the 13 Creditiste MPs.

STILL IN CONTROL

"The prime minister is trying to clean up the Liberals' moral machine, but the old guard remains in control.

Mr. Gregoire said Mr. Pearson is "extraordinarily naive" and always the last to hear about his ministers' dealings.

The Creditiste MPs would ask plenty of questions about the circumstances of an application for a racetrack franchise by promoters in Mr. Dupuis' constituency.

"Dupuis has always been a clown and an incompetent," he said.

Mr. Gregoire thought it unlikely that the Liberals will be toppled in a test of confidence soon after the session resumes Feb. 16. There would be no opportunities for non - confidence motions until the current session ended and a new one opened. The five Social Credit MPs from Quebec would vote with the Liberals because they fear defeat in an early election, he said.

CNR Is Blamed For Chaos on Run-Throughs

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canadian National Railways' officers were responsible for the chaotic situation that developed over the run-through proposals because they dealt directly with employees rather than union representatives, the Freedman commission was told Monday.

Maurice Wright of Ottawa, counsel for the three railway unions, said he appeared before the commission to investigate closely all factors which "created the state of panic among the men" last October when the run-throughs were to be implemented.

Nicholson College Presents: "The Queen and the Rebels"

The drama club of Nicholson College is doing it again.

Following the pattern begun last year under Sister Mary Fleurette, the club is departing further the traditional pastures of high school drama by presenting a play of contemporary and thoughtful texture.

Last year it was a modern-ized "Antigone" in which the group explored themes of political corruption and spiritual independence.

For its 1965 production next Friday and Saturday, the club embarks on another difficult venture—"The Queen and the Rebels", a melodrama by the Italian playwright Ugo Betti.

The presentation also scores another first for the club in the musical drama field.

Betti, an important figure in modern European drama lists, is still a virtual unknown in North America. "The Queen and the Rebels" has only been performed here twice in recent years—once in a Toronto regional drama festival and on CBC-TV. A month from now it will have its first off-Broadway presentation. The dramatic possibilities of its content once attracted the attention of Alfred Hitchcock.

For the Nicholson production Sister Mary Fleurette made special representations to the playwright's copyright in Paris.

However, the extra efforts demanded by such a production are worth it, she feels.

Producing such plays fulfills the dual purpose of cultural pursuit and intellectual stimulation for the students.

Set against a broad background of political upheaval, the drama concentrates its spotlight on the emergence of personal ideals.

To say more would be to betray some of the measures of surprise for its audience, not only within the play itself, but its presentation by this young enterprising group.

That Maple Leaf Flag at Moira Run up After Red Ensign Stolen

Who stole the Red Ensign at the Moira Secondary School?

That is what school officials would like to know. And if they could find out, in all probability, they would also know who was responsible for those home-made Maple Leaf flag being run up in place of the ensign.

School principal James Munro said that late last week someone stole the ensign from the school flag pole and ran their own version of the Maple Leaf flag up in its stead.

On the death of Sir Winston Churchill the Maple Leaf flag was taken down Sunday and the Union Jack was flown at half staff in tribute to the British statesman.

City hall is also having its flag-flying troubles.

The rope on the flag pole atop the city hall tower is broken and because of icy conditions workmen have been unable to install a new one.

Storm Heads For Illinois

CHICAGO (AP) — A storm that smacked the southwestern United States with snow, rain and strong winds headed toward ice-bound northern Illinois today, where repairmen worked around the clock to replace downed power lines and thousands of families sought shelter.

Snow, sleet and freezing rain struck Kansas and Missouri as blizzard warnings were issued.

The weather bureau said the storm was aimed at northern Illinois, where 20,000 were still homeless because of snapped power lines.

A Commonwealth Edison Company spokesman said damage to power equipment alone in the Chicago area topped $3,000,000. City officials put damage in the multimillion-dollar bracket.

Officials of Illinois attributed four deaths to the weather.

Regulate

ing regulations on the lake. And the federal government had approached the Quebec and Ontario governments in connection with the possibility of diverting water south from James Bay.

Mr. Laing said a great deal more information must be acquired before there can be effective planning in water resources.

His department's water research branch plans to double its engineering, technical and support staff to about 300 in the next five years.

"With this additional staff, the branch will increase its collection of flow records and will carry out other specific studies, including some on behalf of the International Joint Commission on International problems."

LOSSES HEAVY

CHICAGO (AP)—Reports that United States and Canadian interests have suffered multimillion-dollar losses in shipping tonnage and power generation because of low water levels on the Great Lakes were made Monday at the annual meeting of the Great Lakes commodity and Great Lakes Carriers' Association, estimated that the association's member companies lost $13,000,000 last year in ore trade alone.

Hirshfield said lower water levels limit the amount of cargo larger vessels can carry. A deficiency of one inch in lake levels, he said, means a loss of from 60 to 100 tons a vessel in cargo-carrying capacity.

R. J. Boyer, vice-chairman of Dominion Foundries which has invested some $750,000,000 in power plants on the Niagara and St. Lawrence Rivers, said:

"The flow in 1964 were very low and Ontario Hydro computed that, compared with the average year, there was a loss of 2,000,000 tons of coal to await-hours, which would have cost 1,800,000 tons of coal to produce at a cost of some $18,000,000."

"As the facilities for using the Great Lakes have grown in number and importance," Boyer said, "it would seem inevitable that regulation of all the lakes will ultimately be necessary."

Rep. Gen. Roy T. Dodge, of the U.S. Army Engineers, said there are indications that lake levels have reached or are at about the lowest point in the current cycle.

Says National Existence Threatened

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's national existence is threatened at the highest federal level by "widespread and deep-seated corruption," a former moderator of the United Church of Canada said here Monday night.

Very Rev. James R. Mutchmor addressed the annual meeting of the Toronto east presbyterial of the United Church Women.

"The spotlight now is on Ottawa and Ottawa, but it could just as well be on any provincial, Guelph, Hamilton or Metropolitan Toronto. Unexpensed and amoral behaviorism threaten our national life."

Dr. Mutchmor deplored what he described as "today's cheapened way of life," and said women's pages of daily newspapers are "almost smothered with sex stories such as contraceptive pills, abortion and divorce."

South Vietnamese Girl, 17, Commits Flaming Suicide

SAIGON (AP)—A 17-year-old South Vietnamese girl drenched herself with gasoline and burned herself to death today in protest against the government of Premier Tran Van Huong.

It was the first such protest suicide since 1963, when immolations by Buddhists helped bring down the government of the late president Ngo Dinh Diem.

The suicide today took place at Nha Trang, a coastal city 200 miles north of Saigon where an anti-government demonstration was under way.

A second schoolgirl in Nha Trang also doused herself with gasoline, but the man grabbed her and prevented her burning herself.

Witnesses reported from Nha Trang that about 4,000 persons had assembled before the waterfront home of the local provincial chief. The girl, a student named Hoang Thi Yen Phu, moved apart from the crowd and, unnoticed by the other demonstrators, poured gasoline over herself.

SETS SELF AFIRE

Then she set herself afire and was dead before anyone could extinguish the flames.

Buddhist monks picked up the body and carried it at the head of a huge procession to the local Buddhist pagoda.

In 1963, six Buddhist monks and one nun burned themselves to death in protest against the Diem government.

Buddhist demonstrations broke out today in suburban Saigon, but calm was reported in the northern city of Hue, where riding, arson and pillaging occurred Monday.

Government paratroopers arrested some 70 monks and nearly 100 of their followers in Hue Dinh after the Buddhists demonstrated.

STOP ARSONISTS

In another suburb, police and soldiers stopped some 200 students who had set fires to market stalls. About half the students were arrested.

About 10,000 persons were involved in the anti-Diemist demonstration at Hue Monday.

Chief of State Phan Khac Suu decreed an extension of martial law for two more months in Hue and for one more month in Saigon. Radio Saigon said anyone caught starting fires or damaging property would be executed on the spot.

In an effort to appease its opponents, Huong's government announced plans for legislative elections March 21, on a limited scale.

Meanwhile, in Seoul, the South Korean National Assembly today approved government plans to send approximately 2,000 soldiers to South Viet Nam.

The government said it would send engineering and transportation units plus a "self-defence" security unit. The assembly vote was 106 to 11 with eight abstaining.

U. C. W Meeting

JOHNSTOWN — Mrs. Glenn Sickle was hostess to the Johnstown United Church Women on Tuesday evening when there was a fine attendance.

Mrs. Ronald Hamilton was in charge of the worship service, assisted by Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Clarence MacDonald, Mrs. Winfield Harder and Mrs. Douglas Harry.

It was decided to make up a bale of clothing for May. The members are to suggest rollcalls for the rest of the year, these to be brought to the February meeting. Mrs. Edison Sine will be the speaker at the February meeting.

A thank you note was received from Mr. Clarence MacDonald, the Sunday School superintendent, thanking the UCW for their support at the time of the Sunday School concert.

A thank you note was received from Mrs. Alec Vandervoort for a gift she received at her recent illness.

EXECUTIVE REPORT

A report of the United Church Women's executive meeting was read. A letter was read by Mrs. A. Meyers from Mrs. Smith of Stirling concerning the box that was sent to the Indian people, and what these boxes were used for. There was a surplus of gifts sent last year, therefore many were sent to the Fred Victor Mission to be sold to help the Mission and other things, after the allocation of 400 pounds had been sent to the Indian people. This cost some $70 to send. The clothing has to go in to Deer Lake on a float plane, also be strongly wrapped and tied in parcels of 25 and 50 pounds as it is a rough trip. After the clothing arrives it is sold to the Indians at a small price but if unable to afford it they get articles for nothing. It seems this is the only way that they can divide it fairly. At the Fred Victor Mission the clothing is sold at a low price.

Lemon Bread Orange Cake

By MARY MOORE

Mrs. Tedley, wife of the Brigadier, had an informal tea for the wives and their mothers who were visiting them in Scout for Christmas. Marianne and I fell into this delightful category and were invited.

Among other things that we were served was a delicious lemon bread and I was consumed with curiosity. So we lagged behind and when our hostess was free I boldly asked for the recipe. She took me to the kitchen to talk to the cook. There we found Jane, Jennifer and Jody — the lovely Tedley teenagers — clustered around the kitchen table with Louise Falk, homemaid, and Willie Hasselman, cook, consuming the leftovers. It was a heart warming sight. Willie was willing to give me the recipe and reached for a small red cookbook.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Beef and Barley Soup; Cheese Souffle; Mushrooms in Cream Sauce; Hard Rolls: Creamed Pineapple; Shortbread; Tea.

It was the Home Economics cookbook used in the Public Schools and belonged to Jane. Sure enough on page 53 was the recipe for Lemon Bread. I had travelled nearly 4000 miles to discover a recipe that was available to me in Canada all the time! Willie is a German cook but belongs to the Canadian army. He said he had made two of the loaves for the tea and had followed the recipe to the letter. So since I had landed it and since Willie is an expert I did not have to test it again.

WILLIE'S LEMON BREAD:

½ cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1¼ cups sifted flour, ½ cup milk, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ cup chopped nuts, rind and juice of 1 lemon, ¼ cup sugar.

Cream shortening and add sugar and eggs. Add sifted flour, salt and baking powder alternately with milk. Add chopped nuts and lemon rind. Pour into greased loaf pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 40 minutes. As soon as taken out of oven pour over the bread ¼ cup white sugar which has been dissolved in the juice of the lemon. Baste bread with this mixture.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the 1st Battalion, The Royal Canadian Regiment, have compiled a cookbook and Joyce Austin, one of the members, graciously gave me a copy. Her girl friends in Soest recommended her Orange Cake to me and I have decided to repeat it here. It is a good companion to the above Lemon Bread for both have a sugary icing topping added after they are baked.

JOYCE AUSTIN'S ORANGE CAKE:

1 cup white sugar, 1 cup butter or margarine, 2 slightly beaten eggs, 1 cup walnuts, 1 cup dates, 1 orange put through chopper including peel, 1 cup sour milk, 1 heaping tablespoon soda, 2 cups all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Blend together sugar and butter. Add eggs and next 3 ingredients. Stir well. Put baking soda into the sour milk and add to the above. Mix in gradually the all-purpose flour, and add vanilla. Bake about 40 minutes at 350-375 deg. Fahr. When finished, sprinkle orange juice and sugar over cake. This cake should be baked 2 to 3 days before using. Bake in large loaf pan or layer tins. (For Topping: ¼ cup sugar, juice 1 orange.)

Figures Show Comparative Strength of Women's Groups

By ELENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—Twenty Canadian women's organizations now have memberships of more than 10,000, says the women's bureau of the federal labor department.

The bureau's annual listing of national women's groups shows that about 1,800,000 women and girls belong to the 20 biggest national organizations.

Groups listed include religious, political, professional, charitable and also young women's organizations such as the Girl Guides of Canada and the Canadian Girls in Training.

The largest women's group on the list, with 250,000 members, is the United Church Women, a national church group founded in 1962 through the amalgamation of 4 and a half earlier United Church women's organizations.

The UCW, which has its headquarters in Toronto, lowered its estimate of members in 1964 from 300,000 to 250,000. But it still has enough members to lead the second largest group—the Girl Guides of Canada.

The Girl Guides, founded in this country in 1909, increased its membership by more than 6,000 in the last year. It now claims 238,534 members.

Third is the Catholic Women's League with 135,000, up 3,000.

A comparatively young organization, the Canadian Nurses' Association, ranks fifth with 77,618. Founded in 1908, it has national offices in Ottawa.

Of the 20 biggest groups, 10 showed an increase in membership from 1963 to 1964. Four report losses — United Church Women, Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, Women's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church of Canada and Federated Women's Institutes of Canada.

The Women's Institutes have reported a small but steady drop in membership for several years and a spokesman in the national office here says the population shift from rural to urban areas is responsible.

The following figures show the estimated 1964 memberships of the 20 largest women's organizations, with 1963 figures in brackets:

United Church Women, 250,000 (300,000); Girl Guides of Canada, 238,534 (230,343); Catholic Women's League, 135,000 (132,000); Association of Hospital Auxiliaries, 140,000 (80,000); Canadian Nurses' Association, 77,618 (78,000); Women's Liberal Federation, 73,000 (75,000).

Young Women's Christian Association, 72,000 (69,000); Federated Women's Institutes, 72,000 (73,000); Progressive Conservative Women's Association, 71,000 (71,000); Women's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church, 63,561 (56,816); Canadian Girls in Training, 52,766 (52,766); Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church, 45,500 (46,141).

Cercles de Fermieres, 39,750 (39,125); Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, 30,000, (30,000); L'Union Catholique des Femmes Rurales, 24,000 (23,000); Salvation Army Home League, 18,976 (18,900); Hadassah-Wizo Organization, 18,043 (14,934); Baptist Women's Missionary Society of Quebec and Ontario, 11,778 (11,778); Canadian Federation of University Women, 10,740 (10,300); Federation des Femmes Canadiennes-Francaises, 10,000 (10,000).

Fitted Bodices, Full Skirts Feature Paris Fashion Show

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters)—Pierre Balmain today was the first Paris house to settle down to the serious business of fashion, contrasting the young boutique-type clothes featured by designers on the opening day.

Balmain's new silhouette was based on a full skirt and small taut waistlines marked with leather belts. Skirts actually employed as much fabric as the dresses and took models in 1947, but the effect was never as voluminous.

Soft pleats, gathers and overlaid fullness were skilfully worked to avoid the impression of bulk. Sunbursts and box-pleats commenced from the natural waistline on suit-skirts, paired with snugly fitted jackets.

One of Balmain's typical suits had a short fitted jacket with a small collar set close to the neckline, the skirts widened by encrusted pleats.

WAISTLINE IS SMOOTH

Details included a smooth waistline underlined by a narrow leather belt and the hemline collar and buttonholes braided in a contrasting color pattern.

An alternate silhouette widened toward the hemline in an obelisk shape. Every type of skirt was paired with fitted bodices with darts shaping the bosom. Shoulders are sloped and narrow with high unclutterred necklines.

Balmain employed an inch-wide turtle-neck collar or a band of fabric faced round the neck on dresses and printed suit blouses.

Balmain's favored type of coat has always been the redingote. This season he showed it to the exclusion of all loose unslaped coat silhouettes.

Redingotes followed dress silhouettes with flared skirts bringing out the snugly belted waistline. Fullness tended to widen at the sides while the front and back remained flat.

Successful Living

Attempted Seduction at Age 12 Was a Bad Start

DEAR DORIS — When I was 12 my brother-in-law came very near cheating on my sister. I know this because I was his intended victim. I believe this may be the cause of my present problem.

Until shortly before we were married my husband had never lied to me, even if it hurt me or caused an argument. Then, afraid that I would change my mind at the last minute, he lied to me several times. For instance he drove a girl home one day, then told me he had to work late. Things of this nature and all pertaining to women he knew before he met me. I know that there was nothing wrong in the things he really did.

DORIS CLARK

But since then I have been unable to trust my husband at all. Instead of time helping, it seems to be getting worse.

I am beginning to think I am abnormal and would have already seen a psychiatrist if I had the money. My husband and I have talked it over many times to no avail.

I tried to receive help from my minister but he only told me I had to find faith in something but he did not tell me how. My faith in anything has always been betrayed. — BETRAYED.

DEAR BETRAYED — Attempted seduction at age 12 was a bad start. You may have put up a barrier against all sex misadventure.

Probably your husband feared your high standard and hence took to covering up. The sooner you learn that no one is perfect, the better. Since distrust encourages deceit, and people react to trust by being trustworthy, you hold your solution in your own shaky hands.

Talking it out with a psychiatrist might make this clear. Find the money.

DEAR DORIS — Our Students' Council has agreed to acknowledge students who are seriously ill, by sending them a get well card and a small gift. So far we have thought of sending chocolates, a basket of fruit, flowers or books? Do you have any other suggestions?

Also we decided to send a card of sympathy and flowers to a student's home if a tragic loss has taken place. This idea depends a lot on the situation but again we would be glad to have your opinion. — GRATEFUL.

DEAR GRATEFUL — Fruit, flowers, lighthearted books are fine. Chocolates O.K. for a broken leg but not for diabetes or any digestive troubles. I might add cologne or bath powder to the list as being soothing and helpful for back rubs and bed baths.

The sympathy card in bereavement is greatly treasured. Also flowers. As an alternative, where the connection is a little more remote, a flowering plant, with a note, sent to the home the day after the funeral, shows thoughtfulness.

(Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster universities, and has had broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problems, write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.)

SACRED HEART C.W.L.

MARMORA — The Catholic Women's League or Sacred Heart Church held its regular meeting in the Parish Hall on Monday evening and was presided over by Mrs. Thomas Hanley.

It was decided that a series of card parties will be held in the Parish Hall starting Sunday, January 24th. A campaign for subscriptions to the Canadian League Magazine was discussed and approval given for the purchase of ten new subscriptions to be placed in the church for use by members.

A supply of knitting wool is to be purchased by the convener, Mrs. Arthur Sheridan.

Mrs. H. Brady gave a reading and spiritual director Rev. W. F. Healey P.P., gave an instructive talk on changes in the Mass."

A record which related to the guiding of youth was enjoyed.

MARMORA — The January meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held on the regular night at the home of Miss Grace Cook, historian of historical research with this theme carried out throughout the evening.

Mrs. Gerald Empey, president was in charge in the absence of the secretary - treasurer, Mrs. E. Neal Carter, in her place; also Mrs. L. Green took the place of the pianist.

The meeting opened with the singing of "O Canada".

The motto was, "Preserve the Nation's Treasures for Future Generations".

Reports from standing committees were submitted. Among correspondence received was a letter of thanks from Marmora Girls' Public Hockey for $50.

The directors were asked to purchase blankets for burned out residents.

Cook books from the Department of Agriculture were passed around and Mrs. Gordon reported on a meeting being held on "Fote on finishes" of which she is the leader.

Mrs Warren spoke on Marmora Township in a paper on historical research. The period was from 1850 to 1889. The members of the first council were named and many interesting items were given. Miss Warren also gave highlights of early Hastings and named the first County Councillors. The currency was changed from pounds shilling and pence to the dollar system in 1862. At the time of the gold rush to Eldorado Madoc Township) 25 mounted police were stationed at Madoc as every grocery store sold liquor. The trip to Belleville and return took three days from Marmora. Miss Warren was thanked by Mrs. Empey for her interesting report.

Mrs. Percy Carman gave two readings.

The hostesses with Mrs. Percy Carman, convenery, served lunch in keeping with "old tyme" meals, hot biscuit and Johnny cake and tea and coffee and vegetable soup, which were thoroughly enjoyed by all.

University Women's Club Hears Talk on Investments

The guest speakers at the January meeting of the University Women's Club of Belleville and District at Education Hall, were Mr. P. H. Wills and Mr. E. Clarke of the investment firm of Walwyn, Stogell and Company Limited.

With his "Fundamentals" as the topic, Mr. Wills initiated the talk by outlining the many influences which affect the stock market today. It was an interesting and concise lecture on basic economic factors, both from within and without our country.

Mr. Clark followed with a discourse on investment objectives and what is involved in the ownership of stocks. He enumerated and elaborated on the investment objectives of security, income, growth and liquidity. He emphasized the benefit of studying the subject through reading newspaper reports and investigating, via library sources, our tariff structure, northland and primary industry development. Finally he urged the group to invest in the golden future of Canada. Mr. Wills completed the talk with the definition of many idiomatic stock market terms.

The members appreciated a question and answer period following the speeches. The speakers were introduced by Mrs. D. G. Burr, and thanked by Mrs. R. K. Jeffrey.

ONE DAY SEMINAR

During the preceding business meeting the Provincial Director for Ontario East, Mrs. G. E. Boyce, one of the local members, and a member of the Ontario Education Committee, informed the club of a one-day seminar scheduled to take place at York University on May 29, 1965. The purpose of the seminar is to discuss a survey made on the availability of women graduates for university lecturing, and other further education for adult graduates.

SPRING FAIR

Mrs. R. S. Burtt will convene the annual Spring Fair to take place on Saturday, May first, at St. Michael's Academy auditorium. Mrs. R. K. Jeffrey and Mrs. B. R. Collins will be this year's ticket conveners.

The 1965 scholarship committee, chaired by Mrs. R. G. Walsh, includes Mrs. R. M. McNicol and Mrs. J. H. Forrester. The nominating committee, with past president Mrs. J. E. Pugh as chairman, will be comprised of Mrs. F. H. Bellstedt and Mrs. B. W. Hurley.

CRANE PROTECTION

MONTREAL (CP) — People are wary of advertising for roommates because they are afraid of receiving crank calls, so "we get them instead," says Caroline Wright, 21. She has opened Montreal's first roommate matching service in partnership with a friend. "We're keeping a diary of the funny calls we receive and maybe we'll write a book in a few years."

Rebekahs Will Sponsor Student at UN

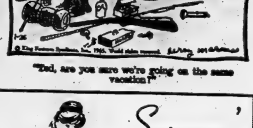
TWEED — Tweed Rebekah lodge held its regular meeting in the IOOF hall with the Noble Grand, Sister Hilda Sexsmith, and the vice-Grand Sister Lois Elliott, both presiding, with the other offices filled by the appointed and elected officers.

Sister Miss Emma Jordan of Ottawa and Sister Gertrude Wilson of Belleville, were welcomed by the Noble Grand.

The lodge discussed the sending of a teen-age high school student to the United Nations next summer. "The United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth" is entirely sponsored by the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and its sister organization, the Rebekahs. This project is already well advanced and the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs from Campbellford, Madoc, Stirling, Springbrook and Tweed will again be participating. The person selected must be a qualified student who has completed the junior year by 1965 and must be in good health.

Other business included the catering by the lodge for the Kiwanis Club banquet which was held January 21st with Sister Ethel Dafoe as the convener.

After the closing of lodge euchre was played with seven tables playing and prizes awarded to Sister Annie Thompson and Sister Clara Courtney.



Lunch was prepared and served by the committee in charge of that section.

Thanks were extended by Sister Hilda Sexsmith.

PUNCH PARTY

Dear Susanna: I plan to serve cranberry punch around St. Valentine's day, and as an added touch it is fun to frost the glasses.

An easy way is to lightly beat an egg white — try not to get it too frothy. Dip the rims of the glasses first into this and next into a thin sprinkling of finely granulated sugar on a saucer or wax paper. Dang inverted to dry. — Mrs. B. Jacobs

Here's another recipe. Add plenty of delectable lunch to attractive frosty white-rimmed glasses and serve. Result: red-rimmed eyes! — SUSANNA

ALWAYS AVAILABLE

Dear Susanna: I've been a school teacher for many years, and the suggestion for using a glass flower frog as a pen and pencil holder is outstanding.

I have discovered another excellent use for this handy item but would first like to emphasize, that if there are others like myself, who need a large variety of pens and pencils in different grades at their fingertips, there isn't anything that can touch these heavy glass holders. Even one's favorite colored marking pencil that has been reduced to nothing more than a stub, is still readily visible and immediately attainable. A circle of felt glued in the bottom prevents any slipping or scratching of the table or desk top.

As a result, I introduced a flower frog "one with slightly larger holes) to the bathroom cupboard at home as a receptacle for our family's toothbrushes. It keeps them upright so that they can air and dry, the individual openings keep it is separated from one another in a most sanitary manner, and since they are out of sight on the cupboard shelf the bathroom is not cluttered with tooth brushes. — L. Ann Landers

Husband Convinced That One Twin Is Not His

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am ashamed to have to ask you such a ridiculous question but I am at the end of my rope with this nut who is my husband.

Four months ago I gave birth to twin boys. Jake (my husband) was so proud he gave cigars to strangers on the street. Two weeks ago Jake got it into his head that the dark twin is his but the light twin belongs to someone else.

The twins look nothing alike but this does not mean they had different fathers, does it? My family is light haired and blue-eyed, and our six-year-old son is a picture of my father. One of the twins resembles that boy.

ANN LANDERS

I have searched through two medical books but I don't understand the language. I am trying to prove to my husband that it is impossible for twins to have different fathers.

Can you help me? — ABOUT TO FLIP.

DEAR LID — It is possible for twins to be fathered by separate males, but such cases are so rare they are considered medical phenomena.

The fact that the twins do not look alike means only that they are fraternal, and not identical, twins. Your doctor can (and should) explain the differences to your husband. I hope my reply will shut his mouth until you can get him to the doctor.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Millions of people in this country share the misery of the hard of hearing woman who wrote to you. These folks suffer no physical pain and they don't look different from other people, but they often are gripped by feelings of inadequacy which can be self-defeating.

A friend or relative can help by encouragement and instilling confidence. When there is no such help forthcoming, the hard of hearing can embark on a program of self-help.

Hearing aids have been improved and more should be written about them. A hearing aid can be a great boost to self-confidence which has been shattered and needs to be rebuilt.

The person who is hard of hearing can develop alertness and train himself to speak carefully so that his pronunciation does not deteriorate. He should be aware that family, friends and associates may not understand his problem and be willing to forgive their lack of compassion. — LONGTIME WORKER IN THE FIELD.

DEAR WORKER — I, too, am a firm believer in self-help. Thank you for a letter which reflects a generous spirit and offers good advice.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We have very little money but we are richer than anyone we know. Our six wonderful children are our treasure. We have plenty of nourishing food, a small farm, and each child has his own warm bed.

Each night as we tuck our darlings in and kiss them good night we thank God they are safe and well. But we are saddened by the thought that all over the world little people are cold, hungry and unwanted.

We would like to help one such child, Ann, and this is where you come in. It would be no hardship to add one more to our family. Will you please send us the name of an agency or two. We want to adopt a child or take in a child as foster parents. — ROOM FOR ONE MORE.

DEAR ONES — You have found the key to contentment — giving and sharing — a priceless legacy which you are sure to hand down to your children.

Please contact the Family Services Association. They will help you.

Too many starry-eyed lovers do not know the difference. Do you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?" enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Liberal MP Guy Rouleau who at that time was parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson.

The other arm extended from Mrs. Rivard and murder suspect Robert Gignac through Guy Masson, professed "errand boy," to Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay.

The papers never closed, however, because Rivard, 49, is still in prison and his application for release through habeas corpus proceedings is scheduled for decision by Judge Francois Caron Thursday.

Rivard, who has been held for U.S. authorities since June 19 on charges of conspiracy in a huge dope-smuggling ring, had not completed his acrimonious testimony when the inquiry recessed Friday. Today's sitting is the inquiry's 16th since Dec. 15 when it opened.

Rivard, who admits in a criminal record revised Gignac and Masson with a four-letter word and said he had reproached his wife for giving them $1,000 to make trips to Ottawa.

Masson said in his testimony that he had to pay off friends in Ottawa, including Denis, and that $40,000 was available for the Liberal party's treasury if Rivard's extradition to the U.S. were blocked.

REGRETS $1,000

Gignac, charged with capital murder in the gangland slaying of a police informer here on Sept. 17, and Eddy (The Importer) Lechasseur, a friend of Rivard who has a criminal record and faces charges in a fraud case., both testified that Masson was a $1,000 boy as a proach an "extradition specialist" in the capital.

Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne, acting for the U.S. government in the Rivard extradition hearing, earlier testified that Denis offered him $20,000 July 14 to drop opposition to bail for Rivard.

Mrs. Rivard, 32, and Lechasseur also said Rivard sent them to see Raymond Rouleau to see what he could do for the accused conspiracy suspect through Guy Rouleau, MP for Montreal Dollard.

Mr. Rouleau resigned Nov. 24 as parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pearson when the Rivard affair broke in the Commons. He said he had made "normal representations" in the Rivard case.

Guy Lord, former executive assistant to Justice Minister Favreau, and Mr. Lamontagne have testified that Guy Rouleau telephoned them about the Rivard case.

Rivard said Friday he went to Ottawa to see Guy Rouleau a few days before his June 19 arrest to enlist the MP's aid in having Bob Trembiay, serving 20 years for attempted murder in a Vancouver narcotics case, transferred from a British Columbia prison to St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary here.

Warden John Maloney of the B.C. penitentiary said Trembiay was transferred to the Montreal prison last summer.

operating employees, said the new association "draws the operating and non - operating unions closer together so that they will speak with one voice in matters of interest and concern to their members."

"It added: "Early opportunity will be taken to examine the situation regarding wage negotiations, with a view to effecting all possible measures of co-ordination."

Mr. Gibbons said Monday that "we realize that . . . the two conditions (co-ordination and common negotiation) could become confused."

"But to the operating railroad workers, and the non-operating railroad workers, whose interests are often different, and whose negotiating problems are different, this is a serious error.

RESERVES REPORTED

OTTAWA (CP)—The unemployment insurance fund had $81,356,310 in reserves at Dec. 31, usually the peak period before the fund starts nosing downward under the pressure of winter unemployment, it was reported Monday. This was $22,981,977 ahead of the same date a year earlier but the gain wasn't enough to remove the threat of a spring deficit.

Sombre

a.m. (6 a.m. EST) Wednesday, the public will be able to file by the catafalque to pay homage. Police estimate a queue two miles long will wait patiently for a glimpse of the hier. The centuries-old hall will be kept open 23 hours each day. It will close only for members of the royal family and official guests to pay their private respects.

Then on Saturday Big Ben, towering above Westminster, will be silenced for more than 14 hours as the Queen joins world leaders—monarchs, presidents, nobles and prime ministers—at the final funeral service for the man who became the greatest parliamentarian and warrior of modern times.

Never before for a commoner has Big Ben been silenced. The 13-ton bell in the block has only been hushed three times in this century—in 1910 for the funeral of King Edward VII, for George V in 1936 and for George VI in 1952.

Not far from Westminster—Hall of Kings" — four 13 pounder guns will fire a salute of one minute—for each year of Sir Winston's life, while the 19th-century gun carriage, presently used only for the funerals of four monarchs, is hauled through the streets of London by an ancient gun tractor.

Churchill knew and served them all—Queen Victoria, Edward VII, George V and George VI.

WILL BE GREATEST

"It will be Britain's greatest ever funeral," said Commoner. "As the Daily Express after Sir Winston Marshal, the 18th Duke of Norfolk and Britain's leading ceremony arranger, told reporters Monday of the funeral details.

The duke said the arrangements for Churchill's funeral had been made some time before he died.

"We knew that if nothing had been settled then it would not have been time," he said.

Behind that remark lay memories of the state funeral of the Duke of Wellington, victor of the Napoleonic Wars, in 1852. The Iron Duke, as Britain called him, lay in his coffin for more than two months before burial while the government and the military services bickered over the form the funeral should take.

WILL BEAR FAMILY

Six stately horsedrawn coaches, bearing the mourning family, will follow the flag-draped gun carriage as Churchill is taken from Westminster Hall to St. Paul's Saturday.

Some 3,500 troops will line the streets from Westminster, down the bustling Strand, to Fleet Street, Ludgate Hill and St. Paul's at the edge of London's financial district.

Another 2,500 troops, including 10 bands with mutfled drums, will march in a procession that will include plumed cavalry, civil defence workers, firemen, policemen and a high-rank remnant of the Battle of Britain air fighters led by Air Commodore Alan Deere, who for a time in 1942 headed the Canadian 426 Squadron.

Some 8,000 police, including about 2,500 detectives, will be required to help control the street spectators estimated to total more than 1,000,000.

It will be a day for British and the world to remember. But amid the towering splendor, the funeral will have a common touch. There will be no formal day of mourning. This, said the Earl Marshal, will be left to each Britton to decide in his own way.

LASTS AN HOUR

The funeral procession will take one hour—from 9:45 to 10:45 a.m. — and the funeral service in St. Paul's will be 30 minutes. Later, when the coffin is borne to Waterloo Station aboard a river barge on the Thames, a 17-gun London Tower salute will mark the departure as 12 RAF Lightnings, flying in box formations, dip their wings in tribute.

The body will be taken by train to Long Handborough, some 70 miles northwest of London, for burial near Blenheim Castle.

Commentators have noted that Churchill's wish to be buried among his forebears will be respected.

William Ewart Gladstone, the last prime minister to be given a state funeral, wanted to lie in Wales. He was buried in Westminster Abbey.

But Churchill will be buried in Bladon churchyard, in Oxfordshire, within sight of Blenheim Castle, the great house which England gave his ancestor for the first Duke of Marlborough in the 18th century as a reward for his military victories.

BORN AT CASTLE

Churchill was born at Blenheim and there he proposed marriage to Clementine Hozier, his devoted wife for 56 years.

He will lie near the grave of his father, Lord Randolph Churchill, and his mother, who was born Jennie Jerome of New York.

The Earl Marshal said "the procession of family mourners from Long Handborough to Bladon and the subsequent burial will be the same as that at any country village burial service—except the thing that takes place every day."

The train to Long Handborough will be drawn by locomotive No. 34051—a Battle of Britain class locomotive named Winston Churchill.

It once pulled express trains on the Southern Railway. Diesels and electrics have taken steam from the main lines — and the locomotive Winston Churchill was replaced by diesels tonight in the West Country. Today, its green paint and brass is being restored to its old glory for its namesake's last journey.

CROSSES ATLANTIC

Television will carry the somber spectacle of the funeral across both the Atlantic and Iron Curtain.

The BBC said live transmissions will reach North America via satellite, and Western Europe and the Soviet bloc through the Eurovision and Intervision networks.

As the day of final homage drew near, the Churchill legend seemed to grow. Those who knew him best and worked with him during the 40 years he counted stories of his wit, his long hours of work, his sense of history, his bravery and his warmhearted generosity.

As the Parliament that he loved met Monday to pay him tribute, the seat he occupied in the Commons was left empty. In the House of Lords, Lord Avon, Churchill's foreign secretary, suggested Britain establish a Churchill Day—to evoke the summer battle of 1940 and enshrine the finest hour of a man and a nation.

SAYS SALES UP

TORONTO (CP)—Retail sales will probably reach $21,100,000,000 in Canada this year with the final tally for 1964 close to $20,000,000,000, says the Mac-lean-Hunter research bureau. In 1964 falls it ranks $20,000,000,000 it will be because of work stoppages in the auto industry and a smaller-than-usual increase in November sales in department stores.

POTASH SPLURGE

REGINA (CP)—Premier Ross Thatcher Monday announced one of the largest potash developments in Saskatchewan's history. Mr. Thatcher said the mine, located about 20 miles southwest of Saskatoon, will involve an investment of $65,000,000. The mine will employ about 1,000 men during construction. It will employ about 500 men during operation of the mine and the refinery. The premier said the mine will be drilled by Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada Limited, will be one of the world's largest potash mines.

LESS STEEL

Steel ingot production in the week ended Jan. 23 totalled 184,-000 tons, down 4.4 per cent from the preceding week's total of 189,857 tons, the bureau of statistics reported Monday.

MAKES MOST

Bruck Mills Ltd. Monday reported a profit after taxes of $1,416,353, a 116,658 increase over the 1963 figure of $1,299,695. The annual report said the textile manufacturer had totalled $25,-017,877, an increase of 10 per cent over the previous year and the highest in the firm's 43-year history.

Labor Sparks Sizzling Issue Over U. S. Law

WASHINGTON (AP)—An explosive labor battle with a short fuse is sizzling in the wings of the new U.S. Congress.

It could be the hottest labor battle since the 1959 Congress cracked down on union racketeering.

The issue is simple. Organized labor wants to repeal one short paragraph in federal labor law that directly affects every union in the U.S. and about one-third of the country's approximately 70,000,000 workers.

The paragraph—Section 14B of the 1947 Taft-Hartley Act—permits states to outlaw union shop labor contracts under which every worker must join the union. Twenty states have outlawed them. They're legal in the 30 other states.

Jubilant labor leaders have been waiting 18 years for the right time to fight the fuse in Congress to wipe out the 20 state right-to-work laws. They're in no mood to wait. They think the hefty new Democratic majority makes repeal of the laws a cinch.

George Meany, president of the 13,000,000-member AFL-CIO, has tagged it labor's No. 1 goal in Congress in 1965. Even unions that don't get along with the big federation agree.

PREDICT HOT FIGHT

Labor spokesmen predict a fast, short, hot fight in which "we expect to be victorious."

Opponents are led by the National Right to Work Committee. Even before union leaders made their move, the committee said:

"The hierarchy of organized labor is trying to take a giant step toward their admitted goal of forcing every employed person in the nation to pay a union boss for the privilege of working."

The committee is also talking about court action if labor wins.

In pressing for repeal, labor will be trying to collect on a four-year-old Democratic campaign promise. It was written into the Democratic platform in 1960 as well as 1964, but until now labor didn't have the political muscle in the House to force the issue.

Herd of Woodland Caribou May Be Put in Cape Breton

By ED SMITH

HALIFAX (CP)—The woodland caribou, largest of the reindeer species, may soon again roam northern Cape Breton where his forbears once were slaughtered by the thousands to feed settlers, armies, navies and to stock many a larder in England and France.

Federal and provincial biologists are keenly interested in a plan to reintroduce the caribou to Cape Breton Highlands National Park.

If all goes well, an initial herd of 20 caribou will have a new home in the northern highlands within two years.

John Kelsall, 40, chief supervising wildlife biologist with the Canadian Wildlife Service at Sackville, N.B., says 300 square miles of the park appear to offer excellent range for the animals "if anything, it has improved over the time when the native caribou became extinct."

Mr. Kelsall says it now is mostly a matter of finding the right type of animal.

"Whether they'll be introduced from Newfoundland or Europe or from some other area has to be decided. We also have to look at the behavior factor and find a herd living under similar conditions and in an area roughly comparable to the proposed new range."

INCLINED TO WANDER

After the initial herd is planted it may be necessary to make additions from year to year since the caribou is a migratory animal and some may wander out of the park.

Dr. Donald G. Dodds of Kentville, N.S., chief conservation officer for Nova Scotia, says that if the Cape Breton project is successful there is no reason why the caribou couldn't then be introduced to other areas of the province. The time might even come when it could be declared a "limited game and mal."

Dr. Dodds says there are a number of areas that could support a caribou herd. And in the last 25 years one attempt was made—a small herd brought from Newfoundland to Guysborough County. It apparently died off, probably because of poor handling in transport and during the release of the animals.

The last known native caribou fell before a hunter's bullet in 1851.

In 1750, so prolific was the Cape Breton herd that the going rate was 60 shillings for moose and caribou hides. Settlers sent from Sydney to stop the slaughter for hides found 2,000 carcasses between Lagunish and Cape North, a distance of 25 miles.

LANDED AT MEAT COVE

Meat Cove, on the northern tip of Cape Breton, is said to have got its name because it was there that ships put in during the 18th century to fill their holds with meat, principally caribou and moose.

The overkill of the 18th and 19th centuries undoubtedly had much to do with obliterating Nova Scotia's original caribou.

But there is also an opinion that erection of a highway and railway networks restricted the movement of the animals. Once the herds split, productivity dropped.

Mr. Kelsall, a native of Annapolis Royal, N.S., and a graduate in biology from Acadia University and the University of Toronto, says those who conducted the feasibility forage has been responsible for the decrease in Nova Scotia's deer herd need have no fear of the caribou.

The caribou, he says, don't compete for the same type of food that supports the whitetail and the moose. The woodland caribou's diet is considerably woodier. The smaller barren-ground caribou is a taste for grassy forage. Confined with smaller antlers, is also adapted to deeper snow conditions than its northern cousin.

When money means more than a weekly allowance

As soon as a boy has a newspaper route money takes on a new meaning—it's no longer simply a handout from dad. From his route experience he learns the value of thrift; the logic of saving. And when Christmas or birthday time comes around he can proudly use his own cash to purchase gifts.

In addition to learning the basics of money management the boy with a newspaper route gains other rewards that will stay with him for the remainder of his life. He develops skills on his route that many boys may never acquire. He's able to put classroom theory into actual practice. And by working with men who are trained to develop his best potentials he's often a couple of jumps ahead of his classmates.

German Test Pilot Retires to Canada

By BRIDGET TRUFEL
Orillia Packet and Times

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Even after 30 years, retirement doesn't sit easily with Emil Meinecke of St. Catharines, Ont., who carried out test flights in 1,850 planes during his working lifetime. He says he would like to fly again but he's 73 and has an arm ailment.

His last flight as a test pilot was in 1940 when, at 53, he was forced to retire.

Mr. Meinecke now spends considerable time in the air with his pilot son, Manz, on the latter's flying trips with the Orillia Air Service, whenever he visits this town.

He is something of a legend in Orillia flying enthusiasts, who admire him as the most experienced flyer they ever met.

Mr. Meinecke, who comes from Mannheim, Germany, started his career in 1910 in his homeland at Hannover, where he helped build biplanes in a small aircraft factory. He made his first flight in 1913 and received his pilot's licence two years later.

During the 31rst World War, as a German citizen, he was loaned to Turkey by the German government as a flying instructor and reconnaissance and fighter pilot.

JOINED FOKKER

Refusing to say whether he was awarded any medals during the war, the veteran flyer said: "Let's skip it. We lost the war. Let's not brag now."

When the war ended, so did flying in Germany for a while. So Mr. Meinecke went to The Netherlands where he spent some time as a stunt flyer for various circuses. In 1920 he joined the Fokker aircraft factory in Amsterdam, the world's first builder of commercial planes.

During his years with Fokker, the company sent him to Russia to test some 600 planes. He spent 2½ years in that country, living in Moscow, Leningrad and other cities.

"I was treated royally and had a wonderful time," said Mr. Meinecke, remarking that he has forgotten all the Russian he picked up during that time.

From Russia he was sent to Spain to Fokker aircraft in Japan, Bolivia and Rumania before being returned to The Netherlands.

In 1944, although he had become a naturalized Dutch citizen, he was ordered by the German air ministry to go to Prague, Czechoslovakia, where he was a test pilot until the war ended.

PLANS MEMOIRS

He spent the first five years after the war in Bavaria. Then in 1950, he followed his married daughter and her husband to settle in St. Catharines. His wife, who died in 1960, and his son Hans came with him. Hans later married and lives in Orillia.

"Canada is a wonderful country," Mr. Meinecke said. "I like it from the first. Wonderful people—work like mad. That's the way I like it."

Mr. Meinecke, a member of an exclusive German club for men who flew before the First World War called the Old Eagles, said he now intends to follow the advice of friends and admirers and write his memoirs—a book on flying from the beginning the way few living people have witnessed it.

He is much impressed with the achievements in flying since its early days.

Commenting on a flight he made to Europe in 1960 to visit old friends, he said: "I had hardly made myself comfortable after take-off from Montreal when we were told to look out of the window to see the shores of England.

"Five hours and 15 minutes to Amsterdam—I just couldn't believe it."

Expo '67 Site May House University

MONTREAL (CP)—The seed of an idea for a future university on the site of Expo 67, planted by a Montreal city councillor, is gradually beginning to sprout across Canada.

Whether it ever comes to fruition may depend on the reaction to tentative efforts at interesting various groups in raising the money.

The proposal originates with John N. Parker, who is also principal of the Lorne and Riverside schools in Point St. Charles.

Last March Mr. Parker suggested at a Montreal city council meeting there should be a bilingual university on the Expo 67 site when the world's fair is over.

The idea was that it would specialize in social sciences to prepare students for work in government and civil service. Half the courses would be in French, the other half in English.

Councillors were sympathetic but nothing was done. Mr. Parker later spoke to Paul Gerin-Lajoie, Quebec's education minister, and Robert Shaw, deputy commissioner for the Expo Corporation.

He was also in Ottawa last year at the time of a presentation of a brief by the Home and School and Parent-Teachers Associations of Canada and took advantage of the occasion to speak to Prime Minister Pearson.

All showed interest but nothing concrete was suggested.

Mr. Parker then talked it over with Prof. C. Max Bedford of the college of education at the University of Saskatchewan. Prof. Bedford recalled an address by Dwight Eisenhower at an educational conference in Stockholm four years ago. The former president had suggested a world university devoted to the arts of peace, with bright students from all countries taking courses that would qualify them for positions in what might ultimately become a world government.

"First thing we knew we'd combined the two notions," Mr. Parker says.

At a conference of the Home and School and PTA in Charlottetown Mr. Parker found some support for the revised idea. Delegates named a world university committee with him as chairman.

Last fall Mr. Parker had to undergo an operation and afterwards decided he'd have to resign from the committee because of the pressure of other duties. He wrote to Prof. Bedford who now is chairman.

In Toronto Jan. 9 the Home and School and PTA held their mid-term meeting and the idea came up again. It was decided to send ballot forms to the 3,500 Home and School associations Jan. 18 asking them to vote on whether they wanted to contribute $100,000 to the building of the university.

The ballot, result of which is expected to be known by the end of March, lists six other projects. Voters are asked to choose three in order of preference.

Plan Inquests In 'Pen' Deaths

KINGSTON (CP) — Inquests will be held early in February into the deaths of two prisoners of Kingston Penitentiary, Coroner W. S. Patterson said Monday.

Peter Votel, 34, of no fixed address, serving seven years for robbery, died on the prison day of pneumonia in the psychiatric ward of the prison hospital. He was found choked to death on regurgitated food after being given a sedative.

Percy Nobes, 55, of the Georgian Bay district, died in the prison hospital Saturday an hour after being admitted for emergency surgery. He had been transferred from Collins Bay penitentiary here when complications developed from an intestinal blockage.

Workers Return To Ford Plants As Strike Ends

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

While members of the United Auto Workers (CLC) began returning to work at Ford of Canada's Limited plants Monday, negotiations continued between the union and two other companies.

After a majority of union members voted in favor of a new three-year contract Sunday night, Ford started calling in employees who have been on strike since Jan. 13.

Meanwhile, Chrysler Canada Limited and the union accelerated contract talks to avoid a strike set for 12 a.m. Thursday.

And Massey-Ferguson Limited workers, also members of the UAW, voted Monday to strike Feb. 4 unless agreement has been reached on a contract.

The Ford strike ended Monday morning after a ratification vote at four Ontario centres showed that most workers approved of the settlement reached Friday, which gave them a wage-and-fringe-benefit package valued at 64.75 cents an hour.

SET PICKETS

However, trouble arose when some members at the Oakville plant set up picket lines Monday morning. Canadian UAW director George Burt ordered them to remove the lines, and the first shift resumed work at 3:30 p.m.

The Oakville members—representating half the 10,300-man Ford bargaining unit—were the only ones to vote against the contract negotiated since mid-December by union and company officials. They had walked out two days before the official strike deadline.

Workers at the Windsor auto plant, a glass fabricating plant near Niagara Falls and a parts depot near Brampton supported the settlement.

Mr. Burt said the members who picketed Monday will be disciplined. Union bylaws stipulated that when three of four locals approve an agreement all members must return to work even if those at a fourth plant reject the terms.

Only maintenance men were at work in Windsor Monday, but production workers will be called back on a day-by-day basis until full production is resumed.

RESTARTED TALKS

In the Chrysler negotiations, company and union officials began talking again Monday after an unauthorized walkout by about 6,000 employees in Windsor during the weekend.

The men jumped the gun on the strike deadline of 2 p.m. Monday. A new deadline was set for Thursday after international UAW officers notified the local that no deadline would be recognized until the men went back to their jobs.

About 6,600 members in locals at three Massey - Ferguson plants in Toronto, Brantford and Woodstock are asking for wage increases and benefits of 50 cents an hour during the next three years.

A union spokesman said in Toronto that 96 per cent of the workers who voted were in favor of strike action. The farm implement firm and the union began bargaining last September. The old contract expired Dec. 15.

10 Years for Rotten Drivers!

HAVANA (Reuters) — Cuban authorities, alarmed at the rising rate of traffic accidents, are imposing penalties of up to 10 years' imprisonment on drivers responsible for road deaths and injuries.

A total of 328 persons died and 2,386 were injured in the first half of 1964, according to official statistics.

Traffic police throughout the country have been mobilized to halt the upward trend.

Income Tax Explained

Citizens assisted by the Voluntary Income Tax Aid Service this week will be in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax office.

FILE ONLY ONE RETURN

Many taxpayers who know they have overpaid their taxes and have a refund coming are in such a hurry to get their return in, often find out after the return has been mailed, that they have omitted or forgotten to include some pertinent details.

The first thought that enters their minds is to file another return, including on it what they omitted in the first one. This only complicates matters, as there is no way for these two returns to be matched until both have been processed and they have been returned to the local district Income Tax office for storage. In such cases the taxpayer will receive two assessment notices and two refunds.

When this is discovered in the local office the returns will be adjusted by combining the information on the original return, and then the taxpayer will be compelled to repay at once the amount over refunded. Do not mail your return until you have checked and rechecked every item and are sure that all T4 slips, receipts and other necessary documents are attached. If you do this it will save much time and inconvenience at a later date.

If you do find out later that there is an error on your return, do not file a second one. The proper procedure is to wait until you have received your assessment notice from Ottawa, then write to your district office, advising them of the error and request that your return be adjusted. Never write to Ottawa as they will only forward your letter to the district office for reply.

For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, five cent stamped envelope plus 25 cents for each question.

QUESTION 1: Why did Ottawa send my letter about my assessment to our local office?

ANSWER: Ottawa only processes the returns according to the information shown on them. When processed the returns are sent back to the local office, therefore the local office is the only one that can reply.

QUESTION 2: If my refund is late in coming would it help to expedite its receipt by writing to Ottawa?

ANSWER: No. Ottawa processes returns from all of Canada and they are not handled alphabetically. Write your local office if the delay is over two months.

School Boards Discriminatory Says Labor Body

TORONTO (CP) — Public school boards are getting away with discriminatory hiring practices because of a loophole in the Ontario human rights code, the labor committee for human rights said Monday.

At a meeting with Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree, union department includes the Ontario Human Rights Commission, the labor committee asked that public school boards be made subject to Ontario's anti-discrimination laws.

It also recommended that the code apply to all provincial government and its agencies, and that the exemption in the code's fair housing provisions for apartment houses with six or fewer units be removed.

Treats Heart Cases Via a "Hot Line"

VICTORIA (CP)—A Victoria heart specialist is experimenting with a hot line to the hearts of out-of-town patients.

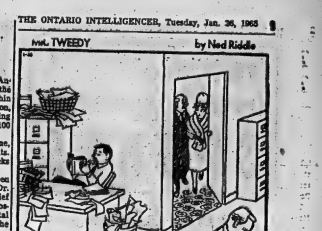
A telephone hookup enables him to listen to the heartbeat of patients in three Vancouver Island hospitals — Ladysmith, Chemainus and Cowichan, none of which has a heart specialist.

His object is to provide rapid diagnosis which for some heart cases could mean the difference between life and death.

The doctor, who asked that his name not be used, said 140 cases have been diagnosed by phone since the office was installed in August, 1964.

Heartbeats are recorded in one of the hospitals on a standard electrocardiograph machine. Before the hot line was set up these taped electronic impulses were mailed to Victoria.

Now the electrocardiograph is hooked up to a transmitter and the beats come out as beeps on the receiver in Victoria. Another machine translates the beeps into a graph. Thus, within a few minutes of examination, a patient's heartbeat is being diagnosed by a specialist 100 miles away.



If the diagnosis is routine, the specialist mails the results. If it's an emergency he picks up the phone.

A duplicate machine has been installed in the office of Dr. Donald Whitley, medical chief of staff at Royal Jubilee Hospital, and he says the hospital is interested in taking over the operation.

Meanwhile other island hospitals are considering installation of their own hot line to Victoria.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

Ask the average baseball fan who invented his favorite sport and without a blink of an eye he'll say "Abner Doubleday."

According to a piece by Vancouver's Denny Boyd that is about as phony as the Russian claim to inventing lacrosse.

Doubleday was a soldier, a spit-and-polish graduate of West Point who became a major of artillery, distinguished himself in the Mexican and Civil Wars, wrote several books and died peacefully in 1893.

"Well, the truth is," says Boyd, "there is not the remotest shred of documented proof to show that Abner Doubleday knew his arm-pit from third base. Doubleday, it appears, was the unwitting pawn in a hoax that would rival anything invented by the flacks at Madison Avenue.

"What's more, there is no proof that baseball began in Cooperstown. It is closer to the truth that Cooperstown was selected in haste as part of a massive plan to popularize baseball with no regard for historical accuracy.

"The great hoax started in 1935. Baseball commissioner Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis was looking for a way to hype baseball's popularity during the depression. He wanted something big, something the whole country would notice.

"During his search for a magic elixir, a dusty, cob-webb-covered report was discovered in the baseball archives. Written by a man named A. G. Mills in 1907, the report stated, very bluntly and with no weight of proof, that Abner Doubleday had drawn up the first diagram of a baseball diamond at Cooperstown in 1839. Thus was the Doubleday-1839-Cooperstown trinity created.

"When Landis and his aides read these words in 1935 they whooped and likely broached a magnum of champagne. Here was the basis of their program. They would honor the centennial of baseball in 1939 by building a shrine to Doubleday at Cooperstown. And so a massive publicity campaign was set in motion.

"Actually, the Mills report was the unsubstantiated work of one man and it contained more holes than the Met's infield.

"A. G. Mills, third president of the National League, had been named chairman of a fact-finding committee in 1907 to draw up a history of the game. The committee was a compromise following a lengthy argument of origins between A. G. Spalding, one of the first great players, and Henry Chadwick, the first known official scorer. Unable to resolve their friendly argument, they struck a committee.

"But Mills ignored the rest of the committee and wrote his own thesis.

"Mills neglected to show any proof that Doubleday had played baseball; nor did he quote his friend as ever having made a single comment about the game. Nor did he produce, from Doubleday's voluminous postsalitary writings, a single word written about the game he was credited with inventing.

"The rest of Mills' committee, in drawing up their own report, produced a diagram of a baseball diamond made by Alexander Cartwright in 1845 and first used in an 1846 game in Hoboken. This report was ignored.

"What the Mills report lacked in fact and documentation, it made up in marked potential, when baseball acceded a boost in 1934. Landis liked it. He polished it up and pitched it. And one of sports greatest myths was force-fed to the world."

First European ★ ★ ★ Rangers Call Up Sweden's Sterner ★ ★ ★ To Play In NHL

By HAL BOCK

NEW YORK (AP) — Ulf Sterner, a 23-year-old Swedish import described by general manager Emile Francis of New York Rangers as "one of the finest passers in professional hockey," has been summoned by the fifth - place National Hockey League club.

Sterner, a member of the Swedish national team that played in the 1964 Olympics at Innsbruck, will become the first hockey player born and reared in Europe ever to play in the NHL when he takes the ice against Boston Bruins Wednesday night.

The six-foot-two 185 pound Swede was called up from New York's American League affiliate at Baltimore Monday by Francis, who has been impressed with his play all season, first with St. Paul of the Central League and later with the AHL Clippers.

Sterner signed his first pro contract with New York last September and was sent to the Central League where most NHL teams have their top young prospects.

"We sent him to St. Paul," said Francis, "because we wanted to see if he could keep up with the Canadian youngsters and if he could adapt to the game as it's played here."

Sterner responded with 12 goals and 10 assists in 15 games and was leading the league in scoring when he was promoted to Baltimore. He had 10 goals and 13 assists in 28 games with the Clippers before getting the call to New ork.

"Ulf showed himself to be one of the finest passers in the game at both St. Paul and Baltimore and, we're confident he's ready for the NHL," said Francis. "He can do some fantastic things with that puck and he doesn't give it away easily either."

Ranger coach Red Sullivan said the youngster would be used either at centre or left wing. "He trained with us each of the last two years," said Sullivan, "and he's got a real good backhand shot—one of the best I've seen."

Ulf also seems able to handle himself when the going gets rough, too.

"He can take a pretty good check," says Vic Hadfield, the Ranger leftwinger who was the NHL's individual leader in penalty minutes last season. "I remember in training camp that Larry Cahan, a 200-pound defenceman, ran him into the boards and Ulfie rolled right off him."

Sterner knows his international background makes him a prime target for players with other than honorable intentions. And the Swede is ready.

"I'm not looking for fights, but I'm not worried about them, either," he said. "If anyone wants to fight me, I'll fight them back."

Ulf has discarded two pieces of protective equipment that he brought with him from Sweden. "I brought a helmet an da tooth protector with me, but I haven't been using them. The helmet is too warm and the tooth protector—well, I think maybe the people would look at it and say 'Swede, go home.'"

Dixon May Quit Larks

MONTREAL (CP)—Halfback George Dixon of Montreal Alouettes, anxious to acquire job security, has threatened to quit the Eastern Football Conference club.

Dixon said in an interview Monday that unless he can obtain a permanent position in Montreal he will refuse, in his hometown, New Haven, Conn., to work.

Dixon, who majored in industrial relations at Bridgeport University, recently left a public relations job with a Montreal meat-packing firm. He now is looking for a new job and said he is contemplating going into business for himself.

"I'm 29 and now is the time to make connections for the future," Dixon said.

He said he feels he has three or four seasons of football left but "football has no long-term security."

How to Pitch To Mantle? Throw Ball

TORONTO (CP)—Ron Taylor hasn't wasted his time in the big leagues. He has an effective book on how you pitch to Mickey Mantle:

Throw him a ball.

The 27 - year - old relief pitcher for the world champion St. Louis Cardinals divulged a few more tricks of the trade Monday night as he came home to act as guest speaker for the Metropolitan Toronto Amateur Baseball Association's annual awards dinner. He began his baseball career in the Toronto suburb of Leaside.

Answering questions from the floor, he supplied a few deadpan footnotes on his career:

The only home run he ever hit was foul by a foot.

Former team - mate Stan Musial is "just tremendous." But "We usually went different ways—he'd go to the bank and I'd go to the finance company."

Record Loot For Colts, Cleveland

NEW YORK (AP) — Each member of the winning Cleveland Browns will receive $8,052.82 and each of the losing Baltimore Colts will get a cheque for $5,571.40, both all-time records, from the receipts of the Dec. 27 championship game of the National Football League.

Pete Rozelle, NFL commissioner, mailed the cheques Monday after announcing financial details of the game played before 79,544 fans at Cleveland Stadium. Cleveland upset Baltimore 27-0.

The NFL title game was the first football game ever to grossl more than $2,000,000.

Marlboros Clobber Maritimers

HALIFAX (CP) — Toronto Marlboros, defending Memorial Cup champions, crushed Halifax Dartmouth Twin Cities All-Stars 11-1 in an exhibition hockey game before a crowd of 5,000 Monday night.

Marlboros, in second place in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A league, were led by the three-goal performances of centre Jerry Graham. Right winger Mike Corrigan tallied twice and Jim Keon, Jim McKenny, Pat Gleason and Barry Watson got the others.

Doug Hanna put Twin-Cities on the score sheet with the only goal to beat Marlboro goaltender Jerry Desjardins.

The experience and conditioning of Marlboros was too much for All-Stars, who were playing together for the first time this season. The Toronto team handed out heavy checks, made end-to-end rushes and put on a smooth passing display. They outshot All-Stars 41-23.

On Opening Day 'For The Mets, Spahn And Berra'

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Warren Spahn, the 43-year-old hurler who broke most of the pitching records for southpaws in his 20-year career with Milwaukee Braves, is anxious to learn whether Father Time has caught up with him.

Spahn said Monday night he wants to start early trying to prove whether he still can win.

"And if I am finished, I don't want to take someone else's word," he said. "I don't want to be another old guy hanging on with the Mets."

Spahn, who played all of his big league baseball with the Braves — at Boston and Milwaukee—was sold to New York Mets after the 1964 season, one of his poorest, when he finished with a 6-13 mark.

The veteran southpaw, who won 20 or more games in each of 13 major league seasons, plans to step up his spring training, with emphasis on his first start in an exhibition game.

Spahn said he has a hunch that he and Yogi Berra will be batting mates on opening day when the Mets meet Los Angeles Dodgers.

Berra, fired as manager of New York Yankees at the end of the 1964 season, now is a player-coach for the Mets.

'Public Fed Up'

Lacrosse Vetoes Commercial Trophies

OTTAWA (CP)—There's no doubt in the minds of Canadian lacrosse officials that a game should have 60 minutes playing time.

But should the hour be divided into three periods of 20 minutes each as in hockey, or into four periods of 15 minutes each as the lacrosse rule book says it should?

This question produced most of the fireworks Monday as the Canadian Lacrosse Association closed its annual convention here.

The session also named Carl Madgette of Malton, Ont., as the new president to succeed Ed Blair of Streetsville, Ont., who retired from office because of ill health.

It also saw the convention go on record as being opposed to accepting trophies bearing commercial names. Jim Naish of Fort Credit, Ont., saw the public he was getting fed up with sports groups that allowed firms to reap reams of publicity from national sports events.

And coach Jim Bishop of Oshawa Green Gaels said lacrosse itself has sold out its national final by agreeing to have an oil company underwrite its losses in its two main competitions.

The sharp debate on the division of a lacrosse game ended in a compromise when western delegates agreed to allow the national junior final for the Minto Cup be played in games of three 20-minute periods. But it is to be in effect only on a trial basis, and the Mann Cup Senior, the senior championship will keep the traditional 15-minute periods.

Eastern officials said they hope to see lacrosse played on regular boats in the larger rinks such as Maple Leafs Gardens and the Montreal Forum.

But concession booths, time clocks and personnel in the rinks were geared to the three-period division of hockey games. Another important point for larger centres, they said, was that three-period games could be played much faster than the four-period ones.

Western delegates said the East was bent on adopting too many hockey rules. They now wanted to toss away one of the basic rules of lacrosse.

Besides, the players preferred four periods. They could play all-out in the shorter period, thus giving the fans a better game to watch.

The argument pertains only to national finals. The east has played the three-period game for years, reverting to the rule-book game only when it plays against the West.

Names vice - presidents in the annual selection of officers were Tom Gordon, New Westminster, B.C., Fred Conrad, St. Catharines, Art Daoust, Burnaby, B.C., and Wallace Barker, Long Sault, Ont. Named to another term as secretary - treasurer was Jack Wilson of Brampton, Ont.

Delegates agreed the Mann Cup final will be played in the west and the Minto final in the east. Both the junior B and senior B finals were scheduled for the east.

All games were tentatively scheduled for Sept. 12.

Delegates were unanimous in adding a rule that players in the CLA must wear helmets.

Hawk Scooters On Production Line

Mikita Closes Gap

MONTREAL (CP) — The Scooter line is rolling again and that's why Bobby Hull is not the only player scoring goals for Chicago Black Hawks these days.

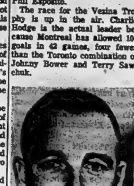
In the Hawks' first 38 games Hull had 28 goals, one-third of the team's total. But in Chicago's last 15 contests Hull's production has eased to nine goals, less than one-fifth of the Hawks' output.

Much of the reason can be traced to the Scooter line of centre Stan Mikita, right winger Kenny Wharram and left winger Doug Mohns. The line registered six goals and seven assists in Chicago's two victories.

Mikita scored three times and had three assists. Wharram, who tallied 37 times last season, picked up his 12th and 13th goals and an assist while Mohns scored once and assisted three times.

In the National Hockey League scoring race, Mikita closed the gap between him and Hull to 10 points.

STAN MIKITA



Hull has 63 points on 37 goals and 26 assists. Stan has 53 and he has had a week ago. Mikita's totals are 16 goals and 37 assists for 38 points.

ULLMAN IS THIRD

Another 10 points back is third-place Norm Ullman of Detroit with 43 on 21 goals and 22 assists. Montreal's Claude Provost is fourth with 37-23—40.

One more than Hull's linemate, Phil Esposito.

The race for the Vezina Trophy is up in the air. Charlie Hodge is the actual leader because Montreal has allowed 104 goals in 42 games, four fewer than the Toronto combination of Johnny Bower and Terry Sawchuk.

KENNY WHARRAM

But Toronto has played three more games than Montreal. Toronto's goals against average is 2.40, while Montreal's is 2.48. The best individual averages belong to Montreal's Gump Worsley (1.67) and Chicago's Denis DeJordy (2.21). Terry Sawchuk of Toronto is third with 2.26 and Detroit's Roger Crozier leads in shutouts with four.

Ted Lindsay of Detroit and Bob Baun of Toronto share the lead in individual penalties with 115 minutes. Detroit has compiled the most penalties as a team, 674 minutes.

The leaders:

R. Hull, Chi	37	26	63	20

Gordie Howe's Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

Every once in a while manager Sid Abel of the Detroit Red Wings will switch me from right wing position to centre. Sometimes it is a matter of strategy. Other times it is a matter of juggling because we have some players injured.

For instance, every now and then Abel will switch us on the front line, trying for a bits, a quick goal.

Because of the switch in our line, the opposing coach may make switches in his lineup if he wants to keep certain players opposite men in our lineup.

We haven't been too successful with the bits, from the standpoint of scoring goals. However, if we go with the line changes for a turn or two, then switch back to another combination, it can confuse the opposition, give us a momentary advantage.

As a right winger, I have to make certain adjustments when I'm switched to centre. We play positional hockey in the Red Wing system.

If the puck is on the left hand side in the opponent's end, the left wing and centreman go in and try to pick it up, drop back just inside their blue line. I'm in a shooting position, yet I'm in case possession, I can come back. We always have one man checking pack.

However, a centreman doesn't have to worry that much about picking up a man. That was my big change, getting away from this habit of staying out or going in there deep.

The centreman has to more or less centralize himself and control the puck and forecheck all the time. Naturally the centreman has to come back hard, too. He picks up the stranger and then plays the point.

When they move into our end, the centreman's job is to anticipate and stay in between the puck carrier and the given point man.

It takes quite a bit of knowledge — it's a different trend of thinking. Yet it shouldn't be that difficult because you are used to it. Some centremen you are fooled in your end. You have to take a quick look around, anticipate the play and pick up your man again.

Japanese Hurler Back With Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Masanori Murakami, southpaw relief pitcher and the only Japanese ever to play major league baseball in the United States, will play again this season for San Francisco Giants, the National League club announced Monday.

Where the 21-year-old Murakami will play in 1966 remains undecided after discussions last week and this weekend between Giants and representatives of the Nankai Hawks of Osaka, Japan, who once owned the hurler.

Giants, who count heavily on Murakami for short-inning relief, said he arrives in San Francisco Monday from Japan.

The Hawks' contingent, led by Manager Kazuado Tsuruoka, agreed to allow Murakami to pitch in the United States in 1965 but asked for him back in 1966—the Giants said.

After finishing the season for the Giants' farm club at Fresno, Calif., Murakami joined the major league team and buried 15 impressive innings for San Francisco. He compiled a 1.80 earned run average although he didn't figure in any decisions.

Departmental Hockey

Close scores and a brawl featured action in the Interdepartmental Hockey League games played last night.

The two top clubs, Public Works and the Public Utilities, played to a 3-3 deadlock which left them leading the Works on top of the league standing with just one game left to play.

In the other game, Police Department edged out The Ontario Intelligencer 7-6 after the losers blew a 6-3 lead late in the game.

An intell team spokesman said this morning that "we are protesting the game because they used ineligible players and we expect to win the protest."

The brawl took place in the dying minutes of this game and involved nearly all the players on both teams.

If the Police win last night stays in the records, it will sew up the final playoff berth for the boys in blue, eliminating the Intell from the playoffs.

The same clubs meet again as the schedule winds up next Monday.

Scots Drop Six Matches

HAMILTON (CP)—The touring Scottish curlers lost all six games Monday in the 15th match of the Canada-Scotland curling competition and now trail 283 behind Canada in the battle for the Strathcona Cup.

The winners scored 71 points to put the Canadian total at 1,083 points. The Scots managed only 47 points and have a total of 832 points.

The Scots play in Toronto today.

SWEDE CALLED UP

Baltimore (AP)—Ulf Sterner, 22, Swedish Olympic ace with Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League, has been called up by New York Rangers for their Wednesday night game. Rangers of the National Hockey League, who have a working agreement with Clippers, needed help to replace Val Fonteyne who injured his wrist Sunday night against Chicago.

Top Athlete, Student

Rick Locke Honored

A well-known and popular native son of Belleville is nearing completion of a colorful scholastic and athletic stay at Hamilton's University.

Rick Locke, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Locke, 94 Lenox Street, received his B.A. last spring. He returned for an additional year in the physical education course and will graduate this spring, fully prepared to enter the teaching business.

RICK LOCKE

Locke has been an athlete star in this city for a number of years, in football, track and field, baseball and softball.

His achievements along these lines have reaped rich rewards for the modest, muscular youth during his years at McMaster.

Football has been his mainstay. Locke has been a member of the McMaster team which has won its Intercollegiate division championship for the past three years. The team travelled coast to coast this year and Locke saw gridiron action in Vancouver, B.C. on one occasion and in Nova Scotia on another. He has been called one of the top players in his division.

Locke gained further recognition for his athletic endeavours recently when he was awarded the Judy La-Marsh bursary for physical fitness and amateur sports.

He was also elected president of the physical education society at McMaster University this year.

As a student at Quinte Secondary School in Belleville, Locke starred on a number of his school teams and set records while winning the Bay of Quinte track and field individual championship.

He was a member of the Kenmore baseball club from minor ranks up through senior and starred with the team when it won Ontario junior and senior championships.

Locke declined to play baseball while home this summer but, starred with the Trudeau Molson softball team, another sport in which he has been active for a number of years.

Speed has been Locke's byword in all sports. He has been called one of the fastest players in the area, on track, ball diamonds and on the gridiron. Locke seldom hits under .300 in either baseball or softball. He also fields and throws with equal ability.

Locke hopes to return to the Belleville area for a teaching career, in history, geography and physical education, following spring.

The city's schools, as well as its sports circles, should profit from his return.

Locke in his early 20's has been and continues to be a credit to Belleville and its youth.

Western Hoe Body Elects 1965 Executive

The Quinte Western Horse Association, preparing for its second year of operation, elected a full slate of officers for 1965 at a recent meeting.

Douglas MacDonald was elected president, succeeding Art Corfield. Mr. Corfield was the body's original president.

Other officers named were; vice-president, Van Lang; secretary, Mrs. Nancy Allin, and treasurer, William Allin.

Nine persons were named to the board of directors. They are Doug MacDonald, Van Lang, Nancy Allin, Bill Allin, Glenn Richmond, Mrs. D. McNevin, Mrs. A. Brown, G. Vance and Allen Boyd.

The club hopes to increase its membership during the coming season and is planning such as a "bigger and better than ever" schedule of events.

Majors Map Final Plans For Scouts

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Representatives of four major baseball league clubs mapped final plans today for a co-operative scouting program that will eventually cut big bonuses and possibly expand minor league operations.

Detroit Tigers, Pittsburgh Pirates, Milwaukee Braves and Cleveland Indians are the clubs involved.

Each club will continue to scout its respective areas, but instead of reports from 15 full-time scouts, each team will get reports from 60 to 76 scouts.

Brown said each club will then make its own decision on which prospect it wishes to draft.

Junior Scoring Race

Lacroix Out in Front

TORONTO (CP) A pair of sturdy goaltenders can take much of the credit for keeping Niagara Falls Flyers on top of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series.

The Flyers don't have a single man in the top 10 scoring leaders in the league, according to statistics released Monday, but they remain three points ahead of Toronto Marlboros in first place.

Bernie Parent and Doug Favell have alternated in the Niagara Falls goal since the start of the season, and each is among the leading goaltenders.

Parent got his second shutout of the season against Montreal Junior Canadiens during the weekend, the only goalie in the league with two shutouts to his credit, and dropped his goals-against average to 2.37 in 22 1-3 games. Only Duncan Wilson of Oshawa, who played 1 1-3 games and had a 2.25 average, is higher in the standings.

Favell stands fifth with a 2.43 average in 15 1-3 games, but the others ahead of him are Peter McDuffe of St. Catharines, who has played for only two periods, and Fernand Rivet of Montreal, who has played 3 1-3 games. They both have a 3.00 average.

Andre Lacroix of third-place Peterborough Petes continues to lead the individual scoring race with 94 points on 32 goals and a league-leading 62 assists. Second-place Ken Hodge of St. Catharines Black Hawks leads the league in goals with 42 and has 89 assists for 81 points.

Ruth Jesson Nomad of Links

Had Throat Cut -- For Golf!

SEATTLE (AP) — Twenty pairs of expensive golf shoes and a life full took up only a small corner in the stuffed trunk of Ruth Jessen's big white sedan when the girl who had her throat cut for career's sake came home for the holidays.

Fifty blouses, 20 sweaters, 30 to 40 pairs of shorts, 20 cocktail dresses, four fishing rods, 20 pairs of slacks, three dozen golf gloves, four sets of golf clubs . . .

"And that's only 9 mine," the chic blonde bomber of the fairways said Monday. "Peggy had just as much."

Peggy is Peggy Wilson, whose dark eyes are unchief-twinkled and whose voice is pure Mississippi. The two are nomads of the golf links, so accustomed to long treks they thought nothing of a midwinter drive from Florida to Seattle to spend the holidays with Ruth's parents.

Miss Jessen, whose golfing tradition is methodical, unstraddle-legged putting stance, won five tournaments in 1964 and earned $23,431 in prize money. This was second only to the $29,800 won by Mickey Wright, reigning queen of the Ladies Professional Golf Association.

Success really began for Ruthie Jessen after—as she puts it—"I had my throat cut in 1952." A neck ailment was making each round of golf pure torture.

"The surgeon said he would have refused to operate had I been a housewife. But for me it was a choice between taking the risk or giving up golf."

Only a slight scar, a wrinkled line shows where the knife opened Ruth's throat. The surgeon, going in from the front, removed a disc from the vertebrae and replaced it with a plug of live bone from Ruth's hip.

"Three months later," said Peggy, "Ruth was winning a tournament at Rockton, Ill."

W. Germans Win First In Canada

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I. (CP)—The West Germany national team started a Canadian hockey tour on the right foot Monday night, defeating Charlottetown Royals 6-3 in an exhibition game.

The West Germans poured it on in the third period when the Royals wilted in the face of superior conditioning.

Long and accurate lead passing by the Germans gave the Royals a skating workout throughout the game.

Ernest Koepf, deadly around the net, led the West German attack with three goals. Kraest Trumwein scored twice and Sigfried Schubert got the other. Dick Carroll, Vince Mulligan and Dave Lawlor scored for Royals.

The Golden Curtain Quartet will appear here under the auspices of the Community Concert Association, Friday, January 29, in the Belleville Collegiate.

Golden Curtain Quartet Will Perform Here

Four gifted young American singers make up the brilliant Golden Curtain Quartet, which will be heard here on January 29 at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium under the auspices of the Community Concert Association. Soprano Maria Albanese, mezzo-soprano Adele Baker, tenor Dan Marek and baritone David Clatworthy are the talented members of the group, each of whom has already distinguished himself in solo performance on this continent and abroad.

Producer-director and creator of the Golden Curtain Quartet is Kurt Adler, renowned conductor of the Metropolitan Opera.

Taking its name from the famous Metropolitan Opera House golden curtain, the quartet is made up of young artists who are preparing themselves "for a Metropolitan debut.

Singly they have sung with the New York City Opera Company, the Brooklyn Opera Company and the New England Opera Theatre. Each has performed extensively on the concert stage.

Presenting a delightful programme ranging from grand opera to Broadway hits, the Quartet is one of the most popular attractions of the community Concert series. Interest in the appearance here on Friday is eagerly anticipated.

Barney Picks Chuvalo

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP)—Barney Ross has joined Joe Louis in picking Canada's George Chuvalo over ex-heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson in their Feb. 1 fight.

Ross, former welter and lightweight king, watched Chuvalo's 12-round drill at a resort hotel Monday and predicted the Toronto puncher would stop Patterson within three rounds of the scheduled 12-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

"Chuvalo has an excellent jab and is very strong," Ross said. "Best of all, he stalks his man."

Louis, who attended the marathon workout, has picked Chuvalo to win by a knockout.

"He's in powerful shape," the former heavyweight great said after Chuvalo boxed four rounds each with three sparring partners—middleweight Lucky Little, light, heavyweight Jim Christopher and heavyweight Cody Jones.

Louis said he had never sparred more than six rounds in one training session. Chuvalo has worked a pre-fight total of 178 rounds.

Patterson resumes training today at Marlboro, N.Y., after spending Monday at his new home in Great Neck, N.Y.

Howe, Abel Lindsay Reunited

DETROIT (CP) — Gordie Howe, reunited with former "production line" cohorts Sid Abel and Ted Lindsay, scored three goals Monday as pared Detroit Red Wings Old-Timers to a 6-6 tie with the current edition of the Red Wings before 12,027 fans at an exhibition game here Monday night.

Abel, who centred the "production line" of 10 years ago, now coached Red Wings and Lindsay, on left wing, is making a comeback with Detroit after four-year retirement from the National Hockey League.

George Gee, Jimmy Peters and Bill Hennings each scored one for the Old-Timers. Other retired NHL stars included Harry Lumley in goal, Bob Goldham, Leo Reise, Red Doran, Carl Liscombe, Don Grosso, Harold Jackson and Stu Evans.

Floyd Smith counted twice for the 1964-65 Red Wings while Ron Murphy, Pit Martin, Ed Joyal and Norm Ullman added one goal apiece.

Aces Whip Providence

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Aces, belted for 10 goals in their last game, rallied defensively around goalie Gilles Marotte Monday night and scored a 5-3 American Hockey League victory over Providence Reds.

The Aces permitted Providence just 14 shots at the Quebec goal tending as they scored three in the last period when they broke a 3-3 tie on goals by John Hanna and Bill Sutherland.

Hanna and Sutherland both scored earlier in the game along with Don Blackburn as the Aces came from behind twice. Jimmy Bartlett, Moe Bartoli and Len Ronson scored for the Reds.

Ed Giacomin had 39 saves for Providence as the Reds were outshot 46-14. It was a turnabout for the Aces, who allowed 16 goals in two weekend games with Fredericton Canadiens.

Bartlett and Bartoli got the Reds off to a 2-0 lead early in the first period but the Aces tied it on goals by Hanna and Blackburn. Ronson sent the Reds ahead again in the second, but Sutherland provided the equalizer.

Oddfellows Nip Picton Bantams

Belleville's undefeated Oddfellow Bantam team had trouble beating the Picton bantams all year and last night was no different.

Oddfellows finally got the puck, coming from behind to win the exhibition in Picton 2-1.

The clubs have met six times this season and in the previous five have been close, three of them ending ties. They meet again in exhibition play in Belleville Wednesday night, Picton's only losses this season have been to the Oddfellows.

Picton took a 1-0 lead in the first period last night on Killoh's unassisted goal.

Belleville tied it in the second. B. Janibert fired the goal with R. Mallory assisting.

D. Cass scored the winning marker in the third, on a three-way play with D. MacCormack and D. Bland.

The Oddfellows will travel to Syracuse, N.Y., this weekend, meeting the Syracuse midgets in exhibition games on Saturday and Sunday.

AT THE BELLE — Convinced of his talent as a composer, Susan Oliver urges George Hamilton to write a new song in this scene from "Your Cheatin' Heart." The new MGM picture also starring Red Buttons and Arthur O'Connell, tells the dramatic story of the late country-western singer Hank Williams, one of the most popular natural entertainers of his time. Filmed in Panavision, it features ten of Williams' greatest song hits, sung on the sound track by Hank Williams, Jr.; himself a popular concert and recording star.

AT THE PARK — A scene from "The Curse Of The Mummy's Tomb," opening Sunday at the Park Theatre. On the same program "The Gorgon". Both features are in Technicolor and first Belleville showings. The biggest terror-show ever on the screen here — or hereafter!

'Stately Ghosts of England' Tour of Wonderful Homes

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC's special program, The Stately Ghosts of England, provided a beautiful and lively tour of some wonderful old homes Monday night.

NBC London correspondent Joseph Harsch neatly set the stage by noting that "Britons inhabit four out of five" of England's great mansions. There followed some grand sentiments from apparently down-to-earth people who told of being "terrified" by atmosphere, of evil, of hearing footsteps, the sound of chanting men and of even seeing an apparition.

The presentation, however, was slightly tongue-in-cheek.

Even while the ghosts, it would have been an enchanting feast to some beautiful and ancient homes.

CBS and NBC-probably ABC, too, when it gets its plans made —will go all out in their coverage of Winston Churchill's funeral Saturday.

The two networks will start broadcasting at 7 a.m. EST and continue through the day. They will use satellite communication for live coverage when Telstar II is in position. They will also use video tape flown across the ocean, and transatlantic radio.

NBC, too, will use its slow-scan method of transmitting tape and film, by cable.

The new national Nielsen ratings, covering the first two weeks of the new year, find the three networks still running a neck-and-neck race in audience popularity. This time a meaningless fraction of a point separates the winner—CBS— from the other two, who are tied.

Bonanza remains at the top of the popularity heap, followed this time by Gomer Pyle, U.S.M.C. and The Red Skelton Show, in that order! ABC's Bewitched, right before, has dropped to fourth place.

Recommended tonight:

The Tycoon, ABC, 9-9:30 EST —comedy in which star Walter Brennan meets romance, Doris Kenyon, an old time movie star; The French Revolution," NBC, 10-11—reconstruction of the celebrated revolt.

CBC Plans Full Coverage Of Funeral

TORONTO (CP)—The CBC plans to mobilize a satellite, a jet aircraft and a submarine cable in television and radio coverage of Sir Winston Churchill's funeral Saturday.

Highlights of the planned coverage, announced Monday:

—A two-hour television program arranged from 2 to 4 p.m. EST. (This is the system in which television signals from a transmitter bounce off a satellite in orbit above the earth and are picked up by a receiver thousands of miles away.)

—A half - hour satellite - relayed telecast of the service from St. Paul's Cathedral at about 12:45 p.m. EST.

—A two-hour videotape program arranged from 2 to 4 p.m. EST.

—A live radio feed by transatlantic cable from the BBC in London, from 4:30 to 9 a.m. EST.

An edited version of the live radio broadcast is planned to begin sometime between 6 and 8:25 p.m. EST.

A repeat of the videotape program is scheduled for telecast Sunday from 3:30 to 5 p.m. EST.

KIWIS LEAD

WELLINGTON (Reuters) New Zealand took a strong grip on the first cricket Test match against Pakistan Monday on the third day of the match here. With one day left for play, New Zealand was 143 runs ahead, with eight second innings wickets in hand.

Oddfellows Nip Picton Bantams

Belleville's undefeated Oddfellow Bantam team had trouble beating the Picton bantams all year and last night was no different.

Oddfellows finally got the puck, coming from behind to win the exhibition in Picton 2-1.

The clubs have met six times this season and in the previous five have been close, three of them ending ties. They meet again in exhibition play in Belleville Wednesday night, Picton's only losses this season have been to the Oddfellows.

Picton took a 1-0 lead in the first period last night on Killoh's unassisted goal.

Belleville tied it in the second. B. Janibert fired the goal with R. Mallory assisting.

D. Cass scored the winning marker in the third, on a three-way play with D. MacCormack and D. Bland.

The Oddfellows will travel to Syracuse, N.Y., this weekend, meeting the Syracuse midgets in exhibition games on Saturday and Sunday.

PLAYERS GUILTY

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP)—Two stars of the England soccer team—centre-half Peter Swan and wing-half Tony Key—were found guilty by a jury Monday of conspiring to throw a match and cheat book-makers.

Lightfoots, Flyers Win Hoop Tilts

Belleville Lightfoots, of the Bay of Quinte men's basketball league, are developing a "second-place" complex.

Lightfoots continued their ways here last night, dumping Trenton Wilsons 63-47 in a rugged game at Quinte Secondary School.

Meanwhile, Trenton RCAF Flyers hung tight to first place, two points up on the Lightfoots, with a 77-74 overtime win over Cobourg Kiwanis at the air station.

Joe Theriault sparked the RCAF victory with 22 points. It was the third consecutive game in which the Flyers have emerged victorious in overtime.

RCAF leads the loop with 16 points and Belleville has 14. Wilsons are a poor third with four points and Cobourg has but two.

The Wilsons put up a determined battle here, holding the Lightfoots 28-26 at half time before slipping in the second half.

Tempers were high and the foul total reached 54. Wilsons hit for 27 for 32 from the free throw line while Lightfoots got 15 for 23 as neither team was able to take advantage of the opportunities with any consistency.

Bill Latchford sparked the Lightfoot scorers with an 18-point performance. He got able backing from Ian Hoocliffe with 14 and Joe Clapp, who turned in his best effort, to grab 12 points.

Arien Burleigh and big Jim Ann were top men for Trenton with 11 points apiece. Gord Smith was next with 10, all of them gained from the free-throw line.

Lightfoots will see action again Wednesday night when they play an exhibition game at Albert College. Game time is eight o'clock.

Trenton Wilsons (47) — C. Conway 6, G. Smith 10, W. Whitley 4, A. Burleigh 11, R. Dingman 2, J. Ann 11, R. Meyers 2, M. Jeffery, F. Wannamaker 4.

Belleville Lightfoots (63) — R. Smith 2, J. Clapp 12, B. McBride 6, L. Houchin 14, G. Duggan 1, R. Langabeer, R. Latchford 18, D. Smith 8, J. McKibbon 4.

Seek Golfer Guinea Pigs !

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) Three South African psychologists are looking for 30 golfers to act as guinea pigs.

They want to hypnotize half of them—to see if hypnosis can improve their golf.

It will be a purely scientific exercise to find out to what extent a physical or "mind" function exerted by the muscles can be influenced by hypnotic suggestion.

"If it works," said psychologists Brian Norgarb, "some golfers ought to be returning better scorecards."

The golfers will be tested on their putting ability only.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For January 27

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): May be necessary to check with expert. Includes one who is aware of your finances — also one aware of physical condition. Remember: you can't be everywhere at once!

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Creative endeavors most likely to succeed. Today see project as a whole. Leave details to others. Perceive what people are thinking, feeling. Utilize natural intuition.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Those around you apt to be nervous, jumpy. Hammering away at specific items causes irritation. Practice tact, diplomacy. Applies especially in dealing with mate or partner.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Key is being strong within. Good time to spend some time alone . . . gain much from introspection! Adhere to principles. Disregard threats. You are due to win new friends.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Stress clear thinking. No time to gamble or be extravagant. Key is maturity. Concentrate on developing talents. Relax in quiet manner with persons you admire.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Fine for completing tasks. Not so good for initiating action. Avoid the flimsy. Key is building solid foundation. Highlight quality, good taste. Then you succeed.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Take direct approach. No time for beating around the bush. Say what you mean. There are destructive forces around you. You scatter them through adherence to truth.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Judgment correct. What you felt was right proves to be so. Have confidence. Be wary of money proposed by friends. Much wishful thinking, day-dreaming prevails.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Be aware of current situation. Applies to standing in community, career. Watch personal appearance. Be ready to speak for personal cause. Stand tall!

Capricorn (Dec. 2 to Jan. 19): Behind-scenes activity captures your attention. Check with sources at distance . . . correspond. Find out what's really happening. Don't neglect details.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Friend or relative creates surprise. Could be in form of visit or request. Be courteous, but do not commit yourself. Permit common sense to hold reins.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Don't depend on reports or rumors. You must do your own checking. Otherwise, there are repercussions. Be especially aware of fine print in leases, other documents.

If today is your birthday . . . you are much admired, capable of extending sympathy to underdog. Would make fine doctors, attorney, director of humanitarian project.

General Tendencies: Announcement indicated that contains world-wide significance in field of health.

Two Men Die In Collision Near Oshawa
OSHAWA (CP) — Two men were killed early today in a two-car collision on Highway 12, 10 miles north of here.
George E. Marshall of Nestleton, Ont., was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident. Robert Campbell, 30, of Brock, Ont., died in hospital at Uxbridge.
Provincial police at Whitby said the cars collided head-on.
Police said the driver of the second car, Ernest Campbell, 30, of Brock, Ont., died in hospital at Uxbridge.

Free R. Wright On Three Counts Of Bribery
TORONTO (CP) — Former provincial police constable Robert Wright, 33, was released from Don Jail Monday following a ruling by the Ontario Court of Appeal that he had wrongfully convicted Jan. 7 June on three counts of bribery.
The Appeal Court overruled a decision by Mr. Justice Eric Moorhouse who had added 4½ years to Wright's earlier sentence of 18 months definite and six months indefinite. (Wright was at one time stationed in Belleville.)
Wright had been in jail since June 24, 1965, when the Supreme Court of Canada rejected his appeal and appeals by gamblers Joseph McDermott, 43, and Vincent Feeley, 35, on their convictions in March, 1964. The three had been charged with conspiring to obtain information from Wright while Const. George Scott of the OPP anti-gambling squad.
Mr. Justice Moorhouse increased the length of the sentence for Wright because he already had served more than five years ago to Scott with intent to interfere with the administration of justice.
The three - member Appeal Court ruled unanimously that because the offences were substantially identical and there was only one conspiracy, he could only be convicted and sentenced once.
Wright was eligible for release from his 18-month sentence Jan. 1, but was detained pending the outcome of his appeal.

Would Kill Bugs By Disrupting Their Sex Life
VANCOUVER (CP)—A British Columbia scientist believes a "sexual" war on bugs could end the nuisance of many of the parasites which plague man, his animals and his crops.
This is the ideal of Dr. R. H. Wright, head of the olfactory response investigation for the B.C. research council, and he is researcher in pest control by methods other than poisonous insecticides.
In a brief sent to industrial firms across Canada and the United States, and circulated here Monday, Dr. Wright recounted his theory of the introduction of behavior control agents into the environment of crop-destroying insects to disrupt their sex and feeding habits.
"There are many parasitic diseases of both man and animals where the invading organism is bisexual," he said in the brief. "This is true, for example, of such infections as trichinosis, pinworm and roundworm, which are encountered in Canada."
He said that where the sexual phase of such a parasite's life cycle takes place in the dark digestive interior of man or animal, the opposite sexes can come together only by chance and then must recognize each other on contact.
"If the recognition chemical can be identified and identified . . . properly administered, it would evoke prematurely the sequence of responses which are normally triggered in the parasite. . . ."

Redmen Get Tom Mooney As Coach
MONTREAL (CP) — McGill University announced Monday that Tom Mooney has been hired to coach its senior football and basketball teams.
Mooney succeeds Frank Bewley, whose three-year tenure as football coach came to an end last winter when McGill decided to hire a full-time coach.
Mooney is a graduate of Miami of Ohio University, where he played defensive end for three years under coach Ara Parseghian, now at Notre Dame. From 1956-60 he was a playing coach with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the O.R.F.U.
Since 1960 he has been coaching at Garden City (Michigan) High School, the John McGill Jr. He faces a challenging task at McGill. Last fall the football team won two games, and tied one and lost three—although McGill initiated it was satisfied with Bewley's coaching—and the basketball team has finished last for seven seasons.

ROUTE OF CHURCHILL PROCESSION — This is the route of the funeral procession for Sir Winston Churchill in London Saturday. The coffin will be borne from Westminster Hall, where Churchill will lie in state, to St. Paul's Cathedral and then to the River Thames pier on a gun carriage. It will be borne up river on a launch to a pier near Waterloo station. A special train will carry the coffin 70 miles to a junction near Bladon where Churchill will be buried. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Sled Teams Well Behind In Practice
ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (CP-AP) — West German and Swiss crews clocked the fastest times, with the two Canadian teams coming eighth and ninth Monday in the first official training runs for next weekend's world four-man bobsled championships.
U.S. hopes in the championships suffered a sharp setback when its No. 1 sled crashed on its first training run and was damaged beyond repair. None of the U.S. team members was injured.
The runs were marred by several falls, with bobsters from West Germany, Britain and Switzerland suffering cuts and bruises, but no more serious injuries.
Canada's No. 2 sled, driven by Dr. John Emery of Toronto, placed eighth in the practice runs with times of 1:28.77 and 1:22.67 for 2:48.44.
His brother Vic Emery of Bracebridge led Canada to a gold medal in the four-man bobs at the 1964 winter Olympics above Canada's No. 1 sled in times of 1:26.80 and 1:22.11 for 2:48.91.

Doubts Canada Will Have Quebec P. M.
MONTREAL (CP) — Heber Smith, Conservative member of parliament for Simcoe North, said Monday he doubts very much "that within our generation this country will have a French-Canadian prime minister."
Mr. Smith, speaking to the Conservative Club at McGill University, said that though he is unhappy with the leadership of John Diefenbaker, he does not feel that Leon Balcer, Quebec Conservative leader, would be an antidote to the party's ills.
Mr. Smith said four Quebec Liberals in the federal cabinet have been proved "incompetent" and this hurts the chances of Premier Jean Lesage or any other Quebec Liberal becoming prime minister.
As for the Conservatives, it will take more than one other Quebec MP would be elected to party leadership.

'Don't Wake Me Unless Invaded' Said Churchill
LONDON (AP) — Some intimate glimpses of Sir Winston Churchill were given on a BBC television program Monday night by Capt. Sir Richard Pim, who ran Churchill's map room during the Second World War.
When Germany invaded Greece in 1941, Pim, a naval officer, awakened Churchill at 6 a.m. to give him the news. The prime minister looked over at him and said evenly:
"I am not to be awakened again unless Britain is invaded."
On the day of the election that removed Churchill from office in 1945, Pim said he went into Churchill's bath to tell him of the unfavorable trend of returns. He quoted Churchill as saying:
"They have a perfect right to kick us out. That is democracy. That's what we have been fighting for. Please hand me my towel."

Detroit Mother And 6 Children Perish in Fire
DETROIT (AP) — Harry M. Belcher was pulled to safety by a neighbor Monday but his wife and six small children were killed in a blaze that destroyed the family's suburban Ferndale home.
Belcher, 32, told the neighbor, Dennis Lukasik, 24, were admitted to hospital, where the seven victims were pronounced dead of smoke inhalation. Belcher suffered shock, the hospital said, and both men were treated for cuts.
The victims were Catharine Belcher, 33; her two daughters, Dawn, 9, and Melodie, 8; and sons Matthew, 6, Timothy, 5, Jeffrey, 4, and David, 2.
A fireman said the children's bodies all were found in Mrs. Belcher's bedroom. He speculated that they had gone there in attempt to arouse their mother, who already was unconscious or dead.

Lord Thomson Says Change In British Govt. Undesirable

TORONTO (CP)—Lord Thomson said Monday night that British Prime Minister Harold Wilson's political position is precarious but that a change in government would be "nearly disastrous."

"A new Conservative government would quickly be in difficulties with the nation's labor force and the confusion that would result would be extremely damaging to Britain's economy and her position in world affairs," the Canadian-born peer said in a speech to the Metropolitan Toronto Board of Trade.

He expressed the hope that the Labor government will be able to carry on and said he has no doubt that Britain's current economic crisis will be overcome through the traditional British common-sense, patriotism and willingness for self-sacrifice.

There was a capacity audience of 1,630 persons at the meeting, one of the largest attendances in the board's history. The audience was spread through three connecting salons at the hotel, and board officials said another 200 persons who requested tickets had to be turned down.

Other communications magnate addressing the board's annual dinner, said the British economy is in "grave great straits" and the necessary corrective measures will be both unpopular and difficult to apply. Notice of higher taxes had been given, and there would have to be some form of wage restraint.

These and other measures still to come "must inevitably result in a slowing-down of business in general with resulting unemployment."

FORESEES CRISIS

Lord Thomson foresaw a political crisis over Prime Minister Wilson's determination to "take control of his government on such measures as nationalization of the steel industry, which he said is not supported by majority opinion in the country and is firmly opposed by all the parliamentary opposition.

"If, as seems likely, several members of his own party would not support such a bill, this would bring about his defeat and cause another election.

"If he drops these measures, he would have a rebellion in his left wing. His opposition is precarious."

However, Lord Thomson expressed the view that the Conservative party does not have "any urgent wish to resume power at this time and face the problems that exist."

Lord Thomson—who made an observation tour of Russia last summer—said the most important issue facing the world today is communism, and he advised that the West take advantage of the split between Russia and China to improve relations with the Soviet Union.

"Surely we can use this situation to bring about a new era of understanding and cooperation with the Soviet Union to our mutual advantage," he said.

"There is no doubt Chinese communism is the great danger today," he said. "Chinese communism is communism in the absolute raw, uncompromising, cruel and ruthless—even more ruthless than the Russian communism of 30 years ago."

Ross Morrison To Address Cancer Society

The Belleville Unit of the Canadian Cancer Society is holding its annual meeting at Hotel Quinte on Wednesday evening, when Mr. Ross Morrison, Ontario Division campaign chairman will address the meeting.

Mr. Morrison is vice-president of Belden Corporation Ltd., Toronto, a holding company with interests in manufacturing. He has had a lifelong and keen interest in community affairs, and is chairman of the Board of Governors of St. Paul's United College, in the University of Waterloo.

His main hobby is what he calls the "family passion" — a large, old (1900) cottage on Go Home Bay in the Thirty-Thousand-Island district, where his wife, the former Enid Thompson of Belleville, and their four teenage children spend all the time they can.

He is also keen on hunting and fishing, reads "furiously"—mostly history—and used to ski a great deal.

He came into the Cancer Society five years ago through the Kitchener-Waterloo Family Service Bureau, as a director of the Bureau, he was asked to serve as its representative in the local Cancer Society. He very soon was named Campaign Chairman of North Waterloo Unit, served for three years, and was named District Campaign Chairman last year.

Cheat Scandal Affects More Air Force Cadets

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Forty more cadets, bringing the total to 69, were reported to have left the U.S. Air Force Academy Monday in the wake of a cheating scandal triggered by an organized ring that stole and sold examination papers to fellow students.

At the same time, details of the ring's operations were made public unofficially, although not confirmed by academy administrators.

From cadets and others it was learned that a third-year cadet stole a key and broke into a locker containing test papers just prior to the Christmas mid-term examinations.

This cadet, the unofficial report said, then recruited 10 other cadets, some of them football players, to sell the papers to other students. The papers apparently were copied and returned to the file before the theft could be discovered immediately.

On Friday, Jan. 15, two freshmen cadets, learned of the operation. They carried the information to faculty members. The current scandal and its investigation ensued.

The figure of 40 additional resignations to keep from facing court martial was given by a source in the information office.

Some of these cadets were taken to the airport in academy buses, the informant said. Others took bus, train and private automobile transportation to their homes.

No names were disclosed.

The scandal is similar to that which struck the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., in August, 1951, which saw 90 cadets, including 43 varsity football players, dropping from school.

In both instances the honor code played a major role. This is the code which says that a cadet "must not lie, steal or cheat or tolerate among us anyone who does."

Evades Queries On Leadership Controversy

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts evaded questions Monday on the federal Progressive Conservative leadership controversy.

In an interview after the legislature adjourned its brief session, Mr. Robarts said it is up to the party's national executive to call a leadership convention.

"Anything they do is okay with me," he said.

Asked whether he would be a candidate if the convention is held, he replied: "I'll be there to see what's going on. Who knows what will happen?"

He did not answer a questioner who asked whether he is happy with the leadership of John Diefenbaker.

Mr. Robarts has been mentioned in speculation as a possible candidate for the position of Conservative party leader.

Kiwanians Hear Two Speakers On Gun Safety

PICTON — Members of the Kiwanis Club of Picton at Monday night's meeting were enthusiastic listeners to two local speakers, Mr. Dave Taylor and Mr. Ray Young. The subject of firearms was well presented to the audience by two experts. Past president Jack Ward introduced the speakers.

Mr. Taylor discussed the care and handling of guns. He gave some interesting statistics and emphasized good hunting habits. Mr. Taylor stated that during the year 1964 there were 13 fatalities out of 124 gun accidents reported in Ontario. Nearly all accidents, he continued, are sheer carelessness caused by anxious hunters and most accidents occur during the deer hunting season. There have been too many cases of hunters shooting at sounds rather than making sure they identify what they are shooting at.

Loaded guns should never be leaned against a car or fence, when they might fall and discharge, Mr. Taylor said. Even a .22 rifle can be a dangerous weapon if care is not exercised, Mr. Taylor cited an example where a .22 had been fired from an old shed and a child was hit and injured some three quarters of a mile away. Using the proper gun for the type of hunting it is best suited for is also important, he continued. One should not hunt rabbits with a 30-30 when a shotgun is the proper gun and there is no danger of hitting anyone.

Mr. Young in his address supported Mr. Taylor's views. Mr. Young is the chief inspector for this district and conducts courses, now required by law, in gun safety and issues licences for hunting. Anyone, he stated, can obtain a hunting licence after age 15 years and up providing they take four lessons of one hour's duration and pass a written examination on completion of the lectures. This must be done before a permit will be issued.

Mr. Young said that there have been no cases of accidents with firearms from permit holders passed by him.

He added that this work he is doing is strictly voluntary and there is no pay involved. Mr. Young had on exhibit a small part of his collection of antique firearms. Many interesting pieces were included in his exhibit. Mr. Young stated he had 180 pieces he considered good enough to show and many more he considered were not up to par. Some of these he uses to obtain parts in repairing other guns.

Mr. Young a commissionaire at Mountain View Airport has a wide reputation for his fine collection. Dr. Earle Taylor thanked both speakers. Kiwanians observed one minutes silence in respect of the passing of Sir Winston Churchill.

Picton Jrs. Bow To Napanee 9-6

Napanee Legion snapped a lengthy losing streak on their home ice last night, at the expense of the Picton Merchants.

Napanee defeated Picton 9-6 in an OHA Eastern Junior Hockey League game.

The loss broke a winning streak for the Merchants and prevented them from taking over second place in the league standing.

Picton trails Belleville by one point and Gananoque by four and leads Trenton by two points.

Second place will be up for grabs when the Belleville "B's" visit Picton for an 8:30 game Thursday night.

Napanee's win last night was their fourth this season, against 11 losses and one tie.

Child, 4, Dies As Home Burns

MCGREGOR, Ont. (CP) — Mitchel McCann, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McCann, died here early Monday when he was trapped in his parents' burning home. r. McCann is in hospital for treatment of burns he received in attempting to rescue his son.

Firemen said the fire started about 4 a.m. when an oil stove exploded. The mother and a daughter, Kelly, 3, escaped uninjured. The father was unable to locate his son.

The boy's body was found two hours later lying on the floor beside his parents' bed.

McGregor is about 15 miles south of Windsor.

School Official Shocked at Student Drinking

TORONTO (CP)—A Ryerson Polytechnical Institute official said Monday he is shocked by reports that a Ryerson student had been in a drinking contest before being killed in a car accident Saturday.

David Sutherland, director of student affairs, said: "It's out of our hands now and we'll have to wait for the result of the inquest."

Thomas Danovich, 26, of Toronto, a journalism student, died when his car crossed the path of another car and was thrown against a third one.

Glen Woodcock of the fraternity Rho Alpha Kappa said fraternities at Ryerson had been informed by the executives of Theta Kappa Chi that a drinking contest held Friday night offered a trophy for the fraternity that could drink the most beer.

Ross Patterson, president of Theta, said that Donovich represented Tau Epsilon Nu in the contest, which had entrants from Theta and Delta Sigma Phi.

Mr. Patterson said that after the contest Danovich's key had been taken from him as a precautionary measure and he must have started his car without them.

Commenting on the reports, Mr. Sutherland said: "This incident brings home the problem of student drinking and fraternities is a tragic and shocking way."

Police Chief Says Councillors Said Liquor Cases Hurt Trade

PORT ELGIN, Ont. (CP) — Const. Charles W. Riley, once police chief in this town 25 miles west of Owen Sound, says he has seen a favorable change in the town's attitude towards him.

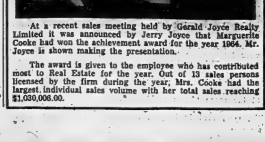
"They're speaking to me now — a lot of them who didn't," he told an Ontario Police Commission hearing which resumed Monday following its adjournment last month.

The former police chief, demoted to constable last November, was asked for his resignation twice last year by council. He refused to resign each time because he said he had not been given good reason to do so.

During questioning by Robin Scott, counsel for the police commission, Const. Riley testified that former town councillors R. J. Bell and Dean Thede complained of the police force's searching cars for liquor in the beach area during the summer because "it was hurting the tourist trade."

The constable said this was offered as "constructive criticism" not there was "no direct antagonism" against himself. But Mr. Bell's attitude changed in July when police laid a charge of impaired driving police chief in this town 25 against Wilmer Lamont of Saugeen Township.

On or about July 18, Const. Riley said he was called into a police committee meeting with Mr. Bell, Mr. Thede and Angus Eaton, committee chairman.



"Mr. Bell was in a very angry and upset mood when I entered," he said. "He was pounding the table with his fist and said he had had enough of us." He said he had received a lot of complaints that one of the constables was swearing at the motorists when they were stopped."

The police hearings began last month mainly to investigate council's motion to fire Const. Riley.

The hearings continue.

When his son was born in 1955 Mike's Dad bought a Manufacturers Life policy. It has provided $10,000 protection ever since. Recently he was pleased to learn it had over $1,100 in cash value; that the policy dividend rate was up again.
(The 10th consecutive increase since Mike was born.)

This policy has a constant premium and will provide $10,000 protection for as long as Mike's Dad lives. But it is more than protection. Guaranteed cash values build up year after year. These values are available to meet emergencies or later to supplement retirement income.

In addition it returns dividends each year. The size of a policy dividend depends in large part on the success of investment operations. In this field Manufacturers Life has an outstanding record and in 1965 $14,685,717 will be paid to participating policyowners.

A Manufacturers Life participating policy will be a solid foundation for your family's security.

It's protection plus guaranteed cash values plus dividends. Talk it over with your Manufacturers Life representative. Soon.

Lake Ontario Drained To Fill Montreal Harbor

R. Cowan, Liberal MP, Says Records Prove It

◆ ORILLIA (CP) — Lake Ontario is being drained to deepen up the level of Montreal harbor, Ralph Cowan, Liberal member of Parliament for York-Humber, said Tuesday.

Mr. Cowan said in an interview that an exhaustive study of available records and reports on lake levels proves conclusively that water in Lake Ontario is being run through lower lake control points in order to keep the level of Montreal harbor at the 25-foot mark.

At the same time, Mr. Cowan claimed alternative water supply to Montreal from the Ottawa River was being neglected in order to permit the fullest possible operation of power generating stations on the river.

Everyone in Lake Ontario communities and all farmers whose wells are drying up have gone — dry in eastern Ontario, are being "victimized by the commercial shipping firms and the Quebec power interests," Mr. Cowan said.

Water leaves Lake Ontario two ways: Evaporation and through control gates at the west end of the St. Lawrence.

More water passes down Niagara Falls into the lake than is lost by evaporation, he said, so the rest is being allowed to flow down the river.

"Why? To keep the levels up in Montreal harbor, as you can see by checking the reports."

Mr. Cowan said this was in violation of a Canada - United States agreement to control Great Lakes levels, which specified that domestic use and have first priority followed by navigation and power generation.

Lady Churchill Issues Message Of Gratitude

LONDON (AP)—Lady Churchill today thanked a message of Tuesday night to all who expressed their sympathy on the death of her husband, Sir Winston Churchill. Her message said:

"Lady Churchill and the family of the late Sir Winston are truly grateful for the messages they are receiving.

"The kindness of all those who have expressed their sympathy at this time means much to them.

"They hope that senders will understand if they do not receive replies, as the numbers are so very great."

Officers, Pilots At Fault

QUEBEC (CP)—Officers and pilots of both the Canadian ore carrier Leoclife Hall and the Greek freighter Apollonia have been found at fault by a federal transport department inquiry into a collision on the St. Lawrence River 65 miles northeast of here last Sept. 5.

Mr. Justice Arthur I. Smith in a judgment rendered today said he was led to the "inescapable conclusion" that the Leoclife Hall was too far south in the channel when the ships met in fog east of Ile aux Coudres. He also said both ships were travelling at excessive speeds considering conditions and neither had made effective use of navigational aids.

Mr. Justice Smith ordered the suspension of the certificate of Captain Walter Bowen, 64, of Owen Sound, Ont., for six months dating from Sept. 5, 1964.

Capt. Bowen's ship, the Leoclife Hall, sank four hours after the collision during efforts to beach it, with a loss of four lives.

Mr. Justice Smith found no fault with efforts to beach the ship nor anything "which could justify the attachment of any blame for loss of life" to Capt. Bowen or any others involved.

Thousands File By Churchill's Bier

LONDON (CP)—On a 35-foot high, black-draped catafalque, Sir Winston Churchill's coffin went on public view today while thousands filed silently by, to pay tribute to the man who led them through the darkness of the war.

Prime Minister Wilson, his wife and members of the Labor government led the procession of state dignitaries into ancient Westminster Hall.

The queue of thousands of men, women and children began in pre-dawn winter chill and police anticipated more than 200,000 might file by during the three days in which Sir Winston will lie in state.

Churchill, who died Sunday at the age of 90, lay in the closed glass-and-oak coffin only a few steps from the House of Commons that was his historic stage.

Beneath the hall's massive oak roof, officers of famed guards regiments kept constant vigil, one at each corner of the silver-trimmed catafalque and one at the foot. They changed watch every 20 minutes.

Candles at each corner of the catafalque flickered against the hall's grey walls.

Churchill's body was brought to the hall Tuesday night from his home at 28 Hyde Park Gate, where he died with his family around him 10 days after a stroke.

Lady Churchill, heavily veiled but calm in her grief, rode with her son, Randolph and other members of the family in eight limousines behind the hearse.

They stood by a canopy at the entrance of the hall as eight guardsmen lifted the flag-draped coffin to their shoulders and took it to the catafalque.

Inside the hall the family spent 15 minutes in prayer with the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey. Then the family left of the guards began.

The coffin will lie there under the Union Jack until the state funeral Saturday in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Despite the cold east wind off the Thames, some mourners bedded down all night in sleeping bags on the sidewalk outside the Houses of Parliament, of which Westminster Hall is part.

First in line was a 17-year-old student, Nick Hutchings.

"Twelve hours is not too long to wait," he said.

Next were two Haitians, a hairdresser and a student. "We felt we had to come," they said.

Through the night Big Ben tolled the hours and the quarters. On Saturday, it will be silent from the moment the funeral starts.

William Turner, 59-year-old former regimental sergeant major in the Middlesex Regiment, stood through the night in the line.

"I came because I had to," he said. "If it hadn't been for Sir Winston during the war I am sure this country would never have pulled through."

A ghostly silence flooded Westminster Hall where a quarter-mile of fawn-colored carpet was laid hurriedly on the stone floor to deaden the sound of the shuffling feet.

Atop the coffin, which finally will find its resting place in a little churchyard of Churchill's ancestors, nestled the blue velvet garter, the gold necklace, the eight-pointed star—all insignia of the important events set in motion this morning, it would be premature for the U.S. mission to comment or render a judgment."

Reliable sources said Khanh and the military council he heads had planned the coup for Feb. 2 but decided to pull it off today because U.S. Ambassador Maxwell Taylor was on a trip to Laos and Thailand.

Railways To Tender Big Bill

OTTAWA (CP)—The government expects to get a whopping bill from the major railways in a few weeks, seeking compensation for a wage increase they agreed to under pressure last June. There's no guarantee that it will be paid in full.

Size of the bill is uncertain until the railways' accounts are closed for 1964 financial operations, but it could run to $18,000,000.

The matter goes back to last spring when a federal conciliation board recommended a 19.5-cent hourly boost for 100,000 non-operating railway employees. It amounted to a $57,200,000 package over two years, an outlay the CNR and CPR said couldn't be met because of the freeze on rail rates.

With a strike looming, the government stepped in June 30 with a virtual promise of temporary financial help if the railways would grant the pay boost. Prime Minister Pearson said the government would review the costs of the wage settlement in six months.

Prisoners Punished For Talking

TORONTO (CP) — Three members of the Ontario legislature said Tuesday that prisoners at Mercer Reformatory for Women claim they were punished because they gave information to grand jury members.

The jury, after conversations with the prisoners, issued a highly critical report on the institution last November.

Vernon Singer, James Trotter and L. A. Braithwaite, all from Toronto-area ridings, repeated the prisoners' charges at a press conference. One man said they had interviewed Mercer girls for five hours.

Mr. Singer said some girls told him Christmas parties and tea breaks had been cancelled. The girls had told him a matron came into their room, slammed her fist on the table and ordered the disciplinary measures for those suspected of having talked to grand jury members.

The three Liberals said every charge made in the grand jury report was true and that the institution should be "torn down."

Complaints ranged from the frequency of eggs served at meals to a self - induced abor-

Pearson Silent on Dupuis Case Because Police Investigating

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson, saying a police investigation is under way, declared a moratorium Monday on comment about the abrupt departure of Yvon Dupuis from the federal cabinet.

"An investigation is going on now into a matter which occurred some years ago, before he (Mr. Dupuis) became a member of any cabinet," the prime minister told reporters following a three-hour cabinet meeting.

The investigation was being carried out "by the department of justice, through the usual investigating body." That is the RCMP.

Meanwhile, in a telephone interview from St. Johns, Que., Roch Deslauriers described as correct press reports that he turned over $10,000 in cash to Mr. Dupuis while trying to obtain a racetrack franchise from Quebec authorities.

The 31 - year - old St. Johns chiropractor referred specifically to the following information published by Conservative Devoir Monday:

—That Mr. Deslauriers said in Mr. Dupuis' office at Ottawa when he handed him $10,000 in cash during efforts started in November, 1960, to get authority to build a racetrack at St. Luc, in St. Johns County;

—That the money in bills of $20, $50 and $100 supposedly was to go to "Mr. Paul Earl, then provincial revenue minister, to get the Quebec solvency of the financial group Mr. Deslauriers represented;"

—That Mr. Deslauriers lost $74,000 in the enterprise.

Le Devoir said the payment was agreed upon late in June, 1961.

Mr. Dupuis, Commons member for St. Jean - Iberville-Napierville, has been unavailable for comment since a statement denying any wrongdoing.

Mr. Pearson said Tuesday he has had seen many press stories about his cabinet troubles, but he would not comment on them. And he would have no comment before leaving tonight for London to attend the funeral of Sir Winston Churchill.

He said it was not customary in the past to discuss resignations from the cabinet.

Even while adopting a hands-off attitude, the prime minister said more publicity about the case Tuesday than he had since Mr. Dupuis, the cabinet's youngest member with a reputation as a rousing political orator, resigned Friday under unusual circumstances.

Parliament has traditionally maintained a right to inquire into ministerial changes and Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) has said Parliament should be called together immediately to discuss the Dupuis affair.

Mr. Pearson said he has no intention of changing the previously - announced Feb. 16 date for resuming Commons work.

South Viet Nam Military Returns General to Power

SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam's generals returned Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh to power in a bloodless military coup today, and the Buddhist opposition to the civilian government began its jubilant celebrations.

Khanh charged Premier Tran Van Huong's three - month - old government had failed to mobilize the chaotic situation in the country's major cities. He said the chaos was impeding the war against the Communist Viet Cong.

The coup posed new problems for the United States, which had hoped civilian government could rally the populace behind the war effort.

The U.S. embassy said in a statement:

Gave Instructions To Drop Matter Of Rivard Bail

Witness Says Brother Gave Him Information

MONTREAL (CP) — Raymond Rouleau testified today to the Dorion inquiry his MP brother Guy told him that Justice Minister Favreau had instructed Guy to drop the matter of bail for Lucien Rivard, wanted on charges of participating in a huge international narcotics smuggling conspiracy.

Raymond Rouleau, 39 - year - old insurance adjuster, said his brother, Liberal MP for Montreal-Dollard, gave him this information after he had asked Guy Rouleau to intervene to help get bail and information for Rivard, arrested here June 19 at the request of the United States government.

He said Mrs. Marie Rivard, Rivard's 35-year-old wife, and Eddy Lechasseur, 33, fraud suspect and close friend of Rivard, visited him to ask his assistance, promising to help Raymond Rouleau in his "campaigns."

FLEW TO OTTAWA

Raymond Rouleau also testified that in the first half of June he and Lucien Rivard flew to Ottawa at Rivard's expense to see Guy Rouleau about getting a friend of Rivard's transferred from prison in British Columbia to an eastern Canadian penitentiary. He said Guy Rouleau had not previously known Rivard and he himself had met him only six or seven times.

He said Rivard and his brother conferred about 15 minutes in the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa but he (Raymond) had absented himself from the talk because "I didn't want to know anything about it."

Rivard, 40, fighting extradition on the dope-smuggling conspiracy charge, has testified at the inquiry that he met Guy Rouleau, then parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, last June 17 to ask his help. Guy Rob Tremblay, serving 20 years for attempted murder in a narcotics case, transferred to Montreal's Paul Penitentiary near here and paroled.

Raymond Rouleau said he called his brother either the same day or the day after Mrs. Rivard's request at the home of Guy Rouleau's assistance.

He said Guy Rouleau told him that the Rivard case involved narcotics and that "he

Rivard Decision Imminent

MONTREAL (CP)—A Canadian court decision is near in the extradition case of Lucien Rivard, who has been sitting cellbound in Montreal while trying to avoid a transfer to a Texas jail.

Efforts on Rivard's behalf to get him bail led to appointment of the Dorion judicial inquiry investigating allegations of a bribery attempt involving a ministerial aide of a Liberal cabinet member in Ottawa.

Rivard, 49, a Montrealer, is accused in a U.S. federal grand jury indictment of being a kingpin conspirator in the smuggling of narcotics in multi - million dollar amounts.

Though postponement has followed postponement in the legal fighting, final arguments are scheduled to be heard Thursday on Rivard's attempt to block extradition by obtaining a writ of habeas corpus, which would free him from jail.

Presiding over Judge Prevost Caron of Superior Court says he hopes to hand down his judgment the same day.

HEROIN SEIZED

Arrest of Rivard and three other Montrealers was made at the request of U.S. authorities following up the seizure in October, 1963, at the Texas-Mexico border of 78 pounds of heroin with a value on the illicit narcotics market of $6,000,000.

Rivard has been in jail in Montreal since last June 19, with his arrest for extradition following a true bill brought in by the Texas grand jury.

Ever since, he has been fighting extradition and, has been unsuccessful in efforts to win bail.

Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne, representing the U.S. in the extradition proceedings against Rivard, has testified before the Dorion inquiry that Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, offered him $20,000 last July 14 to agree to Rivard's release on bail.

The U.S. indictment says that members of the alleged conspiracy would smuggle heroin into Canada and Mexico, using everything from ocean liners to automobiles, "and thence into the U.S. . . ."

Mekong Children Gay by Day, By Night They Seek Church Sanctuary

LUONG HOA, South Viet Nam (AP)—In the hard light of day under the Mekong Delta sun, the village children were gay and high-spirited.

But night they were afraid.

Three of them peered anxiously from their thatched house. They crept up behind a stone grotto, to a path across the courtyard and into the darkened church.

Others arrived, some alone and some with elder sisters. They genuflected hurriedly as they entered.

By 8 p.m. the concrete church built 33 years ago in this prosperous Roman Catholic village 15 miles southwest of Saigon, was crowded with children.

They were sleeping under the pews. Mosquito nets were strung over the floor, some attached to an altar rail, others to the font.

Candles burned in a dozen of the nets as the subdued chatter of the children continued for a while and then ceased. Only the quiet drone of an old woman at prayers could be heard.

Soc Chieu, 12, a stocky, animated protector of this flock, observed:

"Today, they are the children of God. Tomorrow, they may be the children of the devil.

"But tonight they are at least safe. The Communists told me they would never harm the church. I believe them."

Father Chieu and his flock of 6,000 are fighting a personal battle with the Communists. They feel they are losing.

That is why they send their children into the church at night. That is why 4,000 people who used to live here have sold their property and moved up the canals to the relative safety of Saigon.

That Luong Hoa thinks it is losing is a sobering fact in this province of Long An. Saigon authorities have given rich Long An a top priority in the last 3 months. Millions of dollars have been spent on military and civilian programs to eliminate the Communists.

Luong Hoa's fear is the measure of success.

The enemy it faces is not just the shadowy guerrilla who lives quietly in the night and vanishes. He is flesh and blood, and proved it in November and December by attacking the village 200-strong and staying for several days.

The Viet Cong destroyed a home belonging to the richest man in the village, the owner of areas of pineapple land. They also took 1,000,000 piasters (about $13,000) from his safe. But no one around Luong Hoa seems to mind, apparently feeling that any man who can afford to leave that much money in his safe can be deprived of it without too much hardship.

With the rest of the village, the Communists were well behaved. They stopped burning babies. Others talked about the best way to grow pineapples or of the whiteness of virginity in young girls.

Industry Never More Prosperous Says Cheese Producers' Head

Despite recent criticism appearing in the press to the effect that the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board is doing a poor job selling cheese abroad, the organization claims the cheese industry was never more prosperous than its 100 years of existence.

A week ago Agricultural Minister Hon. Harry Hays criticized that the Cheese Producers Marketing Board for doing what he said was a "poor job of selling cheese abroad last year."

Today in a press release, Hector J. Arnold, chairman of the Cheese Producers Marketing Board outlined his organization's sales policy both at home and abroad, and while he did not name Mr. Hays, his answer to the criticism was that the cheese industry was never more prosperous.

"Our organization has been selling Ontario Cheddar Cheese in Great Britain for many years," he said. "We have learned a great deal about that market and its potential. The Cheese Producers have continued to sell to established importers and have done a better merchandising job than was ever accomplished over the last 50 years."

The policy of the Cheese Producers was to sell cheese in the U.K. at a price that will move the surplus production each year and to assure the importer of a continuity of supply.

REALISTIC PRICE

"Last spring, a price of 33 cents per large, round and 36½ cents for squares was established for export to the U.K. This price was one cent per pound higher than that charged in 1963. We feel this was a very realistic price considering it had been raised from 30½ cents in 1963 to 33 cents in 1964. In addition, predictions for a substantial increase in production during 1964 was made by the Cheese Producers and Government officials. This would indicate a modest increase in price would be all that could be absorbed by United Kingdom importers.

"Our customers agreed to the 33 cent price but were reluctant to place orders at a higher figure. These facts indicate the price of last year was correct, allowing us to move the complete surplus production.

"This has proven to be the case because one of the largest firms in England refused cheese at this price but by the first of October. We also had refusals from a number of importers for November cheese at this price. This year November cheese was of excellent quality. Why the refusals if the importers were getting a bargain?

CHEESE AGED

"Everyone seems to forget Ontario's cheese is held for approximately a year before it is sold to the consumer. This fact indicates there are considerable carrying charges. There is always risk involved in holding a store of cheese before it is sold and this costs money also. We have a number of letters from importers confirming the marketing appraisal made by Mr. Arnold and Mr. Shotton last October.

"The regular importers understand the handling of Ontario cheese and do a good job of merchandising the product for us. We are always looking for new importers but distrust the motives of those mishandling the product and damaging the reputation of Ontario's cheese. "World Famous Cheese".

E. G. Gurnett Named Transit Body Chairman

The Belleville Transit Commission, meeting January 25, elected E. G. Gurnett chairman for 1965. The other members of the commission are Mr. J. A. Ireland and Mr. W. D. Newman.

A communication from the Parkdale Ratepayers' Association requesting more frequent bus service to the northwest part of the city was discussed. A study of the service will be made to ascertain if an increase can be reasonably provided.

The commission also prepared a capital budget of its capital requirements for the years 1965, 1966, 1967, 1968 and 1969, for presentation to the city council.

Gale Disrupts PE Hydro Power Entire Rural Area Blacked Out

The entire rural area of Prince Edward County was blacked out for periods of up to two and a half hours last night as gale winds off Lake Ontario disrupted hydro power.

The break in the 44,000 volt power line occurred at Wellier's Bay where a hydro pole was snapped carrying the wires to the ground.

Hydro officials said that every part of Prince Edward county except the town of Picton and the Lake Ontario Cement plant north of Picton, was blacked out.

The break occured at eight o'clock last evening with power being off from periods of one to two and a half hours. Power was restored to the system by Carrying Place and Redneersville area at 9:05 p.m. but it was not until 10:30 that the lights were on again at Bloomfield and Wellington.

Power for the rural Prince Edward area is carried over one 44,000 volt line from the Sidney transformer station north of Sidney and the strong gale force winds from off Lake Ontario were too much for the line at Weller's Bay.

The break occurred in a swamp area making access difficult for repair and equipment.

Two Hue crews from Picton and two from Frankford were called out in the emergency to do the necessary switching to restore power.

Picton and the cement plant north of Picton were not blacked out because they are fed from a separate line from Belleville.

Obituary

MRS. ALEXANDER H. MAGUIRE

In failing health for some time, Mrs. Claudia Winnifred Maguire of 180 McDonald Ave., died early this Wednesday morning at the Belleville General Hospital. She was in her 81st year.

Born in Frankford she was the daughter of Thomas Mr. and Mrs. John Richards. She has lived in this area most of her life, moving to Belleville in 1936 from Corbyville.

Mrs. Maguire was a member of Bridge Street United Church and was very active in church organizations when health permitted.

She was a life member of the United Church Women, a member of the Women's Missionary Society, the Albert College Guild and the Quinte Women's Institute.

Surviving besides her husband, Alexander H. Maguire, are two sons, Donald G. Williams of Belleville and Max Maguire of Stirling and a daughter, Mrs. Doris Howie, Reg. N., also of Belleville. She predeceased in December of 1964 by a son, John Williams. She was twice married.

Also surviving are 11 grandchildren and five great grandchildren. She was the last living member of her family.

Funeral on Friday afternoon from the Thompson Funeral Chapel, 38 Everett Street.

Hilda Jones Says Many Folk Are Neglecting Their Pets

TRENTON — Trenton's pet control officer, Hilda Jones, has a problem. In fact, she has a number of problems.

A lover of animals, she is distressed at the lack of concern Trenton and area persons are showing for their pets. Dogs are running at large through the town and almost none of them have collars and tags. When picked up, they are kept in Hilda's kennels until claimed, and if not claimed, they are destroyed. Hilda has no alone returned to her their owners to earth before destroying the animals.

Hilda Jones says she has definite proof that outsiders are bringing their dogs into town and leaving them. Here, they wander around, hungry and cold, until some kind (or irate) person phones her to take them in custody. Over last weekend, Hilda had 23 dogs in her kennels. Manager-in-charge is something Hilda just cannot comprehend.

Another problem is a rumor that's come to her ears that Murray Hamilton intends not to renew its efforts to have her kennels shut down. Council, in the past, has had a number of complaints about the "Trenton pound," (Hilda's kennels), but Hilda has always been backed by council.

What the town needs, says Hilda, is an animal shelter with in the boundaries of the organization. She has half wrung the promise of this from some members of council, but would like to see more action.

Hilda is also to see more active interest taken in the Trenton Humane Society, formed a year to day ago. She was the first president of this organization.

Meanwhile, Hilda, who works day and night, is here to help us, and, not, casting any reflection on their honesty, it would be a great temptation to pick up everything on four feet under these circumstances. My method is to try to find people before doing anything drastic. My chief concern is for the well being of animals. I think I've been doing a good job and efficient job and most complaints since I took over. People need to be aware of the need to check animals for tags and rabies—and there is unkindness being practised in this town."

Out of the annual salary paid by the town, she must provide transportation, hire the two boys mentioned above, keep the dogs for a certain period, feed them, provide medical care and pay for having them destroyed when this is necessary.

The story of Hilda's many sided job as pet control officer will appear in an up-coming issue of Chatelaine, Canada's leading women's magazine.

Youths Fined

TRENTON — Glen Besteck and Ronald Sharpe, two local youths, were charged in police court here with "prowling at night."

Defence lawyer W. G. Weston said Webster's Dictionary defined "prowling" as "roving in search of prey." "Lurk" was a synonym of "prowl", Mr. Weston said.

Acting Crown Attorney Thomas Lally went on to define "lurk" as "to lie in the same category as a cat watching for a mouse."

The youths who admitted crossing over a property at 43 Heber Street to the back of 66 East End Ave., also admitted turning out the light at the back of the lunchroom "for a lark."

"These men were prowling," insisted Mr. Lally, "they didn't have to be on their hands and knees making like a tiger."

Magistrate J. C. Wills told them they had no business being on someone else's property and fined them each $1 and ordered them to pay court costs of $7.50 apiece.

CRASHING SPREE

BRISTOL, England (CP) — John Robinson, 26, was fined £40 and disqualified from driving for one year for waging a car "duel" with a business partner. The two men raced side by side for nearly an hour through this city's streets in the early hours of the morning. The cars collided and rammed each other several times.

Harold Keefer Again Heads Concert Group

TRENTON — The Community Concert Association at its executive meeting recently decided to invite the Canadian Opera Company to perform in Trenton next season. It is expected the opera will be Verdi's "Aida" and will be sung in English.

Howard Keefer was re-elected president at the election of officers which constituted part of the meeting. Robert Smirkitis and Donald Sinclair will assume the offices of first and second vice-presidents, with Miss Edna Finkle as secretary and R. D. McDonald as treasurer. Mr. Smirkitis will be ticket and publicity manager and Mrs. T. W. Speer, campaign secretary. R. C. Cornish, Ted Meeker and Claude Huffman are in charge of publicity.

Dates for the official campaign will be March 8th - 12th, but because of limited seating capacity, Mrs. Hugh Bird Anderson sees 775 - a pre-campaign will be held in order that present subscribers may have an opportunity to renew their subscriptions. Dates for this pre-sale of subscriptions will be March 1st - 5th. Members will be contacted by workmen early in that week.

A reception for all Community Concert members will be held at the close of the last concert on March 2nd. This will give members an opportunity to meet the artists as well as to become acquainted with fellow members.

Some changes in by-law were made, the object being to simplify the structure of the organization and to widen the scope of new members to the board of directors and to the executive.

Mr. T. W. Spear was re-elected to the Board of Governors. New Directors include Mrs. R. Simmons, Trenton, and Mrs. F. H. Dumsett, Brighton.

Teachers Will Hold Meeting

TRENTON — On Friday, Feb. 5, a professional development day will be held at Trenton High School ...The students have been granted a holiday to make room for the 400 district secondary school teachers expected to attend.

Chairman of the conference is Brighton high school teacher Robert Bird.

In the morning, the teachers will hear an address by T.W. Latta, president of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

In the afternoon, discussion groups will be held, and the teachers will examine the latest in text books, for selection and use in 1965 and 1966 school year

Shows Color Slides Of Her Native France

TRENTON — Mrs. Ann Forbes of Trenton, a native of Provence, France, was the speaker at this week's meeting of the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club. Mrs. Forbes showed colored slides of her native province and gave a running commentary of its history and on present-day conditions there.

The dinner meeting, held in the Gilbert Hotel, was conducted by president Violet Cranch.

The speaker was introduced by Ann Johnson and thanked by Mrs. L. Hinton.

CHOOSE QUEETLY

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Chile has decided to try to stifle the noisy, boisterous campaigning that usually precedes elections. A new law forbids posters or loudspeakers in the streets prior to the March 4 congressional election and all campaign propaganda will be limited to officially erected blackboards at street corners of major cities.

Red Threat in Africa Real: Robert Thompson Declares At Chamber Annual Dinner

Social Credit leader Robert Thompson last night warned the Western democracies must come alive to a Communist takeover threat in Africa.

Liking Communism on the African scene to a "large hippopotamus... submerged, save for its eyes and its nose" he told leading Belleville business-men:

"There is a determination on the Communist part to move in and take over Africa as the most important next step in spreading Communism across the world."

The Social Credit leader, guest speaker at the annual Belleville Chamber of Commerce dinner in the Hotel Quinte, said there is no basic difference between Moscow and Peking on the value of the African prize.

Mr. Thompson, an expert on African affairs who recently parleyed on behalf of rebel-held foreign hostages in the Congo, also charged French recognition of Red China gave the Communist nation a breakthrough in Africa.

Diplomatic missions in Paris and in former French dependencies bordering the Congo provided the Chinese with an entry into African affairs.

"It wasn't until France recognised Communist China that China found a wdy of challenging influence into Africa," said Mr. Thompson.

More

TRAINED BY CHINESE

Leading figures of the recent bloody Congolese revolt were Chinese trained, he said.

"The attitude and policy of these ragged armed forces you could scarcely call them an army — follow exactly the same kind of pattern as they (Red revolutionaries in China) did under Mao Tsetung: 'Resist all authority. Destroy those who stand in your way'."

However, while domination of such nations as Angola and Rhodesia also poses an explosive threat, said Mr. Thompson.

"As long as the white man forces his domination on the black man in these countries, Africa is going to broil."

Such situations are a potential Viet Nam or Cuba as threats to world peace.

Moderate leaders — including Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie and Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya — have made it clear that the mainstream of African thought is "that Africa shall be Africa and its problems shall be solved by Africans."

Outside interference would be regarded as imperialistic intervention, whether from Western or Communist powers.

But "in the perspective as they see it they are willing to play one against the other."

HUNGRY FOR PROGRESS

Hunger for progress is relentlessly propelling the African peoples forward at an unprecedented pace and "all plans for Africa must be geared for that reality whether we think they are ready for it or not."

Repeatedly on his recent Congo mission, said Mr. Thompson, African leaders emphasized that their continent's problems were political, not military, and that they must be solved by Africans.

Canadians, he added, have a unique opportunity to assist the emerging African nations since they already have built up a store of personal goodwill on the continent.

"I believe that there is great hope for that country (the Congo) and one day the frustration and despair that we find so much today will disappear as we go together to build a better world."

Earlier in his address the Social Credit leader impartially praised the Canadian government's role in seeking release of the Congo hostages.

"I must say this for the Canadian government" he said: "As far as I can see Canada was far more interested in doing something to protect its own nationals than almost any other nation involved. It was Canada that led the way in trying to negotiate for the direct release of all the hostages."

Mr. Thompson was introduced by former Mayor A. McLean Haig and thanked by Donald Templeman. The meeting was well attended.

Chamber Increases Basic Fees

In a state of forced transition, the Belleville Chamber of Commerce fears for its operation by any immediate reduction of revenue.

Hence last night its annual meeting at the Hotel Quinte agreed to raise its basic membership fee from $15 to $20.

The meeting learned the Chamber emerged from its 1964 operations with a bank balance of $385.

During the year it accumulated $16,180 in revenue and spent $13,905, for an operational profit of $1,200.

But some extra driving was needed to keep the balance on the credit side.

Biggest financial blow came from a change of attitude on the city council-level over industrial promotion.

Hitherto, directing of municipal industrial promotion has been a twin function of the Chamber's secretary manager. This year, council established an industrial commission, whose powers consequently replaced the responsibilities of the Chamber officer. The city then withdrew $2,400 from Chamber allowances, in part offsetting it with $1,000.

Special projects by the Chamber effort an impending deficit but treasurer P. B. Deacon last night warned the continued success of such projects could not be trusted.

"Expenditures have been cut to the bone and any further reduction would seriously impair the operations..." he said.

The meeting voted unanimously for the fee increase.

Equipped Trailer Park Plugged as Boon to City

A "properly equipped trailer-park" last night was plugged as a boon to Belleville economy via the tourist industry.

The suggestion was made by outgoing Chamber of Commerce president Pat Houston at the annual meeting of his group in the Hotel Quinte.

Such a project must be accessible to all main highways "above all attractive and free," he said.

The Chamber must also educate local citizens to sell their city, he said.

"Clerks and waitresses, service station attendants, police too and all others who contact our tourist visitors must learn to be friendly and co-operative and know our city. They must be able to answer all questions and above all be courteous."

And, he concluded, "the American dollar must be recognized and exchange allowed on it. Unfortunately sometimes this doesn't happen."

Mr. Houston was succeeded formally last night as president by George Hume, sworn in by Mayor Jack Ellis.

Funeral

MRS. ALICE GILL

The funeral of Mrs. Alice Gill, formerly of 373 Coleman Street, was held Saturday afternoon from the Grant Funeral Home where service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. Everett Smith. Interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were Charles Barnett, William Calvert, James McLuskie, John Hegan, Frank Butler and Dan Wilson.

Appointments By American Optical Made

The American Optical Company of Canada Limited has announced the appointments of George B. Newell as financial adviser, and Ronald F. Sanewsky as controller, both appointments effective Feb. 1.

Mr. Newell will be responsible for reviewing the overall position of the Company by special assignments and recommending changes wherever necessary. In addition, he will advise the controller on all financial operations until July 1, 1965.

On or about July 1, 1965, Mr. Newell will return to the parent company, Southbridge, Massachusetts, for an assignment to be announced at a later date.

Mr. Newell attended American International College Springfield, Massachusetts, and was graduated in 1950. He joined American Optical Company at Southbridge, Massachusetts, in 1953 as assistant to the general cost accountant and later became plant accountant, Frederick, Maryland, assistant to the controller in Southbridge, Massachusetts. In December 1961 Mr. Newell was appointed assistant to the president, American Optical Company Canada Limited and in February 1963 became controller.

Mr. Sanewsky will be responsible for administering all financial areas of the company, including general and cost accounting, credit, personnel and purchasing.

Mr. Sanewsky attended University of Hartford, Hartford, Conn., and was graduated in 1955. He joined American Optical Company at Southbridge, Massachusetts, in October 1955 as internal auditor, and in October 1964 became assistant controller of American Optical Company Canada Limited. Mr. and Mrs. Sanewsky are now residing in Belleville.

Construction Credit Bureau Man Can Smell Cosa Nostra Entry Soon as It Is Made

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP)—Jack Sadler has been in the credit end of the construction business for 17 years. The Mafia must hate his guts.

For Mr. Sadler, as manager of the Construction Industry Credit Bureau, can smell a Cosa Nostra entry into the industry the moment it gets its grip on a tottering contractor.

During time off from the annual Canadian Construction Association convention here, he explained the syndicate's methods:

"What happens is that they buy out a contractor who is in trouble and shoot some money into the firm.

"The firm picks up several contracts. It takes the money for a few months, doesn't pay suppliers, then declares bankruptcy."

Under the present federal Bankruptcy Act, this leaves creditors such as building materials suppliers and subcontractors holding the bag.

The business of the credit bureau, which opened last May in Toronto and plans offices across Canada, is to tip the industry off to such operations.

The bureau, an offspring of the Canadian Creditmen's Association, keeps its expanding membership of 9 firms informed on "where the money is coming from" on jobs they may bid for.

PUT UP DUMMY

"The relationship between the owner and the builder of a commercial enterprise can put you on guard against possible bankruptcy," he said. "The owner may put up a dummy company, then sub - contract the work."

A Montreal office to be opened next month will offer evaluations of past work of subcontractors, and the present load they are carrying.

The failure of a sub-contractor can ruin the general contractor, who may find himself facing bills left unpaid by the sub-contractor.

The Canadian Construction Association has been pressing for several years for amendments to tighten the federal Bankruptcy Act. About 20 per cent of bankruptcies occur in the construction industry.

"We think rather a lot are fraudulent," Donald Jupp, president of the body, said in an interview.

Besides amendments to close loop-holes that allow "white collar racketeers" to milk a company through its name, he suggested that a superintendent of bankruptcy be given deputy minister-rank in the provinces.

He would study each bankruptcy for fraud, investigating transactions that preceded the failure and the business that were administering it.

Measures also should be taken to prevent contractors from getting so deeply in debt they were ripe for failure.

NO TRUCK WITH BUS

CHESHAM, England (CP)—A beer truck and a bus met travelling in opposition directions in a narrow lane. Each refused to back up to allow the other to pass. The truck driver made himself comfortable — arms folded and feet on the steering wheel. The impasse lasted for 20 minutes. A court judged the blame—a £25 fine for truck driver, £5 to the bus driver.

Big Daddy's Suggestion

"Big Daddy" Frederick G. Gardiner celebrated his 70th birthday by proposing a solution for what he called the toughest problem facing Metropolitan Toronto whose affairs he guided as chairman of its council for the first eight years of its existence.

Mr. Gardiner would split the 13-municipality complex into four to six boroughs and divert commercial and industrial taxes from all the municipalities to the metropolitan government.

Suitably revised, his plan might provide the solution for problems facing "dormitory communities" in many other parts of the country.

If municipal taxes on all industries did not belong solely to the municipality in which the industry was located, but were divided amongst the home municipalities of its employees, it would be much fairer. Special provision would need to be made for the municipality in which the industry was located, because it would have to provide the expenses by reason of the industry's location — such as those for fire protection, traffic control and police protection. The remainder of the taxes paid by the industry would then go where they rightfully belong, to help provide the schools and other facilities used by the industry's employees and their families.

The plan would have the additional merit of reducing competition for new industries between neighboring municipalities. As long as the industry located in their general vicinity, all would share in the benefits and none would be faced with additional costs without the compensation of additional industrial taxes.

Nasty Overtones

British Conservatives can be forgiven their jubilation at the defeat of Patrick Gordon Walker, foreign secretary in Prime Minister Wilson's little Labor Government. Any time the opposition can convert a 7,926-vote deficit into a 250-vote victory—and this against a man already chosen for one of the most important Cabinet posts—it has good reason for congratulating itself.

Unfortunately, though, there are unpleasant over-tones to this victory. Walker, one of the Labor Party's inner circle, lost his seat of Smethwick in the general election and this defeat, at a time of Labor gains, was generally ascribed to the race question. Walker, and Labor, had taken an unpopular stand favoring equal treatment for all. "If you want a Nigger Neighbor, vote Labor" was a slogan widely used. The same slogan was utilized against Walker in Thursday's by-election in Leyton.

Though there were some charges of Conservative complicity in the appeal to racial prejudices in Smethwick, as far as we have seen there have been no similar charges in connection with the Leyton campaign. Nevertheless, in such a matter any upset is impossible to ignore the possibility that the racial issue played a role. If it did, many men of all parties, Conservative and Liberal as well as Labor, will not be able to accept the result as an unmitigated blessing.

Interesting Side Effects

Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec plans legislation to restrict the powers of the Legislative Council, Quebec's "upper house." Quebec is the only province which retains such an institution.

Although the Legislative Council's opposition to some of Lesage's measures may have played a role in the decision to seek the reform, basically the decision to act now arises from the proposal to "repatriate" the right to amend Canada's constitution. One of the provisions of the agreement reached between the provinces and the federal government is that, once the power to amend the BNA rests in Canada and not with the British Parliament, provincial powers affecting one province will be amended only at the request of that province. Since all bills passed by the Quebec Legislative Assembly are subject to approval by the Legislative Council, the Council could block any request for amendment to the constitution, including any request to abolish the Legislative Council. In other words, if the Council's powers are to be restricted, it must be done now, before the repatriation of the power to amend the constitution makes the Legislative Council invulnerable.

This interesting little by-play illustrates once again that frequently changes produce unexpected effects.

At twenty a man is full of fight and hope. He wants to reform the world. When he's seventy he still wants to reform the world, but he knows he can't.—Clarence S. Darrow.

Letters to the Editor

Proposes New Road Along Shore of Bay

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

A note with interest your editorial on January 8th, "Mayor Right on Bridge Question", especially your desire to leave Church Street untouched because of the three schools on it. However, you did not go far enough.

Do you realize what will happen to some other schools, three directly, one of which is a primary school and another the School for the Deaf, and three other primary schools some what less directly if the Dundas Street Bridge is built? This bridge is to carry four lanes of traffic which are supposed to serve the ending of Dundas Street West to four lanes immediately and shortly thereafter the widening of Dundas Street East. On Dundas Street West are located Albert College and the Collegiate School for the Deaf and not a stone's throw away is Avondale School and a little further away the new Sir MacKenzie Bowell School. Do you really want four lanes of traffic, probably with no its crossed speed limit, in this area?

Once Dundas Street West is four lane, Dundas East must follow. On this street are located the swimming pool, Queen Alexandra and Bayview Schools and not far off Queen Elizabeth School. It is true Bayview already has four lanes of traffic but these do not carry near the amount of traffic they will have to carry with a four lane road across the city. Is this what we really want for our city?

Happily there is a solution. Mr. Allin has proposed an idea which has merit but will take to long. The ideal would be to construct without delay a completely new two-lane road immediately south of the C.P.R. from the Cemetery crossing along the bay shore to Front Street. From Front Street it could follow existing Foster Ward streets to Foster Avenue and connect to Pinnacle Street and angle through mostly vacant property to Foster Avenue where it will join up with the planned road through the "Green Belt" area, eventually rejoining Highway No. 2 at the Bakelite plant. Then, when the C.P.R. tracks are removed the extra two lanes can be provided as a bonus.

Instead of providing four lanes of traffic, two on Dundas and two on the bay shore, would be far less costly. The "Expert" Expert" have proposed. "The Experts' Plan" for Dundas Bridge would only have to consider the road from the cemetery to Front Street since the rest of the development is already there or will be constructed anyway. Most of the property involved west of Zwick's Island is fit only for boat houses, and not much good for that. We don't have to be filling on the Bay at points but this has proven to be no problem. Let your imagination run and see the many advantages of this plan.

Removal of heavy traffic from school areas.

A high speed route from the west end to Front Street.

No desecration of the present beauty of Dundas Street.

Through traffic routed around rather than through the heart of the city.

A scenic drive.

The preservation of a marvelous location for a "Look Out Park" near the Devil's Elbow.

"Citizen"

Supports Proposal By Ald. Jack Allin

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

Congratulations to Alderman Jack Allin on his farsighted idea for a better Belleville.

He recommended rerouting the C.P.R. line from the westerly city limits to pass the city parallelling the C.N.R. (as is done in most other cities.) This would completely eliminate the level crossings at Pinnacle, Front, James, Baybridge Road, Sidney Sts. and the cemetery, and limit the remaining five, east of Church St., to the small amount of railroad shunting traffic required to serve the industries in the southeast part of the city.

The right-of-way now occupied by the C.P.R. could then become our own Gardiner Expressway right through the city to the east.

Years ago the railroad built two bridges crossing the river and removed the southerly one as it was not necessary. Both bridges remain and if the present bridge was removed the piers would be wide enough to support a wide, modern vehicular bridge.

Our council is now considering spending $2,000,000 on the Dundas Smith Plan to provide a bridge at Dundas St., ease the grade on West Dundas and eliminate the Bay Bridge Road level crossing. If the Dumas Smith Plan is followed in its present plan it will restrict or eliminate completely business and industry on Dundas St. No. 1 from James St. to Highland Ave. The Dumas Smith Plan would do much harship to pedestrians using our parks area developing on Zwick's Island and to the east of the Bay Bridge Road. They would have to walk the increased distance up the hill to Holden St., cross the tracks on the proposed bridge over the tracks and walk down to the level of the parks.

When you compare the long term advantages of Alderman Allin's suggestion and the expensive Dumas Smith Plan, I believe the mayor and his council representing the taxpayers of Belleville should investigate this change.

Loss of Porch Is Mourned

Regina Leader-Post

The house porch is rapidly becoming a thing of the past. There was a time when a porch was considered an essential part of any house.

In northern climes it served several purposes. In winter weather was right it was a place for social teas, or a children's playroom. In summer it was used as a laundry area or a place of temporary storage. When enclosed it became a barrier to winter winds that sought to penetrate the cracks of windows and doors.

In southern areas it was more specifically a place for relaxation, enhanced by the presence of rocking chairs.

Modern architecture no longer recognizes it as a necessity or even an attractive appendage. The house that still has one is rated as old-fashioned.

The front porch, the back porch and the side porch are bits of Canadiana that have all but completely vanished under the influence of the ever changed pattern of life in the western world.

In spite of the so-called leisure hours being more plentiful, there seems less time for relaxation which the presence of the old spacious front porch engendered. Folk no longer seem to favor the homey, simple heart warming and satisfying contacts with friends and neighbors for which it provided the perfect setting.

No porch was complete without rocking chairs, though other things such as swings and hammocks were present at times.

The rocking chair made porch life wholesome and satisfying. Old people and those with tired muscles and weary hearts were refreshed as they lazily rocked back and forth, gossiped knitted or commented on the life of the community.

official declaration is thus serving a most useful purpose.

It would be unfortunate indeed if the flag's introduction were to be the occasion for public displays of emotional opposition. Such traditionally loyalist groups as the Legion and the IODE perform a valuable national service when they adopt a positive approach.

Legion Gives Town Flag

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

While production of the new Canadian flag goes ahead, along with plans for official inauguration ceremonies, it is good to see that some of the foremost Canadian groups are now accepting the maple leaf flag with good grace.

The Royal Canadian Legion the other day presented the new flag to officials in Burlington for use on the new town hall. The president of the Burlington Legion branch urged that it be flown as soon as possible.

The Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, through president Mrs. D. W. McGibbon, has announced that the new flag will be recognized by the organization because our "national organization declares some time ago that if our government decided on a distinctive Canadian flag, as a Canadian organization we would recognize that flag."

People Often Gain Weight Upon Giving up Smoking

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband quit smoking a year ago. He weighed 212-218, but has gained to 222. It' too much to diet and give up smoking at the same time.

He has a good appetite but doesn't eat as much as some of our friends who are average or skinny. (I've cut down on preparing rich foods.)

Sometimes he craves a cigarette so much that he can hardly bear it. How much longer is this craving likely to last, and will he continue to gain weight on a regular diet?

A friend who quit smoking at the same time said several weeks ago that he had the habit licked. He has gained weight, too, but he needed to. — Mrs. B. D.

It seems to me that you may be losing your perspective a bit.

True, some people gain weight when they quit smoking. Others can't. The gain is usually because they cigarette-giver-upper starts nibbling candy or other food instead of reaching for a smoke. Or before quitting, he had developed gobs of smoking when he really should have been eating.

If, when one stops smoking, his eating habits remain unchanged, then so does his weight.

From your letter, your husband has gained either four pounds, or 10, or something in between in the last year. I can't tell which. But in any event, it doesn't look to me as though he had done any reducing before he stopped smoking, and he hasn't accomplished anything since, either.

I'd suggest that you do more than cut down on rich foods; cut them out entirely. Your husband can be well-fed and still reduce his weight, a few ounces a week, if he will stick to a diet that can include meat and potatoes, vegetables, fruit and a some milk, if he avoids sweets, pastry, gravies, and most of the fats. — What means fried foods of all kinds.

As to his not eating "as much as some of our friends who are average or skinny," let's put it this way. Since he is gaining weight, he is eating more food than he is using up. Maybe his skinny friends get more exercise.

Or, more likely, they don't eat as much as you think they do. The Slim Jims often eat a stow away a big meal occasionally, but eat less the rest of the time, and they do little if any nibbling between meals.

Stout people, in general, are those who eat heartily at all meals, and are more inclined to have snacks in between.

Any physical craving for cigarettes is gone within a couple of weeks. After that it's a matter of the mind. Your husband really has done very well, staying off tobacco for a year. I think all he has to do now is just convince himself that he has the habit licked, too.

Dear Dr., Molner: Is it normal for adults to take naps during the day? My mother is 44 and takes a nap every afternoon. She never has any trouble sleeping at night. — T. M.

Naps are relaxing and it would probably be a good thing if most adults got in the habit.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, just turned 17, gets her yearly horse shoes in July and has been this way for over a year. She refuses to go to a doctor. Is this serious? She seems to be in good health otherwise. — Mrs. D. G.

It's not unusual, and if this 21-day cycle has become established, it could continue for some time. The familiar 28-day cycle is only an average, anyway. Other cycles, longer or shorter, can be perfectly normal.

"Tips on How to Stop Smoking," by Dr. Molner, will help you give up the habit. To receive a copy of the booklet write to Dr. Molner in care of this

Nuclear Arms Race Is a Grim Travesty

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The stronger we get, the weaker we are. This is rapidly becoming the paradox of military strength in the modern world. And this is why the whole nuclear arms race is such a grim travesty of "defence" and "security."

As more and more smaller nations acquire the ability to make and deliver nuclear bombs the strength of the United States and Russia becomes less and less important. For we and the Russians have the most to lose, and neither of us can afford an "accident" that might escalate into nuclear warfare.

The H-bomb is wiping out differences in size and strength; indeed, it is reversing these traditional differences. In another decade, perhaps a half a dozen powers will have the bomb; and then another half-dozen. What does it matter if we can kill our "enemies" 20 times over, if they can do it even once?

The diplomatic and military frustration among the large powers today comes from what the behavioral scientists call "cognitive disagnance." All that large arms race has done is set know one thing, and we believe another. We believe in a "strong America," but we know that a strength of arms has become a dangerous, or fatal, illusion. We are like a giant walking along a busy thoroughfare, carrying a load of dynamite in both arms. A Nasser can tweak our nose, a newborn African nation can kick our shins — but we cannot drop the dynamite to retaliate, or everybody will go up in smoke.

When we were weaker, when the world still had only conventional weapons, then we were stronger. We could move ships and men and planes in some decisive way, and both sides knew there was a limit to the damage that could be done. Fear was never "civilized," but it was finite. It ended when a specific goal was achieved.

War of the future, however, is irreversible. Once set into full-scale motion, it cannot be halted when a city has fallen or an outpost been captured. War now has a built-in self-destruct mechanism — no longer "us or them" but "us or nobody."

Every responsible leader — political, military, scientific — on both sides of the Iron Curtain knows this to be a fact. But our whole inherited system of beliefs and ideologies will not square with this fact; and so we keep going from strength to strength, getting weaker as we go, making more certain that if the ultimate confrontation comes, nothing at all will be left. This is what we call "a strategy."

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials tacked on substantial gains in moderate morning Stock Exchange trade today.

Speculatives were dull.

In the main list, widespread fractional advances predominated. B.C. Forest Products was up ¼ to 30½ and CPR 1⅜ to 67⅝ after touching a high of 68. Trading was heavy. Consolidated Paper added 1¼ to 43¼. Massey-Ferguson and Distillers Seagram each gained ⅜ to 35⅝ and 30, the former at its high. Algoma Steel, Dofasco and Domtar each advanced ¼ to 72¼, 27¼ and 24¼.

Senior base metals rose. Hudson Bay gained ⅜ to 78¼, Noranda ⅛ to 55⅛ and Cominco ⅜ to 45⅝. Denison, shrouded in rumor, was up ⅜ to 37⅝.

Texmont added five at 81 cents among penny stocks.

Golds were quiet. Dome gained ⅛ to 36¼.

In oils moderate trading Tuesday industrials and base metals made gains but other sections were mixed to lower.

Bank of Montreal rose 1¼ to a high of 70 and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce 1¼ to 71¼ after trading at a high of 71¾. Royal was up ¼ to 83½ and hit a high of 83½.

Domtar traded heavily and rose ¼ to 24 while Distillers Seagram and Imperial Oil advanced ½ a piece to 35 and 59. Goodyear Tire was a standout with an eight-point rise to a high of 174. Volume, however, was only 235 shares.

CPR was active and gained 1¼ to 66¼ after reaching a high of 66¾. Dominion Stores added 1" at 27 and hit a peak of 27¼.

Noranda had a 40,000 - share special-sized transaction at 54¾ for a total value of $2,190,000. The stock rose ⅛ to 54⅞. Denison dropped ¼ to 37. Falconbridge rose ⅛ to 88 and Cominco ⅛ to 45.

On Index, industrials rose .51 to a high of 173.35 and the Toronto Stock Exchange Index .50 to a high of 162.36. Base metals rose .36 to 79.32. Volume was 3,719,000 shares compared with 3,507,000 Monday.

March of Dimes Organization Ready for Drive

Chairman of the 1965 March of Dimes committee, Fred Deacon, and other members of the committee have been preparing for the annual campaign since the beginning of January.

Phil Bennett of Bleecker Ave. is in charge of distributing coin collectors to the various stores and has also been busy distributing advertising posters.

Chief Marching Mother, Mrs. Joan Bennett has been organizing her marching mothers for the past few weeks for the one night blitz which is being held February 1st.

Mrs. Bennett hopes the ladies in the city will come forward and volunteer to canvas homes on their block as they have in the past. Five hundred Marching Mothers are needed and nearly all of these have been obtained.

The campaign is a one-hour blitz and no call-backs are required. Each Marching Mother is asked to call on only 10 of her neighbors between 7:00 and 8:00 p.m.

Any lady wishing to give this hour to help the disabled is asked to call Mrs. Joan Bennett at 968-7551.

Monies which are to be collected by the campaign will be turned over to William O'Brien, assistant manager of the Bank of Montreal. Mr. O'Brien is finance chairman for the 1965 campaign.

This year's objective has been set at $6,000.

Special Program For Kiwanians

The Kiwanis Club of Belleville yesterday celebrated the 50th Anniversary of Kiwanis International at their regular noon hour meeting.

A special program under the direction of L. Kells had been arranged. A panel consisting of past-presidents conducted a question and answer session.

The questionaire was based on information about the club, testing the knowledge of its members.

The various tables were divided into groups and a captain selected at each one. The table giving the correct answer received a prize.

You're probably wondering why you received your income tax form in the mail at home rather than from your employer?

We think it's more efficient. Your employer doesn't have the responsibility of handing out forms. There is less chance of you losing them. And everybody gets his income tax form at the same time. It is a Personalized tax form. It is mailed to you. Completed by you. Returned by you. This year, because your income tax form bears your identification code number, it can be processed faster and more economically, and, in the long run, make your tax dollars go further. Since we will be handling 6,500,000 tax returns this year (and more next year) you can see the benefits of switching to this system. You can help us make it even more efficient by filing your income tax form early. Please.

MAILED TO YOU.
COMPLETED BY YOU.
RETURNED BY YOU.

Ann Landers

Most Constant Talkers Are Victims of Nervous Habit

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My parents tell me that when I was a little boy they were worried about me because I didn't say a word until I was almost four years old. They even took me to doctors. The doctors said I would talk when I was ready.

ANN LANDERS

Well, now I am 13 years old and I can't shut up. I talk mostly foolishness which makes me ashamed of myself. Sometimes I don't know what I am going to say until after I have said it. I can make up an opinion without any notice. I even interrupt people who know what they are talking about to say something I just thought up that very second.

Already I have been nicknamed "Gabby." Can you help me? Why do I talk all the time? How can I make myself shut up? — TALKING MACHINE.

DEAR MACHINE — Most people who talk, talk, talk, are victims of a nervous habit. Silence makes them uncomfortable. They fear if they don't speak people will think they are stupid or dull. Nothing could be further from the truth. Silence is a better clue to intelligence than senseless chatter.

Train yourself to listen. You'll be amazed at what you can learn when your mouth is shut.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I heard you lecture recently and you said almost half of your readers are men. I was not surprised because my husband says all the men in his office discuss your column every day.

Since a great many men read you, Ann, will you print something about American men who are killing themselves trying to corner all the money in the world?

Every time I pick up a newspaper I see where some young executive had dropped dead of a coronary. I worry myself sick that my husband will be next.

What can be done about a man who is so obsessed to succeed that he is driving himself to an early grave? Yes, I like the advantages that come with money, but I'd rather enjoy fewer of these advantages and have my husband with me 10 or 15 years longer.

Please discuss this in the paper, Ann. I'm sure other women are searching for an answer. — TOO YOUNG FOR WIDOWHOOD.

DEAR TOO YOUNG — Hard work never killed anybody. Worry and tension are the twin demons that can put people six feet under before their time. Of course, unsuccessful people can worry themselves into early graves, too, but you don't hear much about them.

Eighty years ago the life expectancy of the average American male was 34. Today it is 69. People are living longer, but they must die of something — sometime. The old killers, TB and typhoid are well under control. Diagnosis today is more accurate, too. Fifty years ago men died from heart disease but often the doctors called it something else because they didn't know what else to call it.

The best way to avoid a heart attack, according to the experts, is to keep your weight under control, exercise moderately — and regularly — and pick ancestors with good blood vessels and a history of long life.

* * *

Confidential to RAT-FINK AND PROUD OF IT — So what did you gain by the back-stabbing and petty gossip? You've lost two friends for sure, maybe four. If you don't learn to keep your bazoo closed after this experience, you are utterly hopeless.

Turkey Pies In Family Size

By MARY MOORE

Today's topic is meat: Turkey Savory Pies for a party (or family meal) and Roast Leg of Lamb.

My son-in-law and daughter gave a party for his colleagues and their wives when I visited them in Soest at Christmas. I was gratified to be included in the planning.

Since the host and hostess favored hot food and since thirty-five guests were invited and their stove is only medium-size, plans were laid carefully. I discovered 6 deep 9¼" pyrex pie plates in Marianne's cupboard — enough to hold food for this army they had invited. My mind flew to a savory pie. Lovely frozen turkeys were available at the Maple Leaf Services store, so together we decided on 6 Turkey Savory Pies, following my recipe for Chicken Savory Pie.

On Christmas Eve I asked the German butcher, Jascha, to thaw a 12-lb. bird in his cooler over the Christmas weekend and to bone it out and grind the meat for me early Monday morning. He did and included the carcass for a big pot of turkey soup.

I trotted home, my bulging parcel containing 9 lbs. of ground fresh turkey meat clutched under my arm, and merrily went to work.

TURKEY SAVORY PIES (serve 35 to 42):

To make the turkey custard filling (see note below for filling for one family-size pie) for six 9 x 1¼" pie plates, in a big preserving kettle, lmixed together my 9 lbs. raw ground turkey meat, 18 eggs, 3 tablespoons salt, ¾ teaspoon pepper, 3 cups 18% cream and 6 cups milk. I lined the 6 pie plates with rich plain pastry with big fluted sides. I mixed the filling well and dipped into it deeply with a jug, filling the lined pie plates as full as reasonable. I baked 4 pies at once on 3 shelves at 350 deg. F. When they were beginning to set at the edges I sprinkled each generously with shredded Swiss cheese. (I ran out of Swiss and used Cheddar for the last pie. It was just as good.) I rearranged them in the oven and baked them 1 hour in all, when they were set and golden brown. When all were done Gary stacked them in their basement cold room for a day.

At party time Marianne reheated them in the oven at 325 deg. F. for an hour. Herbie served these piping hot, cutting each into 7 wedges and topping each wedge with hot chili sauce. The compliments that reached our ears were gratifying. This is a splendid low cost idea for you if you are planning to invite a crowd.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Broiled Bacon-wrapped Beef Cakes; Buttered Brussels Sprouts; Creamed Potatoes; Cheese-Stuffed Celery Stalks; Apple Dumplings with Lemon Syrup; Coffee.

NOTE:

Filling for one Turkey Savory Pie: 1 1/3 lbs. raw ground turkey (or chicken or ham), 4 eggs, 1¼ teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup 18% cream, 1 cup milk.

My Australian nephew-in-law loves lamb. For him I roasted, back in Canada, a 6½-lb. leg Canadian lamb, hung 23 days, at 250 deg. F. 4 hours. Absolutely perfect. Try it.

U.C.W. Meetings

(WELLINGTON U.C.W.)

WELLINGTON — The January meeting of Unit 1 of the Wellington United Church was held in the Centennial parlor. The leader Mrs. C. Campbell welcomed the members and visitors and opened the meeting.

Mrs. Gordon Parks conducted the devotional period. Mrs. Alyea read a chapter from the study book on Brazil. The Misses Sharon McNeill and Elaine Bishop sang a duet accompanying themselves on guitars.

Mrs. Allan Weese was introduced and showed some lovely slides of San Francisco and Hawaii, which were much enjoyed by all. Mrs. J. Dick thanked Mrs. Weese for her interesting travelogue.

Lunch was served by the ladies in charge.

WEDDING

TEERSTRA — STAPLEY

STIRLING—A recent double-ring marriage ceremony was solemnized in Eggleton United Church by Rev. James Payton of Tweed, assisted by Mr. Aylmer Smith of Thornsbury, when Marilyn Rose Stapley, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stapley of Hallowell, Ontario, became the bride of James Teerstra, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Teerstra of Frankford.

The altar was adorned with commercial white and mauve chrysanthemums and the guest pews were designated with pink and white carnations.

Mrs. Bruce Stapley played traditional wedding music and Mrs. Maurice Clancy rendered two vocal selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length bridal gown of white satin with the bodice featuring a round neckline adorned with pearls and sequins, and long lily-point sleeves. Her headdress was a bandeau of white sequins from which flowed an elbow length tulle veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white carnations.

Miss Joan Nunn of Stirling was maid of honor wearing a two-piece street length dress of red velvet with matching shoes and headdress. She carried a mixed bouquet of variegated 'mums. Miss Sharon Reid of Hallaway and Miss Kathy Teerstra, sister of the bridegroom, of Frankford, were identical two-piece street length turquoise velvet dresses with matching shoes and headdresses. They carried bouquets of turquoise and white carnations Little Miss Sandra Stapley, sister Of the bride, as flower girl, was most demure in a red velvet dress trimmed with white lace. She wore a red satin head band and carried a miniature bouquet which matched those of the bridesmaids. Master Gary Stapley, brother of the bride, carried the rings on a white satin cushion.

The reception was held in Stirling Community hall and Eggleton U.C.W. catered. The tiered wedding cake was centred beneath an arch of roses and flanked with white candles in silver candelabra. Mrs. Stapley received the guests wearing a red wool dress with white and black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a gold colored brocade dress with black accessories and a corsage of bronze 'mums.

For the wedding trip to eastern points the bride wore a blue wool dress with black accessories and a carnation corsage. On their return they will reside in Stirling.

Guests were in attendance from Oshawa, Woodbridge, Belleville, Trenton, Wooler, Frankford, Foxboro, Orono, Carrying Place, Carmel, Minto and Madoc Junction.

Business Girls Of Eastern Star Elect New Officers

"Business Girls" Belleville Chapter No. 55 O.E.S. held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Frances Vansickel. Election of officers took place with the following officers installed for 1965 — president, Mrs. Wynne Tomlinson; vice-president, Miss Mary Carmichael; secretary, Mrs. Queenie Fox; treasurer, Mrs. Phyllis Berry.

BURSARY FOR MINISTER

Plans for 1965 were lined up, keeping in mind the main yearly project of a bursary for a student minister. Proceeding the business end of the meeting an auction sale took place which proved both entertaining, offering exceptional purchases for the highest bidder, and in turn realizing a sum for the fund.

Delicious refreshments were served and a social hour was enjoyed. Next month's meeting will be in the form of a "pot luck and euchre party.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Dr. Edward J. Boyle, Doon Mills, Ont., 336 Bleecker Ave., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Boyle, was admitted into the Fellowship of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada, at Convocation Hall, University of Toronto, on Thursday, January 21st.

Speaking Personally

by Gladys Ward - - - Women's Editor

THE YOUNG GENERATION

A reader said not long ago, "You don't sound sometimes as if you had a very high opinion of teenagers."

I would hate to think I have given this impression because I think this generation of young people is probably the best informed, the most idealistic, and the most promising of any age yet.

I know this is dealing in generalities, and there is always the other side of the coin, but in my opinion, most young people today are much better prepared for life than past generations, much more knowledgeable. They know things it took us years to learn. They are more overt in words and deeds than we were when we were young, which is a good thing. They are more wholesome and open, less bigoted, and more willing to accept new ideas.

Of course they have crazy fads. What generation doesn't? But they will outgrow these.

Every year among the graduate students there are many who dedicate their lives to some cause or people where they feel they are needed. Indeed, in the past year this paper has published stories about young people from this district working for the welfare of Negroes, Indians and Eskimos, as social workers, teachers and nurses.

They are more aware than other generations about moral issues and public affairs. They are in daily contact with world affairs by means of television, radio, newspaper and schools. Their horizons have widened. Where the older generation thought in terms of local interest, they can watch the United Nations at work.

In spite of juvenile crimes that make the headlines, the majority of our young people are better educated, better behaved and more responsible citizens than any previous generation, and the outlook is bright that our country is in good hands.

DON'T GO!

Do you remember when you were young and watched a silent movie? As the heroes or heroines started to walk into danger, unaware of what awaited them, or into a trap, everyone in the theatre yelled, "Watch Out!"

This same feeling came over one, watching the TV review of John F. Kennedy's last hours. You had the feeling you wanted to stop the action, or say, "Don't go! Turn back."

As the inexorable wheels turned on his car, you found yourself gripping your hands, and trying mentally to stop fate and the doom which awaited him like a crouched animal ready to spring and kill.

But the wheels turned and turned bearing him to inevitable death. And you sighed with helplessness, regret and the feeling of futility and loss.

Paris Spring Fashion Show Features Loose Tunic Panels

PARIS (Reuters) — The Jeanne Lanvin collection opened at the Paris spring fashion show today with wide-legged printed silk beach pyjamas reminiscent of the lounging fashions of the 1930s.

Designer Jules Crahay shows them with long unfitted bodices tied on one hip with a floppy bow and worn with jauntily tipped sailor hats. Basic silhouettes at Lanvin have not cast out the "straight and narrow" but give skirts a new lease on life with split seams and flying panels.

Crahay shows these seven-eighth length tunic panels on dresses and suits accompanied by a brief, waist-length bolero jacket.

Loose panels are often contrived with deep inverted pleats. They are open at the sides, front and back up to the waistline and swing into movement when the models walk. Newest looking suits feature contrasting patterned fabrics in an identical medley of colors.

Geometrical tartan woollen suits have silk blouses printed with polka dots or small abstract designs.

Crahay carries the tunic theme through into other silhouettes with circular skirts. Underskirts established at the same length but are seen neatly cover the knees. Umbrella tunic skirts flaring from the waistline are buttoned onto the underskirt with big buttons spaced between the deep flares around the hemline.

Prisoners

tion five months ago for which the girl claimed not to have had proper medical treatment.

Mr. Singer said girls hate to go on the Mercer "sick parade" because usually the most they can hope for is a laxative. One girl, he said, had migraine headaches and was given a laxative to cure them.

Mr. Trotter said chamber pots are emptied once a day and cleaned once a week in the same bathtub girls use for bathing.

He said Mercer is completely outdated. "It is a slum," he said.

"I think the chamber - pot approach to reform institutions must go."

The three Liberals said the Conservative government should replace Mercer as quickly as possible.

Among other complaints made by prisoners were:

—News papers allowed into the reformatory are always at least a day old; and controversial items have been clipped out.

—Tea is provided in the evening but prisoners must stand up when they drink it, lest they spill tea on furniture.

—Only Protestant and Catholic church services are provided. If a member of one church attends the service of another, she is punished.

The legislature members said they had intended to visit other provincial reformatories, but they were so amazed at what they found at Mercer that they didn't continue.

been barred to them by para-troopers, and dragged the beds the monks had been resting on into the streets.

The Buddhist hierarchy broadcast an appeal "to all chapters throughout the country" to cease the anti-government campaign.

Authorities prepared for trouble as reports circulated that Buddhist mobs would sack newspapers which opposed the Buddhist campaign against Diem.

Police had orders to use tear gas to disperse them.

Khanh called in Deputy U.S. Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson to tell him of the military takeover.

Khanh issued a communique saying he was taking charge "to restore the political situation at the present time." He charged that the civilian government of Huong and Chief of State Phan Khac Suu "is not able to cope with the supremely important present emergency situation."

The communique, broadcast by the official Viet Nam press, did not make clear the status of Huong and Suu, but they evidently were deposed. Informed sources said Khanh likely would reappoint Suu as figurehead chief of state.

"Now it's Taylor or Khanh," a Vietnamese officer said. "One or the other has to go."

Khanh is understood to have made the recall of the ambassador one of his prime objectives.

Khanh said his general staff would name a 30-member military-civilian council to advise the government on important decisions.

The coup took place without violence.

Successful Living

Budding Musician, Beatles Have One Thing in Common

DEAR DORIS — I think you are just wonderful for helping all those people who write in to you with their problems.

Like "Christine," I have always wanted to study music. Now I have decided to save up for a uke(lee). If I get one, could you send me a book or the title of one to teach myself? — GRACE.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR GRACE — Let me know when you get the uke. I can get you a book which won't cost you very much.

Second Letter:

DEAR DORIS — Well, I bought a second hand uke last night. It was quite inexpensive and I enjoy strumming on it.

I'm sending the money for the book. I now feel I have something in common with the Beatles — we all play a stringed instrument (all except Ringo.) — GRACE.

DEAR GRACE — Good for you. The book is on its way. Set aside half an hour a day to practise — just as far away from kid-suffering listeners as possible. Until you get so good they'll beg you to play for a singsong!

DEAR DORIS — I am 13 years old but my aunt (guardian) treats me like a two-year-old. For instance, I have to be in bed by eight o'clock. Every time she goes out someone comes to baby sit me. I have to read a story to her out of my reader every night. I can't watch any other TV shows but cartoons.

I don't see why I have to be treated like this because my reading is very good and I don't need a baby sitter. The kids at school tease me until I can't bear it. Please help me. — MISERABLE.

DEAR MISERABLE — By the time you are 12 you are ready for some growing-up concessions, like an occasional up-late, a party with playmates, a TV play a step more educational than cartoons.

If you are normal size and in the grade which is about right for your age, think about Saturday morning work minding someone else's baby. Showing some gumption about the dusting and dishes might also help jar your over-anxious Auntie into taking a second look at this growing-up girl she cares about.

Could be your teacher or a family friend would talk this over with you and undertake to remind your guardian that you are growing up.

DEAR DORIS — I read in your column of a young woman who is afraid of childbirth.

I would suggest that she try reading a wonderful book about it written by an English doctor. I am sending the name of it, and the author. It's a tremendous help to any woman who doesn't understand, and has any fears about giving birth to a child. — D.L.C.

DEAR D.L.C. — Fine. I'll pass it on if "Afraid" writes in again. She didn't give us her complete address.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The first regular meeting of the month was held in the Moose Hall, recently with Senior Regent Nell Shandrew presiding.

During the business session the main topic of discussion was about the mid-winter conference to be held January 31 at Club Canara. All co-workers are asked to contribute towards the lunch and to give their utmost co-operation at this time.

The hospital chairman for the group is now able to attend the meetings and members were pleased to welcome her back again.

The meeting was brought to a close and lunch was served by Jackie Auldhouse and her committee.

At the meeting previous to this one a small number was in attendance which resulted in a very brief meeting. This was followed by a discussion. Lunch at this time was served by co-worker Eleanor Hume and her committee.

Susanna's Family Fare

ELECTRICAL IMPULSE

Dear Susanna: This idea is almost better than talking to yourself.

You're all alone in the house watching T.V. and doing the weekly frosting, when suddenly a fuse blows.

A look at the fuse box doesn't tell you a thing — there aren't any blackened ones, so you start the trial and error method with a fresh fuse.

Before you begin however, plug your vacuum cleaner into a wall plug that is on the burned out circuit and turn the switch of the vacuum on. Now go to the basement and start changing fuses. When you hear the vacuum roar upstairs you'll know you've struck pay dirt. — E. V. Smedley.

Getting just a little bit spooky there, aren't you?

In all seriousness, for safety's sake, be sure to pull the main power switch off each time before you touch the fuse box. Change your fuse, then try it out by turning on the power. — SUSANNA

TIPS FOR TRAVELLERS

Dear Susanna: About once a month, my husband takes a business trip, and I travel with him for company.

One of the first things I do when we arrive at our destination is to turn on the hot shower tap, get the bathroom good and steamy, and then hang up my dresses on the shower rack to shake out.

The crease resistant and drip dry ones respond especially quickly — almost as though I had ironed them. — "On the Move"

On the subject of steaming clothes in the bathroom, it is also a fine idea for freshening up the general appearance of a velvet dress, but to really bring up the nap on the stubborn places, we have to work a little harder.

One way is to stand the iron on its end, and cover it snugly with a damp cloth. Run the wrong side of the fabric against the covered iron. See the change?

No one can say we're all napping! — SUSANNA

Farewell Party Held by Friends

MINTO—Salem church hall was filled Friday night when the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Mowat Sine tendered a farewell party before they moved to their new home in Stirling, after having sold their farm.

Mr. Ivan Sarles was chairman for the evening. Community singing was enjoyed, with Mrs. V. Hagerman at the piano. Mrs. Harold Holden gave a reading. Mrs. Ed Colden sang a selection. Kathy and Klinton Kitchen gave instrumentals. Mary Lin and Betty Sine sang also. Six school girls, sang a number.

Mr. Sarles asked Mr. and Mrs. Sine and Mr. Fred Hagerman to take seats on the platform and expressed regret on losing such fine friends and neighbors from the community.

Mrs. Tom Clements read an address and Mr. and Mrs. Sine were presented with a coffee table and mirror and Mr. Fred Hagerman was presented with a chair on behalf of the community.

Mr. and Mrs. Sine and Fred Hagerman thanked everyone for attending and for the lovely gifts and invited all to visit them in their new home. Short addresses were given by J. R. Hagerman, Ed Colden and Gordon Bailey.

Congregational Meeting

JOINT MEETING

MARMORA — The congregational meeting of the United Church circuit of St. Andrew's Zion and Cordova was held in St. Andrew's on January 19th.

A pot-luck supper was held in the church hall and later others joined to convene for the business meeting and reports with Rev. J. M. D. McLeod as chairman.

Members of the session were re-elected with one addition. Stewards were also re-elected for three-year terms. The session report for three charges showed sacrament of the Lord's Supper, ten times; 15 baptisms; 17 marriages; six burials, and membership were Cordova 49; St. Andrew's 343 and Zion 68.

The U.C.W. of St. Andrew's showed a prosperous year with an output of $2,408.95 and balance of $370.64. Mrs. L. Stetson was president. Gratifying reports were received from the AOTS club of St. Andrew's and the senior choir. The Hi-C group sold Christmas trees and conducted the annual New Year's party. The C.G.I.T., the Explorers, the Sunday Schools are all in thriving conditions.

LAST AND FIRST

DIGBY, N.S. (CP) — This western Nova Scotia port claims the last baby born in 1964 in the province and the first born this year. The 1965 arrival greeted the new year when it was three minutes old, the daughter of RCMP Corporal and Mrs. Quentin Wenzus. The last baby, born in the final minute of 1964, is the son of Lieut. and Mrs. Robert Carlyle.

The Experts Say
Can Make Fancy Coffee Minus Espresso Machine

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — You can make some of the fancy coffees served in restaurants without an espresso machine or custom-roasted blends. But you should use coffee of good quality in a blend you like, freshly ground and carefully brewed.

If the experience of one Toronto coffee house is any indication, people are more interested in learning the secrets of making good standard coffee than in the exotic recipes.

Martha Rutanzyl, owner of the Coffee Mill in the fashionable mid-town Bay-Bloor area, says:

"There are only a few Europeans who like the strong coffees. Most other people order them sometimes to try something different. But we are always being asked how to make Canadian coffee."

Steven Kaskoto, manager of the Coffee Mill, says the coffee house sells its own blend by the pound in beans, but "people sometimes come back to tell us they didn't get the same results we do."

DON'T BOIL IT

"The first question I always ask is when they ground it. If you keep it ground you don't have to wonder why a coffee is weak and tasteless.

"You should grind it just before you use it. From the beans to the table should be five to 10 minutes. You can store coffee in beans up to two weeks if it's sealed.

"The second question I ask is how they brewed it. The coffee should not boil with the water. If you percolate it, it means the coffee is going to boil again and again. You know that if you heat coffee up again it doesn't taste the same. It's the same idea."

Mr. Kaskoto says coffee should be crystal clear with no solid particles in the liquid. One way to make it is to use a pot that has a coffee container which can be fitted with a paper or fabric filter.

Bring the water to a boil and just pour it over the coffee. The temperature may drop about 10 degrees but it can then be brought back to just below the boiling point before it is served.

Mr. Kaskoto says the blend they use is based on Colombian coffee with four other kinds added.

"You must have the right mixture for you. Never look for a bargain. The difference in price between good coffee and ordinary coffee is about 10 to 15 cents a pound."

MIX YOUR OWN

You can get a hand or electric grinder for about $10, he says, and the special coffees may be available in food specialty shops and department store grocery sections.

Very strong coffee may be added to a standard mixture to improve it, the mixture being 30 to 35 per cent strong to 80 to 75 per cent regular.

If you want to serve something different at a party or after dinner, Mr. Kaskoto says there are several simple variations to try.

For Viennese coffee use a vanilla stick, orange or rum for flavoring and top the coffee with whipped cream.

A chocolaccino is half hot chocolate or orange rind, Irish coffee is black coffee with Irish whisky and a bit of sugar added. It may be topped with whipped cream and should be served in stemmed glasses. Cafe royal is black coffee with cognac added. If you want to, take out the alcohol, Mr. Kaskoto says, pour the coffee first and add the cognac by pouring it over the back of a spoon. Then light it. To add extra flavor, burn a sugar cube in the flame then drop it into the coffee.

Dear Friends and Customers

We have just completed 35 years of business in Belleville. The business was established in 1930 at 29 Bridge St. E. by my father Mr. William Wonnacott, deceased.

After completing my education, I entered the business in 1949 and partnership was formed in 1950. In 1959 we moved to our present address giving us more room for a wider variety of merchandise and to enable us to give you better service.

We are proud to say that we still have in our employ Miss Vira Rundell who has given us loyal and devoted service since my father started the business.

It has been our pleasure to serve the residents of Belleville and area over this period of time and we hope to continue to give friendly, dependable service for many years to come.

Sincerely,
George W. Wonnacott

ST. THOMAS' ANGLICAN CHURCH

The annual vestry meeting of St. Thomas' Church, Belleville, was held on Monday evening, with the rector, the Venerable A. S. McConnell, M.B.E., L.Th., in the chair. Following the opening prayers by the rector and the appointment of Mr. F. J. Lancaster as vestry clerk, the minutes of the last vestry meeting were read as well as letters of Christian greetings from the parishes of Christ Church and St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill.

RECTOR'S REPORT

In presenting his report to the vestry the rector intimated that attendance at all services was a par with or better than last year with the exception of the service of Evensong on Sunday and asked for more support for this service. A total of 314 services of all kinds too place during the year with 59 baptisms, 35 persons confirmed, 15 marriages and 37 burials. The report noted 783 calls made at hospitals and 390 made at homes in the parish. These were over and above calls made by the Reverend D. W. Sinclair in the first four months of the year.

WARDEN'S REPORT

The financial statement for the year 1964 was presented by the rector's warden, Dr. E. G. Loder, and showed receipts in excess of $42,000. Besides meeting all the expenses the Synod assessment of $8,155.00 was paid in full; an amount of $8,768.14 was transferred to the building fund and some $1,200 was donated for items outside the parish which included the Anglican World Mission, the Primate's appeal and the Canadian Bible Society.

The rector asked Mr. R. T. Morton to act as rector's warden for the coming year and made a presentation of a picture of the church to Dr. P. G. Loder who was retiring from that position. He thanked these two men for their faithful and effective work for St. Thomas' Church and reminded the vestry that they were both sons of clergy who had served the church most faithfully and laid a foundation for their sons.

APPOINTMENTS MADE

The report of the nominating committee was presented by the chairman, Dr. P. G. Loder, and was accepted unanimously by the vestry. The following are the appointments for 1965:

People's warden, Mr. R. W. G. Freetsone.

Junior wardens—Mr. John Denton and Mr. F. J. Lancaster.

Lay delegates to Synod — Messrs. Mac Smith, W. S. Stone, A. S. Lewis, R. Keel, M. F. L. Jones and R. E. Carruthers. Alternates — Brig. J. E. Gemmell, C.B.E., M.C., L. Gnaedinger and L. A. Kells.

Executive council — Messrs. E. B. Morden, A. J. Fox, S/L. L. J. Minion, D. Holmes, E. G. Lanning, F. G. Loder, O. Hales, F. W. Newman, R.E. Churcher, H. H. Murray, R. J. Wilson, John Trafford, S. G. Durrant, M. R. Arnott, W. H. Muirhead, J. H. Turner, J. L. Anderson, and S. D. LeBaron.

Financial statements, duly audited, were presented from the various parish organizations and passed by the vestry, showing a healthy year's work done by the various W.A. groups in missionary endeavors and assistance in the parish by the Women's Church Year and the Altar Guild. A brief report by Mr. Mac Smith from the stewardship committee intimated that there was much to be done by all members of the parish during 1965.

BUDGET COMMITTEE

The report of the budget committee was presented by Mr. R. T. Morton and fully discussed and accepted by the vestry. Mr. F. J. Lancaster and Mr. W. S. Stone were thanked for their work as auditors, done gratuitously for the parish and were re-appointed for the present year. Mrs. T. E. Smith was also appointed parish representative for the Victorian Order of Nurses.

Highlights of the past year referred to by the rector in his report included the visit of Bishop Sabiti, the Woman's Auxiliary Diocesan conference, the tribute to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, the Inter-Church dinner arranged by the B.A.C., and the excellent attendance at the mid-week Lenten communions and the Christmas services.

He paid tribute to the Rev. D. W. Sinclair, S/L the Rev. D. G. Medill and Mr. W. W. Davenport for assistance with the church services during the year. The vestry stood in silence for the reading of the names of 37 persons who had passed away in the year. Plans are under way for a memorial service for the late Sir Winston Churchill next Sunday at 11.00 a.m.

RECTOR'S MESSAGE

In concluding his report the rector had something to say about the present day church in these words: "I am afraid that we Anglicans, even in the face of so much talk about ecumenity, are inclined is be isolationists. Like you I take great pride in our ancient heritage and would be somewhat sorry to see our mode of worship and our doctrinal beliefs disturbed. But we cannot let these Christian denominations take the lead towards a form of unity and hold back for non-essentials that might prevent a better understanding among our fellow Christians."

A tribute to the fine spirit of fellowship exemplified in the parish is found in these words of a personal nature: "I do want to say, most sincerely, that it is a great joy for my wife and myself to live among you. Your friendly attitude, your many acts of generosity, your interest in our family every, although they are not known to you and your co-operation in the many facets of parish like make us feel that there can be very few of our clergy who are fortunate enough to serve in such a happy atmosphere as we find within the family of St. Thomas' Church."

Following the meeting coffee was served by Mrs. N. A. Fitch, er and her group of the Women's Church Year and a half-hour of fellowship brought an interesting and successful evening to a conclusion.

Kiwanis Club Will Present 'Wings to Puerto Rico'

Tomorrow evening the Kiwanis Club of Belleville will present another of its travelogues in the "Travel and Adventure Series" at the Belleville Collegiate Institute auditorium. The noted photographer, Mr James Metcalf will present the travel- film "Wings to Puerto Rico."

Mr. Metcalf who has been in the photographic profession for almost 20 years has/a background which, in the travel film field. He majored in chemistry at the University of Michigan, later studied commercial photography, graduating from the professional school at Winona, Indiana. During World War II he travelled extensively for the Army Ordnance Corps, producing technical manuals and training films.

—"Wings to Puerto Rico" is an all-color travel film of an interesting part of the Caribbean that is one of the Dependencies of the United States. Recent years have seen an aggressive development program pursued by the Puerto Ricans.

Scenes are shown of the Capital city of old San Juan, many tourist resorts with a number of booming industries of Puer to Rico shown in detail, including the great sugar industry, the rum industry, Ponce's huge cracking plants, rug weaving artists, the Stokley Van Camp pineapple fields, and the second largest tuna canning industry in the world.

This film carries the viewer from the mysterious depths of a tropical sea to the Modern Puerto Rico, and up to 3000 feet to a magnificent view of this jeweled island from one air.

IODE Will Continue Use Of Union Jack at Meetings

MARMORA — The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire will continue to use the Union Jack in its ceremonies as a symbol of its Commonwealth affiliations. National President, Mrs. D. W. McGibbon said: "We carried the Union Jack originally as a symbol of the Empire, we will continue to carry it because we are a Commonwealth organization."

At the January meeting of the I.O.D.E. held at the home of Mrs. D. P. Marett the winner of the grocery basket was Mrs. Wayne Grant, Marmora.

A letter was read by the Regent, Mrs. G. Meiklejohn, regarding the I.O.D.E. centennial project. The provincial project is to be an exchange of Grade 11 students and the national plan is a gift of $50,000 in 1965 to be divided among the branches in the 10 provinces.

Mrs. Don Marett read a release on this subject, that through the Provincial headquarters 16 historical reproductions in a set were being made available and Marmora Chapter agreed to order a number of sets to be given to elementary schools.

SEND SCRIBBLERS

A shipment of scribblers will be sent to the adopted school at Davis Inlet which has 30 day students and 20 adults for night classes. Mrs. Vaughan Glover advised that a shipment of sewing and knitted goods is being sent to provincial headquarters. Mrs. Howard Bleecker read a paper regarding the celebrations in Kingston to commemorate the birthday of Sir John A. Macdonald.

U.C.W. Meetings

AIKEN'S U.C.W.

The January meeting of Aiken's United Church Women was held at the home of Mrs. E. Bush. Quilting was the order of the day with a pot-luck dinner at noon with 12 members present for the afternoon meeting.

Mrs. Percy Hamilton played quiet music. Mrs. O. Pearson was in charge of the devotional and opened with a New Year's poem. Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton took the meditation and the Scripture. The Bible Study was conducted by Mrs. O. Pearson, Mrs. H. Hamilton and Mrs. R. Marshall and taken from "God and His Purpose".

The president, Mrs. K. Jones took charge of the business and thanked the hostess and program committee. It was decided to send $5. to the Lay Foundation. Next meeting is to be held February 10th at the home of Mrs. D. Thompson. The president reminded all of the Presbyterial to be held in King St. Church on January 27th and 28th. The theme being "Your Church and the World".

The president closed with a New Year's thought.

ST. JOHN'S U.C.W.

TWEED — St. John's U.C.W. of Tweed met in the church hall and Mrs. E. Hodgins opened the meeting with the devotional: A skit "Didn't You Mean What You Said" was presented with Mrs. Hodgins, Mrs. Payton and Mrs. Elliott participating. Mrs. Donnelly took charge of the business and the annual reports were given.

The officers for 1965 were installed by Rev. J. Payton and are as follows: honorary president — Mrs. James Payton; past president — Mrs. E. A. Hewitt and Mrs. W. Donnelly; 1st vice-president — Mrs. K. Fisher; 2nd vice-president — Mrs. Lorne Guaning; treasurer — Mrs. S. Dafoe; recording secretary — Mrs. R. Cotton; corresponding secretary — Mrs. R. Sedore; community friendship — Mrs. C. Moon; literature and communications — Mrs. L. Elliott.

Program — Mrs. E. Hodgins, Mrs. C. Aiton and Mrs. H. Foster; stewardship secretary — Mrs. C. McCulloch; assistants — Mrs. William Barnett and Mrs. Heath Jones; supply and social — Mrs. M. Rannie; assistants — Mrs. G. Bateman, Mrs. H. Minnie and Mrs. H. Huffman; manse committee — Mrs. G. Cotton, Mrs. H. Varty and Mrs. N. Thompson Sr.; flower committee — Mrs. H. Connor; social functions — Mrs. F. Bowers, Mrs. D. Palmateer and Mrs. R. Palmateer; Chapman — Mrs. H. Connor and Mrs. K. Belch; co-operation in Christian education and missionary — Mrs. C. Deshane.

Nominating committee included Mrs. N. Jones, Mrs. C. Barcett and Mrs. T. C. Graham; unit leaders: lodge room — Mrs. R. Palmateer; Chapman — Mrs. D. Lawrenson; Actinolite — Mrs. S. Marsh; and Sulphide — Mrs. K. Credicott; evening unit — Mrs. J. Payton; town units — Mrs. E. Hodgins, Mrs. G. Bateman and Mrs. C. Aiton. Lelach and a social time followed.

BEAUTIES IN BED

HALIFAX (CP) — Women patients at the Halifax mental hospital are getting expert beauty care in pleasant surroundings. Professional beauticians and hair stylists visit the hospital weekly. A new, modern salon was recently opened in the hospital by the local White Cross auxiliary.

SEA'S GOLD

It is estimated that more than 10,000,000 tons of gold lies in the sea, washed down from the land during millions of years.

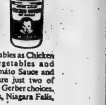
Use a doubled plain cloth-cover for small, touch-up paint jobs. For larger areas double over again.

Bringing Up Baby

SHEETS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

The undefined status of a toddler presents some problems to the mother. Neither all baby nor fully developed child, he needs more attention than the stay-put baby. Since he tries more things, there are bound to be more frustrations. Then too, the pressure to learn good behaviour, plus the need to assert himself, make the toddler a bit unruly. Ways to ease these normal "growing pains":

• Extra tenderness to offset frustrations . . . extra patience at seeming perversity . . . extra guidance in all phases of development.



Appetite delights for busy sprites. Year-olds' appetites may lag a bit, primarily because the growth rate slows down. Easy way to continued meal-appeal . . . serve Gerber Junior Foods and serve 'em in goody variety. Their extra-special goodness stems from the fact that they're "custom-cooked" to help preserve nourishing food values and natural colours and flavours. Seasoning is added with a knowing hand to suit a toddler's taste.

New and appetizing, too. Gerber Junior Apricot is made to tickle a toddler pink. Filled with flavour, it is ready and waiting to be happily enjoyed.

Nursery cue for you-know-who. A gallon plastic ice cream container, covered with gay wallpaper or contact paper, makes a nice wastebasket for the nursery. Good way to help teach your toddler to pick up scraps after a round of paper-playing.

Winning combinations for active toddlers: Gerber Junior Dinners. These special "casserole" dishes are especially delicious because they combine vegetables, cereal and meat for flavour to spare. There are such extra-special delights as Chicken Noodle with Vegetables and Spaghetti with Tomato Sauce and Beef. And these are just two of twelve good-tasting Gerber choices. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Congregational Meetings

(Christian and Missionary Alliance Church)

Sixty-eight members and adherents were present for the annual business meeting held in the upper auditorium of the church with the pastor, the Rev. Seckville Palmer, presiding.

Following the preliminaries, Mr. Palmer, who, leaving shortly to take up his new appointment in the Owen Sound Alliance Church, read a portion of Scripture. Mr. Palmer also commended the congregation for its faithfulness during the eight and one-half years of the pastorate with them.

PASTOR'S REPORT

"From 1956 to 1964, 103 had been received into fellowship; 93 had been baptized; 36 children had been dedicated, and 30 marriages performed. Financially, the assets had increased from $15,240.15 in 1957 to $37.81 at the present time." The missionary offering and pledging amounted to a total of $6,270.65. The 1963 pledge had been over-paid by $551.00. Two young people of the church were attending the Canadian Bible College in Regina, Miss Pauline Clarke, who will graduate in June this year and Miss Leona Embury who completes her second year. Both are fitting themselves for work in the regions beyond.

NEW GROUPS

Two new groups have been formed: an Alliance Men's Fellowship and a Christian Education Committee, the latter for counselling and giving direction to all departments of youth work and the Sunday School. The committee to be amended to the executive board.

The Sunday School has an enrollment of 290 in all departments, with a 15 percent increase in Sunday school, and 30 percent increase in the Home Department.

VARIOUS REPORTS

The various reports heard included the following: the treasurer's by Paul Masse; that of the Sunday school by the superintendent, Mr. Lawrence Dent who stated that a Sunday school by mail was to be instituted. The S.S. financial report by Miss Hannah Dyke; the Women's Missionary Fellowship, by Mrs. W. Leonard, which was read by Mrs. E. Masse; the DVBS by Mrs. Palmer; the AYP by Miss Elaine Landry, and Miss Joan Rodgers; reports of the Pilgrims and Calendar groups by Mrs. A. Rodgers and Mrs. J. Large, respectively; Christian Service Brigade and the Stockade reports by Messrs L. Kerr and L. Lumley. All reports showed a fine year financially. Prayer was requested for membership in these latter organizations. The report of the Young Adult Group was also heard.

1965 OFFICERS

Following the report of the nominating committee the new officers were elected for the coming year:

Executive committee: recording secretary, F. Allan; church treasurer, Paul Masse; financial secretary, Mrs. M. Baragar; missionary treasurer, A. Rodgers; members without portfolio, C. Fenton, W. Sills, D. [illegible] and E. Vardy. Elders W. Sills and W. Rodberg. Sunday school superintendent, L. Dent; assistant, E. Vardy; AYP president, Heather Hawley; head usher, D. Bean; committee stewardess, Mrs. V. Thompson; assistant, Mrs. V. VanAllen; benevolent fund convener, Mrs. J. Wesse; Alliance Men's president, D. Bowers; assistant, F. Allen; librarian, H. Dyke; kitchen convener, Mrs. J. Large; organist and music director, W. Leonard; assistant, Mrs. E. Pickard; pianist, Miss M. Thompson; assistant, Miss D. Alyeo; choir director and leader, Mr. James MacKay; assistant, Mr. Lloyd Kerr.

Following the close of the meeting refreshments were served in the lower auditorium, by the ladies of the church, assisted by the young people.

PAPERS RELAXING

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Mary Walker, 67, reads the daily paper through from cover to cover. She says it's the favorite part of her day. It's relaxing and takes her mind off her work—she's a printer. A printer for 52 years, Mrs. Walker recalls the days when presses were operated manually and the work was arduous. "But there's a lot of education in the newspaper business," she says.

Church Groups

ONTARIO DIOCESAN WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

The January monthly meeting of the Ontario Diocesan Woman's Auxiliary was held at St. Luke's Church, Kingston. President, Mrs. S. G. Jackson of Belleville presided and the Rector, Rev. H. C. Secker conducted the opening devotions. Mrs. J. E. Rae, president of the hostess branch welcomed the members present and expressed best wishes for the coming year.

Mrs. E. H. Godden of Belleville told the members that the reports received from the branches showed work totalling $15,800 had been completed in the Diocese.

The guest speaker, the Very Rev. R. G. Fleming, Dean of St. George's Cathedral, stated in his opening remarks that he is interested in Cathedrals and is making a study of them.

RELEVANT TO AGE

The 20th century Cathedral is facing problems today not unlike the ones the church in the world and the W.A. are facing. We have to examine [illegible] directives and forms to see if they are relevant to the time and age in which we are called upon to serve and we may perhaps find it is not always wise to think of doing things in the old way. He further stated that Cathedral foundations are very old institutions and have been part of the Church's life from the beginning. Cathedrals were and are the seat of the Bishop of the Diocese.

BEAUTY AND ORDER

Cathedrals are worthwhile in the life of the Church since it is a place where large gatherings may be held, a place for annual meetings as well as Synod, the ordaining of clergy and where special Diocesan services may be held. One can look to a standard of beauty and order in worship which is not always open to the average congregations. As a parish and Diocesan centre they have a responsibility to industry in a way which we have not been able to grasp.

Mrs. LeRoy Boyd of Kingston thanked Dean Fleming saying he had given the members a great deal to think about and a challenge as we are all part of the Cathedral and should be interested in it as the Mother church of the Diocese.

Mrs. J. E. Utley of Trenton thanked the ladies of St. Luke's W.A. for their hospitality.

First Beat Father
Woman Golfer Won 9 Championships

VANCOUVER (CP) — When Violet Pooley was 10 she surprised her father and his friends by beating them in a golf match.

After the shock were off, however, he realized he had a potential champion in the family. And Violet didn't disappoint him, winning nine British Columbia championships and three Pacific Northwest crowns.

Today, more than half a century later, as Mrs. S. C. Sweeney, she is no longer active in tournament golf but her name is still before the public. The Sweeney Cup, which she donated, is regarded as the top for B.C. women golfers.

When she was eight, Violet caddied for 25 cents a round at Macauley Point Golf Course in Victoria until she saved enough money for clubs. She spent two years practising in secret.

Her father granted her request to play a few rounds with adult golfers and she was on her way. In 1905 she won the Pacific Northwest at Portland, Ore., and then captured the B.C. Women's Open for the first time.

LONG SKIRTS

In Egypt to visit relatives, she found a golf course along the Nile and took part in contests with her foul handicap. Later in Scarborough, Yorkshire, she beat the reigning British women's champion and put in three cards of par on every hole.

She was married in 1915 but her husband, though a hotshot at billiards and tennis, wouldn't play golf with her.

"I don't remember dates very well," says Mrs. Sweeney, "but I do recall the skirts that reached the turf, and used to wear a piece of elastic round the waist and pull it down to the knees for putting so we could see the ball and swing the club. The rest of the custume for golf was a white-sleeved shirt with collar and a man's black tie."

Mrs. Sweeney won the Pacific Northwest again in 1927 and 1928, inspiring one reporter to write that "Queen Violet can show the youngsters how to play this game."

She won her last city championship in 1935, still playing with the goosenock putter and wooden clubs that had been with her since her first tournament.

Postal Staff Holds Shower

FRANKFORD — The local postal staff held a shower for Mrs. Ella Tripp and Mr. William Tripp at the home of Mrs. Madge Bailey on Monday evening.

During the evening games were enjoyed. The hostess arranged a guest chair for the honored guest, decorated with pink and white streamers and overhead wedding bells.

Postmaster Earl Rogers, on behalf of the staff, presented Ella and Bill with a large clothes hamper and a lovely woollen blanket for which they expressed sincere appreciation.

PC Chief Returns to Ottawa Without Thought of Retiring

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker returns to Ottawa today from a 10-day visit to his home province of Saskatchewan with obviously no thought of giving in to any pressures for his early retirement.

Instead, Conservative party sources indicated Tuesday, he is only beginning to fight. He has selected Theogene Ricard, MP for St. Hyacinthe - Bagot, as his right - hand man in Quebec and speaking engagements in the province are being considered.

Mr. Ricard, personnel manager of a Quebec Eastern Townships textile firm and an MP since 1957, was named parliamentary secretary to Mr. Diefenbaker as prime minister in 1962. He was a minister without portfolio when the Diefenbaker government was defeated in 1963.

While a member of the Quebec Conservative caucus which earlier this month called for a leadership and policy convention of Canadian Conservatives, Mr. Ricard has constantly pledged his loyalty to Mr. Diefenbaker as national Conservative leader.

GOING TO LONDON

Mr. Diefenbaker will fly later this week in London to attend the funeral of Sir Winston Churchill in St. Paul's Cathedral. His office said he may stay in London during the early part of next week.

On his return, he may accept, one or two speaking engagements in Quebec before Parliament resumes Feb. 16.

This is being urged upon him by some of his supporters, but no engagements have yet been made. On this point he is taking the advice of Mr. Ricard, described by one Conservative source as "Diefenbaker's new man in Quebec."

Mr. Ricard's rise to this unofficial and unannounced status came with the falling apart of Mr. Diefenbaker and the party's Quebec leader, Leon Balcer, former transport minister and now leader of the Quebec caucus.

While in Saskatchewan, Mr. Diefenbaker made it clear he has no intention of quitting. At a testimonial dinner in Prince Albert, he urged his fellow townsmen to join him in battle, and at a Conservative rally in Moose Jaw he pointed to a "Carry on, John" banner and said that's what he intends to do.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask (CP)—Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker said Tuesday the Liberal party is in grave difficulty.

Events in the past few weeks indicated political immorality in Canada is certainly not above reproach, Mr. Diefenbaker told a press conference here.

The fact that the prime minister had sent his ministers a directive to either recently cast aspersions on the entire cabinet, he said.

The opposition leader asked that Prime Minister Pearson reveal the facts about former cabinet minister Yvon Dupuis' resignation from the cabinet before he (Mr. Pearson) forgets."

There should be a commission appointed to look fully into the department of immigration regarding "the loose manner in which undesirables were finding refuge in Canada" he said.

MAKES THREAT

In a speech later in Saskatoon, Mr. Diefenbaker threatened to unveil charges that American money helped Liberal political campaigns in 1962 and 1963.

Mr. Diefenbaker, speaking at a Progressive Conservative reception during a stopover on his way to Ottawa, said "an American organizer in Canada under an assumed name had told the Liberals how to attack me."

"I kept silent because I did not want to bring about disunity. The Liberal press started these scurrilous attacks against me. I've never told the story of the 1963 election but that is going to be told soon."

Mr. Diefenbaker also referred to ministers who left his cabinet "because their ambition was greater than their loyalty."

The opposition leader also said that at only one other time in 70 years had the Conservatives more Quebec members of Parliament that at present. He said he told the people of Quebec the same as he had told the people of the West—"you will get your rights, that is all any part of Canada is entitled to."

"But I'll never agree," he added, "to what Quebec is asking now — that one province has the power to veto what is proposed for others."

FAREWELL IN AFRICA

LISBON (AP) — Africans in Portuguese East Africa have decided to mark prowling outlaws caught stealing by cutting off their ears. The Lusitania news agency said the first offender reported to have been dealt with in this way was 25-year-old Quimisse V. Fortuna.

Gave

had instructions from Mr. Favreau to let it drop."

Raymond Rouleau said he did not tell this to Mrs. Rivard because he did not want to discourage her but had asked that Lechasseur see Him.

Raymond Rouleau said that in approaching his brother about Rivard's case he had told Guy Rouleau that Rivard would help him (Raymond).

Raymond Rouleau said he has been elected chairman of the Mille Isle school board but, apart from helping in his brother's election campaign, did not participate in provincial or federal politics.

Raymond testified he had told his brother that Rivard had helped in his brother's campaign "even if it was not quite true."

The inquiry is looking into allegations that $20,000 bribe was offered by a federal official in an unsuccessful attempt to promote Rivard's freedom on bail.

ADMITS IS AFRAID

Mr. Rouleau admitted under questioning today by Real Drouin, Conservative party counsel, that he is physically afraid of Rivard and his "gang."

He said he has received threats before but none in relation to the present inquiry.

Mr. Drouin read from an RCMP report of an interview with Raymond Rouleau which quoted the witness as saying his life wouldn't be worth much if Rivard's friends found out he had talked to the Mounties.

Mr. Rouleau said he was afraid of Rivard "and all these people" and that he still is.

It would not affect his testimony, however, he added.

Mr. Drouin read from the RCMP report quoting Raymond Rouleau as saying his brother Guy had told him that Mr Favreau had said the Rivard case was "closed."

Mr. Rouleau said this was correct and added that Guy Rouleau had told him, "don't touch that (the Rivard case). It's too dangerous."

Mr. Drouin asked why Mr. Rouleau had encouraged Mrs. Rivard to think that bail was being arranged for her husband. Was he afraid of Rivard?

Mr. Rouleau said: "Who is not afraid of that group?"

He added that he meant all criminal types and he said he had met Robert Collin and a man named Poirier.

He said he never wants to see them again.

CHARGED IN SLAYING

Robert Collin and Robert Gignac, a previous witness at the inquiry are charged with capital murder in the gangland slaying of a night club doorman here Sept. 17.

At another point, Mr. Rouleau said Rivard didn't obtain a liquor licence for his resort through his brother Guy.

"There was other pressure from elsewhere, from people higher up," the witness said.

He said Mrs. Rivard had offered to pay his expenses concerning any attempt to get Rivard released on bail.

"I see what you are leading up to," Mr. Rouleau angrily told Mr. Drouin.

"No mention was ever made of a bribe with me. I was only the intermediary."

Mr. Rouleau said he had told Lechasseur that there was absolutely no possibility of doing anything for Rivard.

He said he had spoken once to Andre Letendre but that he was not aware at the time that he was executive assistant to Mr. Favreau.

Mr. Letendre had asked him who Rivard was and he had told him he was a friend.

Mr. Letendre had not told him that anything could be done for Rivard.

DENIES KNOWING

He said he didn't know Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Trembly, Guy Lord, former special assistant to Mr. Favreau, self-described Liberal organizer Guy Masson or Pierre Lamontagne.

Mr. Rouleau said he was not interested in working for either the Liberal or Conservative parties though he helped his brother in Dollard riding.

"I don't believe in either party, out or in," he said.

Later Mr. Rouleau said he doesn't want to give names in his testimony because he is afraid.

He added that he might be more afraid of Mr. Drouin than "these people."

This sally brought a round of laughter from the courtroom.

RCMP counsel Norman Mathews asked whether Rivard had been or talked to any cabinet minister while he was in Ottawa June 10 with Raymond Rouleau.

WAS WITH RIVARD

"Definitely not," Mr. Rouleau said, adding that he had been with Rivard all the time during this visit.

Evidence was entered Tuesday to the effect that Rivard had seen a "minister" in Ottawa June 17.

EXPECTS AUTONOMY

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — An autonomous North American Roman Catholic Church with its own liturgy and forms, its clergy setting its own bishops and with a synod of lay people was forecast Tuesday night by a Roman Catholic theologian. Rev. Charles K. Von Eaw of St. John's seminary, Brighton, Mass., said this may be expected in 100 years as the result of changes set in motion by the second Vatican ecumenical council.

Thousands

nia of Sir Winston's Order of the Garter.

Five sovereigns have announced that they will attend Churchill's funeral service in St. Paul's, where the British traditionally take seats of their heroes.

They are Queen Elizabeth, who will attend with Prince Philip and other members of the British Royal Family, King Baudouin of the Belgians, King Olav of Norway, King Frederik of Denmark and King Constantine of Greece.

Queen Juliana of The Netherlands will be represented by her husband, Prince Bernhard.

DE GAULLE COMING

President Charles de Gaulle planned to fly from Paris Friday night for the funeral.

Prime Minister Lester Pearson was leaving Ottawa today for the rites.

President Johnson, recovering from a heavy cold and sore throat, waited for another medical checkup before deciding whether to attend.

Former president Eisenhower also still attend. After the funeral services he will broadcast a television commentary for the BBC from the cathedral. The BBC said he would speak as a "personal and wartime colleague of Sir Winston."

St. Paul's has been a setting for funerals of British heroes since Admiral Lord Nelson was buried there after his long journey home from death and victory over the French and Spanish at Trafalgar.

BURIAL IS IN COUNTRY

Churchill will be buried with his forebears at Bladon, in a tiny Oxfordshire country churchyard within sight of Blenheim, the great house in which he was born.

The village, some 70 miles northwest of London, will be sealed off during the interment. Only family mourners will attend.

Meanwhile, in pre - dawn hours, military contingents continue to drill in perfection the various roles they will play Saturday during the one-hour procession from Westminster to St. Paul's.

Pneumatic drills ripped up the pavement as workmen removed cement traffic islands and centre-road light signals to make way for the 3,500 troops that will line the streets.

Traffic in the centre of London virtually will be at a standstill. Many shops will close although there will be no formal day of mourning. Hundreds of special Scotland Yard agents will roam the streets and stand guard over certain buildings to help protect visiting leaders.

The monarchs, princes, presidents and prime ministers who will attend will not participate in the Saturday procession but will be guided separately to St. Paul's where the Queen and virtually the entire Royal Family will participate in the 1-minute religious service.

The panoply of public acclaim will end when Sir Winston is borne from St. Paul's for the brief journey up the Thames to Waterloo Station for the final rail transport to a point near Bladon.

Veronica Tennant, principal soloist and Earl Kraul, premier danseur will appear in the second act of The Nutcracker to be produced by the National Ballet of Canada at Belleville Collegiate Auditorium.

National Ballet to Perform Second Act of The Nutcracker

The National Ballet of Canada will perform in Belleville on the evening of Saturday, February 6th in the Collegiate auditorium. The fact that this city enjoys an annual return visit by this celebrated company is due in no small measure to the enthusiastic dedicated efforts of the Belleville Branch of the National Ballet Guild of Canada, which was established formerly in October of 1951. The purpose of the Guild is to create and maintain a professional ballet compan, in and for Canada, which will strive for the highest standard of performance and offer to talented young Canadian dancers and to other associated artists the opportunity for a ballet career in Canada. Expansion of the Guild has been undertaken by general membership with the establishment of Guild branches and committees on behalf of the Guild in various centres. The local Guild works always in co-operation with Toronto in preparing and providing adequate facilities for a smooth-running successful local performance.

NUTCRACKER PRODUCTION

One of the most thrilling attractions will be the ballet's production in part of "The Nutcracker". Celia Franca, talented artistic director of the Company is the choreographer for this number. She has gone to the original full score by Tchaikowsky for her inspiration while acknowledging the historic importance of Ivanov for his original nineteenth century production for the Maryinsky.

The classic legend of the young Clara, the Christmas party (with its beautifully designed costumes), the fight between the Kingdom of Mice and the Toy Soldiers, the journey with her handsome prince down through the Land of Snow and the climatic ball in the magnificent Kingdom of Sweets is told again, as it has been in varying terms by some of the world's greatest companies.

The brilliant young designer Jurgen Rose of Munich and Stuttgart has provided the costumes and settings for the expensive production which opened as a Christmas holiday attraction at O'Keefe Centre in Toronto. It has been presented in a number of Canadian cities and later this winter will tour the United States.

PRINCIPAL SOLOIST

Veronica Tennant is the Sugar Plum Fairy. Miss Tennant, a beautiful brunette, and a dedicated ballet artist, decided early in life that ballet was to be her career. Born in London, England, she began her training there and at ten was committed to the fact that there was no other life possible for her. She continued her studies on a more intensive basis when she arrived in Canada at the age of nine and is a graduate of the National Ballet School. Now she is a solist with the National Ballet of Canada.

The Nutcracker Prince is Lawrence Adams, born in Winnipeg and raised in Vancouver, Mr. Adams began his ballet studies with the National Ballet during a summer school in Toronto.

A shade taller than six feet, Mr. Adams has a preference for what he terms demi-character roles, parts that call for some "virtuosity" and there is little doubt that his "Mercutio" in John Cranko's "Romeo and Juliet" won him wide acclaim from critics and audiences last year.

Ballet devotees will anticipate with great pleasure the appearance of Miss Tennant and Mr. Adams in the second act of "Nutcracker Suite".

The Hasty Pees Guarded Churchill at Chartwell

By GEORGE H. CARVER

There is an invisible spot on the battle-colors of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment that will be "forever Churchill."

Mark it well, Hasty Pees, for few Canadian regiments of the line of World War II boast the honor.

During the dark days of 1941 when Hitler's aerial bombs were showering death on the "tight little Island" "B" Company of the Canadian regiment was assigned to special duty.

Guard duty at "Chartwell," the rural home of Sir Winston Churchill, the square-jawed pug-faced" "Bulldog of Britain."

Former member of the famous "Flowdown" is Mr. Robert Morrison, 94 Bollins Drive.

The death of the "Greatest Englishman" brought nostalgia to Mr. Morrison, who was a member of one of the company platoons assigned to duty at Chartwell.

Chartwell is in Kent, a few miles out of London. And Kent can well be called the birthplace of warriors for at Westram, a few miles from Chartwell, General Wolfe, the hero of the Plains of Abraham, was born.

"My acquaintance with Churchill was not too personal," says Mr. Morrison, "but it was congenial and greatly cherished by me."

BUSY ABOUT GROUNDS

The Churchills came home only on weekends and during these times, Mr. Churchill was always busy about the grounds.

"It was a common sight to see him pick up a trowel, mix some mortar and lay brick on the extension to the keeper's residence he was building."

One day, about four p.m., Mr. Morrison was on the "roving picket detail."

"Mr. Churchill and I were approaching each other" Mr. Morrison recalls. "Out of respect I stood aside to let him pass."

"He stopped and asked why he had not been challenged for the password."

"I know who you are, sir."

"Oh, and how do you know, how?"

"By your cigar, double chin, no neck and fat stomach."

Churchill's face immediately became wreathed in a smile.

"True enough," he said, "but don't forget the Germans have men with no necks, double-chins, smoke cigars and have fat stomachs."

"You are right, sir" Morrison replied, "but they would do up the bottom button of their vests."

Churchill looked down then shook with laughter, 'You are very perceptive" he observed, "but from now on, challenge me anyway."

"He asked me my name. I gave it to him and continued with my patrol," said Morrison.

SMOKE AND A TREAT

The following week Morrison happened to be on the same patrol. It was one of those rare days in Britain when the sun was shining and the air was warm.

Mr. and Mrs. Churchill and one of their daughters were sitting at one of the garden seats among the flower beds enjoying a cool drink.

"Seeing me on patrol, they called to me and invited me over for a treat and a cigarette," said Morrison.

"I declined with thanks saying I was not permitted to smoke on duty."

"Mr. Churchill said, 'Private Morrison, have a smoke and a lemonade. If your commanding officer says anything—tell him to see me'."

"Imagine," recalls Morrison, "with the woes of the world on his shoulders he remembered my name from a short encounter the week previous."

"Anyway he ordered me to stand down for a few minutes, and I enjoyed the lemonade and a Senior Service cigarette."

"I remarked on his paintings that hung in his summer house. He replied that colors in paintings were somewhat like the weapon I was carrying. If they were put together right, they always worked the way they were supposed to work."

WAS METICULOUS

Churchill was a meticulous man, Mr. Morrison told the writer.

He had a den that was filled with the trophies of the hunt, horns and heads of all sorts of animals; old hats and umbrellas.

"Once when somebody inadvertently moved an ashtray you could hear the roar of the 'lion'. "Who shifted my blasted cigar?"

Everything about the farm was spotlessly clean. He had a herd of some 25 milch Guernsey cattle, and a smaller herd of Dutch Belts.

Britain's Land Army girls raised carrots, turnips and other vegetables on the Churchill farm. The entire crop was turned over to the nation.

"We, as soldiers," were on iron rations and one blanket," said Mr. Morrison. "We slept in one of the barns. One thing I must say about the Churchill buildings, they were not kept in a good state of repair.

"There were holes in the roof of the barn where we slept and when it rained, which was often, we used to get midnight showers."

"One of the boys for a joke painted a sign and attached it to the barn: "The Roof Leaks—Give Us the Tools—and We'll Finish the Job."

"But it was taken down before the great man had a chance to see it."

POND OF DOGS

"Mr. Churchill was extremely fond of dogs. On the sloping side of a beech grove near the farm pond was a graveyard for his departed four-legged friends. Fourteen are buried there with gravestones in line like an ordinary cemetery. They are cared for meticulously."

"Churchill was very friendly with all of us," recalled Morrison. "Once he asked one of the boys how he liked England."

"Don't like your country at all, sir," the soldier said. "It rains too much."

Churchill's face, took on a grim look.

"Don't forget," he said sternly, "there will be a different kind of rain falling on the Germans very shortly."

"Lady Churchill was a wonderful woman," Mr. Morrison said. "She was very friendly to us and to everyone on the farm. She would stop and chat any time of the day."

"But every time she came to Chartwell, she wore the same leopard coat day in and day out. Which prompted one of the Land Army girls, who was a Cockney, to remark,"

"Loe-hivadack, aint anlady got sumthin' else to wear beside that spotted jacket?"

Mr. Churchill's instant wit and great personality in the most trying times of history, Mr. Morrison concluded, were a wonderful help to all that had the pleasure of meeting him. Of this man it can truly be said:

"It is my world, my dearest world,
The world of my greatest delight,
From the darkest gloom of the pregnant womb
To the dawn of eternal light."

MARK 50TH ANNIVERSARY — Two Canadian telephone pioneers demonstrate the type of equipment used on January 25, 1915, when Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone, inaugurated transcontinental phone service between New York and San Francisco. Ernest Drysdale, left, and Les. Moore, both former Bell Telephone employees, participated in the first transcontinental call placed in Canada which connected Montreal and San Francisco on May 11, 1915.

Golden Year of Continental Phoning

In an era of space-age global communications, the date January 25, 1965, has special significance for the Canadian telephone industry.

It was exactly 50 years ago on this date that the first-transcontinental telephone call was made by Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, speaking from New York, to his former assistant, Thomas A. Watson, in San Francisco.

The call had special interest for Canadians, not only because the telephone itself was conceived in Mr. Bell's home in Brantford, Ont., but also because it made possible the first transcontinental call originating in Canada. The Canadian call, from Montreal to San Francisco, was completed May 11, 1915, four months after the New York - San Francisco link. The delay resulted from a vicious sleet storm early in which heavily damaged telephone lines between Montreal and New York.

The Canadian call was made from the Montreal head office of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada to the U.S. Bell System pavilion at the San Francisco World's Fair, a distance of 3,800 miles, using the New York - San Francisco circuit.

Taking part in the call were C. F. Sise, Jr., then general manager of Bell of Canada, and numerous Montreal businessmen and civic officials. On the Pacific end of the line were the manager of the Canadian exhibit at San Francisco, a United States senator and other dignitaries.

Nine months after the completion of the Montreal-San Francisco call, Canadians broke all records for long distance telephoning by successfully connecting Montreal and Vancouver, B.C., a distance of more than 4,200 miles. This connection was made on February 16, 1916, via the United States.

ALL CANADIAN

The first all-Canadian transcontinental telephone service was not available until January 25, 1932.

Newspapers of the day hailed the inauguration of transcontinental calling as a "miracle" but, communications today, with messages travelling via space satellites and underwater cables, tend to obscure the 1915 accomplishment.

The New York-SanFrancisco telephone line, however, was the first to be equipped with a scientific wonder — the vacuum tube repeater. This tube, the first major breakthrough in long distance calling, acted as a sound amplifier, enabling sound waves to be carried over a great distance.

With the use of vacuum tube repeaters, calls from Montreal to San Francisco were received more clearly than were calls to points as close as Toronto. Until repeaters were installed, reception was at times so poor that messages had to be relayed by the operator.

Fifty years ago, when transcontinental calling became a reality, there were about 332,000 telephones in use in Canada as compared with more than 6.5 million today, and the advent of dial telephone service in the territory Bell Telephone serves in Ontario and Quebec was still almost ten years away.

Kingston Paper Winner of Prize

TORONTO (CP)—The Hamilton Spectator and Kingston Whig - Standard are the 1964 winners of the John A. MacLaren newspaper awards for typography and appearance.

Entries from 96 Canadian dailies were considered, editions of last Nov. 5 being the basis for judgment.

President G. G. Sinclair of MacLaren Advertising Company Limited, the sponsor, said the judges placed Hamilton Spectator first among newspapers with more than 25,000 circulation for "over-all excellence on the basis of an exceptionally good edition."

Kingston Whig - Standard was first among papers with less than 25,000 circulation, the judges agreeing that "on the basis of typography and make-up this was an excellent newspaper."

TOKYO JARRED

TOKYO (AP) — An earthquake with an intensity of four on a maximum scale of seven jarred the Tokyo area today, causing pendulum clocks to stop and tall buildings to sway for about 10 seconds. The National Police Agency said it received no reports of damage.

Paper Says Minister Eric Kierans Gave Favreau Dossier on Dupuis Case

MONTREAL (CP)—The Gazette says in a story from Quebec City that "the RCMP investigation into the mysterious case of Yvon Dupuis was ordered as a direct result of information supplied to the federal department of justice by the Quebec department of revenue."

In Quebec City, a revenue department spokesman said he had "no comment to make" on the Gazette story.

The newspaper says it learned from "reliable sources" that Eric Kierans, Quebec revenue minister, "personally forwarded a complete dossier of the entire affair to Justice Minister Guy Favreau during the latter part of December."

Mr. Dupuis was dismissed by Prime Minister Pearson last Friday as minister without portfolio in the federal cabinet.

The Gazette says it also learned that "the revenue department ordered a complete re-examination of Mr. Dupuis' income tax records, as well as those of everyone involved in the case, on the strength of its findings."

The department began its investigation more than a year ago, into "manoeuvres by two groups to obtain a race track franchise, first in St. Luc, then in St. Hubert," The Gazette says.

"The inquiry was accelerated last year when new representations were made to the department, and the final evidence was accumulated in early December.

"It was at this point that Mr. Kierans determined that the case could only properly be handled in Ottawa, and forwarded a copy of his report, together with accumulated evidence, to Mr. Favreau. At the same time, the investigation into income tax files was ordered."

Churchill Loathed Tyranny; Detested Tyrants

A. L. Rowse, noted historian, is the author of a two-volume biography of the Churchill family, as well as being a fellow of All Souls College at the University of Oxford. In the following article he gives his views on Sir Winston Churchill.

Churchill and the English-speaking world

By A. L. ROWSE
Distributed by The AP

Very great historic figures have a way of presenting themselves at the crossroads of history, at decisive junctions in the fates of peoples. We have only to think of Alexander the Great or Julius Caesar, George Washington or Abraham Lincoln. All most always there has been something special in their makeup or their heritage that has fitted them to take their historic opportunity.

Both these conditions are present in the career of Sir Winston Churchill to a striking degree.

Though he had been upon the public stage for nearly half a century before 1940, in that year he emerged not only as the decisive man of action but as an historic symbol in the fate of the English people. It is possible that Britain might have been borne down then and though it is difficult to conceive of the ultimate subjugation of the English-speaking peoples, there might have followed a vast disarray—worse than that, a splitting-up and splintering of what is, after all, the most hopeful federation of peoples in the world, the most promising and beneficent form of society.

At the same time, by birth and parentage, by his very nature, his inheritance from both sides, Churchill was uniquely fitted to express the deepest impulses, as well as some of the endearing foibles, of both main branches of the English stocks.

We can all recognize the two dominant strains, British and American. Though there are other elements too, quite a strong Scottish infusion as well as a French one coming from way back.

On the British side I should single out the sheer bull-dog pertinacity and persistence; there is also a rarer quality than physical courage, shining through that is—there is moral courage, courage, an aristocratic gift of political indomitability, the instinctive thinking of the safety of the state, no matter what anybody says or however unpopular a course he may have to hold.

On the American side I place the zest and high spirits, the indefeasible good nature, the optimism and sheer boyishness which have radiated fun and the enjoyment of life in the gloomiest of places and at the worst of times.

What fun it is to be alive and kicking, is one message this old man with the heart of a boy had for the world. No wonder Franklin Roosevelt wrote to him in the 'dark':

"What fun it is to be alive in the same decade with you."

And this takes us to the heart of what this Anglo-American symbol; a very human personality, has to say to the world—a world that has been ravaged by power-maniacs afflicted by persecution - mania, spy-mania, every sort of personal and political mania—that man must be the free expression of the normal and healthy human spirit.

FRIENDLY GENIUS

There never was a man of genius more normal and healthy, more extrovert and friendly to other human beings more free from suspicion or any kind of meanness, petty or mane and magnanimous, politically as well as personally.

One passion that burns in all Churchill's speeches, and that is of the essence of the man and his period, is his loathing of tyranny. When he is writing history one can see again and again his detestation of tyrants.

The word that comes to his mind for them is "dastardly." And it is all of a piece with his attitude to life; for these people inflict cruelty, and inculcate fear, they perpetuate a contraction of the human spirit, they deprive men of air to breathe.

Churchill—so like the stock he comes from on both sides—is instinctively in favor of expansiveness of the spirit, ridding the world of fear and suspicion, let alone cruelty and torture, all in favor of the honest enjoyment of life for everybody.

Everybody knows this to be true, not only his innumerable friends who can bear witness to his generous good nature, his inability to bear malice; those of us who have witnessed his fondness for animals know the tenderness and kindness in that capacious heart.

MIRRORS LIFE

But point is not a merely personal one: it is that, in all this, Churchill perfectly mirrors the way of life of the English-speaking peoples, British, American, wherever the language is spoken and our distinctive choices prevail.

And who can doubt, if the question is not allowed to present itself above the surface, which is the better choice for the world, or which choice any people would opt for if they were only free to do so?

To express that, not only in their way of life but in their institutions, is the essential contribution of the English-speaking peoples to the world. Churchill has expressed that in action as a statesman, while as an historian he has shown in his history of the English-speaking Peoples how it has come about.

In the preface to his first volume he declares this purpose in writing it to be "the hope that commemoration of the toils and tribulations of our forefathers may not only fortify the English-speaking peoples of today, but also play some small part in uniting the whole world."

It is certainly in this experience of freedom, the insistence that it is in its manifold forms that we have something of the utmost value to contribute.

French Regular Army Learns Guerrilla War

By FREDERICK FORSYTH

PARIS (Reuters)—A system of guerrilla defence throughout France in the event of atomic attack has been worked out as part of a full-scale renovation and re-equipment of all three French armed forces.

The guerrilla program centres on the creation of a new unit of infantry, the commando.

Commandos are not, however, an addition to the traditional big body of French infantry but the new form which the majority of the infantry will eventually take on.

In forming the commando, French military experts have abolished the classic breakdown of foot soldiers into sections, platoons, companies, battalions, regiments and brigades.

The smallest unit in the new format is the commando itself a group of eight men, fighting under a non-commissioned officer.

Four commandos make up a detachment, four detachments a group, and groups plus a support group, a regiment.

WORK INDEPENDENTLY

Working in large formations, they will thus be able to act like any other infantry force when engaged in classic conventional warfare. But they will also, if necessary, be able to operate independently down to the eight-man level.

A commando is equipped with two sub-machine-guns, two anti-tank guns, two machine-guns and a walkie-talkie radio, the arms being shared among the eight men. On their backs, they carry food, ammunition and spare clothing.

Their training is the same as that of infantry, fighting men plus extra combat skill, a higher than-normal degree of toughness, and plenty of personal initiative.

The conversion of the regular infantry into commandos has only just begun with a few spearhead regiments. But it is intended that, eventually, nearly all foot soldiers shall be members of a commando—and on leaving the army each will report periodically for training and become embodied in a commando of men near his home.

The French government intends to bury caches of arms sufficient for all reserve commandos in every part of France. The exact locations of these arms will be known only to the prefects of the 90 departments into which the country is divided.

Injury Jinx Hits Leafs Hard

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Injuries. That's one factor Chicago Black Hawks management didn't consider last October when they predicted Toronto Maple Leafs would finish 10 to 15 points ahead of the other National Hockey League teams.

Toronto, defending Stanley Cup champions, began the season by winning three and tying three of its first six games to set the pace. But then the roof fell in and injuries have mounted ever since.

Toronto players have missed a total of more than 60 games through injuries. The Leafs are still a respectable six points behind first-place Montreal but, on the other hand, only a point up on fourth-place Detroit.

Other teams have suffered because of injuries—Boston has lost Bobby Leiter and Dean Prentice for the season while Montreal's Gilles Tremblay is out for several months—but Toronto's miseries haven't been centred on just a few players.

Only six regulars have dressed for every game: Red Kelly, Ron Stewart, Carl Brewer, Kent Douglas, Tim Horton and Bob Baun.

MISSED 15 GAMES

Andy Bathgate, recently back after suffering a broken thumb, has missed 15 games through injuries. Tied for second with 11 games are Frank Mahovlich and George Armstrong.

Rookie Ron Ellis has missed eight games, Dave Keon five, Bob Pulford and Allen Stanley three each and Jim Pappin two. Dickie Moore hasn't dressed for 23 games, Billy Harris for three and Eddie Shack two, but some of these are due to manpower manoeuvres.

Stewart, however, now is on the injury list along with Pappin and Armstrong. Coach Punch Imlach plans to have Armstrong back in action by the weekend but the other two are doubtful.

Injuries have spawned defeat in Toronto and, according to the players, exhaustion. To meet the trend, Imlach gave the Leafs—accustomed to a seven-day work week—a three-day rest following two defeats and one tie last week.

Imlach explained:

"They have been crying about being tired. I would like to know what from. I gave them an allotment. If they don't produce after this holiday they'll be practising twice a day and if that doesn't help we'll take other measures."

RECALL McKENNEY?

Don McKenney may be recalled from Rochester of the American League if the Leafs are shortstaffed.

"If Rochester helped McKenney," Imlach added, "we may have to prescribe the same treatment in some others, unless they start producing."

The Leafs don't play again until next weekend when they tangle with Boston in a home-and-home series. But they're sure to lose ground to Chicago and Montreal in the race for first place.

The Hawks and Canadiens tangle at Montreal tonight while Boston Bruins visit New York Rangers.

The Hawks, two points behind first-place Montreal, have gone 10 games without a defeat on the road but could walk into a hornets' nest following the Canadiens 3-0 loss to last-place Boston on Sunday.

The Bruins, 11 points behind New York but ever hopeful, will get a first-hand look at the current talk of Broadway, Ulf Sterner, the Swedish - born and trained rookie has been called up from the AHL Baltimore Clippers by the Rangers.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

According to Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton, his county's famed nautical raceway, the Hayward Long Reach, may again resound to the pulsing roar of international speedboats this summer.

In a televised interview the bossman of the district's littlest big town, hinted that such events would take place, but did not give any details.

On thing, however, is certain. The beautiful Reach won't echo to the deafening snarl of a World War II Rolls-Royce or Allison airplane engine of some 2,000 horsepower—and a wall of water called a rooster-tail spewing 60 feet high and 200 feet long.

Nor will racing buffs experience again that day at the Reach in 1960 when the popular Bob Hayward, following his record-shattering Harmsworth Trophy victory, threw Miss Supertest III into a frenzied dance. He spun and bucked in a shower of water at the edge of the stands and frightened some people, including me, half out of their Bermuda shorts.

Hayward's boyish beaming face was tragically and horribly erased when he was killed in Miss Supertest II during the 1961 Silver Cup race in Detroit.

And the other day Death again struck swiftly, suddenly at the knighthood that sat at the Harmsworth round table. The Grim Avenger swooping in for the kill took the life of popular Bob Finlayson, secretary-manager of the Canadian Boating Federation, Canada's parliament of nautical racing.

Perhaps Mayor McFarland is taking up the racing torch tossed to him by the late Bob. For it was Finlayson, who, realizing that Canada could not answer a Harmsworth challenge because of the lack of an unlimited hydroplane representative, was trying to arrange the seven-litre world championships for a Canadian course.

And there is no other course in Canada that Finlayson would choose but the Reach. He loved its gently-rippled waters. He loved the warm sunshine that glinted off its surface in the house he owned next the Quinte Cabins resort. He loved its wooded shores that sloped gently upwards to tree-sentinelled skylines.

But Fate and the Grim Destroyer intervened and Finlayson will not see the fulfilment of a brief dream where the seven-litres would flash over the Reach in search of world titles.

These mighty mites which toss pin-feather wheels instead of fuzzy arching rooster-tails, are powered with supercharged to non-supercharged motors of 427-to 488 cubic inches—a power plant that is used extensively in this country's automobiles. It is readily available to all potential competitors. Minimum overall size of the hull is 19 feet.

If the seven-litre championships are brought to Picton—or anywhere else for that matter — Canada would take second place to none either in craft or drivers. We have a seven-litre "Miss Supertest III" set-up in owner Aubert Brilliant of Rimouski, Quebec, and the well known Canadian driver, Art Asbury of Ste Tougue Lake, Ont., and their champion "Royal Canadiana."

Asbury drove his midget queen to victory in the United States National—and broke two world records in the doing. He created them in competition at 90 mph over a mile and three-quarter course and the straightaway for the kilo distance at 130 mph.

So perhaps this year the misty spirit of Bobby Hayward will look down from above the tree-bordered skyline of the Reach named after him and watch reasonable facsimiles of his mighty "Supertest III" race to world championships.

Perhaps my friend Harvey J. of the "1959 Prague elections" had something else in mind when he spoke of world speedboat racing near Picton this year, but my guess is the seven-litre wills-o'-the-wisp-and-wave.

Wirkowski Now With Nursery

TORONTO (CP) — Nobby Wirkowski, fired last year as coach of Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference, has a new interest these days—a nursery school.

The former quarterback, who works with an insurance company, was recently elected president of the Park Road Co-operative Nursery School at nearby Clarkson where he lives with his wife and two children.

Intercity Hoop Wins Divided

Belleville and Kingston "Y" basketball teams split a pair of victories here Monday night in a special exhibition series played in connection with National YMCA Week.

In the first game, Kingston defeated Belleville Y Teachers 59-50.

Belleville came back for a comfortable 55-37 victory in the second game.

Several return matches will be played among the four clubs.

Ted Viscel led the first "Y" team to victory with 15 points while Jim Dunn hooped 14 and Bruce Regeneburg 13. Pete Taylor had seven points, Bob Ramsey and John Long five each and Steve Fisher none.

For Belleville's Y Teachers, Ken Mason hooped 19. Max Woolley 10, Wally Dhrymuk 7, Jack Sisson six, Paul Breeze and Charlie Beazley four apiece and Harry Okkie none.

Jim Wright tossed home 16 points to lead the local "Y's" second squad to victory. Bob Condie got 10 points, John Krupier and Graham Ireland eight each, John Guthrie six, Dick Morden four and Jim Middleton three.

Bob Elliott was high man for Kingston with nine points. Mike Church got five, Jake Connelly three, Hal Wager, Pete Smith, Werner Polsek, Joe Hamilton and Brian Moore two apiece. Ralph Boomhower and Mikt Dundon were scoreless.

BCI Teams Remain Undefeated

BCIVS juniors and seniors stretched their undefeated streaks in Bay of Quinte COSSA basketball action yesterday.

The BCI seniors overwhipped Brighton by a decisive 92-30 score and the juniors dumped Brighton 96-35. BCI bantams made it a clean sweep by nipping their Brighton counterparts 28-23.

BCI seniors had two players score more points on their own than the entire Brighton team could compile. Ron Walsh led the way with a sparkling 33-point performance. Teammate Murray Swan made it a powerful one-two punch by hitting for 32.

Dave Cass paced the bantam victory, collecting 18 points.

The BCI seniors and juniors have won their every start to date this season while the bantams have dropped one decision, that by three points, to Trenton.

Guelph Clobbers Oakville

GUELPH (CP)—Guelph Regals went on a scoring spree Tuesday night to whip Oakville Oaks 9-4 and move back into first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior standings.

The win put Guelph a point ahead of Galt Hornets.

Joe Malo paced the Regals offensive with three goals to increase his league-leading total to 25. Erwin Grosse scored a pair for, Guelph, with the others going to Ray Ross, Jim Sanko, Don MacGregor and Dave Lucick.

Doug Hillman scored twice for Oakville and Norm Sibbick and Bob Bishop once each.

The score was 4-3 for Guelph until just past the five-minute mark in the third period when the Regals scored three goals in one minute and five seconds, two of them five seconds apart.

Dr. Emery Quits Sledders

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (AP)—Dr. John Emery of Toronto, veteran Canadian bobsled driver, gave up piloting Tuesday after his second bad spill on the St. Moritz Olympia run. He had been scheduled to drive Canada's No. 1 sled in the world four-man championships this weekend.

Emery, a bobsled driver for six years, said he may ride on the No. 2 sled but that Lemont Gordon of Montreal probably will take over as pilot. Vic Emery of Montreal is driver of Canada's No. 1 sled, which seeks to retain the world title won in last year's Olympic games.

Emery was in the pilot's seat Tuesday when the sled overturned at Devil's Dyke, the same place where he had a bad fall in the two-man championships last week. He bruised both knees badly and said this may prevent his getting enough training to ride in the championships.

OTHERS UNHURT

None of the three crew members, Paul Levesque of Montreal, Ben D'Aoust of Ottawa and Purvis McDougall of Montreal, was badly hurt.

"I have lost my confidence," Emery told reporters. "Every time I come up to the dyke I am thinking about it all the time and wonder whether I will make it. It wouldn't be fair to the others if I carry on pilot-ing."

Practice for the four - man championships was curtailed Tuesday because of damage to a section of ice wall along the track. Before it was stopped an Italian sled piloted by Rinaldo Ruatti made the fastest run, 1:10.75. Vic Emery's sled was next best in 1:10.78. Riding with him were Gerald Presley of Kingston, Stanley Hamer of Maeiter, Ont., and Mike Young of Port Credit, Ont.

Stratton Clings to AHL Lead

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Two American Hockey League players who seldom score and one who never does are making their mark in the league's statistical derby.

Vets at playmakers Art Stratton of Buffalo Bisons and Ed Litzenberger of Rochester Americans are among the 1-3 in the individual point standings and Gerry Cheevers, Rochester's goalie-in-a-hockey-suit is the No. 1 goaltender, the latest AHL figures show.

Stratton, with 11 goals, and Litzenberger, with 12, pose no threat to top lamplighter Len Lunde of the Bisons, who has 30. But Stratton's league - leading 41 assists give him a two-point edge, 30 to 37, over linemate Lunde in the scoring race. Litzenberger, with 24 assists rate right behind Stratton, has a one - point margin, 53 to 52, over fourth - place Wayne Hicks of Quebec Aces.

Cheevers has a 2.47 goals-against mark in 4 games.

Fred Glover of Cleveland Barons continues to pace AHL badmen with a total of 135 penalty minutes.

TRIES OUT WITH LIONS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mike Narowski, 210 - pound halfback from Ohio University who spent the last two years in the United States Army, has signed a contract for a tryout with British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference.

Fight Sellout Is Hush-Hush

—Closed TV

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—The first big fight in town since Cassius Clay and Doug Jones sold out Madison Square Garden in 1962 has the Broadway crowd talking about Floyd Patterson and George Chuvalo.

Chances are the former heavyweight champion and the 27-year-old Canadian will pack the Garden Monday night but this is hush-hush. Garden brass is afraid any talk of a sellout will scare away a few dollars. There will be closed circuit television, but none in New York.

Patterson, a man with enough money to last him a lifetime, burns with an ambition to shut Cassius Clay's mouth and beat Sonny Liston. Although both jobs are formidable, Floyd at 30 persists in thinking he can accomplish both missions and then retire to an upstate farm. He regards Chuvalo as another step up the ladder, the toughest on this comeback.

Jimmy August, a veteran trainer of fighters, thinks Floyd has too much for Chuvalo. As August worked the corner opposite the Toronto slugger in both a winning and losing cause, he may be considered somewhat of an authority.

It will be interesting to see whether Patterson confines himself to jabbing and boxing. Sonny Liston knocked him out in one round in their first fight. Instead of staying outside and trying to box, Floyd went inside again and got flattened for the second time in the first round.

Offer this reason and the fact that such characters as Pete Rademacher, Tom McNeeley and Roy Harris, to say nothing of Ingemar Johansson and Liston, have bounced Patterson off the deck repeatedly, there are many who fancy Chuvalo's odds of 2 to 1 on Patterson have shortened to 8½ to 5 but prices are a nebulous matter in this day and age.

No Insurance, No Job

Suffers Broken Back

TORONTO (CP)—A love for hockey has left Fred Nash with a broken back and more debts than the 26-year-old father of two children can afford.

Last week at the nearby Port Credit Arena, Fred fell to the ice during a Port Credit Commercial League hockey match, slid heavily into the boards and broke his back.

Doctors at South Peel Memorial Hospital say Fred will be laid up for seven to 12 months. He has no insurance of any kind, no job and was in debt even before the injury.

Hard luck is no stranger to the Nash family.

They moved to Port Credit from Halifax three years ago so their son, Ricky 5, could be treated at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children. He was born with webbed feet, two thumbs on each hand and a hole in his heart. He still can't talk.

Fred, after six months of part-time employment, found a steady job. However, he was dropped from the payroll because the small company he worked for could not afford to keep him.

The family's only income is Mrs. Nash's salary from an overnight job at the hospital where Fred is confined. It isn't enough to pay rent on their three - bedroom apartment and they move into a one - bedroom apartment this week.

Ricky and Kim, 3, had in live with an uncle in Montreal and Fred and Cathy don't know when they will be able to send for them. Now, only Mark, 6, and Deborah, 7, are at home.

Fred played in three leagues. The day he was injured, he had played a game at suburban Rexdale, rushed to Port Credit without removing his equipment and arrived in time to start the second period.

The score was tied 1-1 and Fred counted the tie - breaking goal before the period.

The Commercial League plays a benefit game Feb. 21 in an effort to raise money to help out the Nash family.

NEVER A CENSUS

Ethiopia is one of the few nations never to have taken a census.

NAMED MEET

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Hood, a sportsman from Stratford and supplier of books to Ontario schools, has been named a director of Toronto Maple Leafs of baseball's International League. Other newcomers named Tuesday to the executive for the club's second year as a community - sponsored team are George Schreiber and Harry Tutty, Toronto manufacturers, and Donald McGregor, a Toronto stock broker.

Has Groin, Arm Trouble

Giants Concerned Over Marichal

NEW YORK (AP)—Herman Franks, new manager of San Francisco Giants, hasn't much to worry about—yet.

But a faint distress signal emanates from Santo Domingo where Juan Marichal, the Giants' ace pitcher, has developed groin trouble and a troublesome boil under his right arm.

What's more, he was ineffective Tuesday while working in the Dominican championships. The big right - hander was tagged for seven runs and eight hits in less than five innings as his team lost, 8-6.

Marichal won 21 games for San Francisco last season despite a back ailment that sidelined him for a month in late summer.

He has yet to sign his 1965 contract. However, two batterymates, catchers Tom Haller and Del Crandall, came to terms Tuesday. Haller hit .258 with 18 homers last year, while the 35-year-old Crandall batted .221 in 69 games.

The rival Los Angeles Dodgers also received three signed contracts. They were from shortstop Maury Wills, pitcher Joe Moeller and catcher Hector Valle.

Among others who signed were second - baseman Don Blasingame, pitcher Tom Cheney of Chicago White Sox, pitcher Al Worthington of Minnesota Twins, and pitchers Pete Lovrich and Ron Tompkins and second-baseman Tony Laruasa of Kansas City Athletics and pitchers Bob Lee and Don Lee of the Angels.

Wills stole 53 bases last season. Since joining the Dodgers in the mid-season of 1959, he has stolen 289. It was understood he will receive $50,000 for the season's work, the same salary he earned last year.

Bob and Don Lee, not related, are the 17th and 18th Angels to sign their 1965 contracts.

Bob was outstanding in relief last season. He appeared in 64 games, a record for rookies. His record was 6-5 for the season and his earned-run average was 1.33.

Don was used as a spot starter and long relief man last year. He compiled a 5-4 record in 33 games and had an E.R.A. of 2.72.

Gonzalez Upsets Griffith

HOUSTON (AP) — Third ranked Manuel Gonzales fought to a surprise split - decision victory over Emile Griffith, the world's welterweight boxing champion in a 10-round over the - weight, non - title match Tuesday night.

Griffith, of New York, the busiest of all the champions, had been favored.

Judges Earl Keil scored the fight 96-95 for Gonzales. Referee Jimmy Webb gave it 97-94 for Gonzalez and Judge Maxie Ross gave it to Griffith 97-94. The Associated Press card had it 97-96 in favor of Griffith.

Western Football Conference

Would Sell Closed TV Rights

VANCOUVER (CP) — In an effort to break a deadlock on telecasts of football games by Canada's two networks, Western Football Conference officials have offered to sell their closed circuit TV rights.

Conference president Al McEachern of Vancouver said in an interview Monday night closed circuit television is said to be the reason for one network considering dropping Canadian Football League telecasts in the forthcoming season.

He did not name the network.

Only British Columbia Lions use closed circuit television at present in the Western Conference but there are plans in the Eastern Conference for closed circuit telecasts in Montreal.

Both conferences have sold their live television rights to a Montreal group, Bel, McKeen and Cate, one network has let it be known that it might not carry CFL games this year because they might be competing with closed circuit telecasts by the clubs themselves.

McEachern said "there would be an enormous hue and cry from the public if CFL games weren't telecast."

MONTREAL (CP) — Negotiations for a national package for televising Canadian Football League games this year are "on a normal basis" and should be successfully concluded within the next few weeks, a Paul Champagne said Tuesday.

Mr. Champagne is a member of the Montreal advertising firm of Bouchard, Champagne, Pelletier Limited, which has acquired exclusive television rights to CFL games.

Negotiations for a new contract have been going on for several months in Ottawa, Toronto and Montreal.

Minor Hockey

"Minor Hockey Week" continued here last night with regular games from the B.M.H.A.'s novice, midget and juvenile schedules being played.

OMHA and exhibition encounters feature tonight's action.

JUVENILE

O.S.D. Wolves erupted for their second triumph of the season, trouncing the Aces 7-1.

Ullett sparked the O.S.D. attack with a pair of goals and one assist, Mooney also starred with a goal and two helpers while Gregory contributed one of each. Clarke, Warren and Masters also scored and Gripps had an assist.

Trafford netted the Aces' marker, assisted by Tomseo.

MIDGET

Elks' Black Hawks shaded the Canadiens 4-3 on single goals by J. McKenzie, G. Hopkins, J. Moens and J. Cole. D. Middleton got two assists and J. Crawford one. D. MacCormack, S. Lee and T. Ford scored in defeat with K. McFarland and A. Lapenotiere having assists.

Let defeated the Red Wings 7-5 in a free-wheeling affair. W. Storms paced the Leaf attack with three goals and an assist. S. Thorne, R. Rosebush, R. Geen and B. Salter also scored. B. LaRue drew three assists, Geen and G. White one each. K. Fuller scored twice for the Wings with W. Muir, R. Lloyd and J. Hill notching the others. K. Lang, Hill and D. Murray got assists.

NOVICE

Barons went on a scoring spree to whip the Generals 12-3. Joe Edwards led the big scoring rush with a four-goal output. Larry Wright was next in line with three goals while Joe Muldoon bagged two, Ken Hodgson, Blake Reeves and Andy Forgie one apiece. Kevin Joudwa starred in defeat with all three goals.

Bruins copped a 3-1 win over the Rangers. Jim Whalen scored twice and Martin Thistle once. Mike Pfleger had the Ranger marker.

Wings shaded the Canadiens 4-3 with Terry Collins scoring three times and David Sullivan once for the winners. Canadiens' goal went to Steve Cowen with two and Richard Barrett.

WILL BACKSTOP

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit's Olympic committee, which failed in its attempt to get the 1968 games, says the city is ready to pinch-hit if Mexico City can't handle the event. Frederick C. Matthaei, committee chairman, wrote Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic committee, to that effect Monday.

Walker Defeats Powell

LONDON (AP) — British heavyweight Henry Walker said today that the right-hand punch that knocked out Charley Powell of San Diego, Calif., could put him into the big time.

Walker, who knocked out Powell in the second round of a scheduled 10-rounder Tuesday night, said:

"I think my right is coming back. I knew I hurt him and he didn't trouble me."

Powell, who went six rounds with former world heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson last month before being knocked out, agreed.

"Patterson couldn't catch me with a right like Walker did," Powell said. "Walker's got the best right I've been up against for some time. And that includes Cassius Clay."

Walker has now had 18 pro fights, winning 14 and drawing one. Powell, 32, has a 25-13-1 record.

Walker weighted 196½ pounds, Powell, 209, for the Olympia Stadium bout.

Red Wings Protest Petes Game

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Red Wings of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series have forwarded a letter of protest to the OHA regarding a mix-up in the starting time of last Saturday's Junior A game between the Wings and Peterborough Petes at Peterborough.

The game was originally scheduled for Jan. 12 but was set back two weeks at the request of the Peterborough club so that a number of their players could join Montreal Junior Canadiens for an exhibition game against the Russian nationals.

Hamilton coach Danny Lewicki said that when the change was made, both sides agreed to a 7 p.m. starting time because Wings had a Sunday afternoon game against Marlboros in Toronto.

LEFT EARLY

The club left Hamilton three hours earlier than usual Saturday in a fierce blizzard. They arrived in Peterborough before 6 p.m. only to discover that the game wasn't due to start until two hours later.

Lewicki said he checked with the OHA before the team's departure and the OHA confirmed that the game officials were instructed to report for the earlier start.

He said Peterborough coach Frank Mario claimed he had no knowledge of a mutual agreement calling for the 7 p.m. start.

The Petes defeated the Wings 9-3 for the Hamilton club's second-straight loss after running their longest unbeaten streak of the season to four games.

PAYS BIG DOUBLE

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—The daily double paid at Santa Anita paid $696.80 Thursday. Battlement paid $23.80 in the first race and Ivebar $83.20 in the second. It was the track's highest payoff of the season and third highest ever.

BEST IN DAWSON

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP) The Canadian outdoor speed skating championships will be held in Dawson Creek next year, Pat Underhill, coach of the Dawson Creek Speed Skating Club, said Tuesday. The meet is open to Canadians only and usually takes place in the Prairie provinces or Ontario.

Nine Others Sentenced

Soccer Player Given 4 Years in Jail

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP)—Jimmy Gauld, one of 10 professional soccer players charged with throwing games in order to win bets, was sentenced to four years in jail Tuesday and ordered to pay $14,000 legal costs in Britain's biggest trial involving soccer fixes.

Nine other players also were given jail terms.

The trial of the players came after revelations in a London Sunday newspaper, The People. Arthur James, the prosecutor, said Gauld was the central figure and had corrupted other players. He told the court that Gauld, former Mansfield Town inside forward, made $36,170 cost of betting on soccer matches and received $20,272 from The People for his revelations.

Mr. Justice Lawton, the presiding judge, told Gauld: "You have betrayed professional football (soccer) and corrupted your friends and acquaintances."

Jack Fountain and Brian Phillips were sent to jail for 15 months and Phillips was ordered to pay 50 guineas ($140.50) legal costs.

Richard Beattie, another of the pro players, was jailed for nine months and Kenneth Thomson got six months.

Ron Howells and Samuel Chapman were jailed for six months, with Howells being told to pay £100 ($300) toward the costs.

David (Bronco) Layne, Tony Kay and Peter Swan were jailed for four months. Kay and Swan, both English international players, were each ordered to pay £100 toward the costs.

IMPALA SPORT COUPE

The best buy ever built—even by Chevrolet!

And that's saying something! Styling, for instance. There's literally nothing to touch the '65 Chevrolet. That Sweep-line roof and jet-age rear deck — don't they say right off, here's something very, very new? So of course you won't be at all surprised—just delighted—when we tell you that Chevrolet's famous ride is even Jet-smoother, new front and rear coil suspensions see to that. Then there's something new and great called Wide-Stance chassis design — helps to make Chevrolet even easier to handle this year. Inside is the sort of luxury and quietness that makes higher-priced cars turn a "how-does-Chevy-do-it?" green. Finally, we'll just mention self-adjusting brakes, long-life exhaust system, Delcotron generator, new Girder-Guard frame, curved side window glass, choice of six engines, three transmissions and 15 Magic-Mirror colors . . . Hey, where are you going? To your Chevrolet dealer's? Must be something we said!

Generals Trounce Petes 5-3

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP)—Oshawa Generals, scoring four goals in the second period, downed Peterborough Petes 5-3 in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game Tuesday night.

It was the generals' fifth win over the third - place Petes in seven games this season and gave them 41 points, five back of Peterborough.

Danny O'Shea, making his first appearance after missing 20 games with torn knee ligaments, led the winners with two goals. Ron Buchanan, Bobby Orr and Bill Bannerman also scored.

Andre Lacroix, league-leading point-scorer with 97, had two goals and had one assist. Linemate Leo Thiffault added the other goal.

Oshawa outshot the Petes 34-27 and received six of 11 minor penalties handed out by referee Bill Brethauer of Galt.

Central Pro Lead Held By Dufour

DETROIT (CP) — Marc Dufour, hard-shooting rightwinger of St. Paul Rangers, heads the scoring parade in the Central Professional Hockey League for the sixth successive week.

The 23-year-old forward, who only counted 28 points last season with Baltimore of the American Hockey League, New York Rangers of the National League and Los Angeles of the Western League, has scored 27 goals and drawn 29 assists in 38 games.

Tom McCarthy of Tulsa Oilers follows five points back with 29 goals and 22 assists for a single - point edge over teammate Mike Walton who has scored 26 times and picked up 24 assists.

THRIVING COMMERCIAL ARTIST — Harvey Williams, 12, is a thriving commercial artist. He carves miniature totem poles and face masks for a demanding market. He turns out four totem poles a day bringing $2.50 to $3.50 from the retailer. A face mask, traditional weapon of the medicine man to ward off evil spirits from the sick, takes Harvey four days. His father and grandfather have been carving tribal art for many years. (CP Photo)

He's a Smash Artist --And He's Only 12

VICTORIA (CP) — Harvey Williams is a thriving commercial artist at the age of 12, producing intricate totem poles and face masks.

His work has been bought by hundreds of Canadian and American tourists, among them Hollywood stars.

Harvey is a little amazed by it all and explains modestly that it just comes naturally. His father Raymond, 31, has carved almost every day since he was six. His grandfather, now 79, worked at this tribal art for more than 60 years.

Harvey turns out four miniature totem poles a day, bringing $2.50 to $3.50 from the retailer, who usually doubles the price for customers. A face mask, traditional weapon of the medicine man to ward off evil spirits from the sick, takes Harvey four days.

"All you do is get a big block of yellow cedar, chop it, shape it with a knife, and start carving it", he says.

But his father, who draws the designs for his son, says the work is not that simple.

"What he's learned in a little while took me a long time". The boy says he does not understand the meaning of the carvings, but hopes to study the legends behind them.

Raymond Williams says he plans to teach all nine of his children the art and Mrs. Williams, who paints most of her husband's work, will pass on her talents too.

Each pools his earnings to meet family needs, and the Williams' collective revenue from carving — representing their only income — is enough to maintain their independence.

Nagas Resume Fight Against India Rule

NEW DELHI (AP) — After time out for a few months of palaver, Naga tribesmen in eastern India again are doing what they do best--fighting.

The Nagas, who have demonstrated willingness to die for an independent Nagaland, clashed recently with Indian Army troops in the wild, trackless jungle along the India - Burma frontier.

The affair probably was not so one-sided. The Nagas, 400,000-strong, are skilled and vicious fighters who have fended off the best of India's regular army in bloody guerrilla war since British colonial rule ended 17 years ago.

Naga leaders, perhaps seeking time to regroup and re-equip, agreed last July to negotiate with New Delhi officials. Prime Minister Shastri, vexed at this secessionist movement, made his offer: A separate Nagaland state but one firmly wedded to the Indian Union.

To grant the Nagas any more autonomy would have brought down on Shastri's head a landslide of other demands for independence. Many racial, religious, cultural and even language groups in India want independence.

EXPECTED FIGHT

Few in New Delhi seriously thought the Nagas, after such a long, hard fight, would quit. And they didn't.

We never bowed to the British, the Nagas told the Indians, and we aren't going to bow to you. They bargained with New Delhi as a sovereign nation headed by independent leaders.

A British Anglican missionary, Rev. Michael Scott, acted as go-between but before the talks ended New Delhi thought he sounded too much like a Naga. He was quoted as saying the Indians and Nagas are distinctly separate peoples.

Most fighting occurs in eastern Manipur as Nagas in bands of up to 400 men try to break across the border into northern Burma. Indian officials say this is the first leg of a detour the Nagas make en route to East Pakistan to pick up arms.

The Indian army has thousands of miles of hostile frontier to guard facing Pakistan and Communist China and is hard pressed to stop the Nagas.

The jungle is the Nagas' element and they move swiftly and silently in areas where the army's heavy tanks and artillery are useless.

Victoria Dunks Seals

VICTORI A(CP) — Defences let down on both teams as Victoria Maple Leafs dropped San Francisco Seals 6-3 before 2,401 Western Hockey League fans Tuesday night.

The result moved Leafs to within one point of third-place Vancouver and left Seals in the league cellar, two points away from fifth - place Los Angeles Blades.

Veteran Ed Mazur led the Victoria attack with two goals and an assist, all in the first period. Dick Lamoureux, John Shearer, Danny Bellis and Milan Marcetta scored the other Victoria goals.

Dallas Smith, Ray Cyr and Charlie Burns, with his 26th goal of the season, were the San Francisco scorers.

ASIAN SOLUTION

LONDON (CP)—The Roads Campaign Council, studying ways to beat increasing traffic congestion on British highways, suggests that the introduction of rickshaws will be a certain solution.

W. Germans Win Second Tour Game

FREDERICTON, N.B. (CP) The West German national hockey team scored three goals in the third period Tuesday night to defeat Fredericton Capitals 6-4 in the second game of a Canadian exhibition tour. The West Germans, fresh from a 6-3 triumph over Charlottetown Royals Monday night, fell behind 2-0 in the first period but came alive with three goals in the second.

Frederiction, leaders of the Southern New Brunswick Hockey League, scored once in the second and once in the third.

TRAIN LOST WAY

LONDON (CP) — Commuters travelling home from London's Waterloo station found they were going west instead of south. However, the driver stopped the train and the 600 passengers were returned to Waterloo when it was found a signalman had blundered.

Armstrong Speaks Says Leafs Complacent

TORONTO (CP) — George Armstrong, captain of Toronto Maple Leafs, feels that if the Leafs lacked desire as has been suggested in the last few weeks, they would be in last place instead of third in the National Hockey League.

"Our problem is complacency, over - confidence — the subconscious feeling that we can turn it on when we have to," the 16-year NHL veteran said in an interview Tuesday. "It's that narrow line between confidence and over - confidence. Confidence you must have. Over - confidence can kill you."

He said that last year everyone on the club was convinced the Leafs would win the Stanley Cup and "we did. But we had to dig ourselves out of a lot of holes on the way.

"If we lacked desire, we wouldn't have come up with those big games in Chicago this season, or that unbeaten streak when we were short - handed two weeks ago."

He said that with the Leafs' road record so far this season—37 per cent successful — the team should be in first place. But at home, Toronto is little better than 50 per cent, compared with an average of 70 for Montreal, Chicago and Detroit.

Says Detroit Won't Get Olympics

CHICAGO (AP) — Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee said Tuesday night there is no possibility of Detroit taking over the 1968 Olympic Games from Mexico City.

Brundage said the people from Mexico City observed the Olympics in Tokyo and were ready to take over from there.

The Detroit committee that bid unsuccessfully for the 1968 games wrote Brundage Tuesday expressing readiness to pinch-hit for the Mexicans if their organizational efforts bogged down.

River recently on the occasion of Mrs. J. Lake's 82nd birthday.

"Charley's Aunt" Is for Free

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — Charley's Aunt, one of the richest and funniest characters in show business, is anybody's baby now.

At the beginning of this year the copyright expired on Walter Brandon Thomas' 73 - year - old stage comedy and the character that gave her (or his) name to the play finally escaped from the rigid chaperonage exercised by the author and his family.

By the terms of a contract drawn up in 1933, when Charley's Aunt was first performed, Thomas exercised the right to cancel the licence of any producer who infringed the detailed instructions for staging the play.

Since then the Aunt has always appeared on stage in "a light brown parted in the centre and a bonnet of black silk with red roses" and with "a large cameo brooch on a dress of stiff black satin worn over a black moire silk petticoat."

But from moment Charley's Aunt first struck a match on her backside and lit a surreptitious cigar, the play has been a stit ali over the world. At the time it was running simultaneously in 46 theatres in 22 languages.

It has been performed somewhere at least once every weekday for 72 years, filmed five times, broadcast and made into a musical. It has been played by expired nine professional companies and more than 30 amateur companies have put it on.

With a goldmine on his hands, Thomas spent the rest of his life trying to protect his property from pirates and adulterators of the true script. At one time he employed a team of private detectives wandering Britain to detect unlicensed productions. Flagitious was rife and Charley's nieces, nephews and uncles popped up on stages everywhere.

TIGHT CONTROL

When Thomas died in 1914 first right of control in his son Jevan retained tight control over the play. While the 50-year copyright lasted the family took 10 per cent of the gross from all professional productions and a five-guinea fee from all amateur companies.

The BBC once made the mistake of applying for a licence and adding that the play had been entirely rewritten for radio broadcasting.

Mrs. Thomas turned the corporation down with the curt comment that "I was under the impression that it had already been satisfactorily written by my husband."

Despite the family's firm grip on the play there have been some 4 to 5 star performances. Jevan once granted a routine licence to a Hamburg amateur society. He learned too late that the society was run by members of a nudist colony.

Sophia Gets Love Letters!

PARIS (AP) — Love letters from enamored fans around the world parade Sophia Loren right onto the set.

Looking quickly through a new batch, the brown - eyed star paused and said:

"These letters are sometimes amusing. They come from a variety of writers—from men who say they are in love with me to people who come right out and ask for money."

Miss Loren, who knew bitter poverty herself only a few years ago, before her film career was launched, said she disregards all but the most obviously serious requests for financial help.

And the love letters?

"Ah, I do not read them through. I have a husband, after all."

Miss Loren was winding up Paris scenes for the comedy Lady L. produced by her husband Carlo Ponti.

The film, directed by Peter Ustinov, is the third in which Miss Loren has starred within a year. She has also worked in Israel on Judith and in London on Operation Crossbow. Soon Arthur Miller will start a movie version of his play After The Fall in which she is to arrive for Miss Loren's study.

She is to play the role resembling the personality of the late Marilyn Monroe. The film is expected to go into production in 1960.

Looking Like Liz Is Fine, But...

HOLLYWOOD (AP) How does it feel to look like Elizabeth Taylor?

"Well it's better than looking like Dracula's daughter," says 22-year-old Monica Lee, "but, frankly, I don't like it.

"People just seem to stare at me."

Monica is all Swede—even born in Stockholm—but looks as outspirited Swedish as does the beautiful Miss Taylor.

There are other girls who resemble Miss Taylor, but Monica's likeness is more startling than most. Each has the same measurements—36½-22-36. They are the same height and approximately the same weight.

But the greatest resemblance is in the smiles of the two.

This is what causes people to stare. Some even ask for autographs—and get mad when she signs her own name instead of Liz.

Monica, once a model, is now a featured performer with the Follies Bergere at the Tropicana Hotel in Las Vegas.

Monica, unlike most show-girls, has no movie aspirations. She has more than enough to do, most are her horsemanship and a boy friend in Los Angeles.

She has won about 25 trophies and 100 blue ribbons in horsemanship.

Oh, Yeah So What Else Is New?

CHICAGO (AP) — All it takes to be happy is youth, money, success, good health and a wife, says the University of Chicago sociologist.

Dr. Peter Rossi, 44, director of the university national opinion research centre, says a four-year study has shown that the happiest man is young, wealthy, married, at the height of his career—"he's the playboy of the Western world."

The study, based on thousands of personal interviews, also revealed that marriage, one of the wellsprings of happiness for a man, brings more unhappiness to women because of the tensions of bearing and rearing children.

The important happiness factors are money and age, Rossi said in an interview Monday.

"When you're young, you've got 15 or 20 years ahead of you to answer the question 'What have I done?'" he said.

"But older people suffer chronic illness, loss of powers and vigor, an accumulation of desperation and disappointment. They don't have those years ahead of them.

"They say it constantly—'if I had my life to live over, I wouldn't make the same mistakes.'"

And it's true money can buy happiness, Rossi said.

For instance, he said, his "unhappiest man" is the working class city Negro.

"He's at the bottom of the totem pole," Rossi said. "He's poor, he's unhealthy, he has no job security. To be a lower class Negro in urban areas is to be in a really paralaking situation."

French Revolution Classic Proved to Be Boring Hour

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The French Revolution, Tuesday night's attempt by NBC to capture the 1789 French revolution in one educational, entertaining hour of television was a sad, ambitious undertaking.

Despite painstaking research, some marvellous photography and interesting old prints, it was a boring hour.

NBC, and to some degree, the other networks, apparently like to call it technique called "subjective," which is supposed to involve the viewer in events.

This is a lofty device when used well, but it now is being over-used.

Both NBC and ABC soon will show potential sponsors and the press a sample of some programs under consideration for next season's schedules. In Hollywood, CBS-TV President James Aubrey Jr., who rarely commits to interviews, was quoted as saying his network would drop "about 10 shows" at the end of this season—no names. All this suggests that the networks — maybe even sponsors—are at unhappy about current programs as are the critics.

Recommended tonight:

Dick Van Dyke Show, CBS, 9-9:30 EST—second of a two-part episode with Jerry Van Dyke, Dick's brother; Danny Kaye Show, CBS, 10-11—with Eddie Ryan of Beverly Hillbillies, and Bessie Griffin and The Gospel Pearls.

Easter Island 'King' Praises Canadians

MONTREAL (CP)—The man who Nov. 1 was crowned King of Easter Island said Tuesday that Canadian medical scientists, are welcome any time in his domain.

The Canadian medical expedition has made an excellent reputation on the island," said Rev. Sebastian Englert, the nonetheless missionary heart-and-soul of Chile's Polynesian possession in the South Pacific.

His voice carrying 5,800 miles in robust, German - accented English, the Austrian priest of the Roman Catholic Capuchin Order, who has been on the island 30 years and left it only three times, said the Canadian visitors "have dedicated themselves to a most beneficial work."

"We of the island shall all feel sad when the day of their departure arrives," he said.

The Canadian-led task forces is carrying out comprehensive examination of a people unique because of their isolation, considering the spectrum of medical research from bacteriology to anthropometric measurements.

CRIED OFF WOLF

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP)—Life became lonelier for a man here who hit upon an idea to keep thieves from stealing his outdoor Christmas decorations. He stationed a frozen dead wolf on his front steps. He lost no lights at all this Christmas, he reports, but the warning kept away the mailman, milkman, baker, and his social callers.

At the Park

OPENS THURSDAY
'BIG TERROR SHOW'

Motion picture monsters nearly always have been male. This unwritten law of the ancient cinema is triumphantly broken in "The Gorgon," new Hammer Films production at the Park Theatre in Eastman Color, starting Thursday.

"The Gorgon" is a lady.

"The Gorgon," according to Hollywood, is a lady monstrous enough to join the ancient company of Dracula, Frankenstein, the were-wolf, the vampire and other masters of evil whose careers have been recorded by Hammer Films around the world this many chilling years. Starred in the Columbia Pictures release are Peter Cushing and Christopher Lee, two familiars of the fantastic, and Richard Pasco, Barbara Shelley and Barbara Shelley are featured.

Petrifying reportedly is the word to call this film—to be petrified is, literally, to be turned into stone. When you look at the Gorgon, that's exactly what happens. According to Greek legend, the Gorgons were three hideous sisters whose heads were crowned with living snakes. They were—naturally ugly. Producer Anthony Keys' horror specialists have updated this story of these rapacious harpies.

A further twist to the horror is that the Gorgon lives a Jekyll-and-Hyde existence. She is a beautiful, seductive young woman who, with the full moon, becomes a living horror.

On the same program, second terror feature, "Curse of the Mummy's Tomb." In colour starring Terrence Morgan, Ronald Howard, Fred Clark and Jeanne Roland. Both hits are first Belleville showings with complete shows at 7.00 and 8.45 p.m.

Silk-suited 1965 Tarzan Has Sleek Blonde and Yacht

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Memo to Johnny Weissmuller, Buster Crabbe, Glenn Morris, Lex Barker, Gordon Scott, Jock Mahoney and other movie tarzans:

Remember how you had to swim in brackish studio tanks, muzzle slobbering chimps, mutter monosyllabic nonsense to Jane and oh bristle-hooped elephants in those skimpy loincloths?

You fellows came along too early. Look what's happening to Tarzan No. 14. Mike Henry, linebacker for the Los Angeles Rams pro football team.

He gets to wear silk suits in his new picture, Tarzan '65. Not only that, he will film much of it in Acapulco aboard a posh yacht. His leading lady? A sleek blonde named Sharon Tate.

Whatever happened to Jane? She's back in the jungle cooking banana stew.

GETS SEND-OFF

The latest Tarzan was unveiled by producer Sy Weintraub at his Sunset Strip office crammed with 19 impressionist paintings. The well - dressed Henry, 28, has a Tarzan build—six-foot-three, 212 pounds, down 16 from his normal playing weight.

He has been with the Rams for several seasons, meanwhile playing such memorable roles as Henry Fonda's brother in Spencer's Mountain and a doorman in Palm Springs Weekend.

How did Weintraub pick him for the erstwhile ape man?

"Mike has the physical qualities, being rugged and virile," said the producer. "But also because he is articulate. Image I want to project for Tarzan on the screen.

"I am modernizing Tarzan, taking him out of the studio and-grass category and back more to Edgar Rice Burrough's original concept. In this film he will be more of a James Bond type, the difference being that Tarzan operates on the level of saving one man or one animal while Bond saved the world."

Henry, who intends to continue his football career, admitted his Ram comrades have had much sport with his casting. Jock Mahoney, his backup, has already been dubbed Jane.

LATE START

British actress Margaret Rutherford began her stage career in 1925 at the age of 36 when she understudied Mabel Terry-Lewis.

Wellington's Frank Harris Honored by PE Yacht Club At Testimonial Banquet

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward Yacht Club Tuesday night honored one of its early Commodores, Mr. Frank Harris of Wellington. Attending were many members and their guests who paid their respects to the 83-year-old boat builder and sailor.

Mr. Harris attended the banquet accompanied by his two sons, Garratt and Cory. Head table guests at the event were Bert Tulley, F. L. Ward, QC, Garratt Harris, Richard Hart, Rear Commodore Ken EYC; Frank Harris, Commodore Jack Hartwick, Vice-Commodore Dr. Robert Clapp, Judge W. Lane, Cory Harris, Herb Daubney (likewise honored by the club this past year), Mayor H. J. McFarland and warden of the county H. Hepburn.

Commodore Jack Hartwick in his introductory remarks gave a colorful picture of Mr. Harris' history as a boating enthusiast. Mr. Harris today operates a Wellington garage and repair business when he and his son Garratt repair cars, fix lawn mowers or build boats.

Mr. Harris in the past has built many motorboats, motor boats and sailing craft. The largest boat that he built was a keech built for Mr. Peake of Northport and was named the Yodo. He also built himself a racing boat called the "Flame." Frank won many races with it in the earlier days of the Prince Edward Yacht Club.

Commodore Hartwick presented on behalf of the PEYC a photographic portrait of the "Flame" and a portrait of himself. The photograph will remain in the club as a constant reminder of the gratitude of the members for Mr. Harris' contributions to boating, to the yacht club and to Picton and the county itself. He was also presented with a duplicate or replica of the ship's bell used by Rear Commodore Richard Hart.

In making the presentation Mr. Hartwick said he would be "We are here tonight because we recognize not a single achievement but a lifetime of building. Frank's work is self revealing. The quality and strength and soundness in his building are the outward expression of his inward character. Vice-Commodore Dr. R. Clapp presented Mr. Harris with a Yachting Ontario membership in the club.

There were many other prominent citizens present to pay the work of Frank Harris. Mr. Fred Ward, QC, reminisced at the many occasions when they raced together on West Lake. Mr. Ward was the first Commodore of the Prince Edward Yacht Club. In closing his talk Mr. Ward said: "Frank and his family will always be remembered as a sportsman."

Mr. Harris replying to the club members said it had been very great pleasure to build boats and that it never was a job to him, he thoroughly enjoyed it.

He spoke of the late Buff Cooper, who raced boats in Picton, and said that he wished Buff could be here for this occasion. He reminisced over early days of racing and complimented the club on their progress and the excellent facilities that they now have. It is a pleasant place for boats to visit, he said, and also a very pleasant place for occasions such as this.

Greetings were also expressed by His Worship H. J. McFarland, County warden Bernard Hepburn and wives of Wellington, Robert Boyce, Herb Daubney, who was also honored in the same way last year, and Mr. Bert Tulley.

Reeve Boyce said there is not a man in Wellington more respected than Frank Harris. He said that the newly renovated P.E.Y. Club is an asset to the county, and that he appreciated the honors bestowed upon Mr. Harris, "but you can't take him away from Wellington."

Bloomfield Man Injured in Novel Accident

PICTON: — (Staff) Twenty-eight-year-old Robert Ferguson, R.R. 2 Bloomfield was rushed to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital in Picton shortly after 9.00 a.m. today in a critical condition following an accident at a construction site at the Lake Ontario Portland Cement plant near Picton.

Ferguson was operating a pellet plant at the mouth of the into cement. A slag measuring two inches in length and one hundredth of an inch in diameter, entered the cement construction, hit an obstruction and came back out, striking the man soon in the head near his left ear.

It is believed the steel slag was still lodged in his head upon arrival at hospital where three doctors have been attending him. They have stated his condition as being critical.

Mr. Ferguson is employed by the Eastern Electric Construction Company of Ottawa. The injured man was rushed to the hospital by Bond's Ambulance Service of Picton.

Homemaking Club Holds Annual Achievement Day

PICTON (Staff) — Saturday, January 23rd at the Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, Picton, the 4-H Homemaking Club Achievement Day was held for the Project "Sleeping Garments". 12 clubs were represented with 116 members successfully completing this project. 13 voluntary leaders and 8 assistant leaders were presented with Clothing Badges in the morning program.

During the morning session the girls participated in various educational activities; judging a class of sleeping garments, giving reasons for their placings, judging a class of materials suitable for a particular style of pyjama and sewing on hooks by hand.

About 60 visitors attended the afternoon program consisting of a presentation of an exhibit, demonstration or skit by each club.

A specially designed sterling silver spoon was presented to each 4-H Homemaking Club member, who successfully completed her project, and to the leaders and assistants.

Five girls received County Honor certificates and pins for successful completion of 6 projects; Bonnie Murray, Albury Club; Carol Gould, Bloomfield Club; Kathleen Alexander, Hillier Club; Catharine and Margaret Walker, of Milford Club.

Provincial Honor certificates and pins were presented to Rebecca Hatfield, Albury Club; Betty Faye Brooks, Bloomfield Club; Faye Cassidy and Anne Springer, Gilead Club and Mary Whiteford of Milford Club.

Mrs. Karl Onderdonk, District President of Prince Ed. Cty. Women's Institutes and Mrs. Sherman Foster presented the first Pr. Ed. Cty. Ontario Women's Institute Scholarship to Miss Donna Spender, No. 1 Belleville.

Mrs. Sam Tripp, 1st Vice-President of the District and Mrs. Jas. Corby, District Secretary presented a bursary to Miss Margaret Montgomery, No. 1 Carrying Home.

The sashing Home Economists were Miss Mary Lou Black, Picton, Miss Pat Wray, Durham, Peterborough and Victoria Counties and Miss Margaret Harrison, Northumberland and Prince Edward Counties.

The spring project is "The Milky Way" and the training school for leaders is set for February 11th and 12th at St. Mary Magdalene Church Hall, Picton. There will be a new project offered by the Extension Service, Ont. Dept. of Agriculture for the fall of 1965 for 4-H Homemaking Clubs. Ask in Prince Edward County, "Access on Accessories."

The Rural Scene

PICTON (Staff) — The annual meeting and banquet of the Prince Edward Farm Safety Council was held in the basement of Mountain View United Church on the evening of Wednesday, January 20th, with an excellent attendance.

The guest speaker on the program was Mr. Grant Webber, Farm Sales Division, Ontario Hydro, Toronto. Mr. Webber spoke on electrical fire and accident prevention and showed a film entitled "Safe Farm Wiring".

Officers elected for 1965 are as follows: President, Elias Werkhoven, R.R. 7, Picton; vice-president, George Emlaw, R.R. 2, Milford; secretary treasurer, Ivan Bell, Agricultural Representative.

HOG PRODUCERS ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Prince Edward County Hog Producers' Association was held in Baxter's Hall, Bloomfield, on the evening of Thursday, January 21st. Speaker was the program director Dr. John W. Macpherson, Head, Breeders' Service, Department of Animal Husbandry, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, and Dr. Gordon King of the same department. Dr. Macpherson spoke on the development of artificial breeding in swine. Dr. King spoke on research that is being done in the artificial breeding in swine.

Other speakers on the program were Eldred Aiken, chairman, Yards Committee, Ontario Hog Producers' Marketing Board and Fred Crowe, Warden, Director of the Ontario Hog Producers' Marketing Board.

Officers elected for 1965 are as follows: President, George Fleming, R.R. 10, Picton; vice-president, Leonard Bryant, R.R. 3, Bloomfield, and secretary-treasurer, Rose Pierson, R.R. 1, Wellington.

At the directors' meeting following the annual meeting a decision was made to pay $15.00 premium per board on the first two approved boars purchased by Prince Edward County hog producers in 1965. Conditions will be in addition to the premium paid by the Ontario Department of Agriculture under the Ontario Board Premium Policy. Application for this premium should be made to the secretary, Ross Pierson, R.R. 1, Wellington, Ont.

WANT FACTS

TORONTO (CP) — It is incorrous to think that consumers do not want facts or will be persuaded by a slogan or a few dull adjectives, Mrs. A. F. W. Plumptre, national president of the Consumers Association of Canada, said Tuesday. Mrs. Plumptre told the Advertising and Sales Club of Toronto that advertisers and manufacturers should give all the accurate information about a product that it is possible to include in advertisements or on the label.

RAWDON

Extinguish Chimney Fire

RAWDON — Rawdon Township Fire brigade were called out on Tuesday afternoon to the home of John Talsma, two miles west of Stirling on the Campbellford Road to extinguish a chimney fire.

The cellar to roof chimney had been smoking before flames erupted.

Firemen spent more than an hour at the scene before the blaze was put out. There was a small amount of smoke damage to the house.

Guard Tells How Prisoner Made Escape

TORONTO (CP) — Penitentiary guard Edward McConnell described Tuesday how a prisoner he escorted here for his mother's funeral escaped from him in a dining lounge.

McConnell, a guard at the minimum - security prison at Joyceville, was testifying at the preliminary hearing of Richard Morin, 32, of Toronto, charged with escaping lawful custody last September.

The hearing was adjourned until Friday.

Morin was supposed to be lodged overnight in police cells, but McConnell said that instead they went to a hotel to eat, although both had eaten supper at ...nd a snack on the train.

McConnell said they were in the dining lounge when Morin complained that he was ill and left for the washroom.

He followed Morin seconds later, could not find him, then saw him walking outside, the guard said. McConnell telephoned Toronto police.

Morin was found later and taken next day to the funeral parlour. McConnell said he took Morin back to prison, handcuffed all the way.

VALUABLE STAMP MOVED

LONDON (Reuters) — The world's most valuable stamp, once sold by a schoolboy for six shillings (90 cents) and now insured for £220,000 ($600,000), was flown to London from the United States Tuesday night. Owned by an American, it was loaned for display at an exhibition in London.

For JANUARY 28

Aries (Mar. 21 - Apr. 19)— Bright prospects through aid of friends is top indication. Working too hard on your own could prove futile. You may need introduction or contact. Noticeable gain indicated.

Taurus (Apr. 20 - May 20)— Loved one is impatient. More harmony if you make money compromise. Romantic aspects appear. Be practical, but poetic. Be firm but understanding. Above all, be wise!

Gemini (May 21 - June 28)— Stand up for beliefs. Don't give in to pressure. You are on way to real accomplishment. Know this and act like you know it! Refuse to sign agreement until it suits you.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22)— Take time to be thorough. Solid solid foundation. What you want requires patience. Start today! Aid indicated from fellow workers. Exchange ideas. Express gratitude.

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 23)— Speak your mind. Then realize others have right to their opinions. Harsh or ill will. Key is creative relaxation. Don't force issues. What you need is "on the way."

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 23)— Friendship is important — but so are your principles. Live up to potential. Handle responsibility. Don't go overboard to impress others. Be true to your own feelings.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 23)— Use intuition in practical manner. Applies especially to travel, messages, writing. Could be mistake to commit yourself to long-range program today. Examine all angles, possibilities.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)— Feeling held back is temporary. Your spirits soon rise. Money question due to be settled in your favor. Play waiting game. Key is rationality.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)—Cycle high. Standing in community on upsurge. Reveal ability to concentrate, handle details. Important to be on the scene. Be aware, alert, observant.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)—Concern with present circumstances seems magnified today. Key is looking toward future. Greater happiness due through new creative outlet. Join those with mutual interests.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)—Pleasant day indicated. Involves mate or partner. Your beliefs verified. Encouragement received. Family harmony of great importance. Strive for understanding in depth.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - Mar. 29)— Outside forces appear confused Those who advise may be ill-informed. Rely only on personal knowledge. Check for hidden meanings. Be self-reliant. Key: inner understanding.

If Today is Your Birthday— you are natural humanitarian and innovator. Your critical faculty enables you to perceive beauty in poetry, literature and the other arts.

General Tendencies — Cycle high for Capricorn, Aquarius. Special word to Cancer: Review budget. You can get more for current spending.

U.S. JETS DYNAMITED AT EDMONTON

China Pledges Indonesia Help If War 'Imposed'

Communique Is Issued After Talks in Peking

From AP-Reuters

TOKYO (CP) — China again warned today that it will "absolutely not sit idly by" if Indonesia and the United States "dare to impose a war on the Indonesian people."

The Chinese made the threat in a joint communique issued with Indonesia after five days of talks with Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio in Peking.

The joint statement, broadcast by the official New China agency, said that Chinese Premier Chou En-lai and Foreign Minister Chen Yi will visit Indonesia in April to attend the 10th anniversary of the Bandung conference.

The statement said the two nations "decided to strengthen their technical co-operation, expand their trade, develop maritime transportation . . . and strengthen friendly contacts in the military field."

Indonesia's foreign office spokesman, Gandi Harsono, told the Antara news agency China and Indonesia agreed to "exchange military experiences" but did not form a military alliance.

PLEDGE CREDIT

Harsono also said the Chinese pledged $100,000,000 in credit for Indonesian economic development, including $10,000,000 in cash.

The statement said Indonesia "reaffirmed its persistence to confront" the British - backed Federation of Malaysia.

The communique called for a "thoroughly reorganized" United Nations and added that China "firmly supported" Indonesia's withdrawal from the world organization.

Subandrio left today for Bangkok to confer with Thai government officials until Saturday. Thailand has tried to mediate between Malaysia and Indonesia.

Doctors Ground Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, heeding medical advice that he abandon hope of attending Sir Winston Churchill's funeral, has admitted "I don't have the bouncy feeling that I usually have."

Johnson summoned seven reporters to his bedroom Wednesday night to announce he would not be flying to London.

Instead, he said, the United States will be represented by State Secretary Dean Rusk, Chief Justice Earl Warren of the U.S. Supreme Court and David K. E. Bruce, American ambassador to Britain.

In addition, he noted, such distinguished private citizens as former president Eisenhower would be present as guests of the Churchill family. Eisenhower was to fly to London with Rusk and the others.

Johnson's announcement ended three days of speculation prompted by his own statement Sunday that he wanted "very, very much" to go to the Churchill funeral. His stay-at-home decision came as a surprise to many reporters who had got the impression from White House medical reports that Johnson was feeling himself again.

LOOKS SICK

The newspaper men who saw the president agreed he looked sicker than they had expected. Hair disheveled, he lay in a four-poster, canopied bed speaking softly, coughing lightly and blowing his nose.

Standing by were three doctors who had just given him a checkup and advice to do as immediate travelling. They were Rear - Admiral George Burkley, the president's personal physician; Navy Capt. James Young, an assistant to Burkley, and Dr. W. J. Gould, a New York throat specialist.

In some ways, Johnson appeared sicker than he had on Sunday when a similar delegation of reporters was called to his bedside at the Bethesda, Md., Naval Medical Centre. He had been taken to the hospital by ambulance early Saturday and returned to the White House Tuesday.

TRIP NOT ADVISABLE

Johnson greeted the newspaper men by saying:

"I have just been examined and gone over by Dr. Burkley and the other doctors here, and it is their judgment that while I have made a substantial recovery from the virus infection, they would consider it inadvisable for me to undertake a long trip whereby I would be exposed, as I would be on the London trip, at this time."

Weygand Dies

PARIS (AP) — General Maxime Weygand, 98, former commanding general of French armies during the Nazi invasion of France in 1940, died today.

Today's Chuckle

Teen-ager to mother: "You shouldn't be out there shoveling snow, Mom. Where's Dad?"

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: An outbreak of extremely cold arctic air will move into most of eastern Ontario today after which snow will end except for persistent snowflurries and snow squalls in the southeast of Lake Huron and Georgian Bay.

As one elderly man said to me outside Westminster this afternoon, "I thought it had to be 'ere today if it hadn't been for 'im."

It is a quiet sombre crowd that is gathered and the scene in the great hall of Westminster is indeed a dramatic one. This is a huge hall — 290 feet long and 92 feet high. The catafalque is in the centre. Four officers in full dress uniforms stand at each corner with drawn swords. Four tall candles burn softly. The officers are drawn from the three services, but the last watch will be provided by the 21st Lancers. Churchill was a young officer with the Lancers when he lead the famous charge in the battle of the Omdurman.

The weather this morning has been cold but this has not deterred the mourners . . . nearly one hundred thousand so far. The hall was closed from 6 to 7 a.m. for cleaning but the crowd kept coming all the time and they will be coming until the final moment on Saturday.

Various officials that I spoke to today, agree that there has never been anything like it. The death of George V and George VI did not arouse so much public emotion. One Londoner explained it to me this way . . . Churchill was an emotional man himself . . . he was not stuck up . . . he made mistakes . . . he was more like the rest of us . . . he liked his whisky too . . . he was a great man.

There are many young people, teenagers, visiting Westminster today and this is rather surprising, because, to the new generation, he is just a legend. As some of the older people walk by, they will wipe away a tear, maybe cough a little, then square their shoulders and march off to home or work, with that serious determined look that is so typically British. . .

The Earl of Norfolk who has the responsibility for all the arrangements has a prodigious task. It is obvious that everything is being arranged down to the most minute detail.

More than seven thousand officers and men of the armed forces will take part, and practically every policeman in London will be on duty Saturday morning.

The Royal Air Force will have a special place of honour.

Twelve Battle of Britain pilots, led by Air Commodore Paddy Heyworth-Dunlop who flew a Spitfire in No. 54 Squadron at RAF Hornchurch in 1940, will march in the procession. Sixteen supersonic Lightnings from RAF Fighter Command will fly past in salute.

It is obvious that the grandeur of this funeral tribute will be unmatched in British history. It is obvious too, that this is the wish of the people.

WITNESSES AT DORION INQUIRY — Left to right are Raymond Rouleau, Bill Lamy and Roger Aubin, three recent witnesses at the Dorion Inquiry. Rouleau told the court Justice Minister Favreau advised his brother, Guy Rouleau, M.P., the case was too hot to attempt to arrange bail. Lamy was said by Mrs. Lucien Rivard to have contributed to a $60,000 bail fund for her husband. He and Roger Aubin, another witness, did not show up when called and were arrested by police. Denis Told Favreau of Involvement, Minister Failed to Tell Tremblay

MONTREAL (CP) — Raymond Denis testified today that he told Justice Minister Favreau Aug. 20 about his involvement in the Lucien Rivard case but that Mr. Favreau did not tell Immigration Minister Tremblay, then Denis' boss.

Denis, former executive assistant to Mr. Tremblay, said he was questioned by the RCMP Aug. 19 and saw Mr. Favreau the next day.

Denis was testifying for the second day at the Dorion inquiry which is investigating allegations of attempted bribery and influence-peddling by federal ministerial aides aimed at getting bail for Rivard, charged by the United States government with being a key figure in a huge international dope-smuggling conspiracy.

He said he did not know why he told Mr. Favreau first instead of his own minister. He thought it was because of a "nervous reaction."

Denis said he asked Mr. Favreau to tell Mr. Tremblay about the matter but that the justice minister did not mention it to Mr. Tremblay.

Denis said he thinks the first occasion on which he discussed it with Mr. Tremblay was Aug. 31.

The witness said that in effect he left the immigration department Aug. 31.

On Sept. 21 Mr. Tremblay had suggested that he resign.

Denis said in reply to Jules Deschenes, federal government counsel, that Mr. Tremblay had mentioned the famous quotation that Caesar's wife must be above reproach.

Denis said he told Mr. Tremblay that the accusation by Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne was unfounded.

Mr. Lamontagne has testified that Denis offered him a $20,000 bribe to agree to a release on bail of Rivard, wanted in the United States on charges of conspiracy in an alleged dope-smuggling racket.

At the outset of his second day in the witness box, Denis testified that Mr. Lamontagne asked him July 22 to "call off your boys," or something to that effect in similar words.

Denis said he had replied to Mr. Lamontagne: "Listen, Pierre, I have nothing to do with that."

Denis who was "separated" from the federal government service about Oct. 1 regretted that he was "absolutely astounded" by Mr. Lamontagne's accusation.

He said there was something "abnormal, something wrong."

The first thing he had said to Mr. Lamontagne in an Aug. 20 telephone conversation was "Are you crazy?" and "What did I ever do to you?"

Denis said he told Mr. Lamontagne, who was acting for the U.S. government in Rivard's extradition hearings here, that he (Lamontagne) had promised not to use his name.

He said this referred to their July 22 telephone conversation.

Dupuis Denies He Was Paid $10,000 in Race Track Case

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says Yvon Dupuis, former member of the federal cabinet, denies receiving $10,000 in connection with a bid to establish a race track in his Quebec riding of Saint Jean-Iberville-Napierville.

Mr. Dupuis, whose resignation as minister without portfolio was accepted by Prime Minister Pearson last week, instead of his own minister. He thought it was because of a "nervous reaction."

Denis said he asked Mr. Favreau that he was involved in a scandal.

Asked about a report that St. John Chiropractor Roch Desaluriers gave him $10,000 in connection with attempts to obtain a race track franchise, Mr. Dupuis is quoted as saying:

"It's malicious and libelous for the (Conservative) party to say I did or involve me in any way."

The race track franchise was never granted and Mr. Desaluriers, 31, has declared bankruptcy.

Mr. Dupuis, 38, is quoted as saying he is not worried and intends to retain his seat in the House of Commons.

"I'm marshaling all the facts to prove I'm not guilty of anything."

Public Memorial Service Slated For Saturday

Mayor Jack Ellis today announced public memorial service Saturday morning for Sir Winston Churchill.

The service will be held in the city armory starting at 11 a.m.

The date has been deliberately arranged to coincide with the state funeral in London.

Will Acquaint Doctors With Drug Reactions

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—A program to acquaint doctors with the adverse reactions of certain drugs may be launched in 1965 by the federal health department, officials were told Wednesday night.

Details of the program were contained in a speech read to delegates attending the convention of the Alberta College of General Practice.

Red Sales Of Wheat Announced

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian wheat board Wednesday announced wheat and wheat flour sales were 526,000,000 to Russia and China.

The Russian sale, including flour, totals 9,400,000 bushels and all or part of it is destined for Cuba, sources said.

The China sale is for 3,700,000 bushels of wheat worth about $7,000,000. The Chinese have the option of taking five per cent more or less than this amount.

The China purchase is in addition to a 27,000,000-bushel deal worth $50,000,000 announced Monday. As in the earlier deal, the wheat involved in No. 1 northern is to be moved by the federal health department. Orders were told Wednesday night.

Details of the program were contained in a speech read to delegates attending the convention of the Alberta College of General Practice.

Timetable of Churchill Funeral

Queen Approves New Flag

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—The Queen, acting as the Monarch of Canada, today signed a proclamation making the parliamentary approved maple leaf flag the official flag of Canada. It will replace the Red Ensign on Feb. 15.

The historic step was taken in the presence of Prime Minister Pearson who will take the proclamation back with him to Ottawa.

Pearson, who arrived here earlier in the day to attend the state funeral for Sir Winston Churchill Saturday, had an audience with the Queen for the proclamation signing.

Pearson and other Commonwealth prime ministers will attend the Queen at Buckingham Palace on Saturday, immediately after the funeral.

Security Man Shot To Death In Plane Plant

German Immigrant Charged With Murder

EDMONTON (CP) — A German immigrant was charged with capital murder today in the overnight shooting of a night security officer in a plant where three American F-84 jets were damaged by dynamite.

Harry W. Hubach, who came to Canada in 1957 and since has worked as a farm laborer in the Edmonton district, was charged by city police today.

Hubach, 36, was charged after the body of Preston J. Richardson, 48, of Edmonton was found bound and gagged in the security office of North Industries Limited, which now is overhauling 13 United States Air Force jets at a plant at the Edmonton industrial airport, 1½ miles from downtown Edmonton.

Police said Richardson, employed by the Canadian Corps of Commissionaires, was shot with a rifle.

His 18-year-old Tofield, Alta., youth, found wandering in the airport district, was being held by police. It was believed he had no part in the incident.

SEE MAN FLEE

Hubach was taken into custody by a score of city police after a man was seen fleeing the plant by a worker in the administration building tower.

The arrest was made about 20 blocks from the plant. Police dogs were used to track the man.

Police said other workers in the building heard the explosions which occurred about 3:15 a.m. No reason for the incident was suggested by police.

A car with 80 pounds of dynamite was found abandoned near the airport.

Other dynamite was found in undamaged jets inside the Northwest Industries shop.

It was not known how the dynamite was strapped to the planes, but a timing device was used to detonate the explosives.

Police did not identify the dead commissionaire, nor details of the incident were learned before police slapped a security blackout on information.

No charges have been placed.

FIND GUARD TIED

Police found the slain guard, bound and gagged, when they went to the plant after a man in the administration tower saw someone running across the airfield after leaving the hangar.

Dogs were used to track the man.

The F-84 jets are among 112 USAF planes being overhauled by Northwest Industries under a $1,000,000, one-year contract awarded last July. The company was the first firm outside the United States to be awarded such work.

CANCELS SHIP'S VISIT

ANKARA, Turkey (Reuters) Th. U.S. atomic ship Savannah's scheduled Feb. 9 visit to Istanbul has been cancelled, informed sources said Thursday. The source said the cancellation was because Turkish officials asked for a limitless guarantee, instead of the $500,000,000 guaranteed by the United States, in case of disaster.

Pearson Chief Mourner

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Lester Pearson, arriving today, will be Canada's chief mourner at Sir Winston Churchill's state funeral and will see considerable Canadian participation in the arrangements.

Lieut. D. J. Neal of Halifax, Canada's only submariner now stationed in England, tonight takes his place for the first time beside the coffin of Sir Winston in Westminster Hall.

Neal, 33, is the only Canadian officer sharing the honor of standing watch over the catafalque during the three - day lying in state.

Flt.-Lt. J. H. (Bob) Chisholm, 28-year-old RCAF pilot, will be at the controls of one of the 16 supersonic Lightning fighters that will stage a flypast following the Saturday funeral service at St. Paul's Cathedral. Chisholm, formerly of Westville, N.S., and Sackville, N.B., is on exchange duty with the RAF.

WILL TAKE PART

Dr. Cosmo Swan, formerly of Duncan, B.C., and Windsor, Ont., the most recently appointed officer of the Royal College of Arms, is expected to have the duty of receiving Sir Winston's coffin when it arrives at the steps of St. Paul's Saturday following the funeral procession from Westminster Hall.

Liberals' Manifesto Presented

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Andrew Thompson said Wednesday the Liberal party will not rest until all Ontario citizens share in the rich, abundant life that could be available for them.

He placed before the legislature what amounted to a manifesto of Liberal policies in a 2½-hour reply to the speech from the throne. He still had a quarter of his 21,000-word address to present when the legislature adjourned.

He is to conclude today by moving a motion of non-confidence in the government, censuring it for failing to declare its support for a comprehensive, government - sponsored medical care program.

Mr. Thompson said Liberal leader, elected to his post four months ago, said he was giving the outline of a new framework for political action. Earlier, at a press conference, he said in his speech: "This will be the basis for a Liberal platform."

Not Even Kings Received Kind of Homage Being Paid to Churchill

By FRANK MURRAY,
Manager of Radio Station CJBQ

LONDON — The headline in today's Daily Express probably sums up what is happening today in London. "Homage to a man owed so much by the many". And this is what the people of London are doing today and did all last night, and will do again tonight.

'LODA Facts' Off the Press

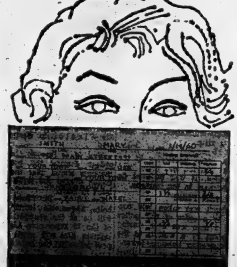
A newly revised edition of "LODA Facts" listing detailed economic information about its more than 40 member municipalities has been received from the printer by the Lake Ontario Development Association.

The city of Belleville is a member of the association formed several years ago to promote industry and tourism in the Lake Ontario area.

The "LODA Facts" data sheets are provided for use with each municipality's own industrial brochures.

The material is up-dated periodically to provide factual information on the municipalities in the Lake Ontario region and covers such important matters as transportation, population, housing, labor rates, utilities, industrial sites, recreation facilities and taxes, along with present industries, their products and the number of employees.

These "LODA Facts" data sheets are distributed to industrial prospects, government departments, Chambers of Commerce, Canadian consulates abroad and the industrial development offices of banks, railways and utilities companies.



St. Michael's Parish Form Credit Union

On January 18th, members of the credit union of St. Michael's Church were presented with their provincial charter by representatives of the Ontario Credit Union League. Mr. O'Brien presented the charter to the pro tem president, Mr. Ralph Ackerman.

Mr. George Currie of the Ontario Credit Union League was introduced to the members and he instructed the electorate who appointed the following board of directors: Mr. Ralph Ackerman and Mr. Art Gooding, 1 year term; Mrs. Jack Sheridan and Mr. Martin Doyle, 2 year term; Mr. Pat Barrett, one year term.

Appointments to the credit committee were Mr. Gordon Conway, 2 year term, Mr. Jack Sheridan, 2 year term and Mr. Tom Farrell, one year term. Appointments to the supervisory committee were Mr. Joe Chappell, Mrs. A. Cowan and Mrs. E. Douglas.

Following elections, Mr. Whilton, president of the Quinte Chapter, addressed the group assuring them of assistance from members of the Government of the new union. Mr. Martin Murphy, president of St. Peter's credit union in Trenton presented the newly formed union with a generous donation to help get it functioning.

Scouting activities

11TH BELLEVILLE SCOUT GROUP

Eastminster United Church, headquarters of the 11th Belleville Scout Group was a busy place on January 14th. Troops "A" and "B" visited their respective Cub Packs on the occasion of their going-up ceremonies.

Paul Lantz, Jim Stather and David Snyder led Farewell to Cubs and Al Fraser and "A" Pack leaders received by S/M Georga Gibbons and "A" troop.

In addition to receiving the new records Scouter Gibbons invested Gerry Wilkes as a member of the World Wide Brotherhood of Scouting.

Scouters, Maw, Dodge and Jones and "B" troop were pleased to receive David Jones, Bill Somers, Ken Cochrane, Terry Pringle and Bill Henry from "P" Pack, led by Alexis Lew Kilne.

After the going-up ceremonies Scouts entertained the Cubs with skits, songs and an exhibition of Scouting skills and games.

LODA Will Be Represented at Provincial Show

PETERBOROUGH (Special) — The Lake Ontario Development Association will be represented at the 3rd National Industrial Production Show of Canada, to be held in Toronto May 2 to 7. This decision was reached at a meeting of the board of directors here last night and was announced this morning by Donald Kingdon, general manager of the Association.

The suggestion that the district be represented at this show was made by Ernest Kneisel, Belleville's industrial commissioner, and was supported at Wednesday's meeting by Jack Ireland of Belleville, a past president of the LODA. The directors thought the idea an excellent one and it is planned to arrange a display representative of the district. Mr. Kneisel will be appointed to the committee in charge. Through this show it is hoped to reach 30,000 top businessmen. There will be 900 exhibits and 3,000 firms from Canada, the United States and Britain will be represented in the show.

At Wednesday's meeting it was reported that a $500 grant had been received from the County of Hastings.

It is planned to present a brief to the District Minister of Economics and Development on the decentralization of industry, stressing the problems faced by smaller communities in such matters as financing and transportation costs when new industries are sought.

STEALS WATCHDOG

GARDENA, Calif. (AP) — Thefts stopped at Hughie Cunningas' auto wrecking yard when he bought a watch dog to guard the place — a 70-pound doberman pinscher "so vicious," said Cunningas, "he even bit me." But thefts started again Tuesday night, Cunningas told police. Someone stole the dog.

Education, Research, Services Needed In Continuing Attack Against Cancer Campaign Chairman Tells Meeting

Ours is a three-pronged attack against cancer, with education, research and services," stated Mr. Jack Morrison, campaign chairman for the Ontario Division of the Canadian Cancer Society, at the annual dinner meeting of the unit representatives on Wednesday evening at Hotel Quinte.

"Our first challenge is to banish fear and ignorance," the speaker continued. "Early cancer diagnosis is a message of hope. We have a story well worth telling the public."

COMPLEX DISEASE

"We have built a large and successful organization, but our greatest danger is to sit on our laurels and say we have always done a good job, and I will go along again. Our job is a continuing one, and success will not come suddenly and dramatically because cancer is a complex and complicated disease.

"Our society was formed at the request of the Canadian Medical Association for the purpose of having a group who would look after lay education.

"The Cancer Institute is professionally staffed, their purpose is to finance research, and the Cancer Society provides the funds. In 1957 was the objective is $2,115,000. Education accounts for 14.5 percent of every dollar received, 53.3 percent, and services take 12.6 percent."

IMPRESSIVE FIGURES

Mr. Morrison quoted impressive figures to show the extent of the work being done in education, research and services. The women's volunteer services are unmatched anywhere in the world, with 25,000 volunteers, dressings, visits, hospital and clinic services, and transportation of 285,000 miles provided for patients.

"The future hinges on the sign," said the speaker. "Education needs films and literature, research needs equipment and staff, and services need materials and drugs.

"Dedicated volunteers and a sympathetic public equal money. The Cancer Society stands ready to advise, encourage and assist you, but success is in your hands, and will be achieved with better trained canvassers, better local publicity, special names and industrial campaigns, and a staff devoted love and care of interested people."

The speaker was introduced by Mr. Lambert who brought greetings from the Ontario Division of the Canadian Society. Mrs. Jean Smoke of the local unit expressed appreciation on behalf of the workers.

QUINTE-THOUSAND ISLAND DISTRICT

Mr. E. E. Follwell, Q.C. presided at the meeting and explained that the Quinte District would now be known as Quinte-Thousand Island District and would extend from Trenton, east to Brockville, north to Perth along Highway 7 and south to include Prince Edward County. The president expressed appreciation to the Bata Shoe Company who provided accommodation for the society free of rent or other charges; and to the press, radio and workers in Trenton, Deseronto, Stirling, Marmora, Corbyville-Canniffton and Madoc who were represented at the dinner.

Mayor Jack Ellis, brought greetings from the city, and stated that the Cancer Society deserved the utmost in praise for their work on both the local and national level.

Mr. A. M. Lent of Deseronto pronounced the invocation before the dinner, and Mr. J. Mr. Leslie Lennox; Mr. Basil Armstrong.

Mr. Leslie Lennox; Mr. Basil Armstrong provided piano music throughout the evening.

BIRTHDAY GREETINGS

A happy interlude was provided when a birthday cake with candle alight was carried in, in honor of Mr. W. J. Morrison who was celebrating his 82nd birthday. Mr. Morrison is a cousin of the guest speaker, and they had not seen each other in over 30 years.

The following officers were elected for 1958:

BELLEVILLE EXECUTIVE

District president, Mr. A. M. Hair; district vice-president, Mr. E. E. Follwell, QC; unit president, Mr. E. E. Follwell, QC; vice-president, Mr. J. N. Anton; campaign chairman, Dr R. R. Brain; assistant campaign chairman, Mr. W. R. Vandervoort; staff secretary, Mrs. Marguerite Scott; treasurer, Mrs. D. H. Spencer; recording secretary, Mrs. Jean Smoke; campaign education, Mrs. J. R. Marsh; campaign public education, Mrs. Ruth Follwell; campaign volunteer services, Mrs. E. Logan; chairman extension and maintenance, Mr. C.D. Fraser, Q.C.; medical advisor, Dr. K. M. Douglas; past president, Mr. D. C. Fuzzen, Q.C.

Members of the Board

Mr. W. R. Vandervoort; Mr. Ernie Tuck; Dr. R. R. Brain; Mr. J. Mr. Leslie Lennox; Mr. Basil Armstrong.

Wheat Price Reductions Don't Indicate 'Cut' War

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp flew from Ottawa Wednesday for a quick conference with the chairman of the wheat board on sliding wheat prices and said declines were inevitable.

He said in a prepared statement that because of a substantial improvement in the world grain situation "some price reductions were inevitable from the levels attained last year, which were the highest in recent years."

He noted the 1954 world crop was the largest on record.

The wheat board, he said, "has not initiated any prices as far as possible and made its recent reductions only in order to meet competition."

The wheat board, the Crown marketing agency, chopped initial cash prices anywhere from two to 7½ cents a bushel Tuesday. The day before three cents a bushel prices were cut 12 cents a bushel.

Following its first reduction, the U.S. introduced a 12-cent subsidy on hard U.S. wheat which reduced the export price by the same amount. The wholesale Canadian reductions followed that move.

Mr. Sharp declined comment

WASHINGTON (CP)—Canadian wheat price cuts, matched by the United States this week, do not constitute a price war but only a signal that the Canadian Government intends to cover, officials of both countries said Wednesday.

They said the price cuts, begun Monday, now are apparently pretty well "shaken out."

U.S. officials called a press briefing to deny published reports of a Canada - U.S. price war.

Contrary to such reports, they said, Canada and the U.S. are continuing to stand together as solidly as possible despite cut - price competition from Australia, Argentina and France.

U.S. officials underlined their belief that if price action must be regarded as a business move, and that Canada also is concerned with preserving by world wheat patterns.

at a press conference on whether additional price reductions are in the offing, but discounted suggestions the U.S. and Canada were engaged in a private price - cutting battle.

Mixed Marriage Case Is Studied By Federal Court in Virginia

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A three-judge federal court heard and took under study Wednesday the case of a white construction worker and his part-Indian Negro wife — a case described as a test of state laws against inter-racial marriage.

The court promised an early ruling after strong suggestion by one of its members that the Virginia Supreme Court might be asked first to rule again in such a socially sensitive area.

Throughout the hearing the principals in the test case—Richard P. Loving, 31, and his wife, Mildred, 25—sat almost impassively as their counsel, enlisted by the American Civil Liberties Union, and a state attorney argued legalisms of jurisdiction and constitutional rights.

Anti - miscegenation laws—laws against the marriage of whites with other races—of Virginia and 18 other states are at issue.

Philip J. Hirschkop, one of the Lovings' lawyers, argued that the laws against interracial marriage violate the human rights under the 14th amendment of the U.S. Constitution as to due process and equal protection under the laws.

State Attorney Robert D. McIlwaine contended, however, that a blanket ban adopted of the 14th amendment showed such laws were specifically excluded from its effect.

Khanh Restores Prime Minister To His Position

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Ngo Dinh Diem's brother Ngo Dinh Nhu and Diem's sister-in-law Madame Nhu, known as the Dragon Lady, left South Vietnam Wednesday for Japan.

Nhu, Diem's chief political adviser, and Madame Nhu, who is said to have great influence with her brother-in-law, left Saigon airport at 10:30 a.m. (9:30 p.m. EST Tuesday) on a Japan Air Lines flight.

Nhu's departure was announced by Premier Diem's office. It said Nhu was going to Japan for medical treatment.

Madame Nhu's departure was announced by Vietnam Information Service. It said she was going to Japan to accompany her husband.

SEA CADET RECRUITS — R. Hunter, L. Orton, J. Mercier, R. Archer, R. Shannick, C. Coxon and R. Freemantle get first hand instruction on how to tie a bowline knot from Lt. J. Jackson, Toronto, Assistant Area Officer. The seven new sea corps members were sworn in last night at the Quinte barracks on South Front Street.

St. George's Names Parish Executive

TRENTON — At last night's annual vestry meeting of the congregation of St. George's Anglican Church in Trenton, Olaf Goodsell was appointed vestry clerk and rector's warden. Appointed people's warden was Cecil Garbutt.

Elected to the parish executive for a three-year term were: K. Alexander, J. Kirby, E. Mantle, M. Schaffer, A. Tyrell, A. Ward and for a two-year term, E. Wilson.

Women delegates appointed to attend the diocesan congress were Mrs. Adolf O'Krafka and Mrs. L. Price and delegates to the Synod, elected for a three-year term were: C. Garbutt, J. A. Webb, and for a two-year term, Mrs. J. E. Uttley.

The rectory, Canon K. F. Blachford reported to the meeting that the congregation had during 1964 supported the diocesan missions more than $6,500. This sum goes towards the support and maintenance of Trinity College, the Gideon Society, the needy Relief Fund, Anglican World Missions, Canadian Bible Society, and the Canadian Bible and Prayer Book Society.

At last night's meeting, the congregation presented the gift of a silver tray to A. J. Boyce, their organist at the church for the past six years. Mr. Boyce, in the RCAF, has received another posting. The tray was suitably inscribed, noting the appreciation of the congregation for Mr. Boyce's services.

Addressing the assembled members of the congregation, the rector expressed his regret that John Mace, Parochial Lay Reader, had left Trenton this month to take up duties in France with the Department of Customs and Excise. Mr. Mace will be overseas for the next two years.

Mr. Blachford noted there had been 61 baptisms, 11 marriages and 25 burials in the church during 1964. Forty-one confirmees joined the church and one person was received from the Roman Catholic Church.

The rector urged his listeners to get to know more about their church in order to serve Christ and widen the outreach of the parish. He asked also that giving within the local church be maintained at a high level or increased.

"The ministry of Christ we must be concerned for the needs of others," said the rector. "I hope we will never sink to the narrow level of being concerned only with our own church expenses or our own parish organization."

Mr. Blachford praised the work of the church wardens and all members and officers in the church for their work throughout the year. He said that St. George's had ended the year in a "solvent" condition, but 'that receipts had been about the same as in 1963. He expressed the thought that this might reflect the, levelling off of the national economy.

The rector also commended the work of the church curates, Rev. D. F. Duffus and his replacement, Capt. Ronald Smith.

Squadron Leader L. J. Minion of RCAF Station Trenton receives his certificate of service from his Commanding Officer, Group Captain E. M. Butcher, C.D. Born in County Wexford, Ireland, Squadron Leader Minion came to Canada as a young lad and joined the RCAF as an airman in 1936. He rose rapidly through the ranks and in 1942 he received his commission. His career has been a varied and interesting one, including an exchange tour with the US Navy and his latest tour as Station Supply Officer at RCAF Station Trenton. On retirement, Squadron Leader Minion plans to reside in the Belleville area.

Monty Won't Attend Funeral Of 'Old Friend'

CAPE TOWN (AP) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery said in this South African city today that he will not travel to Britain for the funeral of Sir Winston Churchill Saturday.

"It is no good going to the funeral of an old friend and finishing dead yourself," Montgomery, 77, told reporters on his arrival by ship from England.

Montgomery, one of Churchill's wartime military leaders, is recovering from a prostate operation Nov. 16. He said doctors aboard ship told him he was fit enough to take the strain of an elaborate state funeral.

Lady Churchill had cabled him an invitation to be a pallbearer at the funeral.

Sea Cadet Corps Growing; Barracks Being Refurbished

Rejuvenation is the order of the day at the "Quinte" Sea Cadet Corps barracks on South Front Street.

Not only has the barracks received a refurbishing with a new interior coat of paint along with a number of new floorcovering lights, but the corps itself is gaining strength.

Last night, the regular weekly training night for the corps, seven new members were sworn in, bringing strength up to 26 members while another 13 potential recruits are on the waiting list studying for the time when they also can join the corps.

Yesterday the seven new recruits were sworn in by Lieut. J. Jackson of Toronto, Assistant Area Officer, who also inspected the local corps. Proud parents and interested friends were on hand for the ceremonies.

The seven new recruits are Larry Orton, Charles Coxon, Robin Archer, Richard Hulmer, Robert Freemantle, Joseph Mercier and Ralph Shannick.

Two of the recruits, J. Mercier and Robin Archer, stepped up after three years' training as Navy League Cadets, while the other five are newcomers to the sea cadet movement.

Boys in the 11-16 years age bracket train as navy leaguer cadets, while boys 14-18 years are eligible as sea cadets.

Lt. Thomas Somers is the commanding officer of the Quinte Sea Cadets with Lt. R. Davis as executive officer. Also on the leaders' staff are Sub Lt. Lee Maldrum and Sub Lt. Barry Bevin as stores officers.

President of the Belleville Navy League is Jack McFarlane with Ross Watson, son of Captain John Watson as public relations officer and chairman of the sea cadet committee.

Three Criminals Attack Police, Then Escape

MONTREAL (CP) — Three criminals who were being transferred from Montreal's Bordeaux jail to St. Hyacinthe, 30 miles southeast of Montreal, attacked the policemen transferring them and escaped Wednesday night.

Provincial police are still seeking Jacques Diamond, 19, Jacques Lajoie, 18, and Ronald Leveille, 27. The three, already convicted of armed robbery, were to face similar charges in St. Hyacinthe.

They stabbed QPP officer Laurier Belisle in the neck and left him on the highway.

They then forced another officer, Claude Bouffard, to drive them back to Montreal. Police report that they threw the police car's radio in the St. Lawrence River from the Mercier Bridge and later left Bouffard tied up in a house on Montreal's Simpson Street.

Constable Belisle was taken to St. Charles Hospital in St. Hyacinthe, where his condition was satisfactory. He also suffered stab wounds to the face and chest.

Montreal Surgeons Operate On Lion to Cure Paraplegia

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Allan Wigser Wednesday he and some medical colleagues at Notre Dame Hospital performed a delicate spinal operation on a 30-month-old lion as a "unique experience and to help a beautiful animal."

Dr. Wigser, along with Dr. John Hardy and several volunteers, conducted the 2½-hour operation in the hospital's animal laboratory on two tables drawn together.

The operation was completed at 4 a.m. Tuesday.

They received no fee.

Dr. Wigser said the 150-pound lion, owned by a night club act, was a "classic case of paraplegia".

It was unable to move its hind legs because of a slight compression of the spinal cord.

"We treated the lion exactly like we would treat a man in the same situation," Dr. Wigser said.

The lion received full anesthetic.

Dr. Wigser said the lion appears to have come through the operation well but it is too early to pronounce it a success.

Get Complaints About Sidewalks

TRENTON — Town engineer Eric Aldersey said yesterday his office has been receiving the "usual number of complaints" about merchants and the owners of residential property not clearing their sidewalks of ice and snow.

Since January 17, the day when 9.1 inches of snow fell on the town, a total of 21.8 inches have fallen. Five inches of snow would fall, then freezing, form a hard crust, then more snow, then more crust. Milder weather only served to build up a hardier type of crust when freezing set in again.

Snow has been trucked away from the downtown commercial area but there just are not enough men or equipment to remove it from the sides of the road on the side streets. Hence, householders have had their share of digging out driveways and sidewalks.

If a delayed January thaw should set in, the catch basins might be hard pressed to handle the water.

Pensioners Discuss High Cost of Drugs

The Belleville Division of the Rideau Area Pensioners Association held their regular monthly meeting at the Club Canara on Wednesday afternoon with about 90 members in attendance. About 20 were guests from Toronto and other points west.

The main topic of discussion was the high cost of drugs and it was decided that the membership that representation would be made to the proper authorities to have the 11 per cent sales tax lowered on drugs and to have taxation lowered on people with fixed incomes.

The subject was discussed in great length.

Recreation director Marshall Petty also reminded members of the Wednesday afternoon bowling and Monday afternoon card parties at the club

The U.S. federal government owns 760, 900,000 acres of land in the 50 states—or one in every three acres.

Council Will Learn About Cost of Extras

TRENTON — Trenton council will find out Monday night the "bad news" regarding extra costs of the Rayner contract for the re-construction and widening of Dufferin Ave., Sidney St., and Dundas St. East Consulting engineer Jack Tomlinson has submitted an estimate of the "extras" to the town office and this will be a fairly "firm" figure, give and take a few hundreds or thousands.

Original contract price as submitted in the fall of 1963, was $581,000.

By October of last year, "extras", which involved such things as additional and unplanned for excavation and filling, lowering of water-mains, replacement of water mains and sanitary sewers not in the original planning, had upped the price to $689,000. The latest submission of yet more extras will bring the total cost closer to $700,000.

Government grants on the contract, "extras" and all, will bring the additional cost to the town somewhere in the $70,000 bracket, which won't be too great a shock to town council as this figure was "guestimated" when the extras were discussed last October.

As pointed out by Mr. Tomlinson, town engineer Eric Aldersey and chairman of public works. Councillor Joseph Gould, the "extras" were necessary and the end result of the work has justified the additional cost.

Airforce to Hold Memorial Service

SIDNEY TOWNSHIP — On Sunday morning at 11 o'clock a memorial service for Sir Winston Churchill is being held at the Airforce chapel at the repair depot. Group Captain Thompson will deliver the eulogy and special music and prayers will be given.

Padre Jackson will assist in the service. Airforce personnel will attend in uniform. Civilians are invited to attend the service

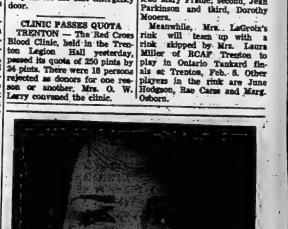
Hospital Work Nearly Finished

TRENTON — G. R. Williamson, the secretary of the Trenton Memorial Hospital Board of Directors, said today the newest addition to the hospital, the front entrance and the upstairs solarium, would be completed within two or three weeks. Outside work on the entrance is finished and all that remains is to do inside finishing touches and buy and place furnishings.

For the past few weeks, while work on the new entrance was underway, patients and visitors have been forced to enter the hospital via the east emergency door.

CLINIC PASSES QUOTA

TRENTON — The Red Cross Blood Clinic, held in the Trenton Legion Hall yesterday, passed its quota of 250 pints by 24 pints. There were 18 persons rejected as donors for one reason or another. Mrs. O. W. Larry convened the clinic.



RCAF Ladies Runners-up At Bonspiel

TRENTON — An RCAF ladies' curling rink from Trenton placed "runner up" in this week's regional bonspiel at Scarboro.

Winners of the two-day event was an Oshawa rink, skipped by Mrs. Effie Hezzlewood. This rink will represent the Southern Ontario region in Ontario finals in February.

The Trenton rink, skipped by Nevada LaGrotk had as lead Mary Frame; second, Jean Parkinson and third, Dorothy Moore.

Meanwhile, Mrs. LaGrotk's rink will team up with a rink skipped by Mrs. Laura Miller of RCAF Trenton to play in Ontario Tankard finals at Trenton, Feb. 8. Other players in the rink are June Hodgson, Rae Carse and Marg. Osborn.

Chamber of Commerce on Pensions

A joint committee of the Senate and the House of Commons is studying the Canada Pension Plan.

It is hearing briefs supporting and opposing the scheme, or parts of it.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce wants the plan altered.

Its brief included a 1961-62 policy statement which contained a clause the full significance of which may have been overlooked by many.

This clause read as follows: "The Chamber urges that government-operated public pension plans should be on a pay-as-you-go basis, and the Chamber is opposed to the principle of accumulating a fund under a government plan beyond the amounts necessary for financing current operations on a year-to-year basis."

Under any realistic evaluation, no pension plan operated on a pay-as-you-go basis can be accurately described as a contributory pension plan. True, future pensioners will contribute large sums for the operation of the plan, but on a pay-as-you-go basis these contributions cannot be earmarked for the payment of a pension to the person contributing. No matter how such a plan may be dressed up, it really means that taxes are levied today to pay today's pensions, and that taxes will have to be levied tomorrow to pay tomorrow's pensions.

Time and again, before 1961 and since that time, The Ontario Intelligencer has argued that just such a procedure must be followed if pensioners are to receive fair treatment. No matter what sums are set aside for their pensions, what they will be able to buy with these pensions will depend upon the productivity of the nation's economy. Why not, then, let today's pensioners set aside a fair share of the nation's gross national product for those too old to work, and trust that they, in their turn, will be granted a fair share of tomorrow's production by tomorrow's producers?

When the Canada Pension Plan was first introduced, it was on a pay-as-you-go basis, although it was labelled, misleadingly we maintain, a contributory plan.

That, though, has been changed because certain politicians, chiefly in the provinces, saw in the plan a means by which a huge fund could be built up, from which they could borrow money urgently needed for necessary projects.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce, though unaware about the results of building up such a huge fund, does not appear to be resolutely opposed. It tells the committee that it must decide between following the principles of universal coverage, which have in the past governed our old age security pensions, or adopting the principles of the new plan.

But if the principles of contributory pensions are to be followed it is a nonsense to complain, as the Chamber does, that the plan "does not provide for those Canadians who are now aged, orphans, widows and disabled" Of course it does not. They have not contributed to the plan, nor are they in a position to do so. The Canada Pension Plan will not aid today's aged; it is designed to assist those who are now reaching the last decade of their working life, and other generations to follow.

The Chamber of Commerce also, objects to "indexing" pensions, that is to tying the level of payments to the cost-of-living index. It argues this would "insulate privileged sections of the community from continuing inflation." This is true, but it ought, also, to be pointed out that those sections which would be privileged are precisely those sections which, in the past, have been most mercilessly robbed by inflationary trends. The worker can seek an increase in pay. Those dependent on government pensions must await the bounty of Parliament, and it has been tardy. Those who have purchased annuities out of their own funds, or in co-operation with their employers, have had no recourse. "Indexing" pensions is essential if the demands of social justice are to be recognized—it always being understood, however, that the amount which the aged can be given cannot be larger than the productivity of the economy makes possible.

When it shall be said in any country in the world, "My poor are happy; neither ignorance nor distress is to be found among them; my jails are empty of prisoners, my streets of beggars; the aged are not in want, the taxes are not oppressive . . ." — when these things can be said, then may that country boast of its constitution and its government.—Thomas Paine.

Ottawa Offbeat
Favored Child of Fortune, Judy LaMarsh Pleases All

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — In a Cabinet besieged by collective investigations, its members beset by individual difficulties, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh must be seen as one of the few favored by fortune.

Somehow, she has managed to pull off the political trick-of-the-year.

In one of the really sticky situations confronting her as Health Minister, she has it both ways, coming and going, and unbelievably finds herself pleasing all concerned in the cigarette smoking controversy.

When striking herself as the shining example of "How-to-Quit-Smoking-and-Enjoy-It," she was in peril of offending the tobacco industry and alienating the votes of the several thousand workers in its factories, its hundreds of farmers in Ontario, Quebec and more recently the Maritimes, an occasional smoke-shops and cigarette stand operators all across the country. . . .

Having smashed her anti-cigarette campaign, she then scarcely could abandon it, without offending much of the scientific and medical profession, the academic community, social and youth workers, and those most vocal of all zealots, the reformers" who quit smoking and then want to convert everybody else.

COOLDOWN WIN

From all the evidence, politically she could only lose, no matter — almost — what happened.

But what did happen was totally unpredictable and, for Miss LaMarsh, exceedingly fortunate.

For she won both way.

Fewer people smoked.

But the few smoked more.

In what they called an "Ash Tray Survey," the Health Department and The Statistics Bureau discovered to their amazement that fewer Canadians were smoking, less of fewer cigarettes.

Now get that: fewer people smoking less of more!

What was happening, they found by examining butt checks, was that the older and longer-confirmed smokers were lighting up more but reducing them away after fewer puffs.

The tobacco industry was reassured, its profits safe, its more important, consumption increasing.

The anti-tobacco crusaders, the medical profession, the academic community and the social services were pleased: smoking was restricted more and more to the confirmed incurables" and fewer and fewer teen-agers and young adults were lighting up.

Seldom, in such a crusade that shakes a big and important industry, do all concerned emerge satisfied and smiling.

It was just about a year ago that United States Surgeon General Luther L. Terry filed his industry - rocking "Report on Smoking."

Tobacco stocks tumbled.

In panic, cigarettes were butted across the continent.

EVERYBODY WINS

Here in the National Capital, the schools staged a symbolic bonfire, fanned by students tossing their fags to the flames and swearing off for life.

Withdrawal symptoms, dry mouth, short temper and palsied hands were the crosses of thousands.

In one Federal Departmental Headquarters office building, penalty boxes were installed to raise funds from the fines on smoking back-sliders for the Canadian Cancer Society.

The swearing-off kick lasted perhaps six months, and by last August DBS labor statistics reported the cigarette factories back to two shifts to fill depleted warehouse stocks.

While the Health Department was waging its quiet war on smoking, Agriculture Department was running in direct opposition.

It pushed its campaign to take tobacco growing in the Maritimes, cutting Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island in on the income from smoking previously enjoyed exclusively by a relatively few skilled and industrious farmers in Ontario's sun-belt along Lake Erie's shores.

Now there are even fewer growers along the warm edges of Lakes Ontario and Huron.

Both Departments, well content, continue about their every-day business —Health to protect, Agriculture to spread it.

And lucky for La Judy, all concerned believe they are winning: the tobacco farmers and cigarette manufacturers with consumption up among fewer smokers; and the forces of medicine and education with more people smoking less or not at all.

For Judy, it has been the trick of the year.

Letters to the Editor

Feels Curb on Speech Is No Cure for Hate

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

A subject that is currently a topic of vigorous debate at government and citizen levels is the question whether or not we should issue a law that would prohibit the printing and distribution of what has been termed "hate literature." I suppose this label is given to those books, pamphlets and tracts that display a vicious contempt and malice toward particular races and creeds that go to make up our Canadian population of diverse origin. If this is true, and I believe it is, then the label hate literature is a just one and the method used to try to eliminate this contemptible practice and the perverted groups that are responsible is not so easily decided.

It seems to me incredible that legislators in a democracy like ours could entertain the idea that shortening the horizon of our freedom of speech offers a simple solution to this problem. If such a law as this were brought into effect it would then be necessary to determine what is hate literature and what isn't, where does one begin and where does it stop. Is it then malicious or merely in poor taste. I don't think I need labor this point further for one is setting the possible ramifications that could and likely would) egress from the basic law as originally stated. No kind of legislation is going to govern the opinions held by an individual.

This type of propaganda is available to anyone who wishes to read it. And indeed, I think, only those who want to be influenced, and they are in a minority. This minority could unfortunately enlarge sufficiently to pose a more serious threat, but the banning of their literature is not the way to curb it. These subversive groups are driven basically by enough fear and hate to devise many ways of expressing it and we cannot continue limiting the freedom of expression to compete with them. This would ultimately lead to a situation where most of us would live in a continual fear of fully expressing our thoughts lest we too might fall under suspicion.

If we feel that literature of this nature is detrimental to the minds of our youth and create potential members for the hate-mongers, then I think we should admit that their methods of communication are effective, and if this is true, then the same methods could be effective when used to combat them. If we want our government to take issue with these groups, then we can distribute propaganda that is designed to enlighten our young people as to the twisted nature of these organizations and make such literature available in all schools, churches, youth clubs etc. Further information could be provided within these organizations themselves.

This is just one suggestion and there are probably many better ones, but if, as Christianists tell us, the hate-mongers are existing on a diet of fear, then surely a fear and apathetic lack of imagination that would reduce a nation to the indignity of tampering with one of its most cherished freedoms on an effort to brush aside a handful of warped minds.

Certainly all of us are opposed to and earnestly disapprove of what these people are saying, but we cannot deny them their right to say it.

M. J. Lucas.

To Your Good Health
Some States Do Not Require Blood Test for Marriage

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: We're in quite an argument over the following:

Is there any state that does not require a blood test for marriage? I say there is none. — R. W. S.

I'm truly sorry — sorry that you lose the argument, and sorry that the situation exists — but yes, there are states which do not require a blood test.

Some states require a blood test but don't insist on a waiting period to give time to report the results.

I decline to name these states. It would serve only to encourage hasty couples who hop across state lines to avoid the protective laws in their own states.

In my opinion, uniform laws in all the states would be good. I can see no reason why the states should not all agree on one.

The purpose, after all, is protection of people who marry, and perhaps even more, protection of children yet to be born.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please send me your booklet, "The Way To Sex Consultation." I enclose the required 25 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Is garlic an aid in cases of high blood pressure? — Mrs. R. S.

The booklet is on its way. Garlic for high blood pressure? No.

Dear Dr. Molner: What do the letters D.S.C. mean after a specialist's name? — Wondering.

They mean "doctor, science of chiropody," although the term "podiatrist" is coming into more common use.

Dear Dr. Molner: A "distorted circular saw with big fiery teeth" unfolds in my left eye.

The saw grows and soon covers the whole eye. Our street becomes modern art. Barring collision, a 15-minute hike restores order to the neighborhood. The safe refuge of my couch ends in headache.

Name it. Cause? Maybe a cure? — C. B. A.

I admire your description. I decline to guess without looking into your eye. And probably even then I would insist that you see an ophthalmologist.

It may be excessively high blood pressure, which ought to be controlled for reasons in addition to the hurt and fright eye. Maybe there is some other eye condition, perhaps the early stages of glaucoma, which also ought to be treated right away.

Cause? A combination of them not all of which we can state positively.

A cure? Maybe. But certainly some improvement is denoted.

Dear Dr. Molner: Why does my left nostril run constantly? I have to blow my nose every two minutes all day long, and even at night if I wake up. There is no pain but it is very annoying. Do you think it is my sinus draining? I am very nervous. Could that be the cause? Should I consult my doctor? — Mrs. D. H. M.

I doubt if it is nerves; it is probably more than just drainage from a sinus. The quickest guess would be an obstruction in one side of the nose, perhaps a polyp (which can be readily removed). By all means consult your doctor. He may suggest a specialist.

Strictly Personal
Every System Has Merits and Drawbacks

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: There is a kind of "negative imagination" that draws us, as we grow older, to become more like the parent we resented than we could ever have imagined possible.

On subjects that intensely concern us, we must not promise to be "objective" — the most we can promise is to try to be objective about our lack of objectivity.

Expressing emotions is generally better than repressing them; but it can also be a form of concealing them — for when we verbalize a feeling, we think we have brought it into the open when often we have simply burdened it under a layer of words.

Friends and relatives are always amazed when some hitherto indifferent person suddenly commits a heinous crime: "I can't believe he did it," they say, totally unaware that "indifferent personalities" are more likely than others to explode with sudden force.

Every system has its merits and drawbacks; the chief drawback of our system was keenly expressed by Gen. Sarnoff, head of RCA, when he observed: "Competition brings out the best in products and the worst in men."

There is virtually no humor in the sacred works of any religion yet there is enormous humor in creation; and perhaps a religion that is utterly solemn is as false to the spirit of God as an attitude that is utterly frivolous.

To become rich means a change of worlds, not a transaction of them, for "rich" and "poor" are not opposites, like "health" and "sickness," but, rather, complementary like "fever" and "chills."

A young man courting a woman should pay careful attention to her mother; not merely because she is likely to resemble her mother in 20 years, but also because a woman who has a poor relationship with her mother is badly handicapped in having a good relationship with her husband and her children.

Life is nine-tenths a matter of learning to cope — and whether this is learned, it doesn't matter how brave or real troubles we have, for even the most trivial worries will overwhelm us.

The most efficient way to think is to know what is not worth thinking about; just as the expert card player knows which tricks are worth pondering over, and which should be played to without a pause.

Captain Tom Mewburn, Provincial President of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, acted as assistant to the Mayor at the Trenton High School, on Wednesday night. A charter was presented to a new branch of the organization organized as No. 4 Repair Depot of the R.C.A.F., Trenton, to be known as the Quinte Branch, No. 247.

The gathering was unique, in as much as it is the first time a Legion Branch has been organized within the framework of Canada's armed services. Special permission for the organization of the branch was obtained from the R.C.A.F. headquarters at Ottawa.

From the point of membership, the branch is the largest in Canada and it is expected that it will reach 1,100 before the end of the week.

AM. Benjamin Sale, chairman of public works for the city council, has reforms up that the city's bill for removing snow this winter will be heavy. To date close to $2,000 have been expended in the work of clearing the streets, which suffered large gangs of men and numerous extra trucks.

The local Central Relief Bureau is making an urgent appeal for warm clothing for people here who are in need. So far this season donations of clothing and other forms of relief articles have been far from generous.

Manager of the water works department, E. T. Austin, says that the recently purchased electric thawing machine works perfectly. It is mounted on a trailer and is easily conveyed to places where pipes are frozen. The heavy blanket of snow which covers the city streets, has assisted the department greatly in reducing the number of frozen services this year.

The Franco-Prussian War came to an end 94 years ago today—in 1871—with the surrender of Paris. It marked the end of the first allout clash between the newly united Germany and its traditional enemy France. Many authorities saw the Franco-Prussian War as the conflict that forever sealed and led directly to both the First and Second World Wars, through territorial claims by both sides that failed to heal enmities.

Trade Missions Will Number 27

OTTAWA (CP)—At least 27 specialized trade missions will be sent abroad — or brought into Canada from other countries — by the trade department this year as part of the "in-depth" program to drum up new markets for Canadian products.

It compares with three such missions in 1960 and five the following year. Last year there were 25, of which 15 were Canadians going abroad.

Among the specialized Canadian missions going overseas this year will be groups from the tobacco, potato, livestock, timber - frame home, chemical, iron and steel casting, electronics, mining machinery, clothing and warm - air heating fields.

Y. Directors Hold Banquet

The board of Directors of the YMCA held their annual "Y" West banquet at the new YMCA on Victoria Avenue, last night with about 70 members and guests in attendance.

In his brief remarks to the gathering, the president of the YMCA, William Wilkie, said that since the opening of the new YMCA back in September, the "Y" has doubled its membership, something that came as a great surprise to the directors.

Mr. Wilkie said that the "Y" would be going on a money raising campaign, sometime in the near future, to raise funds for the construction of a gymnasium and to further its outdoor facilities.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Collin Wilcox, one of 29 young YMCA Canadian representatives attending the World Young Adult Conference held recently in Beirhut, Lebanon.

Mr. Wilcox related some of his many experiences while in attendence at the conference. Following his few remarks, Mr. Wilcox showed numerous slides of the places and things which he saw while there.

AN AGE PAST

Some 40,000,000 passengers a year were once carried by San Francisco's Bay ferries, the last of which was retired in 1962.

Wellington, District Honor Retiring Fire Dept. Chief Garratt Harris at Banquet

PICTON (STAFF) — Two years when a man was in trouble or needed help there was always a friend near by to lend a helping hand. He said, members of this fire department are just the same. When help is needed they are always there to do what they can. They are more than friends, he stated, more like brothers. He thanked every one present for such a wonderful farewell party and expressed his appreciation to council for the support he had received during his term of office. He also thanked Fire Chief Vance for his co-operation and the Fire Marshall's office for their help in educating and helping "bring up" the department.

After the presentations were made by Councillor Lloyd and Mrs. Lloyd of Hillier Township.

Herb Mallory of the Fire Marshall's office, said, "there are no problems in fire service in Wellington or in Prince Edward County." He added that the Wellington fire department will always have his full co-operation. In closing speaking to the retiring chief Mr. Mallory said, "He's been a big man, in a big department."

The new Wellington chief said, "if we can keep the department up to the standards that he has set we will be doing well."

Fire Chief G. Vance said Garratt Harris was a very hoarse this afternoon, attended all his meetings faithfully and added that volunteer firemen seemed to attend more meetings regularly than many of the paid members of the force. Chief Vance said that "no one does more, when called on for less than your volunteer fire department. Yours is a credit to your village and to your community."

Reeve Gordon Lloyd complimented the department as a whole and said that "no one in Hillier township or council is not proud of the work you do in fighting fires and protecting property. You are all 100 percent firemen, even though volunteers."

Following the speeches a delightful dinner was served by the wives of the members of the department.

Robt. Ferguson Succumbs to Head Injuries

PICTON (Staff) — Robert Ferguson, an electrical worker died this morning in Prince Edward County Hospital following injuries received in a novel accident on Monday.

Ferguson was taken to hospital after a steel stud pinchested and embedded itself in his head while working at the Lakeland Cement Company's plant near here.

He underwent several hours of surgery after the quarter-inch stud fired from a gun bounced off a concrete wall and entered his head.

Arrest Seven Linked With Bank Robbery

MONTREAL (CP) — Police have arrested seven men they believe to be linked with Thursday's theft of $60,000 in rare coins and with a double bank robbery last summer in Ste. Julienne, 55 miles northeast of Montreal.

Police said Wednesday the arrests may help solve another coin robbery — a theft at Montreal's Chateau de Ramezay Museum three days earlier.

The seven, four of whom will be charged with the theft from the 441-coin Montreal Coin and Stamp Exchange, were arrested following a raid on a northeast Montreal apartment which yielded a cache of 250 dynamite caps, a sawed - off rifle and two revolvers.

Police also have recovered all the exchange loot except 13 silver dollars of recent mintage and $4,100 in operating cash.

Charge Police Fraud Over Meal Accounts

VICTORIA (CP) — Three RCMP constables and a cafe operator have been accused of fraud in the handling of meal accounts of prisoners at the Prince Rupert jail.

Assistant Commissioner D. O. Furnet, commanding officer of the RCMP in B.C., announced the charges Wednesday.

He said the men were charged following a four-month police investigation into the supplying of meals to prisoners in the Prince Rupert jail.

Charged, are Const. W. L. Glenbrook of Const. G. H. Kemp, 25, Const. W. S. Austin, 26, and cafe operator Kut Bing Lee of Prince Rupert.

The case is scheduled to open in Prince Rupert magistrate's court Feb. 10.

NAME PROSECUTOR

Ernest A. Alexander of Vancouver has been named as special prosecutor by the attorney-general's department.

The charges accuse Glenbrook of defrauding the province of money between Jan. 1, 1962 and March 31, 1963. The charge against Kemp covers a period between April 1, 1963, and July 31, 1964, and the period covered by Austin's charge is from August 24, 1963, to Sept. 11, 1963.

Low is accused of defrauding the province between Jan. 1, 1962 and July 31, 1964.

The RCMP announcement said indications of possible irregularities spotted by other members of the Prince Rupert detachment more than four months ago. A report was sent immediately to Victoria and an investigation was launched.

The force investigated reports that some members of the K-man detachment had obtained free meals and groceries from a restaurant that provided meals for prisoners.

INCREASED PRICE

The restaurant was said to have covered the cost by increasing the price of prisoners' meals.

Const. Glesbrecht is in Shaughnessy Hospital here recovering from a gunshot wound. He is in good condition. He was taken to hospital after being found wounded in his home at Grand Forks last August.

Cowan Would Have Hanged Marcotte in His Santa Suit

ORILLIA (CP) — Ralph Cowan, Liberal member of Parliament for the suburban Toronto riding of York Humber says he would have hanged "Santa Claus" murderer Georges Marcotte "on the anniversary of his murder and in his Santa Claus suit."

Marcotte was convicted of capital murder in the December, 1963, machine - gun slaying of Const. Claude Marineau in the so-called "Santa Claus" bank holdup in St. Laurent, Que. He was also charged but not tried for the murder of Const. Denis Brabant in the holdup in which one bandit wore a Santa Claus outfit.

Marcotte was sentenced to death but his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment last month by the federal cabinet.

Mr. Cowan made the remark before the Orillia Rotary Club as part of a debate on capital punishment.

He said that when he attended the funeral of a little Toronto girl who was murdered recently, he didn't see a "bleeding - heart abolitionist in the crowd — only a lot of stern faces."

Two weeks ago Arthur Maloney, a Toronto lawyer, addressed the same audience in favour of abolishing the death penalty.

Thinks Brakes Slow Progress In Education

TORONTO (CP) — The solo progressive cabinet minister in the Conservative government is being retarded by his colleagues, Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson said Wednesday.

He was referring to Education Minister William Davis, a 36 - year - old Brampton lawyer who has come to be regarded by Queen's Park observers as the heir apparent to Premier Robarts.

In his reply to the speech from the throne, Mr. Thompson expressed disappointment at the sterility of the section of the throne speech which dealt with education.

"Do we detect a screech of brakes being applied to the liberally - inclined minister of education?" he asked. "Has he too often lately appeared the one-man government."

The opposition leader said: "The government is either moving quickly enough in education, nor is it advancing on a broad front. . . . I would suggest that Mr. Davis could do better if he had the co-operation of his cabinet colleagues."

Denis Told

Desjardins asked whether Denis told Mr. Lamontagne Aug. 26 that he would inform Justice Minister Favreau who the persons were behind the affair.

Denis said he had told Mr. Lamontagne that he was going to see Mr. Favreau but that he had not said anything about speaking to the minister concerning persons behind the matter.

RCMP OVERHEARD

This Aug. 30 telephone conversation between Mr. Lamontagne in Montreal and Denis in Ottawa was monitored by the RCMP.

One person who monitored the talk has testified that Denis did say that he was going to tell Mr. Favreau the names of the persons behind the affair.

Denis maintained that after the final conversation by the RCMP in August he had suggested he should resign as Mr. Favreau's executive assistant, because Mr. Tremblay's attitude indicated lack of confidence in him.

He said that in a chat with Mr. Tremblay, Mr. Tremblay seemed to be blaming him for talking with anyone about the Rivard case, which was not part of his duties.

A number of letters between Mr. Tremblay and Mr. Denis were entered as exhibits along with a medical certificate but they were not immediately read to the inquiry.

Denis said he sent Mr. Tremblay a letter Sept. 27 which was not a resignation but asked for sick leave because "I was physically broken up and quite nervous."

He said Mr. Tremblay had phoned him to say he had received the medical certificate and he (Denis) had agreed to resign immediately. He had been under the impression that the resignation would be wanted only after 30 days' leave.

His letter of resignation was dated Oct. 1 and was accompanied by "another letter which was personal and confidential." He had a letter Oct. 6 from Mr. Tremblay accepting the resignation.

Jules Deschenes, counsel for the federal government, suggested that his resignation had been requested verbally Aug. 31. Mr. Denis replied it was possible but he did not remember.

He had submitted a letter to Mr. Tremblay Aug. 31 by hand, but he did not indicate immediately its contents.

Denis began his ordeal in the witness box Wednesday with a flat denial of allegations that he offered Mr. Lamontagne a bribe.

"Well, I looked the place over, Trudy—it's a great spot to spend our vacation!"

Mayor Asserts Group of Six Ruled Police

PORT ELGIN, Ont. (CP)—Mayor W. A. Davey told a police commission hearing Wednesday that the majority of last year's council, which he described as "the group of six", controlled police matters in the town.

Mayor Davey said he was unable to control the group of six which tried unsuccessfully to fire Police Chief Charles Riley after they had fired Const. George Armour Taggart.

"I felt I had a lung council . . . a council within a council" he said.

The police commission hearing began last month and resumed Monday in this Lake Huron resort town 25 miles west of Owen Sound. It set out to investigate conditions leading to the suspension, firing or attempted firing of each of the three-man police force.

Council fired Const. Taggart and Police Chief Riley last fall. Riley refused to quit and was reduced to corporal. Const. Kerr MacNaughton was suspended and he resigned after his suspension was lifted.

OPPOSED DISMISSAL

Mayor Davey said he implored council not to pass a motion to fire Chief Riley as the latter had not been given a chance to appear before council.

But the group of six, the mayor said, became bolder after firing Const. Taggart for alleged unsatisfactory service and passed a motion in November to dismiss Chief Riley.

"I could find nothing, in my opinion, that Riley could be dealt with," Mayor Davey said.

"Council was, in my opinion, in no way justified in asking for Chief Riley's resignation."

Several councillors, including this year's Reeve Charles Drummond, and Deputy Reeve Andrew Currie and last year's councillors R. J. Ball and Dean Theds, were dissatisfied with police administration in the town, he said.

These four and last year's reeve, Gavin Semple, and former councillor Orland Vennard voted in favor of dismissing Const. Riley, he said. Former councillor Angus Eaton, 1964 police commission chairman, and Russel Brown voted against the motion.

Mayor Davey said he did not vote as he was not required to break a tie.

CRUISER HIT CULVERT

He said Mr. Taggart was fired after his police cruiser hit a culvert and was demolished while he was pursuing a speeder. He said a number of townspeople were angered as a result of the accident.

This created public sympathy for the group of six, he said Mr. Taggart, the mayor said.

Last September Const. Karl MacNaughton was accused of drinking while on duty, the mayor said. He considered the matter and felt Mr. MacNaughton was not in a condition to go on duty.

MacNaughton apparently gathered to one of the two groups on council and the minority of them believed his denial, the mayor said. MacNaughton who had been suspended because of the charge, was reinstated five days afterwards. He later resigned.

Deputy Reeve Currie said he felt former Chief Riley's relationships with the public were not good. But he said he could see no reason why he should be dismissed.

Mr. Currie, a member of last year's police committee, said he saw the town police cruiser parked for two hours on the main street in September. He said Const. Taggart should have been on duty then either at the police office or on patrol. Mr. Currie reported the incident to council but no action was taken.

Says Lake Ontario Level Higher Than Natural Point

OTTAWA (CP) — A government official said Wednesday the level of Lake Ontario is being artificially sustained higher than it would be if left to nature.

The official was commenting on remarks by Ralph Cowan, Liberal MP for York-Humber, who said in an interview at Orillia Tuesday that the lake is being drained to keep the water level at Montreal harbor at 35 feet.

Mr. Cowan said residents of Lake Ontario communities and farmers whose wells are running dry are being "victimized by Montreal shipping firms and the Quebec power interests." Water was being run through lower lake control points to keep Montreal harbor at a 35-foot level.

The official here said that during most of 1964 Montreal was below the 35-foot mark, although that was the level intended for shipping preferred at the harbor. In several brief periods during the recent shipping season the level reached 35 feet or a fraction of an inch over.

The International Joint Commission, which controls the lake and St. Lawrence levels, operates on the policy: "... to conflict with or restrain uses of the waters of the St. Lawrence River for purposes given preference over uses of water for power."

A Canada-U.S. treaty lists these preferred purposes as "domestic or sanitary and navigation."

The official said the commission tries to regulate Lake Ontario within a four-foot range during the navigation season, using records for the last 100 years as a guide. In 1964 water supplies to the lake, and the Great Lakes generally, were at record lows, the commission held Lake Ontario "higher than it would have been by nature."

Worst Situation In History Says MacDonald

TORONTO (CP)—Canada is in the worst political situation in history as a result of the evils involved in financing political parties, Donald MacDonald, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, said Wednesday night.

He told the Toronto Young Men's Advertising and Sales Club that it is generally acknowledged that most of the financial assistance given to political parties comes from the business world.

"Sometimes it is voluntarily given," he said. Sometimes it is given through various degrees of coercion. Much of it is given not in any spirit of philanthropy, but rather for favors received or expected."

Economically this nation is thriving, he said. Politically it is "sick, rotten."

He said the answer to the situation lies in full public disclosure of all political contributions.

Skyway Mishap Delays Traffic For Three Hours

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — A nine - vehicle rear-end collision on the Garden City Skyway just east of here Wednesday during a blinding snow storm delayed eastbound traffic for three hours and injured four persons, none seriously.

Police said the vehicles, including three tractor trailers, a Toronto-to-Buffalo express bus carrying 26 persons, a dump truck, a road grader and three automobiles piled up when the lead vehicle skidded out of control on the unsanded downgrade. No one was injured on the bus.

Sent to hospital were James Sonnight of Thurville, Ont., driver of one of the trucks, with a fractured leg; Kathleen Dianne Lamka, 21, Niagara Falls, Ont., driver of a car, with multiple cuts and bruises, and Alex Margittay, about 28, of Niagara Falls, Ont., driver of the department of highways dump truck, with slight head injuries.

Robert Allen Watts, 24, of Thorold, Ont., was examined for back injuries and released from hospital.

Police, who had been unable to determine the sequence of the accident by late Wednesday night, said visibility was about 50 feet when the accident occurred. Traffic was tied up between 3 and 6 p.m.

Police estimated total damage to all the vehicles at between $70,000 and $75,000.

Theme of Funeral Service Homage to Leader, Warrior

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—The 30-minute funeral service for Sir Winston Churchill in St. Paul's Cathedral Saturday will be an act of homage to a lost leader and a fallen warrior.

From the first to the last hymn, the theme of the service will be one of heroism and valor.

Led by the Queen, Prince Philip and Prince Charles, some 3,000 mourners will crowd into the corridors and lofty galleries of Sir Christopher Wren's domed masterpiece.

The last resting place of many of Britain's most famous heroes, including Admiral Nelson and the Duke of Wellington, St. Paul's is sometimes known as the parish church of the Commonwealth.

The first hymn, He Who Would Valiant Be, strikes the dominant note:

"No foe can him fright; he'll with a giant fight . . ."

WILL READ PRAYER

This will be followed by a prayer by the cathedral's dean, Very Rev. W. R. Matthews. It reads in part:

"We shall think of him with thanksgiving that he was raised up in our days of desperate need to be a leader and inspirer of the nation, for his dauntless resolution and untiring vigilance and for his example of courage and endurance."

Other hymns include Fight the Good Fight and Julia We the Good Fight and Julia Ward the Republic, with its echoing chorus and an appropriate line: "His hath sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat."

The lesson, to be read by a canon of St. Paul's, will be taken from 1 Corinthians and includes the famous passage:

"Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?"

At the end of the service, the mourners will rise for the national anthem followed by the last post, played by state trumpeters, and then, after a brief silence, reveille.

The organ will then play Handel's Dead March from Saul.

As Churchill's coffin is carried out of the cathedral, the congregation will sing O God, Our Help in Ages Past.

Ottawa Police Chief Face Traffic Charge

OTTAWA (CP)—Police Chief Reg Arnell of Ottawa was charged Wednesday with failing to report an automobile accident involving damages exceeding $100 as required by the Highway Traffic Act.

The charge was laid by John Rankin, police chief of adjacent Nepean Township, on instructions from Crown Attorney John Cassels. The case will come before Carleton County Magistrate Harry Williams Feb. 2.

Canada Conquers its Sand-Locked Ocean of Oil

After more than 40 years of experimenting, the elusive "Black Gold from Athabasca's Sticky Sands" has been conquered. A new 191 million dollar plant at Hyle Nort McMurray in Northern Alberta will soon be producing 45,000 barrels of oil a day. Read in February Reader's Digest how this one Canadian deposit—estimated at 626 billion barrels of crude oil—could supply all of North America, at current consumption rates, for the next 100 years. CO-OP* introduces a new Farm Gasoline!

Because the gasoline requirements of the farmer are unique, your Co-operative brings you a new regular gasoline specially developed for farm use.

Oxidation during storage is a problem unique to the farmer, so is constant slow speed tractor operation and the need for seasonal power changes. Ordinary regular gasolines developed for automobiles, do not offer the special qualities needed to meet these farm driving conditions. New CO-OP Farm Gasoline does! This specially-formulated fuel meets these needs in the essential areas:

1 Minimum oxidation preserves fuel quality in storage.

CO-OP Farm Gasoline can be stored longer without fuel deterioration. That's because it has been developed to specifications that will double the minimum storage stability standards of most other gasolines. You get more power, more performance from every gallon of CO-OP Farm Gasoline.

2 Volatility controlled for increased power as you need it.

May through September is the time you require peak power performance from your fuel. CO-OP Farm Gasoline is adjusted month by month to meet this need. During spring and summer you get more vital power-producing ingredients at no extra cost!

3 Carburetor detergent cleans out harmful deposits.

The slow operating speeds and frequent idling of tractor engines cause excessive carbon deposits in the carburetor resulting in costly over-rich fuel mixtures. CO-OP Farm Gasoline includes a special detergent that eliminates these deposits, keeps the throttle clean, and prevents too-rich mixtures. You get smoother performance plus a saving in gasoline.

4 Built-in rust inhibitor protects vital parts.

Moisture in gasoline will corrode fuel tanks, lines and pumps. CO-OP Farm Gasoline contains a surface-active material that forms a protective coating on all contacted surfaces. Downtime is reduced during these critical farming periods.

5 Anti-icing additive combats cold weather stalls.

Ice will form in a carburetor as gasoline changes to vapour . . . this may build up on throttle blade and stall engines. CO-OP Farm Gasoline contains a de-icing additive that prevents ice from adhering to carburetor walls, passes it out through the engine, keeps you from being "stopped cold".

Your CO-OP Farm Gasoline Salesman will be calling soon.

Try a tankful of top performance ....

What Women Are Doing

Mrs. Marie Huffman is president of the Business and Professional Club in Belleville.

The Business and Professional Women's Clubs are organized for the purpose of improving the status of women wherever they may be. They are affiliated through an international Federation, with clubs all over the world, and in Canada through the National and Provincial organizations, which in turn are broken down into various districts in the Province.

The Belleville club will celebrate its fifteenth birthday in April of this year, and the Charter President, Miss Joy Nicol, as well as a number of charter members are still active in the local club. Regular dinner meetings are held on the third Monday of each month at the Belmont Club Rooms, and present membership stands at 48. Membership in the club is open to any woman who is gainfully employed and acceptable to the club, and the age limit for the Belleville Club includes members in their early twenties as well as some who are over sixty.

ANNUAL BURSARIES

The organization is not a service club, but through the accomplishment of their objectives on a local level, does offer valuable community service. The Belleville Club supports annual bursaries of $50, payable in two annual installments of $25.00 each, which are presented to deserving students entering a school of nursing after graduation. These bursaries are presented in each of the four high schools. The Provincial organization has just finished sponsoring the university education of an African student, Miss Millicent Fraser, at the University of Western Ontario, and is now sponsoring a second student in this manner. The International Federation, aided by the various National Federations sponsors a training school for Arab girls at Ramallah, Jordan, and the Canadian Federation supported seven of these students during the past two years.

In addition, the group interests itself in such projects as working for the removal of sex discrimination in opportunities for employment and selection for office, for promotion and for remuneration; jury duty for women, encouraging women to offer themselves for public office, changes in estates duties and income tax legislation, etc. The International Federation is recognized as a non-governmental organization with consultation status with the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations. Regular briefs are presented to provincial and federal authorities on questions as outlined above, so one can see this is a busy and dedicated group of women.

The local club is currently conducting a membership drive, and anyone interested in becoming a member of this group and who is employed, is invited to contact any club member or to come to a regular club meeting.

W. A. MEETING

MADOC — The meeting of St. John the Baptist Anglican Woman's Auxiliary was held in the home of Mrs. Anton Delange.

Mrs. Kathleen J. Thompson opened the meeting with the devotional period. President Velma Caiman welcomed the members and outlined the various activities for the coming month. Plans were made for the annual Valentine tea for February 20th, in the Parish Hall with certain parishioners responsible for the tables and home bake sale.

An exhibit of Pakistan embroidery will be shown on that day. On February 24th the W.A. will sponsor a beef supper with all proceeds going towards the Parish loan.

The next meeting will be held in the form of a potluck supper in the hall followed by the usual afternoon business.

F. A. OFFICERS

At the annual meeting of the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture the following were elected for the 1958 officers: Russell Sills — O.F.A. member; Griffis Ketchabaw, president; Roy Sills, vice president; Wilfred Forestell, secretary; Charles Fargey, treasurer; Mrs. Percy Ray, press secretary; directors are: Arthur Bates, Donald Martin, Ross Batchelor, Percy Ray, James Reynolds, Burton Hubble and Allan Ketcheson.

Reports were received from George Wood, cheese production, Murray Keenan, hog producers' association; Glen Myers, vegetable growers; Allan McDonnell, cream producers; Charles Fargey, wheat growers and beef producers; and Wilfred Forestell, co-operator' insurance. Mr. Leonard Laventure, an executive of the Ontario Federation addressed the meeting and spoke on the Eskimo's Life, his method of food consumption and ons of survival.

U.C.W. Meetings

RYLSTONE U.C.W.

RYLSTONE — Mrs. Clarence Thomson was hostess to the Rylstone United Church Women recently when they met for their January meeting with ten ladies and several small children present.

Mrs. Wilfred Spencer as president was in charge of the devotional portion of the meeting assisted by Mrs. Will Rutherford and Mrs. Jack Spencer. The meditation was conducted by Mrs. Spencer and Mrs. Rose Dickie gave the Bible study based on "Starting the New Year".

Mrs. Jack Spencer was convenor for the balance of the program when a reading was given by Mrs. R. Dickie. Mrs. Clarence Thomson rendered a piano solo of sacred music. Mrs. Ray Stewart also gave a reading and a Bible contest was conducted by Mrs. Spencer.

Mrs. Ray Stewart was authorized to purchase a coffee maker for the use of the U.C.W. and other church organizations. Plans were made for the next meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Austin Bunk.

The meeting closed and refreshments were served by the hostess and her committee.

WHITE CANE CLUB

At the regular business meeting of the White Cane Club held Wednesday evening, Helen Wardaugh presided and welcomed the 15 members and escorts.

Mrs. Maud Rollins read the correspondence, which included news from the Council Committee. This year's White Cane Week will be from February 7 - 12. To help make this campaign a success, every able member should share the responsibility of helping to educate the sighted public in programs for the blind, capabilities of the blind, and prevention of blindness. These are instances of loss of sight resulting from the unrestricted use of air rifles and bows and arrows. Enactment of by-laws in this regard would be a municipal affair.

It was suggested that this safety idea might be incorporated into the White Cane Week educational program, if clubs so desired.

Canada is the first country in the world to have a nation-wide survey on the causes of blindness. Dr. Alexander E. MacDonald, M.D., F.R.C.S., consultant ophthalmologist to the CNIB since 1932, spent three years in compiling this survey. This task has just been completed.

SURVEY CONDUCTED .

This survey shows a complete analysis on the causes of blindness; all age levels are covered; 30,000 eye reports of registered living blind Canadians (1952) were checked; national statistics on the causes of blindness are now up-to-date; blindness is on the increase; more effective research can be undertaken by the medical profession.

Lillie Scott introduced Mrs. Don Belanger who entertained the gathering with several piano selections. Vi Wale thanked Mrs. Belanger for the pleasure she had brought through her enjoyable musical numbers.

Members of the Kinette Club served lunch.

Ted Jones thanked the Kinettes and Helen Wardaugh the Lions' Club, who provided the transportation.

At the conclusion of the meeting one minute's silence was observed in memory of Sir Winston Churchill.

Women's Institutes

(PINE GROVE W.I.)

MARSH HILL — The January meeting of Pine Grove Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Coulter with 11 members present.

The president Mrs. Farley Lindenfield opened the meeting in the usual manner and Mrs. Charles Ross read a poem. The secretary reported that a number of thank-you notes had been received. Mrs. H. Coulter passed around a Christmas card which had been received from the W.I.'s adopted child. Lindenfield reported the meeting in the usual manner and Mrs. Charles Ross read a poem. Happy Reader Passes Along Some Helpful Advice

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — Seven years ago I experienced the same thing through which "Full of Regrets" is going now. (She "gave in to Dad.") My advice to her, above all, is: There is really no need to be full of regret. You are your own worst enemy, and your own worst judge. And don't go back to your boy friend! I went back to my boy friend and all I got was more trouble than I could handle.

It took me three torturous years to realize that I could conquer my shame. All I needed, Doris, and "Full of Regret," were the things I already had — a very understanding mother; the most wonderful, thoughtful friends in the world; and, most of all, God.

All you have to do, "Full of Regret," is to make a whole-hearted attempt at conquering yourself. Just remember that you'll never have a better friend in the whole world than your mother, and always put implicit trust in God . . . He's always ready to help you, you know.

I know this worked for me, "Full of Regret," because I am very happily engaged to be married next month. Remember: Your worst enemy and your worst judge is yourself. — FULL OF HOPE.

DEAR HOPE — Congratulations on a happy ending. How about that, F of R?

DEAR DORIS — My father is what I would call an indoor litter bug. He never leaves here but what he hasn't thrown burnt matches, cigar wrappers, or emptied his pipe on the floor. My husband and I and our little girl live just outside of the town my folks live in and I am glad to see them real often. I know if I mentioned this to him, he'd go off in a huff and most likely say he'd "never go back to that place again!"

I'd go on sweeping up the house after he's left rather than make a fuss, but I'd like to help Mum out on this if I could. I can remember many times on the farm when, Mum had just washed and waxed the big tiled kitchen floor, that Dad would come through right into the front room with his wet, mucky overshoes on. She got so she wouldn't say anything rather than cause a scene.

Maybe you'll say I'm nosy and it's Mother's problem, but if you could just suggest something I could tell her next time she mentions it because I know she'd never write for help herself.— NOSY.

DEAR NOSY — Tracking in the mud is not only inconsiderate: it's lazy, arrogant, and a bad example for your little ones.

Tackle it positively: tell your Dad you love his visits and his interest in your children; mention the example he sets and how the youngsters admire him; point out that today's floors don't just absorb mud and moisture without showing it.

When he does a single thing to show improvement, do what you'd do for a child: reward him with his favorite dessert! (And avoid mentioning the spoiled-child behavior which your Mother has allowed to exist over the years.)

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Thank you for the games and contests. They were a big help. Now I am sending you a game which is called "The Flower Ballad." It is a story in verse, with blanks left in many of the lines, to be filled in with the names of flowers.

Hope you will be able to use it. — MRS. J.A.P.

DEAR MRS. J.A.P. — I have added it to the repertoire, and thanks! May be had for ten cents (to cover handling), plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR DORIS — I am 18 years old and work every Saturday morning for $5.00. My parents say that they have the right to tell me what to do with my money since I'm too young yet. If money matters exceed over $2.00 they make a big fuss and refuse to let me spend my money.

I want to buy a school ring but my parents don't approve of throwing away money that way. I have my money and occasionally buy something I want.— MONEY TROUBLES.

DEAR MONEY TROUBLES — You should have some say — and I gather the $2.00 is yours to squander. When you start working full time you'll be lucky if you have two-fifths of your pay free for extras, after paying board and bus fares, and buying clothes.

Present expenditures should be a matter for discussion between you and your parents.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I have always loved fussing with hair. My mother lets me do here in a new style sometimes. I give myself a home permanent without any trouble at all.

My Dad says he'd help me get into business if I took a course. Please tell me what is required. I am 15, and not very good at most school subjects. — TOPKNOT.

DEAR TOPKNOT — If you have a flair for hair care, this calling may be your destiny. With deft fingers, friendly ways, strong feet (for standing all day!), and a mind for business you could make out fine.

A good hairdresser has been responsible for contributing to the success of models, public speakers and many workers. She learns about skin and make-up as well as hair care and can bring about blessed transformations.

Write in for my leaflet "The Hairdresser Has Beauty at Her Fingertips," enclosing ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR DORIS — About the letter from "Afraid." Before my first girl was born I read many books on natural childbirth and, as a result, I took the classes at our local Victorian Order of Nurses Clinic and from the beginning of labor until the birth of my child I was given only a slight hypo. I experienced a thrill that no one can graphically express when I saw my baby born and heard her first lusty cries.

When my second girl was born I was given the usual sedation and I still feel cheated I was not able to see her birth because of a broken knee.

As for fear of pain, in neither birth did I experience real pain. My only sensation was that anyone feels when going down in an elevator. — A MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER — Thank you. The V.O.N. classes (also sometimes given by other agencies) are wonderful. Perhaps "Afraid" will read this and make enquiries where she is.

Ann Landers

Widows Wish to Keep House For Widowers, Bachelors

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We are two widows in our 60's who must work to support ourselves. We both dislike shop jobs, clerking and the like. What we enjoy most (and do best) is cooking and housekeeping.

What would you think about us getting jobs as housekeepers for unmarried men — either widowers or bachelors? At this stage of life neither of us would want to take orders from a woman.

We are both respectable ladies with grown children. Please give us your opinion. — S. AND A.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR S. AND A. — You say you do not wish to take orders from a woman. I strongly suspect you don't want to take orders from a man either. What you would like is a couple of nice, tame bachelors or widowers who will let you take over.

I'm sure there are men around who would welcome the arrangement and more power to you if you can find them.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Will you settle an argument which has been going on and on and on?

My husband says we should keep the car doors locked at all times. He claims this should be done as a safety measure, to be sure the kids don't fall out.

I say the car doors should not be locked, that kids should be taught not to lean on car doors, and that disciplined youngsters do not fall out of cars.

My father, who was a well-educated man, always told us that in case of an accident it is better to have the car doors open so the person can be thrown free of the wreck. Please print your reply and settle the question. — HIM AND HER.

* * *

DEAR HIM AND H. — I consulted my friends at the National Safety Council and this is what they told me:

Car doors should be locked. The person who is thrown from a wreck is about 10 times likelier to be killed or seriously injured.

A locked car door, plus a seat belt, can and does save thousands of lives every day. So lock up — and buckle up. (P.S.: Your father may have been well-educated, Dearie — but on other subjects.)

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My 18-year-old son is breaking my heart. Ira was a considerate, well-mannered boy until he met this girl six months ago. Now we can't agree on what day of the week it is.

His whole life is wrapped up in the girl and I am sick of it. The first thing Ira does when he gets out of bed in the morning is call her on the phone. Then he goes to work.

The minute Ira comes home he calls her again, gulps his dinner and runs to her house. He stays there until all hours of the night. I can't understand why her mother allows it. The girl is still in school. On weekends he spends every waking minute over there.

When I ask Ira to do an errand for me he says he hasn't got time. He has flipped his lid over this girl and I've told him unless he straightens around he must move out of the house. Am I right or wrong? — HADDIT.

DEAR HADDIT — Obviously you've lost control. Now you must keep the arteries of communication open in an effort to funnel some sense into your son's head.

Be friendly and sympathetic. Don't drive him out of the house or you'll regret it. Some special counseling from a clergyman who understands boys could be useful. Get it promptly.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DECISION OF JUDGES

The judges' decision placed Shawn Doyle as the best girl speaker, who gave a talk on "Teen-age Driving". Blair Johnston representing Grade XIII, gave a first-class talk on Sir John A. Macdonald. He deplored the seeming lack of knowledge of most Canadians about this grand old man of Canadian political history. He was awarded the Oriel Griffiths public speaking trophy for the best boy speaker and best overall speaker.

Prize for the best "impromptu" speech was awarded to Rosemary Soden.

The Glee Club of Nicholson Catholic College, under the direction of Rev. Sister M. Avila favored the audience with several delightful choral selections, accompanied at the piano by Rev. Sister M. Imelda.

Nema Woman As Synod Delegate

KINGSTON (CP) — A Kingston woman journalist, Mrs. William (Elizabeth) Rymsako, has invaded a 102 - year - old male stronghold.

Mrs. Rymsako, women's editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard, was elected Tuesday as a lalty delegate to the Diocese of Ontario Synod. The synod, governing body of the Anglican Church in the diocese that embraces 132 congregations near Kingston, has never had a woman delegate since the diocese was incorporated in 1862.

A change in canon at the synod's 98th session here last May allowed women to become delegates from the laity. Mrs. Rymsako said she is "delighted the cathedral church in this diocese has taken the leadership in allowing women to assume a more useful role."

Seek More Elegant Style

Communists Go Bourgeois Over Wedding Ceremonies

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—Marriage in the Soviet Union traditionally is about as unceremonious as a trip to the market.

Now a campaign is on to make it more meaningful.

More and more couples are getting married — or "registered" as it's called here—in so - called "wedding palaces" rather than in district registration centres where all civil marriages were performed until recent years.

The ceremony is much the same—there are no "I dos" and no one pronounces the couple man and wife—but an effort is being made to surround it with more elegance and style.

In Moscow there are two wedding palaces, the older one four years old. All large cities now have them.

The buildings are rather plain —hardly the movie conception of a palace—but they're cheerful and well-lighted inside. They are roomier than registration centres—of which Moscow alone has 17—with an assortment of salons and waiting rooms, including one where the bride can adjust her veil and check her coiffure.

PALACES BUSY

Wedding palaces across the U.S.S.R. add a big business in the week just before New Year's Day. That's the popular time for matrimony here, the Soviet equivalent of June in Western countries.

Ludmila Tihonova Pushkova, an official of a wedding palace in Dzerzhinsky district of north-central Moscow, says there were 55 to 60 weddings a day in the last week of December. Ordinarily there are about 40.

If the figures make the place sound like a marriage factory, that's what it seems to be.

A wedding ceremony takes minutes. The young couple—only people 18 to 30 may be married at a palace—are ushered into a high-ceilinged, chandelier-hung room with two witnesses and sometimes a handful of parents and friends.

With recorded Mendelssohn playing in the background, they are addressed briefly by a woman dressed in black who counsels them to be attentive to one another and "safeguard your love," then ties the knot with:

"In accordance with the family and marriage law of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic . . . we register this couple."

Wedding rings are exchanged —double ring ceremonies are the style—and the newlyweds kiss. The ceremony is over.

As soon as one group leaves another is ushered in.

PARTY AT HOME

By custom a wedding party is held in the evening at the home of bride or groom, at a friend's home or in a rented hall. The newlyweds normally get three days off from their jobs. They spend the time in their new home; out-of-town honeymoons are not fashionable.

Miss Pushkova says an increasing number of brides wear veils and carry flowers, trappings seldom given much play in the past.

The customary nervousness is one thing Russian couples have in common with those in other countries. Miss Pushkova mentioned one pair so nervous at their wedding they didn't remember anything about it except the red carpet.

"Later they came back and watched another ceremony just to see how it went."

Not far from the wedding palace is a clothing store, one of two in Moscow catering to couples planning to wed. Five others will soon be opened. A special pass is required to gain admission to the shops.

The cost of outfitting a bride is around 115 rubles, the equivalent of $140 Canadian, about 15 rubles more than a skilled factory hand earns in a month.

In dollar equivalents, the prices of individual items are: short dress $42-$48; veil $10; gloves $6.50 for short length, $8 for long; white shoes $35-$48; nylons $4.80; lingerie including an $18 nightie, $36. There are no cloth coats on sale but fur coats are available at $600 to $850.

COSTS ALWAYS HIGH

For the groom a good suit costs about $165 and a good pair of shoes $42 to $48.

A plain yellow gold wedding band costs $24.

"More and more attention is being paid to the solemnity of marriage and preparations for it," says Evgeny Nagobin, director of the two stores which, he says, have served 150,000 couples since the first opened four years ago.

The aim is to help strengthen family ties by making its nuptial beginnings more symbolic and hence more meaningful. Soviet officials are said to feel that the once strictly informal approach to matrimony was a factor in the number of divorces.

A Soviet citizen offered a second explanation. "The solemnity in the palace competes with the solemnity of a church wedding," she said. "People used to get married in a church simply for the ceremonial. Now they don't have to."

A small minority of Russians still get married in the Orthodox Church. But the atheistic Soviet state refuses to recognize the union unless they are also registered as a civil office.

Congregational Meetings

ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST ANGLICAN CHURCH

MADOC — The 100th annual vestry meeting of St. John the Baptist Anglican Church was held on January 25th with the incumbent, Rev. James H. Thompson, in the chair. Mrs. Alf Lavender was appointed as vestry clerk. Mrs. Irene Ross read the minutes of the last vestry meeting. The financial statement, presented by Luella Phillips showed receipts in the general account of some $6,384. This report showed an increase of nearly $3,000 over the previous year. It was noted that $1,000 came in by donations, with $141..to be given to missions.

Officers and members of the various church organizations presented their reports: the W.A., the J.A., Guild and Sunday school. All were thanked for their splendid work and support.

RECTOR'S REPORT

In the rector's report it was noted that nearly $2,000 had been spent on church renovation. The church was now in good repair and beautiful. The church building will be 100 years old this year, therefore, special services will be conducted to commemorate this happy occasion.

Mr. Thompson reported that the 78 services had been conducted, 14 baptisms, one marriage, one funeral, with attendance of 4,544 persons throughout the year; 410 visits made throughout the parish; 48 visits to the Belleville General Hospital, and 14 to the Queensboro nursing home.

The envelope contributors to the church showed 39 families, yet it was noted that there were still far too many inactive families. The administration and spiritual guidance of the church was never refused to anyone. A visitation will be planned during the year to contact these families.

A vote of thanks was expressed to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jones for the mimeographing of monthly bulletins; also to Mr. Bill Gordon for his typing and auditing.

In conclusion Mr. Thompson thanked the various officers of the church and stressed for a further co-operation from all that together "we may achieve even greater things. To continue the reputation of our friendly church and to use our talents for the glory of God."

He re-appointed Mr. Leonard Ward as rector's warden. The vestry elected the following officers: people's warden, Mr. John Kemp; acting warden, Mr. Anton Delanger; lay-delegates to Synod, Mr. Jack Reynolds, Mrs. Lois Nickle, Mr. Alfred Lavender; church treasurer, Luella Phillips; church secretary, Mrs. Irene Ross; advisory board wardens, Mrs. Velma Corman, Mrs. Sam Danford; property committee, Mr. John Reynolds, Mr. Glen Nickle, Mr. Charles Warren; delegate to the Canadian Bible Society committee, Mrs. Joan Reynolds; sidesmen chairman, Charles Warren; delegate for the parish 24th Diocesan Congress in Kingston, Mr. Len Wrod, Mrs. Alice Mitts, Luella Phillips, Charles Warren.

BUDGET REPORT

The 1965 budget was presented and revelaued fully. An amount of $6,000 was required to operate the year's expenses, besides general repairs. The report was accepted by the members present. Further discussion was made on church and rectory insurance coverage, snow removal and for planning the possibility of rectory renovations.

Coffee and light refreshments were served by the ladies of the parish.

A Perfect Jelly Roll

By MARY MOORE

Jelly rolls are great favorites. Have you ever heard anyone say he did not like jelly roll?

They look so professional yet amateurs can make them. Each step must be followed but if you can read you are qualified.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Chicken Savory Pie (see note Wednesday January 27); Chef's Salad; Hot Chili Sauce; Hot Garlic Bread; Orange Bavarian; Willie's Lemon Bread (see Tuesday); Tea

SUNDAY

Roast Leg of Canadian Lamb (see note January 27); Lamb Gravy; Pan-roasted Potatoes; French-cut Green Beans; Individual Tomato Salads with Asparagus on Bibb Lettuce (see Monday); Joyce Austin's Orange Cake (see Tuesday); Coffee.

PERFECT JELLY-ROLL:

¾ cup sifted cake flour, ¾ teaspoon single-acting baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 4 medium-sized eggs, room temperature, ¾ cup granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup jelly, preferably red (tart or cream or lemon filling:

Mix baking powder, salt and eggs in large mixing bowl and beat until they begin to thicken — 5 to 7 minutes. Now start adding sugar slowly as you beat constantly until mixture is thick and smooth and sugar grains dissolved. Now add sifted flour and vanilla, mixing with a gentle folding (not beating) motion until batter is creamy and just smooth. Pour batter into prepared pan 16 x 10 x 1¼", well greased and lined neatly on bottom with sheet of wax paper. Bake at exactly 400 deg. F. for 13 to 15 minutes. Edges of cake shrink slightly from sides of pan and when top is touched with finger the impression does not stay.

Have ready a large clean tea towel liberally sprinkled with sifted icing sugar. Turn baked cake upside down on prepared towel, lift off pan, immediately peel off paper, at once roll up tightly, towel, sugar and all and let stand 10 minutes, unroll carefully, spread with tart red jelly (or filling — see below), roll up again, wrap towel around outside this time, and cool on rack.

VARIATIONS:

For a party we spread our roll with Cream Filling (and topped slices with Strawberry Sauce — see below): 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 1¼ tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup sugar, 3 large egg, 1 teaspoon butter, ½ teaspoon vanilla. In double boiler heat ¾ cup milk. Mix together cornstarch, flour, salt, sugar, then stir in remaining ¼ cup milk. Stir into heated milk until thick. Pour some over beaten egg, stir, return to hot mixture, stir for 1 minute. Add butter and vanilla. Chill thoroughly. (Note: This filling is sufficient for a 9" layer cake.)

To give the cream-filled roll a more festive air for a guest dinner we made Strawberry Sauce to spoon over each serving: Thaw and drain juice from 1 package frozen sliced strawberries. Heat juice, stir in paste made of 1 tablespoon arrowroot flour (or cornstarch) and 1 tablespoon water until thick. Add red coloring to make it real bright, and the drained berries. Stir, then chill.

Various Items Dedicated at Church Service

MADOC — At the morning service of Hazzard's United Church held last Sunday several gifts and furnishings were received and dedicated by the minister, Rev. Mr. Sedgewick.

The gift of new hymn books and book racks was received from Mr. George Ketcheson in memory of his wife.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Keene presented an antependium for the pulpit.

A baptismal font was presented in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Franks by their sons and families, and by their sister and brother.

In memory of Mrs. Marian Love Rollins, a communion table, the cover and cross were presented and dedicated.

BAPTISMAL SERVICE

Following this a baptismal service was conducted at which time Anne Louise, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don McKinnon, and Diane Elaine, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Holland were baptized.

The Rev. Mr. Sedgewick based his remarks following this on the meaning of baptism and the three responsibilities of the parents and of the congregation.

VOTA VITA MISSION CIRCLE

BAPTIST CHURCH

The Vota Vita Mission Circle of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church began its program for 1965 under its new president, Mrs. William Robb, with a splendid attendance.

The treasurer, Mrs. Grace Pearson, noted that at the present rate of giving the Circle would exceed its allotted budget of $675. by a good margin. This was partly due to the Penny Extra collections taken along with the monthly envelope offering.

Mrs. A. Gexley was asked to supervise the preparation of hospital supplies for medical work in India, and Mrs. T. Stovell was given charge of the reading course books. Mrs. A. Wynne gave an enlightening report on conditions in newly independent countries and the changing role of Christian missionaries in these progressive lands.

FINE PROGRAM

The program was in charge of Miss Jean Thompson's group with Mrs. T. Stovell leading a devotional theme, "Talking Stock," reminding members of the value of clearing their lives of worthless things to make them more effective and attractive. Mrs. F. Morrell sang a lovely solo.

Mrs. Eric Quirk, who with her husband spent 27 years in India, was guest speaker, and told of some of their experiences in Vizagapatam, a seacoast city of 200,000 people. In 1912 Canadian Baptists took over from the London Mission, and by this time, and WOOLER W.I.

The January meeting and "Men's Night" of the Wooler Women's Institute was held in the Institute Hall with a good attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Larry Thrower acted as host and hostess the evening.

Mrs. R. McColl, acting as president for the evening welcomed both members and visitors. The motto, "Men should keep their eyes wide open before marriage and half shut after marriage" was enlarged upon.

The senior class leaders, Mrs. Alex Bell and Mrs. V. Teal reported on the class they had attended at Brighton on Jan. 13, 14. The project, "Desserts" had been most interesting both in discussion and demonstration. It was decided to have two evening classes in the near future at which time the leaders would outline and demonstrate the knowledge they had learned about desserts. All interested homemakers in the community are asked to attend these meetings and take the course.

Miss Cora Valentine and Mrs. Chas. Nelson were nominated as a committee to secure leaders and assistants for the next 4-H club project.

Thank-you notes were read from the girls of the previous 4-H club for the assistance given by the leaders and the gifts received. Mrs. John MacCallum also sent a note of appreciation for the gift of jewellery received from the Institute prior to her transfer to Brantford.

The meeting was turned over to the program conveners, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gooding. Community singing was enjoyed with Mr. John Morrow acting as song leader. Mr. Gooding conducted a contest and Mr. L. Dorland conducted a mathematic questionnaire. A reading was given by Mrs. R. Read and this was followed by a Game of Password between the ladies and gentlemen.

Mrs. Gooding then closed the meeting with an appropriate poem.

Minister Urges Government To 'Gut Army of Salesmen' For Breweries, Distilleries

TORONTO (CP) — Brewery and distillery salesmen are getting out of hand both in their numbers and their selling tactics, Rev. R. J. Hord, secretary of the United Church board of evangelism and social service, said Wednesday.

Mr. Hord, who was commenting on the death in a car accident of Thomas Dasovich, 26, of Elliot Lake, Ont., after an inter - fraternity beer - drinking competition, said the Ontario government should "gut the army of brewery and distillery salesmen if it wants' to keep control."

"There are more than 400 salesmen in the province. They are infiltrating clubs, conventions, business organizations and now the fraternities of our universities and schools.

"I understand that a salesman from one of the brewing companies was present at the beer - drinking contest from which Mr. Dasovich went to his death," Mr. Hord said.

KILLED IN COLLISION

Mr. Dasovich, a Ryerson Polytechnic Institute student, died Saturday when his car was in collision with two other vehicles. An inquest into his death will be held Feb. 23.

Instead of exercising control over breweries and distilleries, we are giving them a blank cheque to sell advertise and to sell," Mr. Hord said.

Harold Sutland, Ryerson's faculty director of student affairs, flew to Sault Ste. Marie Wednesday to attend Mr. Dasovich's funeral.

Tuesday, he announced suspension of the student council's powers to investigate student misdemeanors and recommend disciplinary action to the faculty. He said the administration would make a full investigation.

Chrysler's Workers Strike At Windsor

WINDSOR (CP)—Some 6,000 workers at Chrysler Canada Limited were walked off the job today after an all-night bargaining session between their union and the company failed to reach agreement on a new contract by the strike deadline of 10 a.m.

The workers are members of United Auto Workers Local 444 (CLC).

Three plants are affected: Plant No. 1, the truck plant, where about 365 workers are employed; Plant No. 2, the engine plant, with 1,200, and Plant No. 3, the passenger-car assembly plant, with about 4,000.

About 1,560 office workers, members of UAW Local 240, are not on strike. They are covered by a separate agreement with Chrysler which will not be renegotiated until the agreement covering the hourly rated workers is signed.

Union and company negotiators were expected to separate and get some sleep after the failure of their marathon meeting.

CPR Profits Up One Third

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Pacific Railways earned approximately $43,000,000 on its railway operations in 1964, an increase of more than 30 per cent over the previous year, Vice-President Ian Sinclair said Wednesday.

He said the increased earnings were achieved in spite of more than $10,000,000 in increased payroll costs and a $20,000,000 loss on passenger train service.

Speaking to the Toronto Society of Financial Analysts, he said the company hopes to increase its earnings on two main fronts—through increased sales and operating efficiency.

Mr. Sinclair said Canadian Pacific Investments, a wholly-owned subsidiary of CPR which administers the company's non-transportation interests, will have a net income of more than $19,000,000.

"CPI's investment at the end of 1964 amounted to almost $280,000,000, he said. This is "an increase of some $150,000,000 during the year, mainly attributable to the book value of companies acquired from the parent company, CPR."

Official Terms Mercer Story 'Vicious Lie'

TORONTO (CP)—A message dropped from the window of Mercer Reformatory for Women Wednesday claimed a prisoner who talked to visiting members of the Ontario legislature was strapped and placed in solitary confinement.

A spokesman for the department of reform institutions said the note was "a vicious lie." He said Mercer officials have denied strapping anybody or placing anybody in detention.

Two identical notes, addressed to Vernon Singer, Liberal member of the legislature for suburban Downsview, were dropped in a deliverymen and said "one of the girls he talked to was severely strapped and is now in confinement."

Mr. Singer visited Mercer Tuesday along with two Liberal colleagues, James Trotter (Toronto Parkdale and Leonard Braithwaite (Etobicoke).

URGE DESTRUCTION

They said, after their five-hour tour of the institution, that the reformatory should be torn down. They criticized treatment of the prisoners, agreeing with an indictment of Mercer conditions reported last year by a grand jury.

The Liberal members said they were told women suspected of having talked to members of the grand jury were disciplined later by matrons.

Reform Institutions Minister Allan Grossman declined to comment on the allegations, noting that an official government inquiry is underway.

Bank Robber Pictured In the Act

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—A man robbed a bank of $5,500 Wednesday and fled while hidden cameras took pictures of him. A few hours later the FBI announced that an Atlanta man had been arrested in Knoxville, Tenn., on a bank robbery charge.

FBI agent Joseph Ponder said Bruce Smith, 23, had a bag full of money and a pocket full of bullets when arrested by Knoxville agents.

The robbery occurred about noon at the Peachtree Plaza branch of the Citizens and Southern National Bank. Cameras inside and outside the bank were tripped and snapped pictures of the robber, gun in hand and carrying a paper bag.

Approve New Resolution To Set Feed Grain Policy

REGINA (CP)—Eastern and western delegates to the Canadian Federation of Agriculture annual meeting Wednesday approved in principle a resolution setting a feed grain policy for the national agricultural body.

The controversial, lengthy and detailed resolution called for establishment of a feed grains agency for Eastern Canada and British Columbia with power to administer the federal feed grain assistance policy on feed grains and the grain assistance policy on feed grains and the forage assistance policy. The delegates claimed Tuesday when the resolution came under discussion on the first day of the 3-day meeting. After three hours of clause-by-clause debate Wednesday, delegates approved the measure.

The proposed agency, which the CFA says will recommend to the federal government, would be able "at such time as demand for feed grains in the purchase, sell and distribute feed grains in the East and B.C.

It might also have the power to place feed grains in public storage at the appropriate locations, at the times required and in sufficient quantities.

The resolution originally asked the federal government to establish the same transportation cost for feed grains throughout the country.

In the final amended version this section of the resolution was deleted after western delegates argued the issue which asks the federal government to adopt necessary measures to establish equitable transportation cost at the farm for feed grains throughout Eastern Canada and B.C."

Other proposals favored Wednesday asked that provincial agriculture departments place more emphasis on trading, marketing and pricing policies to retain for the producer the benefits of improved methods of production and to allocate specific funds for marketing research.

Another motion urged the CFA to request the federal government and the federal-provincial farm labor service to make a thorough study of the farm labor situation.

BUILD OWN RAIL

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A new fair hall, built by 7,000 hours of firemen's labor, has been opened here to replace a building in use since 1910. Three members from the original 1910 volunteer brigade were present at the ceremony. The traditional shiny pole — no longer used—for sliimping from duty areas to waiting trucks, has been incorporated into the $35,000 building's stair rail.

TRI-QUINTE BONSPIEL at Belleville Curling Club opened last night after Mayor Jack Ellis threw the first stone. The event will last through to the weekend.

Ceremonies Mark Opening Tri-Quinte Men's Bonspiel

By C.D.T.

Tons of granite will roll down glittering ice for the next three days the occasion being the Annual Tri-Quinte Men's Bonspiel played at the Trenton Curling Club, the RCAF station rink and the Quinte Curling Club. The opening ceremonies were held at the Quinte club with Mayor Jack Ellis welcoming the visiting curlers and extending to all the freedom of the city. "We wish for you in our "Friendly City" a most enjoyable time and good fellowship among your curlers."

A welcome was also extended by the president of the Quinte club, Gil Wamboldt. "A lot of planning has gone into this spiel with the hope everyone participating will have a real good time," said Mr. Wamboldt. The Quinte club extends a hearty welcome to all curlers especially to those outside the district. "Good luck and good curling."

The curlers were piped into the rink by Pipe Sergeant Pat Stuparyk and Mayor Ellis threw the first rock.

There are 72 rinks entered in the spiel this year an increase of eight rinks. Curlers are present from as far away as Charlottetown, P.E.I., on the east and Edmonton, Alta., on the west. In previous years the Quinte club was the only one occupied on the opening night but it was necessary to have two draws at each of the three rinks on the opening night this year to keep even with the schedule. The curlers will have it easy on Thursday, due to the draw quiet, but Friday and Saturday will be tough days.

Tonight the curlers will gather at the RCAF mess hall for the annual banquet and delicious dinner has been prepared including lobster, roast beef, turkey, ham and other delicacies and topped off with desserts of all kinds.

Following the dinner at which there will be few and brief addresses a varied program has been arranged. In past years this part of the dinner has been highlighted by acts of high calibre and all are looking forward to another terrific show.

On Sunday evening the wives and sweethearts of the curlers are to be on hand at the RCAF luncheon before the finals are played at the Trenton club, at which time Mayor Jamie MacDonald will be guest of honor.

On Saturday evening at the Quinte club the finals for the Elliott Motors and Corby event will be played, while at the RCAF the LaPalm trophy, sponsored by North American Van Lines, will be contested. At the Trenton club on the same night the Crown event will be decided.

On Sunday evening at the Trenton club four events, the Pepsi-Cola, Quinte Transport, Bata Shoe and the British American Oil Company shield will be staged. All these events are sponsored by the firms named and have greatly assisted the committee in giving prizes that are worth winning.

The women's sections of the various clubs have donated their time and ability and light refreshments of soup, sandwiches, pie and coffee can be obtained for a small charge.

On a separate table is the finest of old Cheddar cheese from the Quinte district donated to the local club by The Ontario Intelligencer and even on the first night the table had a big play. Placed alongside the cheese are beautiful Spy apples, also from the district.

A large gallery watched the play at all three clubs and some excellent games were witnessed. Bill Lewis of the RCAF and Claude Tice of Quinte scored six-enders in their games to assist their rinks in winning their contests. The Quinte club had 17 rinks in play in the first draw and nine came out on the right end of the score. The firing begins early today with the last draw at six o'clock, so that the curlers can make the banquet in time.

The results of draws at three rinks follow:

Hospital Had Dispute With Radiologist

WOODSTOCK (CP) — The Woodstock General Hospital board said Wednesday in a statement that it has been blacklisted by the Canadian Association of Radiologists as a result of a dispute between the hospital and its radiologist, Dr. G. W. Kruger.

Dr. Kruger left the hospital staff Oct. 1, 1963, when the hospital terminated his contract after 13 years' service. His association, Dr. I. S. Plaut, was promoted to fill his place.

The board said Dr. Kruger notified them in June, 1963, that he planned to open a private practice in partnership with Dr. Plaut in addition to his medical duties at the hospital here and at Alexandre Hospital in nearby Ingersoll.

The board said they could not allow this and decided to terminate his contract by means of a three-month termination clause in the contract.

The statement said "the board was strongly of the opinion that Dr. Kruger could not operate a full-time private office and give satisfactory service to the hospital."

The board said its efforts to hire an assistant for Dr. Plaut were unsuccessful and the Canadian Association of Radiologists...

Three Acquitted On Rape Charges

KITCHENER (CP) — Three men charged with raping a 21-year-old Kitchener woman Nov. 15 were found not guilty Wednesday by an Ontario Supreme Court jury.

Acquitted were Donald Morrison, 20, Michael McGale, 25, and Laschie Monk, 20, all of Kitchener.

Mr. Justice Leo Landreville said that the function of justice will be neatly in time and money if girls continue to "cry rape" every time they are confronted with the necessity of explaining their actions.

"If a woman wants to keep her virtue, she must satisfy the jury she has done something to protect her virtue," he said.

The judge said in appraising the evidence that the woman allowed herself to be carried into the bedroom by the three during a party.

Pause to Honor Churchill Gives UN Unusual Chance To Take a Look at Itself

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The death of Sir Winston Churchill gave the United Nations an unusual chance Wednesday to pause and consider where it has come from and where it is going.

The General Assembly held a special meeting to honor the man acclaimed as one of the UN's founding fathers. For a time, delegates had a chance to stand back and take a hard look at what they have been doing in the past months of internal bickering and manoeuvering.

There seemed to be wide agreement that—in the words of Adlai Stevenson the day before—the UN has reached "one of those watersheds in human affairs."

There was an awareness the UN is marking its 20th anniversary year with one big member—Indonesia—walking out, and with other countries threatening to do the same.

And from some of the delegates who paid tributes to Churchill, there were reminders that the UN is frittering away what had been achieved at immense cost 20 years earlier.

Under it all lay the fear, sometimes articulated but more often simply understood, the UN could follow the path of disintegration taken by the League of Nations after its nearly two decades of existence.

One delegate expressed it in Churchill's own words, spoken in 1946:

"The league of nations did not fail because of its principles and conception. It failed because these principles were deserted by those states who had brought it into being.

"It failed because the governments of those days feared to face the facts and act while time remained. This disaster must not be repeated."

The words had a particular acuteness for those who see the current UN troubles as a time of decision on how—or whether—the UN will keep the peace in the future.

In this view, the UN is in the process of deciding whether the Western powers will accept peace-keeping responsibility or whether a peace-keeping action can be blocked by any one of the five permanent members of the security council.

Many delegates believe the second choice would force the UN to continue as a helpless spectator in most world crises.

Only occasionally, as in last year's Cyprus fighting, would Western and Communist interests overlap sufficiently to permit organization of peace-keeping machinery.

These delegates point out that the UN already is completely out of the picture on most of the current threats to international peace—in Viet Nam, The Congo and Malaysia.

They fear that the UN will become meaningless if it has to shut its eyes to the world's major problems.

Camilo Osias of the Philippines summed up the feeling by saying the UN, in the midst of "frustration and near paralysis," should follow Churchill's example and make a "forward lunge" to re-establish its prestige.

Pause to Honor Churchill Gives UN Unusual Chance To Take a Look at Itself

No Government Fallen So Low Says Nielsen

TORONTO (CP)—Erik Nielsen, Progressive Conservative member of the Commons for the Yukon, says "no government has fallen so low and so fast as the present administration."

He described the federal Liberal government as "reckless where it should have been bold —and a government subject to very curious impulses indeed."

In an address Wednesday to the St. Paul's Conservative Association, he compared Prime Minister Pearson to the three monkeys who see no evil, speak no evil and hear no evil.

Mr. Nielsen's charges in the Commons of alleged bribery and coercion against federal ministerial aides sparked the Dorion Royal Commission hearings in Montreal.

$150 Canadian Air Purifier Ends Housewife's Dusting

VANCOUVER (CP) — Stan Williamson claims to have a machine that will take the dust out of air and some of the work out of housecleaning—all for the installed price of $150.

The secret is an electronic air purifier which Mr. Williamson says will reduce a housewife's workload by eliminating most of the dust floating around her home.

Air purifiers are nothing new but Mr. Williamson says his is the only one made in Canada and the first to sell at a realistic price—others cost many times more.

Mr. Williamson is head of Williamson Manufacturing Co., a neighboring Burnaby, a firm engaged in the manufacture of heating equipment.

He has recently perfected its electronic air filter and is now attempting to fill a backlog of orders.

The purifier, Canadian Standards Association approved, can be installed in the cold air return of almost any forced-air furnace.

It consists of an electronic filter sandwiched between two ordinary shredded metal filters.

Conventional filters remove large particles of lint, hair and dirt from the air but a magnetic charge set up by current flowing through the electronic filter attracts and holds smaller particles that escape the conventional filters.

Mr. Williamson has made a miniature model in a glass jar. Using a cigarette he pumps the jar full of tobacco smoke. When the machine is turned on the smoke immediately disappears.

He says the same thing happens in a house except that the filter can be easily removed for cleaning.

Mr. Williamson began working on the idea of an electronic filter 30 years ago.

He says the filter may not have been realized but for a chance meeting with Pat Laraking and his large collection of fat of Vancouver. They were then working on an air purifier.

The trio pooled their ideas and resources and came up with a workable filter.

In addition to the model for home use, Williamson Company makes an electronic filter for use in public places where there is a high concentration of smoke and other impurities.

A portable unit is in the planning stage.

"Some day there will be a system to be set up over our cities of pollution. It might cost a lot of money, but it will come," said Mr. Williamson.

Diefenbaker Says He Is Looking Forward To Coming Weeks and Months in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Wednesday he is looking forward to the coming weeks and months in Ottawa.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who returned to the capital Wednesday night after two weeks in his home riding of Prince Albert, Sask., was commenting on demands within his own party for a leadership convention.

He said he has received his copy of the letter sent by Progressive Conservative party President Dalton K. Camp that asks the 120 members of the executive whether they want to meet to consider calling a convention.

The opposition leader said the calling of a convention is up to the executive and he would make no further comments.

He said that Prime Minister Pearson owes it to the public to make a "full and complete explanation" for the resignation of minister without portfolio Yvon Dupuis.

Mr. Pearson's statement that it was not necessary to explain reasons for cabinet resignations was only an "alibi," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

He said that in many cases prime ministers have explained at length reasons for ministerial departures.

The opposition leader said his travels through Western Canada indicated to him there are going to be no Liberals on the Prairies following the next election.

"It's getting very difficult to find anyone but Conservatives," he said.

He termed as speculation reports that Theo Ricard (PC—Ottawa-Carleton-Bagot) might be appointed the new Quebec leader of the party, to succeed Leon Balcer.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he would answer further questions at a press conference in his office Thursday morning. He is going to be in Belleville on Friday before flying to London to attend the funeral Saturday of Sir Winston Churchill.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Jack Carson, who has never been known to trump a bridge partner's ace or fail to aspire an income-tax headache, does his baseball presidential toga on Saturday.

Jack, who was the Kenisaw Landis of the Ontario Baseball Association for a pair of terms, was the King Arthur of the baby Eastern Ontario Baseball Association Round Table in its inaugural season in 1954.

JACK CARSON

He helped spawn it, fathered it and brought it through its toddling year to what gives promise of a sturdy youngster.

The fledgling struggled through its early days under the constitutional blanket of the parent Ontario Baseball Association and emerged an independent youngster that this year will operate under its own "book of words."

On Saturday at Port Hope, the EOBA executive will host what is expected a large number of delegates at its first annual meeting, who will be asked to ratify the association's charter constitution.

This, says Jack, differs but little from the ukase of the parents OBA. The technicalities are about the same but the EOBA places stronger emphasis on discipline. It calls for direct association control of players and coaches.

While EOBA senior activities here ended on a somewhat dismal note, the consensus of 90 per cent of participating clubs was the inaugural season was a success.

Said prexy Carson "fifty-six clubs operated under the aegis of the association; 14 EOBA champions went to the OBA finals and two—Ajax in the intermediate "A" division and Centreville in the intermediate "D"—won all-Ontario championships."

Financially, the association is solvent. It went into debt to pay for its "shoes" so to speak, recuperated during the season and finished with more than enough lettuce on the right side of the ledger to pay for the printing of the new constitution.

"The season, in my opinion, was a pronounced success," said Mr. Carson. "Naturally, there were some complaints, some of them from those bleacher heroes who forgot how to spell their names when they reach the end of a letter."

"However," he said, "some evidence of the success of the first year's operation is seen in the fact that the body is second only in size in Ontario to the Western Counties Baseball Association."

"We expect to send six accredited delegates to the annual convention of the Ontario Baseball Association. That should speak for itself," he added.

Election of the 1965 executive is on the agenda of Saturday's get-together. And this corner suggests to delegates that they think hard and well before deciding on any changes in the charter board of directors, providing, of course, they are willing to stand for another term of office.

It should be remembered that these men laid the foundation, helped with the construction, administered the law and with clubs' co-operation were mainly responsible for the seasonal success.

I asked president Carson if he intended running for a second term.

"I have not as yet made up my mind," he said. "However, it depends on the calibre and motives of other, if any, candidates for the position. If I think they will not work for the good of the association as a whole, I will definitely toss my hat into the ring."

"I have always been of the opinion that the head of any organization from a municipal council to a Boy Scout troop, if he has shown his worth in the first year of office, should be given a second term to consolidate what he has achieved."

The EOBA executive of 1964 has proven its worth by effort and result. That is why I believe President Jack Carson and his hard-working executive should be "given the tools to finish the job."

Stop Bobby Hull and you stop Chicago Black Hawks.

That was Montreal's formula Thursday night as the Canadiens stifled the 3 to 2 victory over the Hawks by curtailing his activities at every turn.

Claude Provost accompanied Hull on regular shifts, Jim Roberts shadowed him on Chicago power plays and Gump Worsley handled him perfectly on each of his five shots on goal. For good measure, Terry Harper slammed Hull into the boards twice.

The strategem worked beautifully throughout the game and paid off handsomely in the dying minutes when defenceman Jean-Guy Talbot scored twice to vault the Canadiens four points ahead of Chicago in the NHL standings.

In the only other game played, New York Rangers trounced Boston Bruins 5-3 to climb within seven points of fourth place. The Hawks meet the Bruins at Boston tonight in the only game scheduled.

Worsley, who registered his first shutout and sixth victory in seven games with Montreal this season, fashioned the turning point in the game when he halted Hull when the Hawks' triggerman broke in alone early in the second period.

"I saw him coming through the corner of my eye," said Worsley, who stopped Hull cold on 11 shots when Montreal defeated the Hawks 4-3 in Chicago two weeks ago.

The Canadiens took charge from that point and bombarded Hawks goalie Denis DeJordy, but missed open nets and other great chances through most of the second and third periods. Finally, after striking out on two power plays and killing one of Chicago's, the Habs connected.

Jim Roberts set up Talbot's first goal, wresting the puck from Phil Esposito and sending the rearguard in alone. Talbot faked out DeJordy and slid the puck home at 12:14 of the first period. Three minutes later he converted Jean Beliveau's pass into a clincher.

Worsley, called up two weeks ago to replace Charlie Hodge when the Habs lost three straight home games, refused to take all the credit although Chicago coach Billy Reay observed that Worsley's 20 saves were responsible for Chicago's first loss in 11 road games.

"You do the best you can," was all Worsley would say. "I want to stay in there."

At New York, the Rangers parlayed four goals in a five-minute span during the second period into a victory over Boston. Bob Nevin sent New York ahead 1-0 in the first but Murry Oliver tied it early in the second.

Camille Henry gave the Blueshirts a lead they never surrendered at 11:18 with his 20th. Then Earl Ingarfield, Billy Hicke and Vic Hadfield connected in rapid succession to salt the victory.

Oliver added another Boston goal, his 12th this season, in the third.

Swedish hopeful Ulf Sterner made his debut for New York but his goal was called back because of an offside.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Five of the National Hockey League top seven scorers failed to collect a point last night, but only Phil Goyette remained in the select group.

Goyette picked up one assist to drop from fifth to seventh, downed Boston Bruins 5-3, and moved past Gordie Howe of Detroit into sixth spot with 36 points. Howe has 37.

Chicago's big guns failed to score as the Hawks' Bobby Hull went out 5-0 by the Canadiens and Stan Mikita was held to one assist. Montreal parade with 32 and Phil Esposito with 31 points.

Claude Provost of Montreal, also scoreless Wednesday, is fourth with 40.

Third is Norm Ullman of Detroit with 41. The Red Wings' Gordie Howe has 37.

Crothers Quests 'Gotham' Record

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

NEW YORK (CP) — Bill Crothers, Canada's No. 1 track man and a favorite of New York fans, goes after an indoor record tonight in the 880 yards at the Wanamaker - Millrose games.

Crothers, silver medallist in the 800 metres at the Tokyo Olympics last October, is one of several world-class athletes lined up for what director Fred Schmertz calls the greatest field ever" assembled for a meet at Madison Square Garden.

"But I am predicting only one world record," Schmertz told reporters. "And Crothers will set it."

Races are not won by words, however and Crothers faces solid competition in what may turn out to be the showpiece of the meet.

His field of opponents was trimmed down late Wednesday night when it was announced that Wilson Kipruto of Kenya, third in the Olympic 800, was unable to make it.

Crothers won the 880 in last year's Wanamaker - Millrose games in 1:50, the meet record and fastest time ever recorded indoors in North America.

TOP FORM

He has appeared to be in top form so far this season.

Two weeks ago he won a 600-yard race in his season-opener in Boston. Then, in Los Angeles last Saturday, he scored a double victory by taking the 600-yard and 1,000-yard races.

The 24 - year - old Markham, Ont., pharmacist is one of 34 Olympic gold medallists, mostly from the United States.

Top U.S. entrants against Crothers in the 880 will be Charles Duchin, the national AAU champion l.. the 60; Dick Whitman, the New York AAU champion, and Frank Tumeo.

Tonight's meet in New York is the beginning of a busy three days on the North American track and field scene. Many of the athletes, including Crothers, will be in Toronto Friday night for the Telegram-Maple Leaf Gardens and in Boston Saturday for the Boston AA Games.

A keen contest is expected here in the mile, in which the star-studded International field will include another Canadian, Roger Lepp of Toronto.

HORSES KILLED

PAWHUSKA, Okla. (AP)—A fire that started in a pile of hay at the Osage Livestock barn Wednesday destroyed 12 horses valued at more than $100,000 and did an estimated $100,000 in other damage. Four registered thoroughbred and quarter horses were housed in the barn. Handlers were able to save only seven.

Juniors Face Back-to-Back Toughies

Belleville "B's", hoping to regain their winning form, face tough, back-to-back tests against the Merchants and Gananoque Islanders tonight and Friday.

The "B's" have an 8:30 meeting with the Merchants in Picton tonight and return home against the league-leading Gananoque squad at nine o'clock Friday. Both encounters are regular OHA Eastern Junior League games.

As always, tonight's game in Picton will be a rugged one for the Belleville boys. Visiting clubs never find life easy going on Picton ice and the fact that the Merchants have climbed up into the fight for top spot will make it that much tougher. Picton moved past the "B's" into second place last night.

Here at home Friday, the "B's" will again have their hands full against the Islanders, Gananoque has a potent attack, paced by high-scoring performers like Doug Higgins, Bob Dickson, Murray Rountree and Peter Small. The club has held first place for some time but with three clubs close on their heels, the Islanders must keep winning to stay in front.

The "B's" have suffered three high-scoring setbacks in a row and realize they must tighten up defensively in order to give main near the leaders. The club has scored 19 goals in those three games but the opposition has potted no less than 40 in the same period.

Coach Gordie Bell has not announced just who will play goal, either tonight or tomorrow, in place of the injured Bob Moon. He will likely choose between Bill Bell or Carl Boonbower.

Patterson, Prestige! - Chuvalo, Cash!

Two Targets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

George Chuvalo, Floyd Patterson and fans expected to be jammed into Madison Square Garden Monday night will find out which of the two principals is the hungrier when Patterson and Chuvalo meet in their scheduled 12-round heavyweight boxing elimination bout.

Both are admittedly hungry fighters, but each has a distinctly different hunger driving him.

At his Marlboro, N.Y., training camp, Patterson says he hungers for "vindication" after winning and losing the world heavyweight crown twice.

And at Montieclo.N. Y., 50 miles away, Chuvalo is hungering for his biggest step up the ladder and the $30,000 he has been guaranteed for the fight—more money than he's ever made in a ring before.

Patterson, an admitted millionaire, says the money, though considerable, isn't the compelling interest for him.

He already has it made.

MONEY ISN'T EVERYTHING

"You can be hungry for more things than money," he said Wednesday. "There are such things as vindication, victory and things like that.

"I can't be considered hungry for money anymore. Hunger is something you can't create. It has to be there."

Patterson, who defended his title only once each time he held it, losing to Ingemar Johansson and Sonny Liston, says he is a much better fighter than he was then.

"This will be my fourth fight in 13 months. I am a lot sharper now. I have more confidence and I feel that I punch better."

The Canadian champion, who goes in with four consecutive knockouts behind him, sees the fight as a direct step to a shot at the world championship.

DRAWS SUPPORT

A fighter who once was considered clumsy and ill-adapted for such heights, and who had to work at odd jobs selling cars, in packinghouses and digging ditches to support his wife and four children, Chuvalo has drawn considerable support from former boxing greats for Monday's go-round.

Barney Ross and Joe Louis watched him in his last heavy session and wound up picking Chuvalo to win. Wednesday Jack Dempsey, told a Peterborough Ontario audience Chuvalo would knock Patterson out and "with proper conditioning" could take either champion Cassius Clay or former champion Sonny Liston.

A big punch and the ability to absorb punishment appear the deciding factors in his favor.

Chuvalo limited himself to a two-round sparring session Wednesday with another three rounds scheduled today before he takes his pre-fight medical examination.

But whatever the outcome, Madison Square Garden still is likely to be the biggest winner with New York buzzing over the prospects of the first major fight scheduled there since Clay shocked out Doug Jones in 1963. The garden is reported to be already sold out for the brannigan.

Stasiuk Stars In Hornets Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was almost like old times for Vic Stasiuk Wednesday night.

The 35-year-old Lethbridge, Alta., native scored two goals, including the winner in overtime, to lead Pittsburgh Hornets to a 6-5 win over Hershey Bears in American Hockey League action.

It was one of the best nights for Stasiuk since Detroit Red Wings demoted him from the National Hockey League to the minors during the 1962-63 season.

Stasiuk, a 14-year veteran of the NHL, had scored 183 goals and 254 assists in regular league action as well as 16 goals and 18 assists in playoffs.

But his production dropped to six goals in 36 games with Detroit in 1962-63 and nine in 22 games with Pittsburgh.

Last season he scored 10 goals in 42 regular AHL games.

Buffalo Bisons walloped Providence Reds 5-1 in the only other AHL action.

Lou Marcon, Warren Godfrey, Fred Hilts and Murray Hall scored the other Pittsburgh goals, while Myron Stankiewicz, Ralph Keller, Roger DeJordy, Pete Conacher and Bruce Cline replied for Hershey.

Len Lunde scored twice for Buffalo, while Art Stratton, Ian Cushenan and Ray Cullen added the others. Jeannot Gilbert was the Providence marksman.

Swedish Star Will Stay

Sterner Clicks With Rangers

By HAL BOCK

NEW YORK (AP)—Ulf Sterner's National Hockey League debut was just a few seconds old Wednesday night when he shunned his first check from Boston Bruin roughneck Reg Fleming.

Sterner was mopping himself off in the New York dressing room after the Rangers' 5-2 victory when he mentioned Fleming.

"He's pretty rough," said Ulf. "For that kind of play they give penalties in Sweden."

Fleming notwithstanding, Sterner's NHL debut had to be termed a total success. "I was delighted with his play," said New York general manager Emile Francis. "If he keeps playing like that, you can bet he'll stay with us."

Sterner, the first player born and trained in Europe to play in the NHL, nearly scored a goal in his debut.

He had Boston goalie Ed Johnston beaten cleanly on a 15-footer in the second period but the shot came after a whistle blew and was disallowed.

FOUND IT ROUGH

The Swede thought his biggest problem would be adjusting to the hard-hitting style of play in the NHL. "I was really beat at the end of the game," he said, "and, because of international rules, I've never been trained to hit back.

"That will have to change."

Ranger coach Red Sullivan, who used Sterner on a regular turn at centre throughout the game, said he will continue to play fulltime for New York. Sullivan said "he played a fine game and he'll get better too."

Sterner had two shots on goal and came close on several others.

He was called up from Baltimore of the American League two days ago as an emergency replacement. Should the Rangers choose to keep him, it would be a simple matter to change his status to that of a regular member of the lineup.

"After tonight," Sullivan said, "we have no intention of returning him."

SUSPEND STUDENTS

KIMBERLEY, B.C. (CP) — Fifteen high school students—about half of them girls—were suspended by the school board Wednesday night pending an investigation into an alleged drinking party involving the boys' and girls' basketball teams.

British Soccer Scandal

May Charge 35 'Cheat' Stars

LONDON (AP) — A police spokesman said Wednesday 25 more professional soccer stars may be charged with throwing matches and cheating bookies.

The predictions of new moves by the authorities follow a day of Tuesday's court drama in Nottingham, when 10 soccer players were jailed for conspiring to lose league games.

The two - week trial was the largest of its kind in British soccer history.

Chief Supt. William Bowles, head of Sheffield's criminal investigation department, said he sent a dossier on the case to the director of public prosecutions, naming 35 more players.

"What action may follow, or if there is any action, is up to the director of public prosecutions," Bowles said.

He will hold a disciplinary committee of inquiry. It is almost automatic that those men will be suspended for life."

Joe Mears, chairman of the Football Association of England said:

"Players who have been named in newspaper articles, or whose names have been brought to our notice from private sources, will be seen. They will be asked to answer allegations against them. If we find there is basis for the allegations, we shall take action."

Scots Win In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Visiting Scottish rinks picked up four points in the Strathcona Cup matches Wednesday by defeating Ottawa rinks by an aggregate score of 62-48 in six games.

But the narrow victory still left the Scots trailing 1,503 to 903 after 17 rounds in the cross-Canada competition. The visitors are in Montreal Thursday, Fredericton Friday and Halifax Saturday.

Canada and Scotland have played for the Strathcona Cup since 1909. Each country has won it five times.

Ottawa and Scotland each won three of the Wednesday matches. Both the Scots and their Canadian matches in the Canada and Scotland each

Lose on Road

OMHA Squads Win Four

Belleville OMHA teams swept four games here at Memorial Arena last night while the city's fifth squad absorbed a defeat on the road.

In scheduled OMHA games, Rollins' peewees tripped Gananoque 5-3 and Oddfellows' midgets downed Picton 5-1. The A.C.T. juvenile "Travellers" lost a 7-3 decision in Wellington.

In two exhibitions, Oddfellows' bantams dumped Picton 4-1 and the Bliway novices whitewashed Cobourg 3-0.

Rollins were held to a 1-1 tie in the first heat and a slim 3-2 lead after two frames before potting a pair without reply to sew up the win in the third.

B. Daily and R. Dickson fired the Gananoque goals with M. Mangan helping on two and R. Davis on one.

Brian Cousins paced the Belleville scorers with two goals while J. Mulvihill, B. Buchanan and C. Janitsch fired the others. T. Meagher got two helpers and Buchanan had one.

The midgets scored single markers in the first and second heats for a 2-0 lead against Picton entering the third. Three more goals against Picton's loner put in wraps in the final period.

Oddfellow goals were shared by D. Muir, C. Scott, J. Holgate, D. Duvall and B. Wickens. J. Parin earned two assists, W. Storms, and Holgate one each.

R. Cole scored for Picton with D. Selling assisting. The winners drew seven of 11 minor penalties.

Wellington juveniles scored four unanswered goals in the final period to down the "Travellers." It was 2-0 in the first but Belleville came back to cut the lead to 3-2 after two heats.

Doug Dickie and Paul Ford each gained a goal and assist for the losers and Steve Ethier helped out on both scoring plays.

McKenzie triggered two Wellington markers with one each for Burley, Gallagher, Garry Lavender, Oxley and R. Lavender. McKenzie also drew two assists with one apiece for Lawrence, G. Lavender, Burley and Vanderwater.

Among ten penalties were misconducts to Ethier and Lavender and a major to Vanderwater.

In the bantam exhibition, Oddfellows led 2-1 after one heat and completed the scoring pair in the second.

R. Mitchell and B. Janitsch each chalked up a goal and assist to spark the undefeated Oddfellows. D. MacCormack and H. Smith also scored. D. Blaird and D. House got assists.

D. Kilfoyle fired the Picton goal and R. Marchant had an assist.

The novice Bliwayn downed Cobourg with two goals in the first period and a single in the third.

Danny Lapenestre scored two of the goals and Dave Smith notched the other one. Goegan and M. Hayes had single assists.

Quinte Seniors Beaten

By Robert Snelgella

Napanee and District High School Seniors handed Quinte Secondary School Seniors their second setback of the season last night defeating them 60-35. The victory was the first of the season for Napanee.

Quinte's Juniors were more fortunate, however, gaining a 47-46 thriller win. The winning point was scored by Doug Dickey on a foul shot after regulation time had expired.

The bantams of Quinte easily defeated Napanee 49-21.

Coaches Saunders agreed that Quintes inability to move from outside was the key factor in the Napanee Senior's upset.

Malcolm Rigby of Napanee scored the game high of 13 points, most of them on the fast break.

For Quinte, Bill Leslie, Tony Meddings and Glen Heppard scored 9, 8 and 5 points respectively.

The junior game was close throughout, although Napanee held a slim lead until the final moments of play.

Don Forbes led the losers with 16 points, while teamate Dave Smith netted 15. For Quinte Larry Seeley scored 15 points, with Bob Moon and Doug Dickey having 11 and 10.

In the bantam game Quinte outplayed Napanee in all respects. They held the losers to just five points in the entire first half.

Paul Goodfellow held top scoring honors with 13 points. Ted Shaw closely followed him with 12 points and John Mywoort booped seven.

Napanee Ted Froud had seven in the losing cause.

WIN HEART AWARD

NEW YORK (AP) — Birdie Tebbetts, 52, manager of Cleveland Indians, has been named the winner of the American Heart Association's annual Heart of the Year award, it was announced Wednesday.

HONORED BY CAHA — Lloyd "Red" Doran (left) makes the official presentation of the CAHA's "Golden Jubilee" awards to Richard Ellis (centre) and Russ Soule during last night's minor hockey games here.

Receive CAHA Jubilee Awards
Honor Minor Hockey Men

Two long-time workers in Belleville's minor hockey picture received special honors during a brief presentation ceremony at Memorial Arena last night.

Russ Soule and Richard Ellis were presented with Canadian Amateur Hockey Association "Golden Jubilee" awards for their efforts in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association for years.

Recreation Director Lloyd "Red" Doran made the presentations to the recipients at centre ice between games last night.

Soule and Ellis were voted the honors by their co-workers in minor hockey here.

Both Soule and Ellis have been connected with the sport in Belleville since its beginning about 15 years ago. Soule is currently vice-president of the B.M.H.A.

Norm Carter, assistant recreational director for the city, and Grant Stickle, in charge of publicity for the Belleville Minor Hockey Association, announced the awards here yesterday.

Carter said: "The CAHA, in honor of its Golden Jubilee, decided to make a limited number of such awards to various people for their outstanding contributions to minor hockey during the past years."

He said that the awards were limited to two persons from larger municipalities and to one from smaller centres.

Stickle said that a number of persons were considered here for the awards but "those polled on the matter felt that no more deserving persons could have been chosen than Soule and Ellis."

Rodriguez Will Play In Tourney

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Puerto Rican Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez set out today in defence of his title of the $37,500 Lucky International Open golf tournament after a special ruling erased a threat to his career.

Chi Chi thought for a time he might be through as a pro until tournament director Jack Tuthill of the Professional Golfers' Association decreed the 120-pound swinger may wear a special brace for his permanently injured left thumb during PGA events.

PGA rules prohibit a golfer using a device "designed to give the player artificial aid in gripping or swinging the club."

Tuthill said it doesn't apply to the brace and Rodriguez said that without it; "I can't play golf."

Rodriguez shot a one-over-par 72 in Wednesday's pro-amateur prelude to the main event. Doug Sanders won the low pro division with a 69 to collect $500. George Knudson of Toronto had a 70 along with three others.

Carabins Wallop Redmen 13-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Carabins, playing as if a goal were a point in the standings, walloped McGill Redmen 13-3 in a Senior Intercollegiate hockey game in Montreal Wednesday night.

In the only other intercollegiate game, Waterloo Warriors and Guelph Redmen tied 3-3.

The win for Carabins strengthened their hold on second place, giving them 16 points, four more than Western Mustangs and only two behind league-leading University of Toronto Blues.

Waterloo is tied for sixth place with Laval with six points, while McGill moved one point ahead of last - place McGill.

Pierre Lacoste scored four goals for Montreal, two while his team was a man short. Jean Cusson had three and Chilain Delage and Gilles Lefort each added two. Jean Jacques Granger and Jocelyn Cote also scored.

John Tibbits, Chris Bryant and Skip Kerner scored for McGill.

In Guelph, Dave Pallett's long step shot from the blue line gave Guelph the tie against the Warriors.

John Roxborough and Norm Elder scored the others for Guelph. Waterloo got its goals from Jerry Lawless, Hugh Conlin and Dave Passmore.

Lightfoots Win Exhibition Tilt, Wilsons Beaten

Belleville Lightfoots, of the Bay of Quinte Men's Basketball League, scored an easy 74-40 victory over Albert College in an exhibition game played on the loser's court last night.

Meanwhile, in league play at Cobourg, the Cobourg Kiwanis picked up their second victory of the season, 61-46, over Trenton Wilsons. The result left the two squads tied for third place, well back of RCAF Flyers and the Lightfoots.

RCAF and the Lightfoots, two points apart, clash in a key game at the air station next Monday night. Game time is eight o'clock.

Lightfoots took a 36-11 halftime lead last night and were never in trouble.

Ian Houchin sparked the scorers with 27 points, followed by Don Smith with 15 and John McKibbon with 11.

L. Groom was tops for Albert College with 11 points and P. Vang hit for ten.

Belleville Lightfoots (74) — R. Smith 4, I. Houchin 27, J. McKibbon 11, D. Smith 15, R. Latchford 4, B. McBride 3, B. Langsbeer 1.

Hayes Won't Take Test
Official Stands Firm

TORONTO (CP) — George Hayes, suspended National Hockey League linesman, said Wednesday NHL officials should have more freedom.

Hayes, 44, and a veteran of 19 years in the league, was suspended Jan. 15 for refusing to take an eye test ordered by NHL president Clarence Campbell.

He said in a CTV national television interview he would not reconsider his decision refusing to take the eye test.

"I'll stand on my principle that it's an insult to ask an official to take an eye test. They don't require physicals, and I wouldn't go for one of them either."

Hayes did not elaborate on what he considered more freedom, but added that when he and linesman Ron Wicks were caught riding in a railway coach instead of in a private compartment, Wicks was warned and he (Hayes) was suspended for two weeks.

"Yet, the other time I was caught—in 1958—they told me the next time would mean a $100 fine," he said. "A two-week suspension cost me a lot more than that."

Leafs Edge Canucks 2-1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Len Haley's deflection of Tom Thurlby's 40-foot slap shot gave San Francisco Seals a 3-1 Western Hockey League victory over Vancouver Canucks Wednesday night in sudden-death overtime. The win moved the Seals into a tie for fifth place with Los Angeles Blades.

The defending WHL champions and the third-place Canucks battled through a scoreless first period and for 10 minutes of the second period before Ed Panagabko flipped in a loose puck to give the Seals a 1-0 lead.

In the third period Bob Kabel snapped in a 20-footer at 1:02 for the Canucks.

THE CHURCHILL OF OLD — This picture of Sir Winston Churchill was taken at the second Quebec Conference in 1944, showing a younger Churchill, the leader of an embattled time, an inspiration to his people.

World Might Not Exist But for Winston Churchill

By JACK HUTTON

Last weekend I heard a 16-year-old friend turn off the TV set before him and remark "Sir Winston Churchill dead? I guess that means something to the older generation."

The older generation!

The state funeral of Sir Winston this Saturday should mean even more to our generation. We've seen and heard an example that will give us a basis of judgment all our lives.

You know, we're incredibly lucky. We can tell our children that we listened to, watched and were moved by two fine men in our time — President John F. Kennedy and Sir Winston Churchill.

I did a column last November on the anniversary of President Kennedy's death. And I said a lot of things then that can apply to Sir Winston. Only more so. WORD BATTLE

I said that President Kennedy taught us the English language can be a beautiful and moving weapon. Someone once remarked about Sir Winston that he mobilized the English language and sent it into battle during the War.

I first heard about Sir Winston's death last Sunday morning in the middle of a weather report. The first thing I did was to turn up the radio and listen to excerpts of his old speeches for the next two hours.

The rolling phrases. The slight hesitancy that made his replies like thrusts even more effective. Listen to any of the recordings of his voice. You'll feel at once the tremendous sense of loss.

What will you tell your children about Churchill? Will they think you're talking about an old man far back in history that his name means nothing to them? What exactly will you tell them?

FAR BACK

He did go far back in history, you know. Born in 1874, Churchill was only seven years younger than our country when he died. Sir John A. Macdonald was a leader of the opposition in 1874, waiting his next turn as Canadian prime minister.

The American Civil War was only a decade before Churchill's birth. Britannia literally ruled the waves; Englishmen governed their colonies; and young Englishmen grew up confident of their place in the world.

Churchill was a young soldier when cavalry charges were still a major part of battle tactics. Yet he had to make tough decisions decades later on Great Britain's development of the hydrogen bomb. An incredible span.

I think you can tell your children, among other things, that Sir Winston was a man. A real man. It would have been so easy for another to relapse into bitterness when the British public defeated his Conservative party in 1945. He didn't.

ALL THINGS

I think you can tell them you knew a great man who was great in many fields. There haven't been many of them in history, and chances of others get slimmer as our life becomes more complicated. Statesman, author, soldier — he was all of these things and more.

I think you can also tell your children the English language will never lose its beauty while records exist anywhere of Sir Winston's deep, rolling voice. He taught us the power of its mastery.

I think your children may understand a little if you say we knew a leader of leaders. It's not easy to be a good leader, but even more difficult to inspire other leaders. He was there when we most needed him.

Finally, tell them their world might not exist had it not been for him. That's how great he was.

Jaycee Driving Tips

Have you ever been stopped at an intersection in the rush-hour, waiting for a chance to make your turn? A car comes along with its directional light flashing. You think now is my time to go, and then the car goes straight instead of making its turn; or driving on the highway and the car in front of you has his left directional light flashing, but does not turn left. You cannot pull out because you don't know what he might do as soon as you attempt to overtake him. These are causes of some of our major accidents. Always make sure your directional light switch is 'in the "off" position after you have made your turn.

As a good practice I always give a sign with my headlights to the driver who has forgotten to turn his directional signals off. It may prevent an accident which could easily happen at the next intersection.

CBC to Use Telstar Hookup For Funeral

The CBC will use the Telstar communications satellite and jet planes to bring television coverage of Sir Winston Churchill's funeral to its viewers as speedily as possible on Saturday.

Radio coverage of the ceremonies will be picked up live from the BBC, beginning at 4.30 a.m., EST, and continuing until after 9 o'clock.

First pass of the satellite, to be used for the pooled TV coverage, will be between 8 and 9 a.m.

For another half-hour, between 12.45 and 1.15 p.m., the satellite's second pass will bring further pictures to this country for distribution by the CBC and the three U.S. networks.

From 1.15 to 2.15 the CBC will carry a BBC film, Homage to a Great Man. From 2.15 to 2.30 Leonard W. Brockington and commentator Richard Dimbleby will discuss Sir Winston in interviews.

At 2.30 CBC's own coverage of the funeral will be available on tape, having been flown to Canada by jet. It will run for 2 hours. An edited version will be shown, beginning at 2.30 p.m. on Sunday. A CBC news special on the passing of Sir Winston will be telecast Friday at 10 p.m.

Ann Sothern Is Returning To Television Next Month

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—After an absence of several seasons, Ann Sothern is returning to television next month. She will guest star in three episodes of CBS' The Lucy Show, playing the widowed Countess Framboise of Paris, born Rosie Harrigan and Lucy's old school chum.

Although Miss Sothern neither confirms nor denies, rumor persists that Miss Vivian Vance is determined to retire from the long-playing Lucille Ball comedy series, there is a chance that Ann will replace Vivian next season.

"Heavens," exclaimed the blonde actress, "Lucy hasn't even said yet whether there will be a Lucy Show next season."

But with the show consistently in the Nielsen top 10, the only thing needed is Miss Ball's nod to ensure another season.

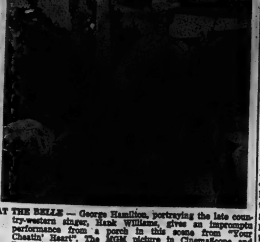
BACK TO ACT

"After seven years of television," Miss Sothern said, "I was anxious to get back to serious acting—people forget that I began as a serious actress."

She sold her lovely Bel Air home, moved to New York—and for the next 18 months studied acting. Then she moved back to motion pictures, playing serious, demanding parts.

Miss Sothern noted that in her most successful comedy efforts "I've always played a bitch. Always in all those movies, Susie McNamara and Katie O'Connor."

Now, as Rosie Harrigan—maybe it's a good luck sign. And the Countess Framboise, of course, is a bitch. Framboise means raspberry in French."



Recommended tonight:

Young People's Concert, CBS, 8.0 EST. Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra with some young talented soloists.

SEEK CREW MATES

EDMONTON (CP)—Three Alberta men from the crew of HMCS Athabascan, sunk by German gunfire in 1944, are trying to arrange a reunion to celebrate the 20th anniversary of their liberation from German prisoner-of-war camps in May, 1945. Of the 265-man crew, 144 died. More than 80 were rescued by German ships.

Famous Figures, Gore Seen In Hollywood Wax Museum

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Now the tourists on Hollywood Boulevard will have something to look at besides the Grauman's Chinese footprints and the stars in the sidewalk.

An enterprising India - born Canadian named Spoony Singh has installed at Hollywood Boulevard and Highland Avenue a new attraction called Tussaud's Hollywood Wax Museum. Though it has no connection with Madame Tussaud's, the California version has the same fixture of gore and famous figures.

The museum opens Friday. The curator, a motherly lady named Mrs. Vera Grahan, was attending to last-minute touches. She is an old hand at wax museums, having installed them in San Francisco, Vancouver and at the Seattle world's fair.

With a touch of delight, she showed me through the chamber of horrors.

Next came the glamor section of the exhibit. Here were the Hollywood greats of past and present.

The figures included Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh in costumes from Gone with the Wind; Jean Harlow in pink negligee (We'll change it to white, since she always wore white, Jeanette MacDonald Hedy LaMarr, W. C. Fields, Carole Lombard, Wallace Beery, Errol Flynn, Mary Pickford and Rudolph Valentino, to name a few.

Some of the likenesses are remarkably good, some scarcely distinguishable.

We were joined by Spoony Singh, a full - bearded, turbaned Indian who has prospered in logging and sawmill enterprises in British Columbia. The enterprise has cost $120,000, he said.

HOW TO RENT MONEY TO PAY OFF ALL YOUR CHRISTMAS BILLS

Phone, write or walk into any Crescent office and tell the Manager you want to rent some money (No rents in July for one week). Most people need extra cash at this time of year. Many people prefer to RENT the cash they need rather than borrow it. Crescent Finance is the only place you can combine all your bills into one easy monthly payment. Phone or write today for your budget. Because we respect our customers and have reasons for renting money, there's no red tape, long or simple credit requirement. With most of our customers, we don't even ask why they are renting money!

WELLINGTON

PC Association Elects Officers

WELLINGTON — The annual meeting of the Wellington Progressive Conservative Assoc. was held in the Town Hall, recently and proved to be most succesful despite the cold evening with the temperature at 15 degrees below.

Mr. H. G. Patten, president called the meeting to order and Mr. Fred Morton presided at the piano.

The president spoke briefly and welcomed all present. He also called upon Mr. Allen Anderson president of the men's Conservative Association for Prince Edward and Lennox to conduct the elections of officers.

NEW OFFICERS

Officers for the ensuing year are as follows: president, Mr. H. G. Patten; 1st vice-president, Mr. Robert Boyce; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Walter Mindchairman of Poll No. 1, Mr. L. H. McClennon; chairman of Poll No. 2, Mr. Joseph Lavender; chairman of Poll No. 3, Mr. Walter Way.

Mr. Anderson congratulated the new officers and stressed the importance of the poll chairman describing him as the "King Pin" of all associations throughout the ridings. He also outlined his work at the many meetings which he had attended during his term of office and extended an invitation to everyone to attend the annual meeting in the Royal Hotel, Picton on February 8 when the Minister of Education will be the guest speaker.

Mr. Patten resumed his chair of office as president and dealt with many interesting points for the good of the association. Members were pleased to have Mr. Norris Whitney M.P.P. present at this occasion.

Many donations were received at this time to carry out the work of the Progressive Conservative Association.

The meeting was adjourned and refreshments were served by the ladies of the association.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For January 29

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Special attention required where work, duties are concerned. No day for neglect, self-indulgence. Be specific. Carry through on promises. Be sure rather than sorry.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Day when you should make future plans. Don't go against grain of personal desires. Realize value of principles. Day when philosophy should be of major concern. Analyze!

Gemini (May 21 to June 20) Day calls for attention to practical affairs. Review goals, promises. Be aware of needs of family members. Strive to set fine example. Be idealistic. Aim for best for loved ones.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22) Spotlight on outside affairs. Resist tendency to act on impulse. Be aware of legal implications. Check with advisors. Exercise caution. Then you are happier — and more confident.

Leo (July 23 to August 22) Your intuition rings true. Follow it! Heed inner feelings. Realize your every effort does depend upon faith. Many may try to discourage you. But press ahead!

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Express yourself in natural manner. Key is relaxation. You attract love, understanding. Be yourself! Make necessary changes. Break away from bothersome restrictions.

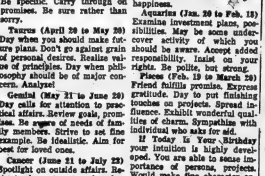
Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Find out why. Ask questions. Put across own point of view. Obtain hint from Virgo message. Be stubborn where cause is right. Practise what you preach.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't permit misunderstanding with friend to create major "all-nation." Maintain dignified calm. You will earn respect. And then you gain true objective.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Diplomacy gains you much. Otherwise you could waste time and money. Best to apply "soft sell" methods. Don't force issues. Older person speaks truth. Listen well!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Throw off false pride. If you require help, advice - - ask for it. Recent friendship proves fruitful. Realize there are many "on your side." You invite and gain happiness.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Examine investment plans, possibilities. May be some undercover activity of which you should be aware. Accept added responsibility. Insist on your rights. Be polite, but strong.



Pisces (Feb. 19 to March 20) Friend fulfills promise. Express gratitude. Do not try to put finishing touches on projects. Spread influence. Exhibit wonderful qualities of charm. Sympathize with individual who asks for aid.

If Today Is Your Birthday your intuition is highly developed. You are able to sense importance of persons, projects. Would make fine character analyst.

FIRE DESTROYS CHERRY VALLEY PLANT

Buddhists Freed Then As Warning Terrorist Shot

Only Viet Cong Agents Are Still Held in Jail

SAIGON (AP) — Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh's new South Vietnamese government today released all Buddhists arrested during the last week of demonstrations and riots except those suspected of being Viet Cong agents.

Then, as a warning against further Communist terrorism in the capital, a firing squad executed a 20-year-old Vietnamese in Saigon's main public market an hour before sunrise. He had been caught Tuesday night carrying a grenade and a 15-pound bomb.

The youth, Le Van Khuyen, shivering and silent, was blindfolded, then backed up against a sandbag parapet in front of the national railways building. Then the volley of rifle fire and a pistol coup de grace, the body was loaded into a coffin and whisked off in a truck.

A military tribunal convicted Khuyen Thursday of terrorism.

Y. Dupuis To Explain In House

MONTREAL (CP) — Yvon Dupuis, Liberal member of Parliament for St. Jean - Iberville - Napierville who left the federal cabinet last week under circumstances not explained by Prime Minister Pearson, said early today he will give his version of the case Feb. 16 when Parliament resumes.

In a letter to House of Commons Speaker Alan Macnaughton, he says that will be "the first chance which will be afforded me to explain to the House the reasons which motivated my resignation as minister without portfolio."

Mr. Dupuis, who has been unavailable for interviews with reporters who have sought him at his home in St. Jean, Que., since his departure, gave a copy of the letter to The Canadian Press in Montreal. The letter is dated St. Jean, Jan. 29.

In a letter to the prime minister before resigning, made public after the resignation, Mr. Dupuis said he had learned there was a rumor "that I could be involved in a scandalous affair concerning a proposed racetrack at St. Luc in St. Jean County."

The prime minister, now in London for Sir Winston Churchill's funeral, said he asked Mr. Dupuis to leave, but declined to explain on the grounds that the justice department is investigating the case.

Mr. Dupuis has said he left of his own choice and can prove his integrity.

In today's letter, he says his House of Commons explanation will be on a matter of privilege.

"I base my point of privilege on false declarations or interpretations which have been given in certain circles on the circumstances o my resignation and which, in my view, constitute a flagrant breach of privilege."

Taylor Calls On Gen. Khanh

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor called on Gen. Nguyen Khanh today for the first time since the South Vietnamese strongman seized power Jan. 30 in Wednesday's bloodless coup.

A U.S. mission spokesman said the meeting lasted a little more than an hour. Relations between the U.S. and Vietnamese leaders, who have openly differed recently about the conduct of Saigon affairs, were described as normal.

Leaflets were scattered through Saigon streets today demanding the return of Tran Van Huong as premier and urging support of U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor.

Acting Premier Nguyen Xuan Oanh put in office Thursday by Khanh, issued the order releasing persons arrested in disorders since Jan. 20.

RELEASE 440

Through the morning in Saigon authorities freed 85 Buddhist nuns, 79 monks, 132 students and 135 other persons.

The release added to general goodwill that followed following the overthrow of Huong.

But a Buddhist student spokesman in Hue, 50 miles north of Saigon, said his group still was not satisfied. He said the Buddhists wanted to see Ambassador Taylor and punishment of Huong.

In Washington Thursday both the White House and the state department emphasized President Johnson's continued confidence in Ambassador Taylor. Backing of the new civilian-based Saigon government fashioned by South Viet Nam's military leaders was expected to continue as long as it combats Communist subversion and aggression.

Church Congregation Will Shelter In Mine From Wrath of The Lord

HUNTINGBURG, Ind. (AP) — The congregation of the Huntingburg Pentecostal Church is preparing to take refuge in an abandoned coal mine from "great destruction" it expects to strike the world in early March.

The warning came from Juanita Cooney, 29, mother of two children, in June last year. About 40 other members of the congregation, including Rev. Tod Kendall, accepted her revelation.

The church withdrew its association with other congregations which scoffed at them. The members began preparing shelter in an abandoned mine bought by Mrs. Cooney's husband, Lonnie, and her father, Chester Tedrow, a former mine operator.

The congregation has sent warnings to friends, relatives and acquaintances in 48 states. They have room for 60 more persons in the mine.

The warning, sent in 1964, says:

"There isn't much time to get ready. There will be a coming of the Lord on the 10th of next year. It will shake the earth that you are on, and will destroy all who are wicked on the earth. Before this date we are to gather food and in abundance.

WALL OF FIRE — Cherry Valley Canning Factory was destroyed in a $300,000 fire last night. Fire is seen in the above picture ripping away the walls and destroying a large quantity of stock. Flames from the fire could be seen from a distance of 15 miles.

Dorion Wants Perjury Charge Laid Against Robert Gignac

MONTREAL (CP) — Chief Justice Frederic Dorion said today he is referring part of the testimony of murder suspect Robert Gignac to the Quebec attorney-general so that perjury charges may be laid.

He did not specify what part of the testimony given to the judicial inquiry into allegations of bribery and coercion is being sent to Attorney - General Claude Wagner.

As the hearing started today, Chief Justice Dorion said that following examination of Gignac's testimony he had come to the conclusion that part of it should be referred to Mr. Wagner "so that a charge of perjury should be lain" against Gignac.

Gignac, charged with capital murder in the slaying last fall of nightclub doorman Rocky Brunette, testified for several days during the three weeks that the Dorion inquiry has been holding hearings here.

During his testimony, Gignac told of introducing his former partner, Guy Masson, to Mrs. Lucien Rivard, who has herself testified about efforts to get her husband out of Bordeaux Jail on bail.

Rivard was arrested last June 10 at the request of the United States government on charges that he was a key figure in a huge, Mafia-run narcotics-smuggling conspiracy.

Gignac, a Dorion said that styled contractor, told of a trip to Ottawa last June 22 with Masson. Masson said he is a member of the federal Liberal party's organization committee. Testified that he met Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, in a Hull, Que., motel that night.

He said he told Denis $60,000 was available for Liberal party election funds provided Rivard's extradition to the United States was blocked.

Masson testified that Gignac told him the money would be available while the two men were en route to the capital.

Gignac, who testified before Masson, swore that nothing particular was discussed between him and Masson during the trip.

When it adjourned Thursday, the inquiry was still waiting for Mr. Tremblay to produce a key document he promised it last Dec. 23. Chief Justice Dorion, of Quebec Superior Court, said he wants to see a letter which Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to the immigration minister, has referred to at a vital point in his testimony to the inquiry.

Mr. Denis said the "personal and confidential" letter was written to Guy Rouleau, Liberal MP for Montreal Dollard, by Raymond Daoust, a Montreal lawyer for Joseph (Bananas) Bonanno, a missing Mafia chieftain.

Mr. Denis said the letter was shown him by Mr. Rouleau July 11 or 12 to support Mr. Rouleau's request that he (Denis) meet Mr. Daoust to discuss the possibility of bail for Bonanno, who left Canada July 30 after falsely swearing on his Canadian citizenship application that he had no criminal record.

Mr. Denis testified that he subsequently summoned Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne to Ottawa July 14 so that he could get the latest information about the Bonanno case before his meeting with Mr. Rouleau and Mr. Daoust the following day. Mr. Lamontagne has said that, while the Bonanno case was discussed at this July 14 meeting, Mr. Denis offered him a $20,000 bribe to agree to the release on bail of Lucien Rivard, wanted in the United States on charges of being a key figure in a Mafia-run international narcotics smuggling conspiracy.

Yves Fortier, counsel for Mr. Lamontagne at the Dorion inquiry into the bribery allegation, suggested Dec. 23 that no such letter exists.

Mr. Tremblay said when he testified that day that he would produce a photostat copy of it.

Mr. Denis has denied that he offered Mr. Lamontagne a bribe.

He said Thursday Mr. Lamontagne must have got the idea of a bribe from their discussion about possible bail ranging from $10,000 to $75,000 for Bonanno.

Mr. Tremblay has testified that there was never any consideration given to granting bail for Bonanno and that Mr. Denis knew this. He is scheduled to testify again later.

Mr. Denis said the only mention of a bribe at the July 14 meeting was by Mr. Lamontagne who told him a public crier at the Palais de Justice here offered him $8,000 in the Rivard case.

Mr. Lamontagne was acting for the Canadian government in the Bonanno perjury prosecution and for the United States justice department in the Rivard extradition proceedings.

Mr. Denis, 32-year-old Montreal lawyer, has spent some eight hours in the inquiry witness box testifying about events since Rivard's June 19 arrest here. His petite wife followed the testimony carefully from among the spectators as she has since the inquiry got under way Dec. 15.

At his request, Mr. Denis was permitted to testify seated three times during the day because he is still recovering from a November auto accident.

Mr. Fortier spent most of th. day cross-examining Mr. Denis on points on his statement Aug. 24 to RCMP about the Rivard affair.

Mr. Denis said neither he nor Guy Masson, self - styled contract seeker and Liberal organizer, knew of Mr. Lamontagne's connection with the Rivard case June 22 when they met to discuss the case and other matters in a Hull, Que., motel suite.

He said he had read about it later in the Montreal Sunday tabloid Dimanche - Matin.

Mr. Fortier filed copies of the newspaper story, June 21 to July 12 and said the only one missing is Mr. Lamontagne's position in the Rivard case was dated Sunday, June 21.

After a recess to permit Mr. Denis time to examine them, Mr. Denis agreed that the only comment by Mr. Lamontagne in connection with the Rivard case was published the day before his meeting with Masson of East Lake.

Hard, Grey English Weather Does Not Stop Englishmen Honoring Winnie--at 3 a.m.

By FRANK MURRAY
(Manager Radio Station CJBQ)

LONDON — (Special to The Ontario Intelligencer). This has been a cold grey morning in London with a biting east wind, and occasional wet snow flurries. But the weather does not deter the Londoner. In the early hours of the morning, I went back to Westminster. And there at they have been since Wednesday, were the people. It was just after three a.m. The queue was at least three quarters of a mile long and about six or seven deep. They were shuffling along trying to keep warm — talking quietly. These were the people of London, saying good bye to Winnie. I went back to Westminster because it seemed hard to believe that this was really happening. It meant a long wait too — at least four hours police officers on duty told me.

Then as dawn started to finger through the cold sky, the big dress rehearsal started. The dress rehearsal of the funeral procession with the bands, the troops, the horse drawn carriages, and the gun carriage drawn by the Naval ratings. It was a strange and eerie sight that conveyed much sadness, but also much grandeur. Then later in the morning, at the great Parish Church of the Empire and Commonwealth, St. Paul's, the final rehearsal and the beautiful words and music soared up and around the vast empty church. There were only a few of us there and it was a deeply moving occasion. Tomorrow though, a thousand and a hundred will be in attendance.

Canning Factory Loss Estimated Over $300,000

Wind, Zero Weather Handicap Firefighters

PICTON (Staff) — Fire, gnawing savagely at the building completely destroyed the Hyatt Canning Company at Cherry Valley, five miles southwest of here early last night.

The overall estimated loss is set at $300,000. Damage to warehoused stock is set at $225,000. Loss of the building is said to be $75,000. No one was injured.

One of Prince Edward county's largest canning plants, it had been in operation for the past 27 years. Owner Ron Hyatt said that all office records and other valuable data were destroyed.

Two small warehouse sheds near the plant were not damaged.

Fire fighting units from the Picton Army Camp and Bloomfield fought desperately but were unable to get the blaze under control. Strong winds blew off East Lake and near zero temperatures handicapped the firemen.

Holes were chopped through the thick ice of the lake to secure water for the hoses. Some 300 villagers watched the flames that reached from 50 to 100 feet in the air.

CANS EXPLODE

The staccato rattle of exploding cans echoed in the crisp air as the flames tore at warehouse and plant.

The building was constructed of metal and wood and at time of building was considered one of the finest plants of its kind.

It is presumed that no one was in the building at the time. There was heat from warehouse customers but the cause of the fire had not been determined.

It was a year ago to the day that the Baxter Canning Company in Bloomfield was destroyed by fire.

Firemen fought hard to restrict the flames to the equipment of the factory but they ripped through to the warehouse where large quantities of canned goods were stored.

EQUIPMENT TOTAL LOSS

All equipment in the plant is a total loss. A tractor loader was said to have been housed in the engine room.

The glow of the fire could be seen for miles as the flames skyrocketed the sky.

A Picton taxi driver said he had seen the glow at Hillier village, some 25 miles away.

Mrs. Ron Bell who operates a store in the village was the first to note the blaze, but it had already been reported to the fire department. At this time between 8 and 8:30 there were hardly any flames visible.

This gives rise to the conjecture the fire started deep within the building.

An hour or so later heavy smoke hung over the village like a pall.

Mrs. Hyatt is well known in county and district canning circles. He has operated the plant for the past ten years.

The factory was located in the village on the south shore of East Lake.

Malaysia Politicians Arrested

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters) — The Malaysian government today announced the arrest of three major opposition leaders and claimed to have smashed an Indonesian plot to start an armed rebellion in Malaya.

One of those arrested was Inche Abdul Aziz Bin Ishak, a younger brother of Singapore's head of state, Tun Yusof Bin Ishak.

The others were Dr. Buhanuddin Al-heimy, president of the conservative Muslem Pan-Malayan Islamic Party, and Inche Ishak Bin Haji, Mohammed, a former president of the Socialist Front.

The government alleged all three were involved in an Indonesian plot to set up a rebel Malayan government in exile and foment armed rebellion.

Wednesday the government detained the secretary-general of the left-wing national convention party, Daink Kampo Radjo, and three other men, alleging they plotted armed rebellion and to help Indonesian infiltrators in Malaysia.

CJBQ Will Air Coverage Of Funeral

The complete live network coverage from London of the funeral of the Sir Winston Churchill will be carried by CJBQ radio tomorrow morning.

Station officials said CJBQ would go on the air at 4 a.m. and would broadcast until the funeral was over at 9 a.m.

Here in Belleville a public memorial service in honor of the loved British statesman will be held at the Armouries at 11:00 o'clock.

Judge Upholds Extradition Of Rivard

MONTREAL (CP)—A writ of habeas corpus, which constituted an effort by Lucien Rivard to avoid extradition to the United States, was rejected today by Mr. Justice Francois Caron.

Rivard is wanted in the U.S. on a charge of conspiracy in narcotics smuggling. He is a central figure in the current Dorion judicial inquiry.

Judge Caron said that the evidence against Rivard seemed to him overwhelming. There was legal basis for his extradition under the Canada-U.S. Extradition Treaty and he saw no reason for reversing previous decisions favoring Rivard's extradition.

Brother Of Slain Airman Battles Viet Cong

SAIGON (AP)—A dozen men leaped to their feet, chairs clattering, when Donald Charles Dawson walked into the U.S. Army aviators' mess hall at Bien Hoa air base in South Viet Nam.

"It's Dan. He's back," one of them gasped.

"No," said the tall, red-haired visitor. "I'm not Dan. I'm his brother."

Lieut. Dan Dawson, 27, had crashed with his plane in Communist jungle territory on a reconnaissance mission three weeks earlier.

Now, two months later, Dan Dawson's buddies know his brother Don as a determined insurgent, quietly demanding to know every last detail of his brother's final hours with the unit.

They know him as a persuasive loadmaster, stuffing leaflets offering a reward for his brother, dead or alive, into helicopters and fighter bombers to be unloaded above the jungle.

They have seen him slip out of the base, his pockets stuffed with grenades and ammunition for his submachine-gun. They have seen him return weeks later, thin and exhausted.

Don, 25, a captain of low-tonnage merchant ships, was in Panama when he learned of his brother's disappearance last Nov. 13, a Friday.

Dawson haunted U.S. military authorities, learning that pitifully little was being done or could be done. Aerial photos were taken of the crash area, but no search parties went in because the region was too dangerous.

Don made his way to a remote jungle village north of Bien Hoa and got a Roman Catholic priest to carry his message whenever he moved out from the village into the jungle.

Within a week, he received word his brother was dead, killed in the crash, and buried beside the plane. He sought further information.

Dawson still is distributing reward leaflets and walking through the countryside, many times into areas where no other American has gone without troop escort.

Lesage Offers Wide Benefits To Strikers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier Lesage announced in the Quebec legislature Thursday night a bid to end the province's strike of board, room and bar workers.

In British Columbia, Social Credit members of the Legislature were described as Conservatives with their "whiskers shaved off."

The Quebec premier promised generous benefits to the liquor store employees if they resumed work immediately. The offer stands, he said, even if they do not sign a labor contract at the same time.

The strike of 3,500 employees is into its eighth week and has caused an estimated $10,000,000 loss to the treasury in liquor taxes and profits missed during the holiday season.

The liquor board has proposed a new job security clause which would give the employees as much security as exists in private industry, the premier said.

In Winnipeg Randolph Bell (NDP—Kasio-Slocan) said during the throne speech debate that the Social Credit government is killing free enterprise.

"All your speeches and all your actions show your blue Tory underwear underneath," said Mr. Harding.

Fine Director $3,100 on Fraud Charges

QUEBEC (CP) — Alfred Hardy, former Quebec government purchasing director, was fined $3,100 Thursday after pleading guilty to four fraud charges involving a total of $29,500 and one charge of conspiring to defraud.

Hardy, 57, still faces three other charges of conspiracy to defraud at a trial scheduled to start May 14.

Chief Sessions Judge Thomas Tremblay fined Hardy $120 for each of the 19 counts that made up the four fraud charges and $250 for the conspiracy case.

The charges resulted from the payment of kickbacks on purchases made by the former Union Nationale government between 1953 and 1960.

ENROLL NEGRO

JACKSONVILLE, Ala. (AP) State College said Thursday it has enrolled a Negro army captain as a special student. He is the first Negro to attend the school. Capt. James Shegog was registered without incident, college officials said.

Counterfeit $10 Bill Costs $11

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There's no accounting for some counterfeiters. Like the one who passed this bill here:

On the portrait side of a $1 bill, $10 were pasted a $10 bill's labels and portrait of Alexander Hamilton.

But the secret service agents pointed out:

1. It took $11 in bills to make the bogus $10, and

2. Mutilated bills can be turned in for new ones only of three-fifths of the bill is intact; cutting out the Hamilton portrait makes the $10 bill worthless.

Agents are on the lookout for more of the bogus bills—apparently in hopes of catching the counterfeiter before he goes broke.

Lake Superior Down 3 Inches, More Expected

DETROIT (AP)—The level of Lake Superior is three inches below last month and is expected to drop another four inches during the next 30 days, the U.S. Lake Survey said Thursday.

The Lake Survey said the level of Lake Superior is 600.10 feet, 17 inches above the all-time low for this date recorded in 1926 and three inches above a year ago. The all-time high for the lake for this date of 614.10 feet was recorded in 1952.

The level of Lake Erie is 570.30 feet, an inch above last month, nine inches above the all-time low for this date recorded in 1936, and two inches below a year ago. Its level, along with that of Lake Michigan and Michigan and Lake Huron, is expected to remain about the same during the next 30 days.

Lake Ontario's level is 241.75 feet or one inch below the all-time low for this date recorded in 1936, 11 inches below a year ago. The level, however, was the same as last month.

CONVICTION QUASHED

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec Appeals Court quashed the capital murder conviction of Jeanne Pilon, 33, and ordered a new trial on a reduced charge of non - capital murder in a decision announced Thursday. Miss Pilon, a waiter born in Port Arthur, Ont., had been scheduled to be hanged next May 21 in Montreal's House of Negro Detention in Quebec City Oct. 23, 1963.

White, Ross Rinks Unbeaten In Tri-Quinte Bonspiel Play

By C.D.T.

The curlers in the Tri-Quinte bonspiel are starting to play for keeps as all events are now down to the sixteens and the Quinte Curling Club is well represented for every trophy.

The ice at every rink has been almost perfect for curling and much praise has been heaped on the icemakers at the various clubs.

Due to the banquet on Thursday evening there were only four draws and the heaviest schedule of the spiel starts today. The schedule is so heavy games have been carded for as late as eleven o'clock in the evening and this will allow all sleighs to be out to the eights and then the battling will begin.

The banquet at the RCAF mess hall was a most informal affair. There were no speeches but plenty of food including turkey, beef, ham, clam chowder soup and all the trimmings and the curlers were hungry and ample justice was done to the good things provided.

The banquet was varied and tailored to an audience of men and every act was enthusiastically applauded. The visiting curlers were loud in their praise of the hospitality shown by their hosts.

Mac White and Ross Booth of Quinte are skipping rinks that have been undefeated after the 16s. Cox and Carruthers have all one loss and two wins but have been slated ahead. Booth and White are the only two teams left in the Corby event, the main one of the bonspiel this year. It appears as if Costick of Kingston, White of Quinte, Perking of Trenton, Hill, Doe of Downsview and Jerome of Napanee could end up fighting for the honors in this event.

A bonspiel of this magnitude has to have a guiding hand and Bruce Cardy, manager of the Trenton Club, has done an excellent job. There have been few complaints but those made have been rectified immediately and everyone is kept in a happy frame of mind. In Saturday's edition the sights in all events will be recorded and the remaining draws will be watched closely.

The public is cordially invited to watch the games at the various rinks.

The following are the results of the draws on Thursday.

All Faiths Represented At Memorial

U.S. Representatives of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths will formally participate in a memorial service for Sir Winston Churchill in Belleville armory.

The service is scheduled to start at 11 a.m.

It will be led by Rev. G. R. Woodcock, president of the city's Ministerial Association; Rev. Archdeacon A. S. McConnell of St. Thomas' Church; T. E. Schwab, representing the Sons of Jacob synagogue and Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan, St. Michael's Church.

Music will be provided by the Salvation Army band.

Mayor Jack Ellis will read the lesson.

Senior Citizens Enjoy Talk On Australia

The Senior Citizens Club of Belleville held its regular meeting at the Belleville Recreation Centre recently when the president, Mrs. M. Clapp, conducted the business. The meeting opened with the National Anthem followed by the club theme song. During the business the secretary, Mrs. Robinson, read the minutes of the previous meeting, after which roll call was read from the various conveners. A minute of silence was observed for the former member, Mr. J. Budreau, and all joined in singing an appropriate selection. A singsong was enjoyed with Mrs. Adams presiding at the piano.

Everyone enjoyed the fine program with Rev. James Smith spoke on life in Australia and showed a number of beautiful slides pertaining to that country. He also displayed many items used in every day living in Australia.

A lucky draw prize was won by Mrs. Wood.

Refreshments were served by the committee in charge and the meeting closed in the usual manner.

Shrine Steward Will Remain In Belleville

Members of the Belleville Shrine Club received good news today.

Recently it was reported that manager-steward Noble Lee Smith and Mrs. Martha Lee had severed their connections with the club and had accepted a similar position with Mocha Temple, London, Ont.

Today the situation is changed.

Shrine club president Alex. Pierson and the board of directors have approved keeping the popular stewards to remain in Belleville.

Resting the Martins have ceased packing and saying "goodbyes" to the many friends they have made here.

They will be back at the "same stand" ready to offer the excellent catering services that forms part of their popularity here.

Red Cross Blood Clinic Said Success

Archie S. Lewis of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society reported that yesterday's blood donor clinic was a tremendous success.

Mr. Lewis said that 333 pints of blood were donated, the largest amount to be donated at one time since the history of the blood donor clinic which is held at the Kiwanis Centre on Dundas Street East.

IN MEMORIAM

SMITH — Treasured memories of my dearest mother and husband, who passed away January 28, 1963.
Beyond the sea of death,
Love lives forever;
Memories fond and lovingly remembered, Jessie and Jack, Bob and Lorna.

SMITH — In loving memory of my dear husband, who passed away January 28, 1963.
Along the road we travel separately,
That leads me straight to you,
All memories of the happy days
Together we once knew.
And always remembered
I seem to have a way,
Of keeping you so near,
On days like these I long to hear,
Your voice and see you smile.
—Sadly missed by wife and son.

WEIR — In loving memory of a dear father, and grandfather Malcolm Weir, who passed away January 30, 1964.
His memory we keep and treasure ever,
As a pleasure to recall.
He had a kindly word for each,
And died beloved by all.
Some day we know not where,
Some day we know not when,
We'll meet our loved one in the better land.
Never to part again.
—Inserted by daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clair Lambert, grandchildren.

WEIR — In loving memory of my dear husband, Matthew Weir, who passed away January 30, 1961.
I seem to see in the soft dim light,
A face I loved the best.
And think of him when the sun's
Is in the west.
Goes down on the far off west,
I miss you more than human power can tell,
Than I did on the day you left us.
—Deeply remembered by wife Gertrude.

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear son, Ralph Smith, who passed away Jan. 29, 1960.
Memory is a golden treasure,
And my hands are full of gold,
Still we have a store of memories,
Of the one we loved so much.
Memories that will always linger,
With which we'll never part,
Dairy Herd Health; Feb. 24,
We have her in our hearts.
—Sadly missed by mother, Ronald and wife Doreen and granddaughter Sandra.

DELTEA — In loving memory of a dear husband, Ernest Deltea of Delyea who passed away January 28, 1962.
Those we love we never lose,
For always they are true to be,
Loved, remembered, treasured,
Always in our memories.
—Sadly missed by mother, sisters, brothers, sisters-in-law and his family.

TUCKETT — In loving memory of a dear son, Dale Donald Tuckett, who passed away January 28, 1959.
He is gone but not forgotten,
And we dawson another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are always near,
Days of sadness will come and go,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the heart conceled,
That lies within the heart concealed.
—Sadly missed by the family.

OSIER — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Osier, who passed away January 29th, 1962.
What we would give if we could say,
Hello Dad, to the one we love so dear,
To hear your voice and see you near.
To sit with you and chat awhile,
So you who have a home,
Cherish him with care,
For you'll never know the heartache,
Till you have his vacant chair.
—Sadly missed by daughter and son-in-law.

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear son, Ralph Wellington Smith, who passed away two years ago today.
More and more each day we miss you,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
Lies within our hearts concealed.
—Sadly missed but forever remembered by sisters Ethel and Helen.

DEATHS

LOSHAW — Diane Marie — On January 28, 1965, at Belleville General Hospital, in her 18th year. Beloved daughter of Mrs. Alma Evelyn Loshaw (nee Ross) of Ronald and Robert at home and Richard in Toronto.

Follwell Heads Red Shield Fund Campaign

Frank S. Follwell will again this year head up the Salvation Army Red Shield fund raising campaign.

Frank Follwell

At a recent meeting of the Salvation Army Advisory Board, Mr. Follwell was the unanimous choice for the campaign chairmanship and following acceptance of the role was thanked by Board chairman Phillips Till.

This is the Salvation Army "Centennial Year" when all around the world tribute will be paid to the 100 years' service rendered by the "Army."

In recognition of the 100 years' service it is expected that this year's response in the Red Shield campaign will be greater than ever. Volunteer canvassers and workers are ask to contact Mr. Follwell at the Trenton Street office or at the City Chalet at 256 Pinnacle St.

City Schools Will Hold Memorials

Special memorial services for the late Sir Winston Churchill, have been held in the city's senior schools this week.

The special services commenced Wednesday morning at two of the city's high schools—Belleville Collegiate, and Quinte Secondary, with two minutes silence and special eulogies in honor of the former British statesman. At Quinte Secondary school English teacher Robert Henderson read the eulogy by Britain's wartime prime minister.

This morning at Moira Secondary a special memorial service was held with all students and staff members attending.

Murder Charge Laid Against Jet Suspect

EDMONTON (CP)—A capital murder charge was placed Thursday against a German immigrant farm laborer following the shooting of a guard at an Edmonton aircraft factory where three American F-86 jet interceptor aircraft were damaged by dynamite blasts.

Threnton J. Richardson, 46, of Edmonton was found dead in a security office at the front gate of the plant.

C. D. Reeckie, executive vice-president of Northwest Industries Limited, said in a prepared statement that Mr. Richardson was bound and gagged before he was shot.

Harry W. Hubach, 36, was remanded to Feb. 5 when he appeared in city police court. He was arrested by a score of police who blocked off across the industrial airport after the body of the guard was found.

FOUND IN TRUCK

Police said Hubach was found in a truck six blocks from the southwest corner of the airfield. He had worked several weeks for the company about seven years ago before, he left to accept a better job.

Found Ceiling Had Collapsed

TRENTON — On Wednesday Canon K. F. Blachford, Mrs. Blachford left the rectory on King Street to make some last minute preparations for the annual vestry meeting in Canterbury Hall, next door. Mr. Blachford returned to the rectory ten minutes later for a hammer . . . to find the ceiling plaster in the hall had collapsed, strewing plaster all over the hall and inundating the furniture on the first storey with plaster dust.

Flt. Lt. E. Cott Retires, Plans Move to U. S.

TRENTON — Flt. Lt. Edgar (Ed) Cott, a public relations officer with the RCAF at Trenton for the past three years, has retired from the Air Force and will leave the Trenton-Belleville area in February and take up public relations' duties in the political field in Los Angeles, Calif. Flt. Lt. and Mrs. Cott and their four children live at 70 Edgehill Road, Belleville.

ED. COTT

Flt. Lt. Cott is well known in this area. Among his many pursuits have been leading the Pipes and Drums of RCAF, Trenton; working as a member of the Belleville Theatre Guild; conducting a dance orchestra in the area; serving as secretary of the Sons of Jacob congregation at Belleville; teaching in the Hebrew School at Belleville; serving on the 1964 United Appeal in Belleville as a public relations officer and, as a public speaker, presenting the Air Force Story to various groups in this area.

Flt. Lt. Cott, a native of England, joined the Royal Air Force in 1941 and came to Canada under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. He received his commission in Winnipeg in 1943 and saw duty overseas as a bomb aimer with 57 Squdron, with which he was on one full tour. He was with the Dam Busters' Squadron, 617, when V-J Day came, and retired from the RAF in 1946.

For a year Flt. Lt. Cott worked as a designer with de Havilland and emigrated to Canada in 1947. He remained a civilian until 1952 when he enlisted with the RCAF. He spent eight and a half years in Canada and the United States with fighter control with the U.S. Air Defence Command and NORAD and in 1960 transferred to public relations. He served at Ottawa in A.F.H.Q. radio and television section, took a course at Fort Slocum at the American Army Information School and then transferred to Trenton.

At Trenton Flt. Lt. Cott served as assistant to Squadron Leader Russell Bowdery until S/L Bowdery retired last fall when Flt. Lt. Cott took over as head of public relations.

Flt. Lt. Cott was the guest of honor at a formal retirement mess dinner last Friday.

AIR TRAVEL GAINS

The number of passengers carried and all other phases of North Atlantic air travel increased on all International Air Transport Association member flights in 1964, the association announced Thursday. For the first time the 18 airlines passed the 3,000,000 passenger mark, carrying 3,531,188, a 25.3-per-cent increase over the 1963 figure of 2,836,432.

CAR SALES FALL

Sales of new passenger cars and commercial vehicles in November decreased 13.9 per cent to 54,529 from 63,307 in November, 1963, the bureau of statistics reported Thursday. Retail value of November sales fell 12.4 per cent to $178,429,000 from the previous November. In the January-November period the number of vehicles sold was up 12.9 per cent to 679,188. Their retail value rose 13.8 per cent to $2,178,728,000.

SET SPENDING RECORD

Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. spent a record $319,900,000 in Canada last year for goods and services, wages and salaries compared with $273,000,000 in 1963, the company reports. In addition, the company paid $86,500,000 in duties and taxes compared with $85,700,000 in 1963.

CHECK MERGER

The U.S. justice department is checking the proposed acquisition of the Chase, Hamon Brewing Co. of St. Paul, Minn., by Molson Breweries Ltd. for any possible anti-trust violations, Molson President H. DeM. Molson told a special general meeting of shareholders in Montreal Thursday. He said it appears to be a "routine inquiry."

CSE PREXY RE-ELECTED

J. Trevor Thompson of Molson and Co. Ltd. was re-elected chairman of the Canadian Stock Exchange Thursday for his second consecutive term. R. A. Wheeler of Hugh Mackay and Co. Ltd. was re-elected vice-chairman.

CPR EARNINGS UP

Net earnings of Canadian Pacific Railway Co. for 1964 were $43,464,655, an increase of $8,202,788 over the previous year, the company announced Thursday. Net earnings for December, 1964, were $4,812,855, an increase of $2,578,433 compared with the same month in 1963.

TIP TOP SELLS

John Stuart, president of Tip Top Canners, says the company has sold its Burlington, Ont., plant for about $500,000. The plant was bought by two Montreal investors, Eugene Meth and Leslie Marer who will lease the property to Tip Top on a 25-year lease back arrangement. The price and lease-back arrangements were not disclosed.

China Offers Indonesia Economic Aid

BANGKOK, Thailand (Reuters)—Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio said today China has offered his country credit of $30,000,000 for non-military purposes.

(In Jakarta Thursday the official Indonesian news agency Antara reported the figure as $100,000,000.)

Subandrio made his statement on arrival here after a three-day visit to Peking for talks with Premier Chou En-lai and Foreign Minister Chen Yi.

Hard, Grey

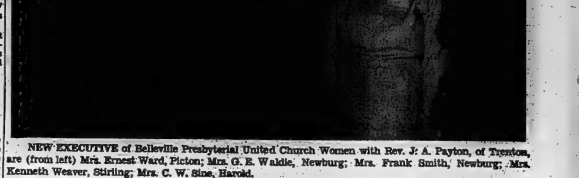
In the order of service as the procession moves through the nave the choir will sing the sentences "I am the resurrection and life, saith the Lord." When the coffin had been placed on the bier, the choir and the congregation shall sing "Who Would True Valor See." After prayers, all will stand and sing "Mine Eyes Have Seen the Glory of the Coming of the Lord." After the lesson, "Fight the Good Fight," and as the funeral cortege leaves the Cathedral, "O God Our Help in Ages Past".

The service will be broadcast and the BBC has made elaborate arrangements to ensure maximum coverage. Everywhere you go in London almost, there seem to be television cameras. But the press and the broadcasters have been asked to stay away for the final moments at Bladon. There the Churchill family will say their farewells alone.



Tomorrow I will be at Westminster as the funeral procession starts, just a few feet from the doorway of the great hall through which Churchill's body will be carried and placed on the gun carriage. Then, after the funeral procession has passed, I shall move to Waterloo Station for the final farewell.

Those are great moments in London. As a London cabbie said to me this morning, "we are seeing history being made."

ORGANIZER DIES

Begging Brings Fortune!

LIMA, Peru (Reuters)—One of the world's richest beggars lives here and reputedly owns a car, supports a large family and lends money at profitable interest.

He is Manuel Garcia Olaya. He has never done a day's work in his life, yet, say people who know him, he has made a fortune—begging.

Manuel Garcia has been a "professional" beggar for 40 years and is a familiar figure to tourists and Limenians alike as he plies his trade day after day on one of Lima's main streets, dressed in dirty, ragged clothes with upturned hat.

In spite of his apparent poverty, Garcia, an invalid, supports his widowed sister and her five children, drives his automobile to "work" every day, and lends money at profitable rates.

Those facts came to light recently when police arrested Garcia for being drunk on the street.

Investigations showed that he had opened two bank accounts in 1939 and deposited more than $5,000, that he owned several cars which he had resold and, through his money-lending business and tips, has multiplied his fortune several times.

But Garcia's days as a beggar are numbered. A campaign by Lima's mayor to clear the streets of beggars and street sellers is being pushed ahead ruthlessly.

CPR Head Urges Income Tax Cut

WINNIPEG (CP)—A general income tax cut would be the best single action by government to sustain growth in the Canadian economy, N. R. Crump, chairman of Canadian Pacific Railway, said Thursday night.

"No single action would better serve to sustain growth in the Canadian economy than a general reduction in the high rates of income tax," he told the Western Retail Lumbermen's Association.

Mr. Crump said the political and social benefits of a higher rate of growth and more employment should be weighed by political leaders in contrast to the short-term gains of increased welfare expenditure.

Brain Probe Brings New Hope

BALTIMORE (AP)—A Johns Hopkins doctor has reported the development of a brain depth probe so sensitive that it can pick up the electrical output of a single brain cell.

Described as capable of measuring brain waves millions of times weaker than one volt, it is seen as a possible new hope for earlier detection of tumors.

Dr. Charles D. Ray, a Hopkins neurosurgeon who designed the probe, said it has already been used to sense abnormal brain waves in epileptic patients and to pinpoint sites for surgery in their brains.

"It's like listening in the darkness of night to the noises coming from the henhouse," said Ray.

"If you try to diagnose from the outside what's got in the henhouse you're in the dark—but once it's hard. It's a lot more accurate if you go inside to find out."

Stages Holdup At Wrong Time

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Jeffrey Steven Snider, 17, of Toronto was charged with attempted robbery Wednesday after a police lineman walked in on a holdup scene at a taxi stand here.

Ronald Baker, manager of the taxi company, said he heard someone say "this is a holdup", but before he could re-act Det. Joseph Moses walked into the office.

CANADA'S OWN CAR

Studebaker '65
The common-sense car
for women drivers, too

Some men think all women are terrible drivers. But if we're honest, it's just that some cars are more difficult for them to drive than for men. Studebaker isn't.

Here is a car so sensibly built a woman only 5 feet tall can survey all four fenders without sitting on a cushion. No blind right-hand side on Studebaker. And, because it has sensible steering, any woman can make short sharp turns and U-turns on the very first try. A Studebaker is sensibly-sized at the front. It follows more stopping room inside the garage. It's also sensibly-sized at the rear (makes backing into tight spots easy). And it's full-sized in the living-room (carries all adults or a school load of kids).

Studebaker is ideal for shop-and-go driving, too. It's easy on gas, so it doesn't pinch the grocery money. Another thing, the body style doesn't change every year. This will make a lot of sense to your husband when he sees you ask him to get you one.

We know of no other passenger vehicle a woman can wheel, park and manoeuver as deftly as the 1965 Studebaker.

...but it's only a single seater.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

A Serious Charge

Three Liberal members of the Ontario Legislature from the Toronto area have charged that prisoners at Mercer Reformatory for Women have been punished because they gave information to members of a grand jury.

The charge should be investigated at once. If it is correct, stern action should be taken.

The grand jury was performing an important function, one of our political system's most essential safeguards against tyrannical treatment. Prisoners who talked to members of the jury were not merely exercising a privilege but fulfilling a duty. It is intolerable that any person maintained by the public purse should attempt to prevent them talking, while the infliction of punishment, of any kind, would be an outrage

A mere rebuke or even the loss of some privileges with respect to pay or seniority would not be adequate redress, if such a thing occurred. Those responsible would have given proof that they had no conception of their duties and no respect for our principles of justice. They should be summarily dismissed, no matter what their position or how long their service, if the charges are proved.

Test of Nationhood

Dr. D. V. Bates, assistant dean for graduate studies in research at the faculty of medicine, McGill University, says that four Canadian universities may have to plead for a grant from the United States. The universities are constructing basic science buildings and will need $4,000,000 to equip them. The Canadian Government says that "no mechanism exists" for such capital grants.

If ever there was a test of our nationhood, surely this is it. If we cannot afford a paltry four million to equip science laboratories at four of our best universities (McGill, Dalhousie, Western Ontario and British Columbia), then we are not much of a nation. If the only way this essential equipment can be provided is to beg the money from the United States, be it from some government agency or from private philanthropists—then it is time we packed up our new flag, closed up the Parliament buildings and meekly accepted the role of satellite to the U.S., or applied for admission as just a few additional states of the union.

The Few Grounded

Less than twenty years after they completed their task of making possible victory over Hitler, Spitfires and a Hurricane have been forbidden to fly over London.

The reason would have seemed incredible to those Londoners who once felt their hearts lift at every sight of these planes, which they knew formed their only shield against death from the skies.

The reason, given by a defence ministry spokesman, is that "to fly a single-engine aircraft of this age over London at a low level and in winter weather would involve a risk to the public."

For this reason veterans of the Battle of Britain, the few whom Churchill honored by one of his most memorable sentences, will return homage to him from the ground, and not from the air where once they ruled.

Truly, time conquers all.

Consistent?

Consistency thou art a jewel—

The annual convention of the Canadian Lacrosse Association decided that the public was fed up with commercial firms reaping publicity through the donation of trophies for sports events—which is probably true.

But the eastern delegates wanted a lacrosse game divided into three, twenty-minute periods, instead of four, fifteen-minute periods—because concession booths, time clocks and personnel in big rinks are geared to the three-period division of hockey games.

It is crass commercialism when a firm donates a trophy, but simple realism when the length of a lacrosse period is determined by the mechanics of organizing a concession booth!

It would be folly to argue that the people cannot make political mistakes. They can and do make grave mistakes. They know it, they pay the penalty, but compared with the mistakes which have been made by every kind of autocracy they are unimportant.—Calvin Coolidge.

Would Yanks Want Us?

—Neidre Observer, Silver Springs, Md.

New states in the United States! Recently the National Observer carried a report about the premier of Saskatchewan's amazing statement that he might seek admission to the union.

He would do this only if Canada began to break apart—if Quebec secedes, as some of its citizens want it to do. There is speculation in Canada, pertinent to this happened most of the "British Canadian" provinces (all except Quebec) would try to join the union.

This report, we gather, has infuriated some Canadians and appalled some Americans — not because the matter isn't being discussed by Canadians but because Americans aren't supposed to discuss it.

But if there is even the remotest chance of such a gigantic political windfall falling Yankeeward, Americans have got to discuss it and think about it.

It would have terrific repercussions — economic, political, social. And for neither party, Canadians or Americans—would it all be a one-way street.

• • •

We suppose, if there were to be assemblies with anybody, we would prefer it with the Canadians.

They are our best friends (perhaps slight praise in this world) and have many of the same basic institutions.

They are an exceptionally lawabiding people, exceptionally responsible; in their "Royal Commission" they actually have an investigative institution that is accepted as being above politics, that is therefore believed to be beyond pressures and therefore truthful.

The country, at least in its resources, is a wealthy one.

Yes, Americans might well wonder about other ramifications.

Parts of Canada — especially the "Maritime provinces of the east — are considered depressed areas by Canadians and would be so considered here.

Not many miles from Ottawa is the prosperous province of Ontario the province's industrie is spotted with log-cabin farms (often with TV antennas, to be sure).

The average Canadian is not as well off as the average American.

As for much of what Canada has — Saskatchewan and its bounteous wheat crops — even the 50 states have too much already. The 50 states don't always the situation, naturally, but economic gears likely would clash, at least for a time.

• • •

Nor are Canadian institutions the same as ours, even though they have much the same origins.

The courts are different. Federal and provincial governments operate with parliaments and a prime minister. Canadian governments operate their own complex welfare systems and not a few state-owned enterprises.

At a time when Americans are all for federal uniformity, these could be difficult matters indeed.

It is often said the people (outside Quebec) are "the same", but we have wondered how much the same.

True, they speak the same tongue. And in the spirit is democratic, it is nonetheless different. Canadians are a more reserved people — the pushier ones often have emigrated to the United States.

They eschew the "melting pot" tradition of the U.S. They take their children into English, Scotch, and Irish very zealously and like to keep them. Would that do it?

Nor could perhaps 10 million (sic) people in, say, eight new states be fitted in — without a considerable upheaval.

At a time when United States political lineups are scrambled at best, who can say what might happen? Who is to say what role a bloc of Canadian votes would play in a close presidential election?

• • •

And there might be just a bloc. Canadians, though friends have long been highly reactive to the United States—and with reason.

In both our revolution and the War of 1812 there were attempts to "liberate" Canada from the British — repulsed by the people north of the border in no uncertain terms.

Ever since, many have been suspicious, and if "British Canada" did come into the union it would be over the strident protests of very many Canadians. Would we wind up with some "anti-American" Americans in add to our other historic divisions?

What of the Senate, with a bloc, say, of 16 Canadian senators, voting on certain issues much as have the senators of the Old Confederacy?

Canadians are probably "liberal" on many of the issues on which the South is "conservative". But socking, perhaps to maintain at least some of their own traditions, is it not possible there would be a great "state's rights" alliance?

All this is not to argue either against or for any sort of union with Canada. It is just to say it would not be the simple thing of taking an Alaska or a Hawaii into the union.

Best of all would be for the Canadians to patch up their internal quarrels. But whatever comes, it is possible, he rushed into by any of the parties involved.

Meanwhile, Americans ought to start learning and thinking about the people north of the border who could, just could, have a very big impact on their future — at the same time remembering where the border ends.

Strictly Personal
There Are Many Forms Of Death

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I used the phrase, "hoist with his own petard" at dinner the other night, and my older boy wanted to know what it meant. I told him it was from "Hamlet" and referred to a man carrying dynamite who was blown up by the very charge he was planning to use on others.

This idea fascinated him, so we went from there to Brewer's fine old "Dictionary of Phrase and Fable." It is amazing to see how many inventors and devisers of punishments have been the first to suffer from them.

In the earliest Greek days, for instance, Perillos of Athens made a brazen bull for Phalaris, the dictator. The bull was intended for the execution of criminals, who were locked in the construction, with fires lighted below the belly. The tyrant admired the invention, and tested it on Perillos himself, and he became the first man baked to death in the metal bull.

Hugues Aubriot, Provost of Paris, who built the Bastille, was the first person locked up in that ghastly building, under the charge of heresy. In England, Thomas Montacute, the Earl of Salisbury, was the first to use cannon, and was also the first Englishman killed in a cannon ball, at Tourelles in 1428.

The inventor of St. Catherine's Wheel, a disabler of soldiers consisting of four wheels turned different ways, and each wheel armed with saws and knives, was killed by his own machine: when St. Catherine was strapped on the wheel, she fell off, the device flew to pieces, and the inventor was struck by a flying edge and died.

The Bishop of Verdun, who invented the first iron torture chamber too small to allow the person confined in it to stand upright or lie at full length, was the first to be shut up in one; and Cardinal La Balue, who recommended the use of the cage, was himself confined in one for years.

In Italy, Ludovico Sforza, who invented the Iron Shroud, was the first to suffer death by this horrible device. And in Scotland, the Regent Morton, who invented the Maiden, a cruel form of the guillotine, was executed on it.

In the ancient world, Clisthones introduced the custom of ostracism, by which offenders were stripped of their civil rights and banished to the barbarians; he was the first to be banished thereby. Likewise, Euthropius introduced the Emperor Arcadius to Constantinople "benefit of sanctuary." A few days after, he committed some offence and fled for safety to the nearest church. St. Chrysostom told him he had fallen into his own net, and he was put to death. Watch that petard, son!

Suppositories Are Not To Cause Instant Action

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please write about infant suppositories, which I have used a few times with my two-year-old.

1. I thought they were supposed to melt or dissolve. They don't. They come out in the pot. Why?

2. I thought they were painless. He cries. Why?

3. I thought they brought instant action. They don't. He sometimes moves 15 or 20 minutes later. Is this natural? — Mrs. K. S.

You are worrying for no reason, and I'll explain why.

First: Most suppositories have a cocoa butter or glycerine base. They will soften and melt eventually. But if they are expelled before that, they will appear undissolved.

Second: They don't hurt. But a baby may protest (by crying) over a fuss that he doesn't understand. He may be slightly uncomfortable.

Third: Suppositories are not intended to cause instant action. They aren't an irritant. They are a lubricant, and are very helpful in giving a gentle aid to Nature as to when to act — that is why they can be valuable when properly and moderately used, in helping a child develop whatever his normal bowel rhythm is going to be.

You aren't (or shouldn't be) trying to force the child's colon to move at any given instant. Likewise you will retard and confuse his normal development if you give suppositories at different times of day. The idea is to encourage him gently into developing regularity.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes diverticulitis? Is it curable? What diet should be followed? Are there any other precautions to take? — M. O.

Every question you ask (and a lot more besides) is answered in my booklet "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You." It tells a lot more than I could write in a column. (Any reader may have a copy by sending 10 cents in coin for printing and handling, and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.)

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible for a girl's voice to change or become husky? — L. M.

Yes. A person's (male or female) voice can change as often as three or more times in a lifetime.

A small boy's voice is usually high pitched. It changes to a lower tone and may gradually settle into an intermediate pitch. Girls' voices change, too, although not so markedly.

But when you mention a voice turning "husky," I add a word of warning. If there is, for no apparent reason, a change to hoarseness or huskiness, it warrants a checkup to make sure that it is not caused by something that needs attention. The cause may be major or minor. But find out!

Mononucleosis is primarily a disease of young people. To learn more about it, send for my booklet, "Mononucleosis," enclosing with your request a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Retirement

Ottawa Citizen

Premier Smallwood, Newfoundland's 64-year-old Premier, says that he is thinking actively of retirement but "I can't name a date." Since he wants to complete provincial power, fisheries and pulp and paper developments before calling it a day, it is little wonder that he is vague about a date.

Says Flag Halliard Broken Since October

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

There has been a lot of controversy about the flag not flying on the City Hall, it is an insult and a disgrace to the citizens of Belleville.

Mayor Ellis spoke on the radio a short time ago and said that the flag halliard on the flag pole blew down in a recent wind storm. This is not so.

They were broken away last October and they haven't been replaced yet.

Mr. Joby, the purchasing agent for the city, called me on the phone early in November and asked me what I would charge to replace them and up to this time I haven't heard any more about the matter.

They could not put up a flag last fall when Mr. Pinkston died as they did not have a halliard on the pole.

Now Mr. Editor, I would like to know who is at fault; is it the Mayor, the City Manager or the Purchasing Agent?

George H. Crocker,
(Ex-Caretaker of the City Hall for 27 years.)

Ottawa Hockey Team Enjoyed Visit Here

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

This letter is to express my thanks and appreciation for a wonderful weekend arranged for the players of the "Alta Vista" Pee Wee hockey team, and the adults who accompanied them during their stay in your city on January 23rd and 24th.

The co-operation between service clubs and the Belleville Minor Hockey Association in looking after our welfare was wonderful. I am sure this entails a good deal of administration and downright hard work.

May I quote from the boys in their own vernacular—"They had a ball."

If the interest and dedication to minor sports that was so evident to us continues, there is no doubt in my mind that the dream of a new Belleville Arena will become a reality, in the not too distant future.

J. Goodman,
Ottawa.

Purse snatching, a form of crime that is sweeping across Ontario, was reported in Belleville on Friday night, when a woman's purse was snatched from her hand as she was crossing the Collegiate grounds. The victim reported the purse snatching episode to police headquarters immediately following the incident.

She stated that she was crossing the Collegiate grounds when a youth, who walked up from behind, snatched her purse from under her arm and ran westerly down Campbell St. toward the main business section of the city. Searching her identification cards there was considerable money in the purse, the lady told police.

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was active and prices were steady on light receipts of well finished slaughter cattle at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

A heavy supply of unfinished slaughter cattle sold slowly and under constant pressure.

Cow prices were steady and bull prices were easier. Receipts of calves were steady.

Veal calf prices were firm. Hog prices were lower and sheep and lamb prices were steady.

Cattle receipts were estimated at about 11,000 head, about 400 head more than last week and 2,900 head more than the same week in 1964. Western cattle receipts totalled 1,975 cattle, an increase over last week of 291 head. Western stock calf receipts were 206 head more than last week at 791 head. Several loads of finished slaughter cattle were included in the receipts. In addition to the Western receipts, there were 47 calves received from Quebec. One load of slaughter cattle was shipped East and 81 cattle and 83 calves were sold off the market for slaughter in the United States.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers sold at $25-$.50 with high yielding steers 34-34.50; good 22-23; medium 20-21.50; common 18-18; choice heifers 22-22.50 with fancies to 22.50; good 22-23; medium 17-19; common 13-16; choice fed yearlings 22-23 with odd tops to 23.50; good 20-22; good cows 14-15 with sales to 15.50; medium 13-14; canners and cutters 10-12.50; good heavy bologna bulls 17-18 with a few tops to 19; common and medium 13-16.50.

Replacement cattle: Good stockers 20-22 with sales to 22.50; good steer stock calves 24; common and medium stock-ers 14-19; good heifer stock calves 18-19.

Calves: Choice vealers 33-36 with odd sales to 38; good 28-32; medium 24-27; common 20-23; boners 15-19.

Hogs: Grade A 26.75-28.50; heavy sows 22.15-22.60 with light sows gaining a $2 premium; boars 18-20; feeder 23.50 per hundredweight; stags 15.40 on a dressed weight bais.

Sheep and lambs: Lambs 23-28.50 per hundredweight with good lambs closing at 28-28.25; sheep 5-10 according to quality.

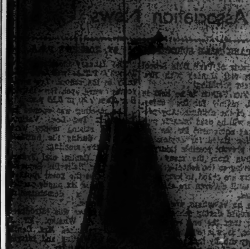
Uphold Verdict In Boy's Murder

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec Court of Appeal Thursday upheld the capital murder conviction of Leopold Dion, confirming to be hanged Feb. 19 for the slaying of a 13-year-old boy.

The verdict of the five-judge court was unanimous.

Dion, 44, was found guilty in December, 1963, of the murder of Pierre Marquis whose body was found with those of three dogs hastily buried in a wooden area some 30 miles west of Quebec City.

Dion was charged with the murder of all four but faced trial on only one death.



Last May, Dion seriously wounded Warden Gene Letourneau of Quebec's prison in an unsuccessful escape attempt.

Dion's lawyer, Guy Bertrand, said he will wait several days before deciding whether to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged today.

Butter prices: Agricultural Stabilization Board tenderable cartels: buying 64 cents 93; buying 39 scors 93; selling 53.

HALYARD REPAIRED — The Red Ensign flies at half staff at city hall today in tribute to Sir Winston Churchill. Flying of the flag was delayed several days by a broken flagpole rope and the roof of the city hall tower was too icy to effect repairs.

Ask Canada Grain Subsidy; U. S. Further Reduces Price

By ARCH MACKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — More wheat price cuts were announced Thursday by the United States to remain competitive with supplies of French, Australian and Argentina grain.

Officials also forecast that the Canadian Wheat Board will make small addition cuts in its hard spring wheat classes today to align them more precisely with U.S. export prices.

The U.S. move Thursday was another adjustment phase in a cycle begun Monday when Canada trimmed westcoast export prices on lower grades of wheat following a sale of about 27,-000,000 bushels to China.

But a U.S. spokesman said that the hope has been expressed to the exporting countries that the price structure now reached can be maintained.

The Canadian Wheat Board as sales agency for Prairie-grown wheat, oats and barley had to pare its prices to sell down the chinese to take some substantial stocks, of cut-rate grain are available from France, Australia and Argentina.

Three cuts initially applied only to westcoast exports but when were extended to the east coast most other grades of wheat sold by Canada, has been dropped seven cents a bushel. Canada's reduction has been smaller and officials here said they expect Canada to rectify the competitive gap today.

New Ballet Is Latest Work Of G. Strate

The performance of the Canadian National Ballet on February 6th, at Belleville Collegiate Institute, opens with a new ballet by Mr. Grant Strate, the company's resident choreographer. This ballet described as "pure dance" is done to the music of Mozart's Concerto in A Major for clarinet and orchestra, and is the latest work of this prolific choreographer.

The work is a departure from the ballets previously created by Mr. Strate, who, in addition to being resident choreographer, is also assistant to Miss Celia France, artistic director of the National Ballet.

DIRECTS ORCHESTRA

The orchestra is under the able musical director, Mr. George Crum. The clarinet solo for this number is played by Mr. James Morton. The allegro features Miss Rebecca Bryan and Mr. Jeremy Blanton. The adagio presents prima ballerina, Lois Smith and premier danseur Earl Kraul. In the third movement "Rondo" we see Joyanne Siddiman. In all three instances many members of the chorus appear along with the above stars.

BALLERINA LOIS SMITH

Miss Smith and Mr. Kraul are already well known and well loved by Belleville audiences. Miss Smith was born and trained in Vancouver and became a charter member of the fledgling National Ballet Company in 1951. An indefatigable artist, the dark haired attractive Miss Smith rose to the challenge of portraying the principal roles in the classics than being introduced into the repertoire by Miss Francs, the company's artistic director. Miss Smith was featured on the huge stage of the Canadian National Exhibition show—at Jacoby Pillow — and Hamilton programs.

Her ballet line is clear and smooth, motions seem to originate in her pointed toes and rise to her graceful and expressive hands. Last summer Miss Smith visited several countries in Europe on a special grant from the Canada Council.

TWO ORIGINALS

Mr. Kraul born in London, Ont., of Danish-Norwegian percentage was also one of the group of originals when the National Ballet was founded. He had the honor of being with the first group of ballet soloists to dance on the world famous Shakespearean stage at Stratford, Ontario. A particularly symathetic partner, he has danced most effectively with female soloists in the company and has appeared frequently in television.

Charming, personable Angela Leigh has spent a year abroad. One of the most beautiful artistical artists, she too has danced with great acclaim, principal roles in most of the classics and has created roles in several new productions. Miss Leigh appears in a "Pas de Deux" with Jeremy Blanton in the second half of the program. Mr. Blanton is a versatile soloist and has an unusual facility at learning new voice.

THIRD SEASON

Now in his third season with the National Ballet, Mr. Blanton's range of roles is wide, extensive and successful.

In his offseason, the tall fair-haired soloist, with his own distinctive style, teaches and makes guest appearances.

These artists along with the entire organization embracing director founder and artistic director, musical director, choreographer, ballet mistresses, designers, the celebrated ballet school and all the administrative personnel, have in their entirety molded a company whose success has been acclaimed widely on television and on stage in the United States and Mexico as well as in Canada. This is a Canadian group which deserves the admiration, enthusiasm and support of Canadians.

PARK DALE SCHOOL

Parents of Park Dale School pupils met Monday with Mrs. D. Reid presiding.

A Fun Fair is to be held in April, mainly for the enjoyment of the children. Any proceeds will be used towards purchasing equipment for the new addition slated for September.

To prevent possible injury to children from the many dogs gathering on the school grounds owners are asked to keep them tied until children are safely in classes.

As no valentines are to be exchanged during school hours, other than the one each pupil makes, it was suggested the money usually thus spent could be brought to school to be given to Junior Red Cross in aid of less fortunate children, thereby a useful purpose served and an important lesson learned.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. R. Reddick introduced the guest speaker, Belleville Police Chief J. B. McLauchlan. Having been in police work since 1948, the father of seven children, he married, Chief McLauchlan was well-qualified to speak on "That Important Word 'Yes'".

The speaker began by saying "A mischievous youngster is not a juvenile delinquent. A juvenile delinquent is a child that violates any statute of the Criminal Code. Such actions as shop-lifting, breaking and entering, mail or car theft, vandalism, etc., are criminal offences.

Usually when a complaint is received, the police prefer to take the child to their questioning rather than to the police station, where retribution can be arranged. However, once a charge is laid, it is out of the complainant's hands and the offender must appear with his parents or guardian before Juvenile Court where children 8 to 16 appear.

Second offenders may be sent to training school so it is most important to catch these things before they go too far, as the police do not make the laws but are there to enforce them. Parents should discourage any defensive or unrealistic attitudes towards the police and instead respect for the law and the rights of others should be emphasized.

MANY FACTORS

The causes of delinquency are due to many factors such as lack of parental control or interest, broken homes, unhealthy influences of bad companions, movies, etc. It is a community problem, too and every effort to provide proper recreational facilities should be taken by all citizens.

SOME SOLUTIONS

The speaker could give no new solutions except what parents might do to improve family life, encouraging membership in church organizations; seeking help when needed from various agencies such as Children's Aid, and as the school is where the boys and girls spend most of their time, showing interest in school work and activities by attending school functions such as Home and School; giving children rules to live by and seeing that these rules are carried out by example and providing the understanding and discipline they need. In other words, knowing when to say "No" and sticking to it is often wiser and kinder than "Yes" in the long run.

CRIME RATE LOW

Police Chief McLauchlan ended his interesting and informative talk on a cheerful note, however. He stated that, compared to other communities of similar size, Belleville has a low juvenile crime rate in Belleville is low.

The meeting was adjourned with an expression of appreciation to Police Chief McLauchlan.

SETS IN USE

It is estimated that more than 2,860,000 color television sets now are in use in the U.S.

ST. JOSEPH'S P.T.A.

The January meeting of St. Joseph's P.T.A. was held recently at the school. The classrooms were open for inspection from 7.30 to 8.15 p.m.

The meeting was opened by President Ted Lee. Various ways of raising money were discussed during the business part of the meeting.

Mrs. A. Cantin, oral French teacher at Belleville Separate Schools, was the guest speaker. Twelve grade six pupils participated in a demonstration French lesson.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. G. Whalen. Mr. J. Hamilton thanked Mrs. Cantin for an interesting and informative demonstration.

The attendance prize was won by the pupils of Rev. Sister Mary Helen Rita's class. Lunch was served by the class mothers.

Court Sharron Installs 1965 Officers

Recently, Court Sharron and Court Belleville, C.O.F., held a joint installation in the I.O.O.F. hall.

D.D.H.C.R. Clint Vader, assisted by Fraternal Supervisor Keith Clark, officiated at the installation. President Bernice Hall and Chief Ranger Cary Orr extended thanks to all members for their efficiency to office. Sister Hall presented Sister Gwen Ray with a past-president's pin.

Installation was followed by a euchre game and a delicious lunch served by members of Court Sharron.

On January 27 Court Sharron visited Court Verona in Bowmanville to return the "Travelling Carrel." President Hall presented President McNabb of Court Venture with the gavel and extended appreciation, on behalf of Court Sharron, for the invitation to visit Court Venture. Many more were extended to Don Hall for providing transportation for Court Sharron.

City of Light Is Lighter by Million Pounds

BY PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters)—Parisians, making a gallant effort to be slimmer, have shed an estimated 1,200,000 unwanted pounds in the last month.

To do it, they have been pummeled and pounded, baked and boiled, at 350 different establishments licensed to help the population reduce its weight.

Frenchwomen are conscious that current fashion decrees a slim figure.

At the same time they are fond of good food, and dislike gymnastics and physical culture.

The net result is that reducing salons do a thriving business, and new places, featuring new "miracle" methods, are opening all the time.

Physical therapists at leading reducing salons say there is a growing trend toward passive treatment.

Baths and massage take priority over exercise. The majority of clients infinitely prefer to lie down and let a machine do the work.

Electrical massage tends to replace hand massage, and is considered four times more effective for spot reducing.

The director of one salon which caters primarily for businessmen and women who are tired, or just plain lazy, explains: "Our job is the upkeep of the body, not to teach athletic skills."

His clients are peacefully immersed in a bath of steam, seaweed or black mud, which is also beneficial for rheumatism.

An unusual innovation of another salon, which specializes in reducing specific areas like the hips, is the "dream machine" which women take home.

"During the course of treatments, a woman must constantly strive to achieve her goal," explains Dr. Jean Cure, who runs the establishment. "She must be conscious of her weight and diet at all times."

So a tiny recording machine placed beneath her pillow gently whispers to her throughout the night: "You are beautiful."

Eskimo Baby Was Gift

TORONTO - (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. John D. Fourneaux have a 16-month-old Eskimo daughter given them as a gift by her parents.

Mr. Fourneaux is a northern services officer in Forungnituk, Que. in Toronto for a week with the little girl, the couple said she is the youngest of 11 children born to Ina Sivuraqpik and his wife, Mary Qaqpiuraaq. She has been named Eva Nuvalinga Janiss Fourneaux.

Mr. and Mrs. Fourneaux said as far as they know this is the first time an Eskimo baby has been given to a white couple. They consider it a great honor. It if not unusual, they said, for one Eskimo couple to give a child to another Eskimo couple to raise.

The red-bearded civil servant and his wife said they would like to adopt Eva legally, but Quebec law makes it unlikely. A child is legally adoptable in Quebec only if its parents are dead or insane or if the child is illegitimate.

Eva's family visit her often, Mrs. Fourneaux said, and they hope she will grow up able to speak Eskimo as well as English and French.

Eva was painted by Pork Chop Clutt, artist Jean Twist when Mrs. Twist visited the easterrs Arctic settlement. The picture was shown with Mrs. Twist's Eskimo collection in Toronto.

Eva of Eva's older brothers and sisters have died of tuberculosis.

COL. PRAY WILLS BRANCH No. 587

The regular monthly meeting of the Col. Pray Wills Branch No. 587 (Ex-Servicewomen), was held in the Legion hall on Monday night.

Meeting was called to order by the vice-president, Ina Rollins. The minute secretary was observed in memory of Sir Winston Churchill. Comrade Rollins at the time had the honor of serving coffee to Sir Winston while on duty with the A.T.S. in England.

Appointments were made to standing committees, with Ina Rollins for membership; Doreen Burney for membership; Billie Kirby, Poppy; Kay Page with Reta Stubberfield as chairmen for entertainment; Freda Maracle for sports and Clara Jamieson for welfare.

The branch is planning a number of events in the near future, with a bake sale, a rummage sale and St. Patrick's dance. Dates to be announced later.

Annual reports were given by the various chairmen and every one agreed it had been a successful year, not only financially, but comradeship had been strengthened.

Public speaking is to be held in the hall on the 13th and 14th of February. Since this is a new venture for the branch they are looking forward to a new community service which the Legion is always ready and willing to perform.

Millinery Industry Helped By End of Teased Hairdos

MONTREAL (CP) — An upswing in the millinery industry as a result of the elimination of hairdos is reported by the Millinery Workers Union, representing workers at nearly all women's hat manufacturers in Canada.

With their hair lying flat instead of standing on end as in the past, millinery styles in Canadian women are wearing back again, and the union predicts that the revived interest will be especially noticeable in spring fashions.

Many hats for spring are coordinated with coats, suits and dresses, even to matching trim in accordance with the Paris fashion decree that a well-dressed woman must have a suitable hat ensemble to complement her clothes.

A survey of Canadian millinery manufacturers indicates that the soft, young mademoiselle look, modified for the older woman will dominate the spring and summer scene. Hair with a back interest will also be popular.

White dominates color for spring and summer, either in its own or in combination with other colors. After basic white and black, green seems to be a favorite, followed by primrose yellow, cornflower blue, biscuit to coffee shades, lemon and jade.

Fabrics used in Canadian spring millinery collections include Milan straws, silk shantungs, and light, airy wool tweeds and boucles. Silk prints, ranging from stripes, dots and flowers to abstracts and paisleys, are widely featured. Some options have a linen type finish, patterned in houndstooth.

Threatening Each Other No Way to Save Marriage

DEAR DORIS — I have been married for 15 years and two years ago fell in love with another man. My husband discovered this right at the beginning and threatened to commit suicide if I should leave him. He asked me two more years during which time the other man returned to the oil fields overseas. When he came back we found ourselves more in love than ever and again my husband threatened to commit suicide and, also, threatened to harm the other man. These threats held me to him but made me despise him. I just can't see continuing this farce of a marriage.

My husband is a diabetic and has been of indifferent health the past year. He seems somewhat improved at the present and is able to work at his job as caretaker at a school. He says we should stay together for the children's sake but all this strife and tension has had its effect on them, too. They have also witnessed and been scared by his frantic shocks.

I am contemplating leaving him with the children and wonder if I could receive social aid. — MISERABLE.

DEAR MISERABLE — Resorting to threats is a poor way to save a marriage. But if you've had another man on your mind, have you really been trying to preserve your union mutually? Happy marriages have to be tended and cultivated. As for saving the children from seeing their daddy in shock, they will take it with composure if you do. It's a poor excuse for separation.

He is responsible for his children's support whether or not you live together; and he retains the right to visit them. If you leave him for another man, it is doubtful what help you could get from anyone.

There's more to this than you've told. And it's a more serious decision than I can make for you. Seek personal counseling.

DEAR DORIS — I go to hairdressing school. I am 22 years old and am in love with a boy 22. I have known him since I was 14 years old. I have played some dirty tricks on him and now after he asked me to his birthday party refuses to take me.

Maybe I am stubborn but I told him "Once a date, always a date!" If he loves me as much as he says I think he could take even after the stupid things I did. His mother also interferes in our problems. The main thing is she doesn't think I am good enough for her son. — DISTURBED.

DEAR DISTURBED — So you can be stupid and stubborn and self-willed, but be can't. Is that it? What would have happened if he had never turned the tables?

Prove to his mother — and yourself — that you are good enough for her son by setting up a new deal. Start acting your age, both of you, by resolving never, never, to break a promise made to each other.

DEAR DORIS — Your answer to "Trying to Get Along" was strongly anti-evangelical. So now I do expect you will be fair-minded enough to print this answer also which is from the opposite point of view.

Evangelicals (which include all truly born-again people) are happily awaiting Christ's return as He promised to do. No one should rejoice about any kind of destruction (which is supposed to take place when His return.) But true believers cannot help but be overjoyed by the prospect of a new Life, beginning with the Millenneum. Nothing can be more positive than the prospect of eternal happiness replacing our present war mad, nuclear infested world. — BELLEVILLE BOY.

DEAR B.B. — Looking forward to future joy is fine. But the way I understand it, our part in this future will be at least partly determined by how we cope with the here and now. The "Evangelical" described was not "happily" doing anything — except enjoying his misery. Thanks for your contribution.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I would like advice on shaving legs. Some girls' legs are terribly splotched from shaving. Why is this? I have to shave mine every other morning or the hairs stick through my nylons. Other girls don't seem to have this problem — at least don't look to have. — BRUNETTE.

DEAR BRUNETTE — The splotchy look probably comes of shaving too close with a dull razor. They actually scrape the skin.

Then send you my leaflet on Removing Unwanted Hair. You'll see that the experts lean to depilatories for leg hair. For more gals have this trouble than you'd ever guess. (And may have the leaflet by writing in for it and enclosing ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO WORRIED SICK — At age 16 you would need your parents' consent before you could get married. The best thing for you to do is to obtain a personal interview with the social worker at the child care agency in your area. He or she will help you to make the right decisions about your baby and your future.

• • •

(Don't just muddle along. Write to Doris with your problem.)

College Education Makes Wife Smarter Than Hubby?

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a college graduate. My husband dropped out of high school in the tenth grade when his father died. I didn't notice the wide intellectual gulf that separated Henry and me until we had been married several months.

Henry's grammar is so bad it is embarrassing. He is not informed on world affairs. When he attempts to discuss politics it is apparent he hasn't read a thing.

The friends Henry brings home from the office are uninformed and shallow. Their wives are stupid and dull I've abandoned all hope of communicating with them.

What can a wife do when she is starved intellectually? I've met some bright women through my club work but I wouldn't dream of inviting them and their husbands to our home. They'd be bored to death by Henry. Any advice? — ONE WHO TRADED DOWN.

DEAR TRADED — Maybe these dull wives can't distinguish between a Picasso and a hole in the rug but you might pick up some useful hints on how to remove an ink spot from a white damask table cloth.

Satisfy your intellectual hunger in the afternoon, Kiddo. If you were half as smart as you think you are, you wouldn't be knocking your husband's limited education. You'd be building him up for doing as well as he has in spite of it. (P.S. He was smart enough to marry you, wasn't he?)

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a 13-year-old girl with a problem. A few weeks ago we got a dog named Spot. My best girl friend (I will call her Donna) is scared to death of most dogs, and especially Spot.

Yesterday, she came to our house and the minute she saw Spot she got panicky. You know, Ann, dog owners tell when people are afraid and it makes them even unfriendlier.

Well, Spot began to growl and Donna ran upstairs and locked herself in the bathroom. She wouldn't come out till I assured her that Spot was in the back room with the door closed.

Today she said if I want to do homework with her I'll have to go to her house. It's no fun once you know Donna doesn't have a room of her own and someone is always sick.

I told her how I felt and she said, "I will come over if you promise to keep Spot in another room." I consider Spot a member of the family and I don't think it's fair to keep him up because of my friend's silliness. Do you agree? — ON THE SPOT.

DEAR ON — No. A hostess is obliged to make her guests comfortable. It's unfortunate that Donna is afraid of dogs, but since she is, you should keep Spot behind a closed door when she is a guest in your home.

DEAR ANN — Our 20-year-old daughter is about to be married. She has a well-paying job but has always spent more money than she made.

I know this girl has a staggering number of unpaid bills for clothes, records, costume jewelry, luggage — anything she could put on credit. I have asked her four times if her bills are paid, but she lies better than most people tell the truth.

Yes, Ann, I've failed, but it's too late to do anything about that now. What I need to know is should I tell her fiance that his bride-to-be is in debt up to her neck? Mush the advice — TOO LATE SMART.

DEAR TOO LATE — Under no circumstances should you discuss this matter with the young man. Urge your daughter to tell him, however, and hope that she will. If she springs unpaid bills on her husband after marriage it could get things off to a wobbly start.

* * *

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-Age Smoking," enclosing with your request 15c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dessert Luncheon Held By Horticultural Group

STIRLING — Twenty-five people were in attendance on Thursday January 25th for the first meeting of the Stirling Horticultural Society for 1965.

The president Mrs. Floyd Armstrong, Frankford Road was hostess and a dessert luncheon was served at 8 o'clock when the guests were seated at quartet guest tables.

The six floral table centres were awarded to those with the lucky tea cups and were won by Miss Annie Holmes, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mrs. Morley Ayrhart, Mrs. Jack Morgan, Mrs. George Warner and Mrs. Perry Brennan.

SOCIAL HOUR

A social hour was enjoyed when several games were played and the hostess provided prizes for the winners. A business meeting followed, Mrs. Armstrong expressed appreciation for co-operation during the past year. The secretary Mrs. Ray Rose read the report which stated that the membership was 146 and there was a bank balance of over $400.

The friendship secretary Mrs. Harry Waite sent out 26 sympathy and get-well cards and she read messages of thanks. The correspondence included greetings from Phil Dodds, district director, re the Orchids-Garden Club exhibit; an invitation to visit the Belleville Horticultural Society in February; also messages from several greenhouse and nursery firms.

The president read articles of interest from the monthly news letter, one of which was "How to Plant a Garden."

1965 OFFICERS

The 1965 officers were all re-elected as follows: president, Mrs. Floyd Armstrong; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Frank Harding; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Leonard Wannamaker; secretary, Mrs. Ray Rose; treasurer, Mrs. Harry Waite; friendship secretary, Mrs. Harry Waite; directors, Mrs. Kenneth Ray, Mrs. Ashley Brooks; Mrs. Raymond McConnell; Mrs. Grant Hubble, Mrs. Harry Clarke, Mrs. Nix Flindall, Mrs. Morley Ayrhart, Mrs. Claire West, Mrs. Harold Johnson and Miss Gena Spry; auditors, Mrs. Kenneth Ray and Mrs. Grant Hubble.

Canvassers were appointed for the membership drive. There will be a special draw in March and a few of the ladies will receive a centennial crab tree.

Next meeting will be held on February 19th at the home of Mrs. Ray Rose.

Mrs. R .B. Belshaw voiced appreciative thanks to the hostess for the hospitality and the tasty desserts.

Susanna's Family Fare

WHO'S WHO?

Dear Susanna: February 14th is my husband's birthday and his special request is always a St. Valentine's Day birthday dinner with his family and a few close friends.

Last year I did some hanky-panky with the place cards, and everyone insists it was so clever and such fun that they want a repeat performance on the 14th.

I picked out a comical, appropriate valentine as a place card for each guest. Then, instead of filling in the person's name on the card, I printed a thumbnail sketch, or a poem, or wrote down a few words of an old song, or made up a riddle. In each case it was something that applied to one particular person. In this way everyone had to identify themselves and figure out the seating arrangement.

I can tell you, there was some great carrying on before we all got settled. I was careful not to hurt anyone's feelings though and tried to keep it humorous and a wee bit flattering.

I've got some great ones fig. ured out for this year! — Mary B.

That's our girl! You must have been sorely tempted when writing those cards to shoot a verbal arrow here and there. We're proud of you for sheathing your bow and restricting your remarks to funny hearts and flowers. Sounds like a wow of a party! — SUSANNA

FRESHER IN PLASTIC

Dear Susanna: I write the date on mixes, jellies, etc. (something I learned from having a freezer). In this way I am sure of which one to use first.

Your baked goods will stay fresher longer if stored in plastic bags. If you wrap cake, for instance, in waxed paper first, the plastic bags will remain fresh and clean for the next batch. — Judith May

County Manor Auxiliary Elects Officers

The January meeting of the Auxiliary of Hastings County Manor was held in the library, with Mrs. Daniels presiding.

The following officers were installed by Mrs. C. Holmes: president, Mrs. D. Daniels; 1st vice-president, Mrs. D. Davidson; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. H. Ketcheson; recording secretary, Mrs. Nobes; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Moorman; treasurer, Mrs. Kilburn.

A sum of money is to be set aside each month to be known as the chapel fund. A bingo game has been arranged for February. The birthday cake was cut by Mrs. Maria Bevan, who was the oldest resident with a January birthday. Mrs. Holmes and Mrs. Ray poured tea.

U.C.W. Meetings

CANNIFTON EVENING UNIT

The monthly meeting of the Canniflon U.C.W. was held in the church on the last Monday of January. In the absence of the secretary, Miss Doreen Reynolds took over her duties.

President, Mrs. D. Parks, informed the members of the annual meeting of Belleville Presbyterial U.C.W. to be held at King Street United Church, Trenton, on January 27th and 28th.

Mrs. C. Ellsworth gave her report of the organizations' representatives' meeting and the plans for the pot-luck supper on February 10th.

Mrs. F. Holgate and Doreen Reynolds volunteered to telephone members before each meeting.

The worship service followed and Mrs. M. Mitchell gave an interesting talk on Trinidad. The service closed with the benediction after which the members spent a social time and lunch was served.

Reader's Friday Column

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION:

Could you please give me a recipe for a really creamy peanut butter fudge? Mildred Z.

ANSWER:

You may use milk instead of cream or evaporated milk in following recipe, but cream gives the smoothest finished texture.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Grapefruit and Green Grape Fruit Cup; Poached Haddock; Hard-cooked Egg Sauce; Buttered Diced Carrot and Turnip; Crumbed Tomato Casserole; Jelly Roll (see Thursday); Coffee.

PEANUT BUTTER FUDGE:

2 cups granulated sugar, 2/3 cup 18% cream or evaporated milk (see note above), 4 tablespoons smooth peanut butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ teaspoon salt.

Stir together in heavy saucepan the sugar and cream. Place over heat, bring to boil. With damp cloth wipe sugar grains from sides of pan. Boil until temperature reaches 234 deg. F. (very soft ball stage). Remove from heat, add remaining ingredients. Do not stir but let it cool a little, then beat until it begins to show ridges as spoon is drawn through, and looks cream. Pour into buttered pan to ¾" depth, let cool slightly, mark into squares. Cool until firm.

QUESTION:

I have been looking for a recipe for pineapple cheese squares. The base is a shortbread type I think, and the top has crushed pineapple and some type of yellow cheese that seemed to be slightly nippy. Do you have one that resembles that description? C. H.

ANSWER:

The closest that I can come to your description follows. Possibly some of our readers will recognize and have what you want. Readers, if so, would you please write it out carefully and mail it to me in care of this newspaper? Then I will forward it to C.H.

PINEAPPLE CREAM CHEESE SQUARES (or Pie):

Rich plain pastry, ½ cup well drained crushed pineapple, ¾ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 9-oz. package cream cheese, 4 eggs, ¼ cup cream, ½ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Line 9 x 9" square pan (or pie plate) with pastry, having 1" sides. Bake at 450 deg. F. until delicately browned. Remove from oven and cover bottom with pineapple. Blend sugar and flour, then mix thoroughly with cream cheese. Beat eggs slightly, add cream, milk and vanilla, then blend in cheese mixture. Pour into pastry shell. Bake at 350 deg. F. 30 minutes or until firm. Note: If desired top may be sprinkled with finely chopped walnuts or grated cold Cheddar cheese before baking.

OVERNIGHT MEAT MARKET — While the rest of London sleeps buyers from fashionable hotels mingle with those from restaurants and hospitals and the local butcher to look, prod, haggle and buy meat at Smithfield market in the heart of the City of London. The market handles up to 5,000 tons of fresh and frozen meat a day and at closing time 9:30 a.m., hardly a sausage is left. This is a view of the meat racks at Smithfield. (CP Photo)

BELL ENDS BUYING AND SELLING — When the 10 a.m. bell rings in Covent Garden market another morning of buying and selling is over with tons of carrots, nuts, cabbages, cauliflowers, ferns and flowers, gone in a fleet of trucks to local stores and businesses. Here a buyer looks over fruit stall with a salesman at the Covent Garden fruit and vegetable market in London, England. (CP Photo)

A Busy World by Night

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — Each night as most of London shuts its pubs and stills the roar of its giant transport system, a world within a world opens up at two famous marketplaces — Covent Garden and Smithfield.

Here the local pubs are just preparing for business—a concession in law to the men who live the upside-down life of buying, selling and delivering tomorrow's dinner.

Buyers from fashionable hotels mingle with those from restaurants and hospitals and the family butcher to look, prod, haggle and buy.

Amid the clatter of pushcarts, shouts of porters weighted down with sides of beef, boxes of exotic foreign flowers and crates o f turnips, prices are set. Bargaining goes on quietly, almost in a whisper. The customer approaches a white-coated sales agent with apparent indifference, shakes his head, walks on. Then, perhaps, he returns and finally two heads nod in unison and the deal is made. Whatever the bargain, it is a secret between them.

Perhaps the most amazing thing about Smithfield and Covent Garden is that after the night and early morning of business virtually nothing is left. A mountain of food has been devoured by the city.

PLACE OF EXECUTIO N

Smithfield, once the place of execution for Protestant martyrs, is in the heart of the City of London. It handles up to 5,000 tons of fresh and frozen meat a day. At closing time, about 9:30 a.m., hardly a sausage is left.

At Covent Garden, a mile away, experts have refined the bargaining marketing to such a science that when the great brass bell sounds at 10 a.m. to end business, tons of carrots and nuts, ferns and flowers, cabbages and cauliflower have disappeared into fleets of trucks.

Smithfield — originally called Smooth field—dates back to 1174 when FitzStephen, clerk to Thomas Becket, described the sale of horses and also "vendibles of the peasant, swine with their deep flanks, cows and oxen of immense bulk."

It is recorded that in 1305 whole oxen sold for eight shillings sixpence, about the price of a good steak today. In other times the site, just outside the City walls, was the play, archery and tournament field, and in the four years ending in 1558, during the reign of Mary, 200 persons were burned to death for their religious opinions.

MARKET TO BE MOVED

Although Smithfield, prefaces Covent Garden—originally Convent Garden, used by the monks of Westminster Abbey—it has been rebuilt and modernized and is far more efficient.

Plans are afoot to move the setting up in the square of the wartime RCAF headquarters in 1940. A maple tree, the gift of the City of Ottawa, was planted there, and close by is a bronze memorial to Margaret Macdonald, wife of Canada's first prime minister, who died in 1911 at 3 Lincoln's Inn Fields.

Also near the market is St. Paul's Church of Covent Garden, which contains the remains of more famous people than any other church in London except Westminster Abbey and St. Paul's Cathedral. Among them are Dr. Thomas Arne, composer of Rule Britannia, author Samuel Butler and actress Dame Ellen Terry.

It also was the scene of the execution of Sir Everard Digby, who was hanged, drawn and quartered in the churchyard for his part in the Guy Fawkes plot to blow up the Houses of Parliament.

known as Covent Garden Theatre, used as the background for the opening scene of Shaw's Pygmalion and the musical version of the play, My Fair Lady; the place where Eliza Doolittle first encounters Professor Higgins.

OBJECTED TO LIGHTS

The theatre, associated with such names as actor David Garrick and singer Jenny Lind, was frequented by Queen Victoria. Offended by the blue lights outside the Bow Street police station across the way, she ordered them removed, and it remains today as the only station in England without the traditional blue lights.

The first magistrate at the Bow Street court was Henry Fielding who wrote part of Tom Jones while living nearby.

Not far away is Lincoln's Inn Fields, with its Canada Walk, named to commemorate the

Truckers Claim Subsidy Used For Rate-cutting

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian Trucking Associations complained to the federal government Thursday that a $70,000,000 annual railway subsidy is being used by the railways to wage a rate-cutting war against competitors.

A CTA delegation presented a brief to Transport Minister Pickersgill asking that all interim railway subsidies be scrapped immediately.

As an alternative, it called for strict control over subsidy payments to ensure that they are used to protect captive shippers from high rail rates and not used to slash rates in competitive markets.

It was the first formal presentation by CTA since Mr. Pickersgill became transport minister a year ago.

The truckers' brief also complained about the railways' invasion of the trucking field by purchasing control of major trucking firms. It suggested that this could lead to a dangerous monopoly in the transportation field unless checked by government action.

It asked the government to make a definite policy statement on truck purchases by the railways.

Towers Thinks Expansion Pace Likely to Slow

TORONTO (CP)—Graham F. Towers, chairman of Canada Life Insurance Co., says it is questionable whether Canada's recent pace of expansion can be fully maintained through 1965.

The former governor of the Bank of Canada told the annual meeting of Canada Life Thursday that the country's balance of payments deficit is a problem likely to continue for some time.

He said while the deficit has been reduced substantially from the record $1,500,000,000 in 1959, it must be recognized that abnormally large wheat sales in 1963 and 1964 contributed to the improvement.

Mr. Towers warned that Canada should restrict foreign borrowings to an amount which bears a reasonable relationship to requirements for productive capital investment that cannot be met at home.

Farm Safety Council Holds Annual Meet

STIRLING — Hastings Farm Safety Council held its annual meeting on Saturday afternoon at the I.O.O.F. Hall, Charlotte Street, Stirling.

Mr. Douglas Tipper agricultural representative led in a discussion of what might be undertaken along the line of safety during 1965.

Two delegates Miss Jane Gay and Mrs. Percy Carman were appointed to attend the annual convention of the Ontario Farm Safety Council at the Ontario Agriculture College at Guelph on February 1st, 2nd and 3rd.

The 1965 officers elected were: president, Orno Sharp; past president, Wesley Farrell; 1st vice-president, Miss Jane Gay; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Percy Carman and secretary-treasurer, Douglas Tipper.

The two vice-presidents were allotted the sum of $200. as funds to provide a safety project that would interest the members of the various Women's Institute members of the county.

Name Three To Investigate Expropriation

TORONTO (CP) — The appointment of a three-man team to investigate a land expropriation dispute between Oxford County farmers and the Upper Thames River Conservation Authority was announced Thursday by Premier Robarts.

The conservation authority under chairman Gordon Pittock (PC—Oxford) has been attempting to expropriate land for the Gordon Pittock Conservation Dam.

The farmers have complained that prices offered for their land were too low. The government has appointed a team independent of the authority to try to reach agreement with individual farmers who have not yet settled.

LAKE LEVELS DISCUSSED

Premier Robarts also announced Thursday that a full statement will be made shortly in the legislature on the problem of low water levels in the Great Lakes.

He said the statement would cover forecasts of low water levels, the progress of studies under way and the prospects for remedial action. He added that the province has no plans to set up an emergency fund to aid persons adversely affected by low water levels.

In other business, W. H. Palmer, the deputy minister of municipal affairs, told the Legislature's committee on education, health and welfare that Ontario counties lack the right to pass bylaws controlling the activities of nursing homes.

He said 16 of the province's 38 counties have bylaws dealing with nursing homes but none have been challenged in the courts by operators. Consideration is being given to amending the Ontario Municipal Act to give counties control of nursing homes not already licensed by municipalities, he said.

Oregon Rivers Again Boil Over

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Oregon's rivers boiled over their banks again today, less than a month after the most destructive flood in the state's history.

The waters washed out bridges, overran roads and homes, caused evacuation of about 150 families and brought many landslides, including one of great size at Mapleton, about 150 miles southwest of Portland.

Tons of earth peeled off Neely Mountain Thursday and crashed through the heart of the community of 300. No one was seriously injured.

P.E. Agricultural Society Makes Plans for This Year

PICTON — Prince Edward County Fair at Picton has been held three full days for many years past. At the annual meeting of the Prince Edward Agricultural Society yesterday, it was decided that this year the fair will be held three nights and two days. This will mean the fair will open at six o'clock Thursday night, Sept. 23, and continue until midnight, Sept. 25.

With the exception of live-stock, it planned to have all exhibits in place on the Wednesday night and during the day, before the public arrives, judging will be done and exhibits attractively displayed. In previous years, many directors have worked most of the night to display exhibits in readiness for the public.

Directors agreed that attendance at fairs is now chiefly in the evenings, that events be concentrated into three nights and two days would make for a better program.

Directors agreed to continue with its agricultural type of fair with emphasis on exhibits and competitions, but also plan a good program of entertainment. They feel that high quality attractive agricultural exhibits are a big drawing card.

Although no horses races were held last year, the annual report by secretary-treasurer Phil Dodds revealed that the society more than broke even on the fair itself and will have a balance of over $6,000 when all grants are received. There had been 8,157 exhibits displayed and a total of $6,506 was paid in prize money. Total receipts had amounted to $22,104, with $7,529 receivable.

Tribute to the memory of a former president, Harold Spencer who was stricken at the fair last September, was paid by retiring president Leland Doxsee, and a minute of silence was observed.

Chris Lockyer stepped up from first vice-president to president, with second vice, Harold Herman becoming first vice. Walter Demille was named second vice-president. Phil Dodds continues as secretary treasurer.

Directors elected were the officers, Leland Doxsee, Robert May, Willis Sills, Elmer Collier, Harry Gerrans, Herbert Alberton, Creighton Lockyer, E. W. Henderson and Howard Seeley.

Associate directors are, Ivan Bell, Jack H. Ward, David Hurry, Sam Dodds, Arthur Vanneer, Dr. L. Dockrill Lawrence Way, Tom May, Charles Culmer, G. Shalley, Albert Copp, Alex Miller, William Wilis, Alva Collier, D. O. Reynolds, Laverne Trudeau, Charles Fletcher, Ray Lindsay, Tom Heath, Gerald Steenburgh, Brian Dodds, A. A. Benvis (parade marshal), H. L. Knight (public schools), Robert Williams.

Ladies' section executive, Mrs. Creighton Lockyer, Mrs. Emerson Coulter, Mrs. Thera Falconer, Mrs. C. J. Fletcher, Mrs. L. Garrison, Mrs. E. W. Henderson, Mrs. H. Alberton, Mrs. L. Pearsall.

A number of members will attend the District 3 Fairs annual in Belleville on Thursday, Feb. 4 and also the provincial convention of agricultural societies of Ontario in Toronto, Feb. 24-25.

Appointed as representatives on the Centre Commission for the next year were D.O. Reynolds, Dr. L. Dockrill and Leland Doxsee.

County Council is being asked to name representatives to the Society and appreciation of their co-operation was included in the expression of appreciation by retiring president L. Doxsee.

The new president, Chris Lockyer announced that plans are under way for the June horse show in co-operation with the Kiwanis Club, with the possibility of two shows this year, one especially for children. "We have a wonderful fair and the co-operation of all will make it even better", he said. Willis Sills expressed thanks to Mr. Doxsee for his fine leadership during his two years as president.

NEW HOSPITAL PLANNED

TORONTO (CP) — Excavators will break ground in May for a new general hospital that will be Metropolitan Toronto's third largest — a 750-bed hospital in suburban Scarborough. With completion scheduled for early in 1967, the hospital will be called the Scarborough Centenary Hospital.

Davie Fulton Declines Bid To Return to Federal Arena

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP)—E. Davie Fulton has declined an invitation to return to federal politics.

The former justice minister and public works minister in the Diefenbaker administration now is head of the British Columbia Progressive Conservative party.

In a letter released Thursday he declined an invitation from the Victoria Progressive Conservative Association to be Conservative candidate in the next federal election.

"This is an honor that I appreciate very much but I am not free to accept," he said in a letter to D. H. Nelson, president of the Victoria association.

Asked in an interview if he had declined the Victoria offer because he intends to run in Kamloops, Mr. Fulton said:

"Of course my first loyalty will always be to the Kamloops riding, where I have lived all my life and with which I have been associated politically for 20 years."

Earlier this month Mr. Fulton was asked in a press conference in Vancouver whether he would contest the federal party leadership if a national convention vote was held.

"This isn't a decision for me to make now," he said. "The decision on a national convention now is in the hands of the national executive. It is not helpful for individuals to start giving their particular ideas."

Five Canadians Will Receive Carnegie Awards

PITTSBURGH (CP) — Five Canadians will receive bronze medals and various amounts of cash from the Carnegie hero fund commission for acts of bravery in fire and during drowning accidents, it was announced Thursday night.

Heading the list of heroes is Mrs. Addie S. McCormick, 64, a telephone switchboard operator who died last July 30 while helping to save an "indeterminate number of persons from burning" during a hotel fire in Ottawa.

A bronze medal and death benefits of $1,000 will go to her husband, J. Delbert McCormick of Ontario.

The commission citation says that Mrs. McCormick was at the switchboard on the ground floor of a 12-storey hotel when fire broke out in a storage room and spread to the foyer.

Mrs. McCormick telephoned firemen and remained at the switchboard throughout the fire answering calls of inquiry. She was found dead when firemen arrived.

A bronze medal and death benefits of $750 went to Dirk Vanderscheer of Mallorytown, Ont., father of Ralph Vanderscheer, a 15-year-old schoolboy who died last June 13 while attempting to save Rodger S. Martin, 16, from drowning in Escott, Ont.

Three other Canadians will receive bronze medals and $500 apiece for acts of heroism in drowning mishaps.

They are: Ronald G. Lapenses, 26, of Cornwall; Paul G. Brady, 25, of Ottawa; and Burns E. Greer, 29, of Perth, Ont.

Lapenses helped to save Victor Chaskin, 32, Fernand Robidoux, 36, and Cecil O. Runions, 30, and attempted to save Roland C. Larochelle, 37, from drowning last March 2 at Cornwall.

Brady and Greer helped to save Joseph J. Dsdurka and John M. Mraz from drowning at McDonalds Corners, Ont., last May 9.

Moderator Asks All Bells Tolled

TORONTO (CP) — Rt. Rev. Ernest M. Howse, moderator of the United Church of Canada, suggested Thursday that bells in steeples of all United Churches across Canada be tolled at 11 a.m. EST Saturday in memory of Sir Winston Churchill.

Funeral services for Sir Winston will be held early Saturday at St. Paul's Cathedral, London.

workpower

Says W. M. Browne, Toronto Caretakers, Toronto, Ontario. "We have used panel trucks of various makes for the past 15 years. Nine months ago we put six Chevy-Vans into service and, from our experience with these, we have purchased six more.

"Accurate comparative analysis of our vehicle operation proves Chevy-Vans to be most economical. The six-cylinder engine is really lively with plenty of power. Gas mileage is very good and has given us a substantial saving per unit.

"Manoeuvrability in city traffic is excellent, resulting in reduced time between calls. Mechanically, Chevy-Vans have proved to be first-class—we have had no failures.

"In summary, I would say that Chevy-Vans are far superior to any units we have previously operated."

Piped Lament Drifts Over Misty Thames As Last Sombre Funeral Rehearsal Held

LONDON (CP) — A piped lament drifted over the misty Thames today as a last sombre rehearsal was held for Saturday's state funeral of Sir Winston Churchill.

Government leaders from around the world converged on the city and a seemingly - endless line of mourners filed past the great statesman's bier in ancient Westminster Hall.

By 7 a.m., 183,793 persons had passed through the great hall since it was opened to the public. The queue stretched more than a mile at that hour. The body lies in state until 6 a.m. Saturday, by which time 300,000 persons may have paid homage.

In an unprecedented gesture, the Queen, accompanied by Prince Philip and Princess Margaret, slipped in unannounced Thursday night to join in silent tribute.

This, it was believed, was one of the few occasions in history that a monarch had bowed before the black-draped catafalque of a commoner. Before the Queen arrived, other members of the Royal Family as well as the nation's highest - ranking nobility had walked by the candle-lit, flag-draped coffin.

Tonight, in another unprecedented tribute, Britain's national leaders take their place briefly on the garnet-red dais as watchmen of the catafalque. They are Prime Minister Wilson, Conservative Leader Sir Alec Douglas-Home, Liberal Leader Jo Grimond and House Speaker Sir Harry Hylton-Foster.

Of the 113 nations invited to send representatives to the funeral, only one had declined—Communist China. Another Communist country, Mongolia, said its ambassador, who lives in Warsaw, was ill but may yet attend.

At least six monarchs, 14 prime ministers and four presidents were expected to be among the vast throng of international figures who will join more than 1,000,000 others in Britain's largest funeral since that of King George VI in 1952. The governments of 17 colonial territories or protectorates will also be represented in the procession.

Canada's Prime Minister Pearson, accompanied by his wife and Gordon Robertson, clerk of the Privy council, arrived by air Thursday.

Today another distinguished Canadian group arrived, including Conservative Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker, and his wife. On the plane were Lucien Cardin, associate minister of national defence; Judy LaMarsh, minister of health and welfare; Maurice Bourget, Senate speaker; George Drew, former high commissioner in London, and Lt.-Gen. Geoffrey Walsh, army chief of staff.

Also on the plane was Premier Joseph R. Smallwood, who will represent Newfoundland at the funeral.

President de Gaulle of France was scheduled to arrive from Paris later today, accompanied by 10 members of the Order of the Liberation, including some wartime French underground leaders.

The United States delegation arrived Thursday night, headed by State Secretary Dean Rusk and Chief Justice Earl Warren. With them came two old friends and wartime colleagues of Britain's Second World War leader—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and W. Averell Harriman, now U.S. undersecretary of state.

The huge gathering of world leaders has created a tough security job for Scotland Yard.

Amid some 8,000 police assigned for funeral duty will be about 700 specially - trained men watching for possible danger to visiting dignitaries. Even Pearson has been assigned a Scotland Yard officer.

Lady Churchill paid a visit to Westminster Hall Thursday night, as she has done every night since Sir Winston's body was brought there Tuesday. With her younger daughter, Mrs. Christopher Soames, she stood at the side for 20 minutes. Once again few recognized her.

Queen Holds Thirty-Minute Private Talk With Pearson

LONDON (CP)—The Queen held a long private discussion with Prime Minister Pearson Thursday after signing an outsized document which proclaims a new Maple Leaf banner as Canada's official flag.

The document will be published shortly in a special edition of the Canada Gazette and will be read by Governor-General Georges Vanier at a special ceremonial session of the Senate Feb. 15 when the new flag will be raised over the Canadian Parliament.

Pearson, accompanied by High Commissioner Lionel Chevrier and Gordon Robertson, cabinet secretary, entered Buckingham Palace at 4:30 p.m., London time, for the royal appointment.

But the Queen sent word that she would receive Pearson alone in her first-floor audience room adjoining the royal apartments. Chevrier and Robertson waited in another part of the palace.

Officials said the Queen's private talk with Pearson lasted some 30 minutes or more and that Pearson emerged in apparent good humor.

The hand-embellished proclamation, measuring two feet by three feet, was designed at Ottawa, signed by Pearson and Guy Favreau, as attorney-general, and likely will be placed on public display after the Feb. 15 Senate ceremonies.

Based on an order-in-council passed at Ottawa last Tuesday, the proclamation was so big it had to be sent along to Buckingham Palace before Pearson arrived. It now rests in Canada House and likely will be taken back to Ottawa by the Pearson party following the Saturday state funeral for Sir Winston Churchill.

Pearson will see the Queen again Saturday, both at St. Paul's Cathedral, where the funeral service for Sir Winston will be held, and later at Buckingham Palace where the Queen will give a luncheon for Commonwealth prime ministers.

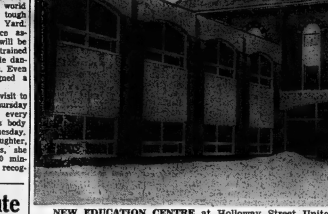
Siberian Worker Frozen Solid Restored to Life Hours Later

LONDON (Reuters) — A Soviet Siberian worker frozen solidly has been brought back to life, the Soviet news agency Tass reported Thursday.

Tass said Vasily Maslov lost his way in a forest during a heavy frost and his frozen body was found 10 hours later.

He was brought to the Novosibirsk City Hospital where he was put into a warm bath, had oxygen pumped into his lungs from a special apparatus through a tube in his throat and was given drugs to help clear re-establish the activity of the heart.

After five hours the first signs of life were noticed, Tass said, the temperature rose, the heart began to beat more strongly and his pulse was felt.



Finally, Maslov breathed and his lungs started working, the agency reported.

After a time he developed acute pneumonia and the frost bitten fingers of one hand had to be amputated.

He now is well and out of hospital, Tass said.

PROGRAM APPROVED

TORONTO (CP)—Under the chairmanship of Public Welfare Minister Louis Cecile, an Ontario government cabinet committee approved in principle Thursday a program to improve the housing, education and recreational needs of Indians living off reserves. A committee has been working on the program — which the minister says could lift thousands of Indians out of poverty —for several weeks.

N. Katzenbach Successor to Robt. Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nicholas Katzenbach, acting head of the justice department since last September, was named attorney-general of the United States Thursday.

His nomination was sent to the Senate along with President Johnson's selection of Ramsey Clark to succeed Katzenbach as deputy attorney-general. Clark, 37, is a son of Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark of Texas, who was attorney - general in the Truman administration.

Johnson's action ended speculation about who would replace Robert F. Kennedy as attorney - general. Kennedy resigned last September to campaign for the New York Senate seat he won in November.

Katzenbach, 43, took over as acting attorney - general when Kenbedy left.

Expects Dockers Soon Will Be Back at Work

NEW YORK (AP) — Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz says he expects the Maine-to-Texas dock strike to be settled in time for the 50,000 U.S. longshoremen to be back on the job by the first of next week.

He declines to reveal — "at this time"—the basis of his optimism about ending the 10-day-old lieup by International Longshoremen's Association members.

Holloway St. United Church Opens New Centre Sunday

Congregation members of Holloway Street United Church will see the official opening and dedication services for new Christian Education Centre on Sunday.

A special dedication service, marking the completion of the new $103,000 church addition will be held Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. The church pastor, Rev. C. W. Coleman, will conduct the service.

Constructed on the former parsonage site east of the main church building, the new Christian Education Centre, has been planned to fill church activity needs for all age groups.

Of two-storey construction, the new building is tied in with the former side entrance to the church basement. On the basement level is an assembly hall with stage, kitchen and washrooms, and a smaller meeting area which can be separated from the main assembly room with folding doors.

On the second level there are seven Sunday school rooms, the minister's study and church secretary's office, as well as a fully equipped nursery.

The entire structure has been tied in with the main church building by means of an attractive new church addition. Mr. Ted Wessels was chairman of the building planning committee, while Rev. Oscar Wagar was chairman of the building finance committee.

Own Icebreaker Escorting Russian Ship to Montreal

MOSCOW (CP) — The Russians are taking steps to secure that a second Soviet ship in a new winter cargo service to Montreal doesn't get stuck in St. Lawrence River ice.

The second vessel to make the run is reported to be accompanied by its own icebreaker.

The first, the Volkhovges, entered Montreal Jan. 4 but got stuck in ice as it attempted later to make its way back down the river.

Russian shipping authorities, determined the same won't happen again, have ordered a Soviet icebreaker to accompany the Kapitan Smirnov, which is believed nearing Montreal, informed sources said Thursday. The Volkhovges and the Indigirka are trail blazers in the newly inaugurated freight service. Owned by the Soviet state, they sail between Montreal and Leningrad with stops at a number of European ports.

Man Is Shot, Police Hold Son

WALKER'S POINT, Ont. (CP) — Howard Shubrook, 46, was shot to death in front of his house here Thursday night. Police said he was shot in the stomach with a 12-gauge shotgun.

A son, Randolph, 20, was being held at the OPP office in Bracebridge, 15 miles east of here, for questioning.

Walker's Point is 35 miles north of Orillia.

Farmers of Four Counties Ask Civil Rights Probe for Fairer Expropriation Laws

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Farmers from four western Ontario counties Thursday appealed for new and fairer expropriation laws to safeguard their property rights.

Appearing before Ontario's royal commission on civil rights during its one-day sitting here, agricultural federations from Lambton, Perth, Oxford and Middlesex attacked present expropriation practices of government agencies and utility companies and urged what amounted to a property bill of rights for farmers.

In a 21-page brief, the Lambton Federation of Agriculture called for a thorough investigation of Ontario Energy Board working procedures and of its expropriation hearing secon-ducted last summer in London in connection with a Union Gas Company of Canada Ltd., pipeline from Dawn Township to London Township.

It recommended the board of "high pressure methods" during the hearings, resulting in injustices to owners.

The civil rights inquiry is being conducted by J. C. McRuer, a former Ontario chief justice appointed by Premier Robarts to examine provincial laws and determine if they encroach upon personal rights.

The public hearing in London's citizenship court was one of many to be held across the province.

Oxford Federation of Agriculture and Stanley Down, one of 47 farmers whose land has been wholly or partly expropriated for the Gordon Pittock Dam near Woodstock, concentrated fire upon conservation authorities and especially upon the Upper Thames River Conservation Authority. The UTRCA has been accused of dictatorial tactics in negotiations and expropriations for the Pittock Dam, generating a controversy that remains unsettled.

The Oxford group urged an expropriation policy providing for trials to establish an expropriations agency in need for land, use of qualified farm property appraisers and additional compensation for forceful taking of land.

2 More Ranger Spacecraft Will Endeavor to Determine If Moon Safe for Landings

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Two more Ranger spacecraft are to be launched soon with electronic eyes sharpened for close to a key scientific question: Is the moon safe for the manned landings planned in this decade?

Controversy over interpretation of the 4,316 pictures Ranger 7 televised as it plunged to the lunar surface last July 31 has split authorities into three camps — those who say yes, those who say no and those who say maybe.

Three of the six cameras on Ranger 8, scheduled to be hurled aloft on a three - day journey in mid-February, and on the soon-to-follow Ranger 9 have been modified to take sharper, brighter pictures in hopes of learning whether the moon's surface is hard enough for a man to walk on, or so soft that even a large landing craft would be engulfed.

The other three cameras were left unchanged for comparison with Ranger 7's performance.

Scientists hope Rangers 8 and 9 will go in at a slightly different angle, lengthening the shadows thrown by the rims of craters.

Longer shadows plus brighter pictures could:

Bring out craters too shallow for Ranger 7 to detect. Any significant increase in the expectable number of craters would affect estimates of the hardiness of the surface.

Show whether crater rims and other prominences are as rounded as they appear in Ranger 7 pictures. This roundness has been taken as evidence that they are either formed of dust or covered with a layer of dust.

The craters generally are believed to be the result of impacts by space fragments of many sizes, ranging from miles in diameter to tiny dust specks. Since a truly hard surface would not be cratered but only scratched by all but the biggest fragments, the surface is presumed to be relatively soft.

Pelee Citizens Request Subsidy

PELEE ISLAND, Ont. (CP) Residents of this Lake Erie island near Leamington are asking for a federal subsidy on the cost of flying perishable goods to the island during the winter months.

They have asked Eugene Whelan, member of Parliament for Essex South, to recommend to Transport Minister Pickersgill that the government pay the freight charges on the foods.

Prices on perishable foods average 25 to 50 per cent higher on the island than on the mainland. A 4½ cent freight charge is added to every pound of food flown in.

About one ton of perishable goods is flown to the island weekly, including 1,000 pounds of milk, 300 pounds of bread, 250 pounds of meat, and 200 pounds of fruits, vegetables and other commodities.

Embittered Parents May Go to Congress Claiming Sons Punished for Not Snitching

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The U.S. Air Force Thursday ordered an investigation of the cheating scandal at the Air Force Academy as embittered parents questioned the academy's honor code and threatened to go to Congress about it.

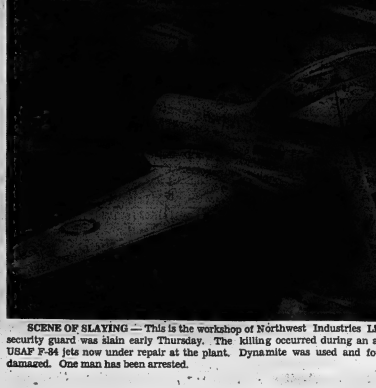
Air Force Secretary Eugene Zuckert announced appointment of a special five-man committee to study programs at the academy, rocked by an examination-sale controversy that has led to the resignation of 65 cadets.

Zuckert said the committee will "review fundamental programs of the Air Force Academy."

Sources at the academy said the number of resignations might reach 300 before the end of the investigation, expected around Feb. 10.

The source described as possible a weak estimate an announcement by Zuckert last week that more than 100 cadets may be involved, including about 30 football players.

Parents have lashed at the honor code as "impractical" and "sadistic." Some said they may ask Congress to look into reasons behind the scandal.



About 700 cadets may be interrogated by a special panel of investigators before the investigation is over.

A majority of the students apparently limited themselves not by actually cheating but by failing to notify superiors when they found cheating existed.

"This is ridiculous — almost sadistic," one parent, who asked not to be identified, said. "For most of us, to snitch on our playmates has always been regarded as something as bad as cheating."

City motorists took a double look yesterday when they saw a large double garage moving along the street . . . almost completely enveloping a large truck. The building was being moved from Herchimer Ave. to Prince of Wales Drive north of College Street. In picture, building is being moved along North Front Street.

SCENE OF SLAYING — This is the workshop of Northwest Industries Limited in Edmonton where a security guard was slain early Thursday. The killing occurred during an attempt to destroy some of the USAF F-84 jets now under repair at the plant. Dynamite was used and four of 112 American jets were damaged. One man has been arrested. Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

I'm going to put the double whammy on a guy.

I've got the witch's brew simmering in the cauldron and a figure shapes up in the miasma.

From here it looks like the Canadian percheron of the third, George Chuvalo. He's sitting in his corner, head bowed, while up front stage and centre a victorious Patterson is receiving the accolades of Madison Square Garden.

That, once again, is the whammy; the curse of the Cervera. It's a good thing I wasn't around to call the shot (no pun intended) when David slugged the giant with a lone slingshot punch.

Always a supporter of the underdog, I would have called David and thereby changed the course of Biblical history.

The curse of the Cervera would have given the giant the nod and the big guy would have taken his javelin-throwing 'hound to a world title.

But I'm defying the curse and calling the former world champion—who doesn't need the long green—to send Mr. Chuvalo back to his used-car lot.

It probably is a new business. He will have $30,000 tucked in his wallet, win, lose or draw.

Patterson doesn't give a whooping crane's whoop for the money. He has plenty stashed away for future reference. In fact he doesn't have to do another day's work, if he feels like getting away from it all.

But what he does want—and want badly enough to come up with the right of his life—is the prestige he lost when he went down to two lopsidalous defeats at the gloves of Sonny Liston.

Why don't I put the whammy on Chuvalo? It is simple. Because I think I've put the whammy on the whammy—and will come up—for the first time since I called the Russian artillery to kick hell out of the Light Brigade in a dozen rounds—with a winner.

What I'm wondering is are the greats, near-greats and whatnots of the past putting a whammy on Chuvalo?

To Joe Louis, Rocky Marciano, Barney Ross and a few more assorted ex-world champions plus some backbenchers, Chuvalo a few months ago was little more than a stepping stone to aspiring world heavyweight leather-pushers.

He was a mill-run fighter who lost decisions against boxers whose names are a country mile away from the last page of "Who's Who in Boxing."

He retired from boxing, then decided to come back on his own. He conducted a do-it-yourself campaign in which he registered a number of wins over novices, a decision over Mike St. John, a draw with Tony Alongi, and a licking from Zora Folley.

Then he leaped halfway up the ratings ladder with a defeat of Doug Jones, a Number Three contender, that electrified the boxing world and caused curious eyes south of the border to shift Chuvalo way.

He got himself a stable of tip-notch trainers and whatnot—and the publicity drums began to thump from the figurative housetops.

Marciano got in on the financial act. Louis, Ross and other former champs visited him and liked what they saw when they said. Then they spread the word that Chuvalo would send Patterson bye-bye with one of his sledgehammer rights.

The Big Blabber, Muhamed Ali, nee Cassius Clay, "got in on d'act" as a commentator. He is caterwauling his opinions of Patterson—and going all out for the Canadian champion.

What Clay and possibly Chuvalo forget is the fact that the people, including the ex-heavyweight champions, pins the world's top sportswriters who are calling the Canadian to win, are the same guys who shouted from the minarets that Liston would obliterate Clay anywhere from the first to the third round.

So I'm whammying the whammy and calling a determined Patterson—call me a trailer if you will—to come out of the Garden ring Monday night, horizontal with his arm held high in victory.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles, who just missed the American League pennant last season, had six players return signed contracts Thursday and three of them — pitchers Mike McCormick and Chuck Estrada and first - baseman Norm Siebern—will be out to reverse recent form in 1965.

McCormick has won just six games in two seasons and spent most of 1964 toiling for the Orioles' International League farm club at Rochester.

Estrada was a key member of the Orioles' youthful pitching staff and won 13 games in his first two seasons. But, like McCormick, he has suffered from arm trouble and produced just six victories in the last two years for Baltimore. He underwent surgery last season and could still come back to make the difference for the Birds.

Siebern slumped badly at the plate. A career .284 hitter, he batted only .238 with his 12 home runs and 56 runs batted in were quite a drop from the honors and the .291 BBI produced the year before.

Other Orioles to sign Thursday were relief pitcher Stu Miller who worked 66 games for a 7-7 record last season, and rookie pitchers Pat McMahon and Ted Miller.

The other signings:

National League

New York — Pitcher Gordon Richardson and Ron Locke, infielder Jim Lampe.

Pittsburgh — Catcher Jimmy Price, outfielder Dave Kwiatkowski, infielder Bob Robertson.

Chicago — Catcher Buddy Booker.

American League

Cleveland — Catcher Camilo Carreon.

New York—Pitchers Roland Sheldon and Hal Reniff.

Minnesota — Pitcher Pete Cimino.

Chicago — Outfielder Tommy Agee, pitchers Eddie Fisher and Gary Bollo, catcher Duane Josephson.

Los Angeles — Pitcher Pat Rogers, outfielder Jackie Warner, infielder Paul Schall.

It was a rough, sloppy and high - scoring contest — something the National Hockey League fans must be coming to expect when Chicago Black Hawks and Boston Bruins meet.

Thursday night's game in Boston ended in a 6-2 victory for the Hawks, the third in a row between the two clubs in which eight goals were scored and team play was undistinguished.

Chicago goalie Glenn Hall made the difference Thursday night.

Back after a four-game layoff, Hall made 37 saves and twice stopped shots while lying flat on his back.

Boston defenceman Ted Green spoiled the shutout attempt at 9:18 of the third period and centre Murray Oliver scored on a 30-foot drive only seconds later.

HAY SHINES

That brief interval was the only bright spot for the Bruins, as it came after the Hawks already built up a 5-0 lead. Bill (Red) Hay spearheaded the attack with two goals and two assists.

Ken Wharram opened the scoring at 12:26 of the first period, taking a pass from Stan Mikita, and Hay netted his first goal unassisted at 17:09.

Defenceman Pierre Pilote, the Chicago captain, scored at 8:57 of the second period and Hay came through with his second goal less than three minutes later.

In the third period, Dennis Hull made it 5-0 with his eighth goal of the season, assisting on the play were Hay and Fred Stanfield, who also set up Pilote's goal.

Then at 8:35, Chico Maki drove in all alone on the Boston net, faked Green and Hall left to chalk up his 11th goal of the campaign.

JOHNSON PRESSED

Eddie Johnson in the Boston net had a tough night-but kicked out 28 shots.

The Bruins now are slated for back - to - back weekend games against Toronto Maple Leafs, whose crippling injuries are beginning to heal.

Two injured Toronto regulars, Captain George Armstrong and winger Andy Bathgate, will be back in the lineup Saturday.

Bathgate was out with an injured hand and Armstrong with strained knee ligaments.

King Clancy, assistant manager-coach, also announced that Leafs' defensive pairings will be changed back to the same combinations that won Toronto its third consecutive Stanley Cup last season.

HORTON BACK

Tim Horton, who has been playing on a forward to fill gaps left by injured players, will go back on defence with Allan Stanley as Carl Brewer will be reunited with Bob Baun.

Clancy has been filling in for coach Punch Imlach, who has been on call at Toronto City Hall for jury duty for the last two weeks. Imlach made the changes Thursday, when the Leafs practised for the first time in three days.

In other weekend games, New York plays in Montreal and Chicago in Detroit Saturday, Sunday, Montreal is at Chicago and Detroit at New York.

Big Night For Commonwealth

Crothers Spurts To Easy Victory

NEW YORK (CP) — Two world indoor records were tied and Commonwealth records were had a great night at the annual Wanamaker - Millrose track meet here Thursday.

Australia's Judith Amoore, Canada's Bill Crothers and England's John Whetton all won their specialties and Sam Perry made the big noise among the home forces in Madison Square Garden by dashing 60 yards in 5.9 seconds.

Perry's performance equalled the indoor mark set by Bob Hayes here last February. Hayes later won the 100 metres for the United States at the Tokyo Olympics.

Miss Amoore and Crothers both won with ridiculous ease before a crowd of 15,962.

The Australia girl outclassed three American and a Hungarian to win the 440 yards in a sizzling 55.6 seconds, matching her own world indoor record set Jan. 16 in Boston. She won by a full three seconds over American Valerie Carter.

TOOK COMMAND

Crothers, currently Canada's top track star, took command of the 880 yards on the gun lap to win going away in a moderately fast 1:51.2.

The 24 - year - old Markham, Ont., physicist, who held third place with a lap-and-a-half to go, spurted past Frank Tuzzo and Ed Duchnik, both Americans, and was at least 10 yards ahead at the tape. Duchnik was second in 1:52.3, Tomso third in 1:52.6.

It was Crothers' first appearance in New York since he won the silver medal in the 800 metres at Tokyo. A favorite with track fans in the Millrose 880 last year in 1:50 flat, narrowly beating Noel Carroll of England.

Commonwealth runners finished one-two-three in the mile. Whetton won in 4:03.4, New Zealand's John Davies was second in 4:06.9 and Ergas Leos of Toronto was third in 4:07.2.

The current American sprint queen and Olympic 100-metres champion, Wyomia Tyus, covered 50 yards in 6.9 seconds to tie the meet record, set in 1961 by her famous predecessor, Wilma Rudolph.

Bill Baillie of New Zealand was second and Billy Mills, the fair - haired boy of U.S. track since he won the 10,000 metres at Tokyo, was third.

Young's time passed up threat to the meet record of 8:41, set by Bruce Kidd of Toronto in 1961.

Gary Gubner, a muscular New Yorker, was the only 1964 Millrose champion. He rides Crothers to defend his title successfully, but got the shot 61 feet 9¾ inches, missing the 66-foot mark for the 18th straight time in the event at Madison Square Garden.

The Baltimore Olympic club took the one-mile club relay in 3:19.7, followed by the New York Pioneer Club and the Toronto East Track Club.

The Canadians were never in contention, although Stan Worsfold ran a fine third leg to give them a brief share of second place with the New York quartet.

The New York club was also timed in 3:19.7, East York in 3:20.7.

Player-Signing Fireworks

Conference Bans A. F. L.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The George Sauer Jr. case threatened to end relations between the University of Texas and the American Football League Thursday.

Without mentioning the player by name, commissioner Joe Foss of the AFL fired a counterblast at Texas officials for redshirting college athletes.

Darrell Royal, Texas football and former head coach of Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference, told the AFL press conference boxes if New York Jets of the AFL signs Sauer, a pass-catching end, before next year, Sauer still has a year of college eligibility.

Redshirting is the practice of withholding a boy from varsity action in one of his three years of eligibility. Although his original college class may have graduated, he then would remain at school for a fifth year and could be available for football.

Sauer's class will be graduated in June but he will not graduate until next year. He was 85th out of varsity competition in 1962, his sophomore year. The talent with Texas team won the Southwest Conference title that year and was host in the Cotton Bowl game.

ATLANTA (AP)—The Southeastern Conference, one of the nation's most fertile recruiting grounds for professional football, voted Thursday to have nothing to do with the American Football League.

The action, taken by the conference's sports publicity men upon recommendation of SEC athletic directors and coaches, came about because the AFL declared its intention to stop the signing of players before they completed their collegiate eligibility.

The National Football League, complying with National Collegiate Athletic Association wishes, has said it will not sign players until they complete their eligibility.

Misses Ace by 2 Inches

Miss Amoore was assist for 55 points, cooking the gap between herself and Hill in nine points. Esposito also picked up one assist for a 45-point total and moved into a fourth-place tie with Claude Provost of Montreal Canadiens.

Norm Ullman of the idle Detroit Red Wings ranks third with 45.

The leaders:

	G.	A.	PTS.
R. Hull, Chicago	37	38	62
B. Hull, Chicago	37	28	56

N.H.L. Scoring Statistics

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With the help of a 3-2 victory over Boston Bruins Thursday night, Chicago Black Hawks have placed four players among the National Hockey League's top seven scorers.

Latest to join the list is the team captain, defenceman Pierre Pilote, who scored one goal and helped set up two others in the Boston game.

That gave Pilote 38 points and put it tie for ninth spot with Red Doyette of New York Rangers.

Other nine high-scoring Chicago players are Bobby Hull, who leads the scoring parade by a wide margin, runner-up Stan Mikita and Phil Esposito.

Riteways Play At Gananoque

Belleville novice Riteways have had their plans for the weekend slightly changed, along with their direction.

The team was slated to take part in an OMHA playoff tournament in Peterborough, one of a number which will be held in the various centres represented in the novice grouping.

However, it seems that Gananoque, also scheduled to take part, had requested and been given permission to hold a novice tournament of their own, also on January 30.

Gananoque protested to the OMHA about the Peterborough tourney and, according to a Belleville team spokesman, the one in Peterborough has been postponed.

The Riteways will play in the Gananoque tournament.

Ring's Fleischer Picks Patterson

If Clever Enough

By AL COLLETTI

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (CP) — Someone described the transformation of heavyweight George Chuvalo of Toronto as something like watching a caterpillar become a butterfly.

He lost his barnyard swing, learned to punch straight with both hands and keep his arms close to the body. But can the heavily - muscled Chuvalo beat the brittle - jawed Floyd Patterson?

Nat Fleischer, editor of Ring magazine, doesn't think he can — if Patterson is at his peak. Chuvalo is a superior slugger inside and Patterson won't be able to work in close too much, says Fleischer. But if Patterson is clever enough, he'll win because he is a much better boxer.

Fleischer went to Sweden to watch Patterson outpoint Eddie Machen in 12 rounds last July.

"Patterson was as good as he ever was when he beat Machen," the veteran boxing observer said. "If he can show the same kind of cleverness against Chuvalo that he did against Machen, he'll win the fight."

LEAVE RETREAT

George will leave his lonely retreat in the Catskill Mountains Saturday to bed down at a New York City hotel while awaiting his 12-round tiltle with Patterson Monday night at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Three weeks of hard training at Kimber's Country Club near Monticello, has left the Canadian champion in the best shape of his three-year pro career. Before coming to the Catskills, he spent six weeks training at Bolton, Ont.

Chuvalo, a slight underdog in the betting, rocketed into the heavyweight spotlight when he knocked out well - regarded Doug Jones in 11 rounds last October. The ex - garden had a little more than 5,000 people for the Jones fight, but Monday night there probably will be a sellout. There are 18,000 seats scaled from $3 to $20 and the house could draw more than $160,000.

There will be no home television or radio broadcasts of the fight. But the promoters have sold closed circuit TV to 54 outlets in 54 cities across Canada and the United States with a potential of 245,000 seats.

There are 11 outlets in Canada in 10 cities with a potential of 64,500 seats. The promoters figure they may sell 35,000 seats in Canada alone.

Cities on the closed circuit include Toronto, Montreal, Quebec, Ottawa and London, Ont.

Fight time is 10 p.m. EST Monday night with the weigh-in scheduled for noon that day. Patterson is expected to scale 194, Chuvalo 207.

British Soccer Scandal

Guilty Players Will Be Banned For Life

LONDON (CP)—British professional soccer has been rocked by a sensational court trial which ended this week with 10 players and ex-players going to jail for conspiring to defraud by game fixing.

Chief Supt. William Bowler of Sheffield said he had sent a dossier naming 33 other soccer players to the director of public prosecutions. But there was no indication whether more charges will be laid.

The lid was blown off the soccer betting scandal by a team of reporters from the Sunday newspaper The People.

For years there were rumors of a few professional soccer players playing to lose in order to cash in by betting on the other team.

The People's reporters got together the evidence, sometimes paying for information and then putting it to the guilty players in tape - recorded interviews.

Jimmy Gauld, a 35-year-old ex-player who was jailed for four years, was the central figure in the betting plot which involved players all over the country.

Gauld made more than £3,000 ($8,000), in three years from betting on matches he knew were going to be thrown. He was then paid another £7,000 ($21,000) by agreeing to tell all he knew to The People.

Gauld and the other nine guilty men almost certainly will never again play soccer or take part in soccer league administration anywhere in the world.

THREW AWAY CAREERS

Two of the nine, England international players Tony Kay and Peter Swan, threw away their careers for the sake of £100 ($300), the sum they were paid for making sure their team, Sheffield Wednesday, lost an English League first-division match against Ipswich Town in December, 1962.

Nearly 50 league soccer matches are played in England weekly, attracting crowds totaling 500,000 or more.

The association has not yet announced what action it will take against the men convicted this week, but there is little doubt all will be suspended for life.

Cliff Lloyd, secretary of the Professional Players Union, has made a plea for the 10 players to be permitted to join clubs outside Britain when they are released from jail.

Lloyd says:

"They have been punished by law, and they will be punished again by the Football Association who will no doubt ban them all for life.

"The FA might consider the players' families, who although completely guiltless, will also have to suffer."

There has been no indication that any of the guilty players intends to appeal conviction or sentence.

Climb Into First-Place Tie

Picton Juniors Thump B's 7-3

PICTON (Staff) — Belleville "B's" went down to their fourth consecutive OHA Eastern Junior defeat here last night and Picton Merchants used the win to climb into a first-place tie.

Picton thumped the Belleville squad 7-3 and share the loop's top rung with Gananoque. The Islanders, with a game in hand, play the slumping "B's" in Belleville tonight at nine o'clock.

While Belleville outshot the winners 55-37, Picton never trailed. The Merchants took a 2-1 lead in the first and made it 4-1 after two frames. The losers held a 2-1 edge in the final period but to no avail.

Larry Holmes was treme-ndous in the Picton nets once again as the "B's" tossed 26 shots at him in the opening heat, 11 in the second and a big 24 in the third.

Harold Haddock spearheaded the Picton attack by scoring once in each period to earn his hat trick. Gary Haesnel was a two-goal man while Billy Hopkins led all point-getters with a goal and three assists. Bart Frederick sunk the other goal. George Bulgiewski, Billy Hicks, Ernie Sharpe and Ted Bray contributed assists.

High-scoring Jim Rutherford again sparked the Belleville squad. He scored two goals and assisted on the other one, fired by Bobby Boyle. Grant Hagerman earned two assists with one each for Jim Woodcock and Roy Marsele.

There were 13 minor penalties called in the contest with nine of them going to Belleville. The "B's" were shorthanded for all three Picton goals in the middle period.

Picton's Haesnel gave the winners a 1-0 lead at 3.20 of the first and Frederick added to 2-0 at 10.24. The "B's" cut the lead in half one minute later when Rutherford netted his first. Haddock's marker at 15.37 ended the period scoring.

Hopkins at 7.37, Haddock at 9.48 and Haesnel at 14.26 upped the score to 6-1 in the third.

Belleville, pressing in the third, threatened a comeback with a pair of quickies. Rutherford at 5.46 and Boyle at 6.09 cut the Picton lead to 6-3. Holmes and his mates slammed the door then, however, and in the game's final minute, Haddock completed his hat trick for the final 7-3 score.

Hawks Tie Red Wings, Flyers Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Red Wings had a two-goal lead twice but still needed a desperation score to manage a 6-6 tie with St. Catharines Black Hawks in their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series game Thursday night.

Real Lemieux scored with three seconds left in the game after Wayne Hicks goalie Jean-Guy Ruest was on the bench, to tie the game.

On Thursday's other game, the league - leading Niagara Falls Flyers, paced by the goal-tending of Bernie Parent, scored a 4-3 victory over the Peterborough Petes.

Ron Schock scored two goals for Hamilton, with Jimmy Peters, Bart Crashley, Jim Mair and Lemieux adding one each.

Paul Turbenche, Ken Laidlaw, Bill Carnes, Wayne Maki, Ken Hodge and Harry Macmillan scored for St. Catharines. Macmillan drew a penalty giving Hamilton a man advantage for the final minute of play.

Bill Goldsworthy tallied twice for Niagara Falls and Jean Pronovost and Derek Sanderson scored the others.

Danny Grant, Jim Peterson and Mickey Redmond were the scorers for Peterborough.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Two Olympic medal winners—a Canadian and a Hungarian—will be among 250 athletes at the sixth track and field International Meet of Champions Saturday night.

Bruce Jayasena of Montreal and Vilmos Varju, bronze medallists at Tokyo in the 100-metres and shot put respectively, are two of 11 Olympic competitors who have accepted invitations to the meet, sponsored by the Manitoba and Northwestern Ontario Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Jerome, co-holder of the world 100-metre record at 10 seconds and of the Canadian 60-yard indoor mark at 6.1 seconds, will run in the 60-yard dash. His chief opponent will be Tom Robinson, a native of The Bahamas now competing out of Washington, D.C., who holds the world indoor record for 200 metres at 33 seconds. is co-holder of the Canadian indoor 60-yard mark and was a finalist in the Olympic 100 metres.

Varju, whose best throw is 61 feet, 8½ inches, will be opposed by Yui Yost of Mississauga and Dave Steen of Vancouver.

Chi Cheng of Formosa, who competed in the 1960 Olympics in Rome, and holds Asian records in the women's 220-yard low hurdles and the broad jump, will be two Olympic veterans in the women's hurdles — Jenny Wingerson of Calgary and Willye White of Chicago.

Miss Wingerson has also entered the women's high jump, where her top opponent will be Eleanor Montgomery of Cleveland, a United States flag-bearer at Tokyo.

Miss Szabo of Hungary, fourth in the Olympic women's half mile, will run against Abigail Hoffman of Toronto, another Canadian Olympic competitor. Miss Szabo has a best time in the half-mile of two minutes, 5.4 seconds compared to Miss Hoffman's two minutes, 10 seconds.

Celebrities Dinner

'Timmy' Steals Clay Thunder

TORONTO (CP) — Cassius Clay won right.

He got the biggest throng of admirers at Thursday night's Sports Celebrities Dinner. But a 10-year-old boy, symbol of Ontario's crippled children, got a bigger ovation.

Clay—"I'm a living legend at 23"—even had other athletes interviewing him at a pre-dinner press conference.

The star of the 14th annual dinner, however, was Herbert Berden of Toronto as he sat at the head table and watched the names in big-league sport tell their jokes. He is 1965's Timmy.

When it was all over, the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association "had attracted 1,206 people to the $25-a-plate dinner for a donation of $25,000 to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

COLLECT GIFTS

In addition, donations totalling $30,362 were collected and Toronto sportsman Harry Sherkin handed over another $27,000 from various individuals and organizations.

The money this year will go specifically toward completing payment on a swimming pool in the Toronto Crippled Children's Centre.

Clay had only two things to say of note. The first was that Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo of Toronto will knock out former champion Floyd Patterson in the fifth round of their bout in New York Monday.

The second was that he is still champion no matter what the World Boxing Association says.

Clay was stripped of his title by the WBA shortly after he won it last year because he signed a rematch clause with deposed champion Sonny Liston.

"I'll be the champion until I'm beaten in the ring," Clay said. "I've established a name that will never die. People won't be satisfied with any other champion."

But Timmy still had the final word.

"We're all working hard to get better," he said, leaning on his walking canes. "Good night and God bless you."

Lancaster, W. Germans Tie 2-2

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—A second - period goal by Gorg Schobi gained the West German national hockey team a 2-2 tie with Lancaster Monarchs of the Southern New Brunswick Hockey League in an exhibition game before nearly 3,000 fans here Thursday night.

Schobi deflected a shot from the point to beat goalie Charlie MacTavish at 7:41 of the second period after Lancaster, an intermediate team, took a 2-1 lead in the first period. There was no scoring in the third.

It was West Germany's third game in an exhibition tour which will take them across Canada. They beat Charlottetown Royals 6-3 and Fredericton Capitals 6-4 earlier this week.

Sandra, Pal Turn Back Veterans

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP)—A couple of youngsters—18-year-old Sandra Post of London, Ont., and college co-ed Margaret Jones of Covington, Ky.—upset a team of veteran tournament players in the opening round of the international 4-wall handball Thursday.

Miss Post and Miss Jones eliminated Carolyn Cudone of West Caldwell, N.J., former Curtis Cup player and 1962 champion here, and Marge Burns of Greensboro, N.C., who has won most of the amateur competitions in this country, by a score of 2 and 1.

A comeback try by the veterans, down three at the end of 18, was stopped by a technicality.

They won the 16th and Mrs. Burns sank a par putt on the 17th. Miss Post had yet to putt and Mrs. Cudone picked up her ball, thinking her team had already won the hole. She immediately realized her mistake, but it was too late.

North Shore Hockey League

Cherry Valley and Albury chalked up victories in Friday night's North Shore League games played at Wellington last night.

Albury dumped Demorestville 6-2 and Cherry Valley topped Melville Shovellers 3-1.

Liberty Hall of Melville battled down to the wire with the winners getting the nod on the strength of two third-frame markers. It was 0-0 and 1-1 by periods.

G. Brummell, Les Pendleton and R. Brummell were the Cherry Valley marksmen.

Eldon Carson potted the lone Melville goal.

Eleven penalties were handed out in this game, one of them a misconduct to Melville.

Albury never trailed against Demorestville, in front 3-1 and 5-1 by periods.

Pete Mitchell and Reg Ell sparked the winners with two goals apiece. Lee Andrews and Bill Genereaux added the other goals and John Emerson drew three assists.

R. Baldwin and H. Kempers fired the losers' goals.

Included among 13 penalties were four misconducts to the Demorestville crew.

Four Earn Trip To U. S.

Toronto Students Grab Track Spotlight

TORONTO (CP) — Four Toronto area high school track stars turned in outstanding performances on the indoor oval at Maple Leaf Gardens Thursday night, earning themselves a trip to the United States interscholastic championships in New York later this year.

Ken How, Brian Richards and Mitch Hurst of Toronto Neil McNeil with George Neeland of nearby Thornhill were standouts at the second annual Ontario high school indoor track meet which kicked off two days of track events.

The highlight will be a star-studded international track meet tonight, featuring an array of Olympic medalists including Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., and Bob Schul, the 10,000-yard event in the Millrose Games at New York Thursday night.

Among the other outstanding performances here Thursday night, although he failed to grab a berth on the Ontario team to the U.S., was Glen McWilliams, running for Ottawa's Woodroffe High School.

McWilliams scored an easy win in the intermediate boys' 1,000-yard run, and showed a performance here that could pull away from Tom Musgrove and Dave Patterson of Toronto on the journey.

NOW GOING AWAY

How, running for T. L. Kennedy Secondary School, won going away as he clocked the senior boys' mile in 4:25.8. A distance second was Ken Wilson of Richview Collegiate, Toronto, while Peer Jensen of R. H. King Secondary School, Toronto, was third.

Richards and Peter Buniak of Oakville Mimico staged a nip-and-tuck duel in the senior two-mile event. When half the 22 laps were completed they had already lapped nearly half the field.

But Richards turned on the steam and took a 15-yard lead with three laps remaining and stepped up a 40-yard victor. Bruce Thompson of Ottawa Woodroffe was third.

Hearne turned in two outstanding performances, sprinting to an easy win in the 50-yard dash in 5.3 seconds, then anchoring the Neil McNeil 660-yard relay team to a sensational win as he came from 10 yards off the pace on the final leg to nip Parkside Collegiate of Dundas.

Neeland was equally sensational in the hurdles, covering the 50-yard event in 6.2 seconds and finishing well ahead of Paul Rombeek of Sarnia Northern Collegiate and David Plaher of London South Secondary School, both timed in 6.7 seconds.

Aldershot High School won the lone girls' event at Thursday night's meet, a 220-yard relay that was run off in four heats with the fastest time winning the event.

"I'm TRYING to bring it over . . . I just didn't realize bed tables like this were so heavy!"

The Aldershot foursome completed the two laps in 40 seconds flat, edging entries from Ottawa's Hillcrest Collegiate and Parkside Collegiate of Dundas.

Quinte Hockey League

Rosemore and Horlock Electrics staged come-from-behind rallies in the Quinte Hockey League last night.

But there was one difference. Rosemore's rally ceived them to a 4-3 win over Saco. Horlock's comeback bid fell short and they dropped a 5-3 decision to the Ter-Naar Daubers.

SACO led Rosemore 3-0 at the end of the first period. Rosemore fired two in the second and won it with another unanswered pair in the third.

"Widge" Adams, Don Adams, Dennis Kerrelak and Ron Smith triggered the Rosemore goals. "Widge" Adams had two assists. Ron Archer and Ted Hutchinson one each.

Gary Greenwood scored twice and Doug Lucas once for SACO. Ken Forsythe and Stand Woodcock got single assists.

Ter-Naar built a 4-0 first-frame lead against Horlocks. It was 5-1 after two and Ter-Naar Horlock's pair in the third was too little and too late.

Don Moore bagged two double goals with Hubert Poitner, Bob Jeffery and Ron Poitner also scoring. H. Poitner, with two, Ron Urch, Jeffery, Al Rutan and Pete McNevin, had assists.

Don Stewart scored twice and Bob Wannamaker once in the 4-3 feat. Leroy McBrien assisted on two goals and Robb Burrows on one.

CATCHER DIES

NEWBERG, Ore. (AP)—The man who invented catching—as the baseball players say—died Thursday. He would have been 90 Sunday. Doctors said a heart ailment took the life of Billy Sullivan, Chicago White Sox baseball star at the turn of the century. Catchers once stood 20 feet behind home plate, out of danger from foul tips. Sullivan is credited with inventing the first chest protector — owing to the position catchers now use.

"Like a Girl of 20" Dietrich Sweeps London

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — They call her the world's most glamorous grandmother but, as theatre critic Harold Hobson says, anyone who looks at Marlene Dietrich and talks about grandmothers must be a psychiatric case.

The blonde diva from Berlin, at least 62 years old but without a wrinkle on her beautifully sculptured face and tossing her corn-silk hair like a girl of 20, swept into London recently on her first-ever solo stage appearance here and took the town by storm in a manner that would make a Beatle envious.

The way she keeps the years at bay is almost a contradiction of nature and it seems to fascinate men and women alike. Not her mysterious youthfulness alone hardly accounted for the fantastic scenes during her three - week season at the Queen's Theatre, where to one of the shortest, most pricey shows in town—70 minutes, $5.25 — Marlene was a sellout every night.

"Where have all the young men gone?" asked The Daily Sketch, borrowing a line from a Dietrich song and explaining a double-page picture of a happy mob waving banknotes to be autographed at the stage door. "Come to see Dietrich, every one."

CAPTIVATES AUDIENCE

It's more than 30 years since the long-legged, gravel-voiced beauty, then an unknown student from a Berlin drama school, perched atop a nightclub piano in top hat and tights in The Blue Angel and grated out the unforgettable Falling in Love Again. And she has enslaved the fathers, so now she seems to have conquered the sons.

There is mystery and untold depths of experience in her face. "Her pale beauty is quite extraordinary," wrote Hobson in The Sunday Times. "What makes it unique is that she looks as if she has brought it back from the gates of hell." I think she knows more about love than anyone," said the late Ernest Hemingway — and the message gets through. Her slow-burning, almost casual seductiveness, and the hooded eyes that seem to have seen and understood everything, make Brigitte Bardot and the rest look very innocent sex-kittens indeed.

She also possesses 22-carat star quality, the kind that holds a packed theatre absolutely still, and the combination is electric. From the moment she appears on stage, sleeker as a teen-ager in a clinging gold-beaded gown, to the last glimpse of her blonde head between the red velvet curtains after a storming, 10-minute ovation, she has effortless command.

CUTS OFF APPLAUSE

So effortless it sometimes seemed offhand. She chopped off applause with an imperious flip-per where other performers would have wallowed in it, and stood almost motionless for most of her 18 numbers, that fascinating throaty voice playing on the audience's emotions like a hand across a harp.

"There is pain and ferocious endurance in the lower regions of her voice," wrote Penelope Gilliatt, theatre critic of The Observer. Mrs. Gilliatt's review, one of a unanimous chorus of raves, said Dietrich's life embodied so many generations and warring countries that it was no wonder nobody else could sing "When Have All the Flowers Gone? so movingly.

This modern American folk ballad, a lament for the human waste of war, has become almost as much a Dietrich hallmark as her famous Blue Angel numbers or the song she filched from Rommel's Afrika Korps and set the Allied forces singing around the world in 1942—Lili Marlene.

But what the audience always clamors for is Falling in Love Again, a bitter-sweet, haunting melody with a lyric no one else could deliver with such a world of meaning:

Men sister round me like moths around a flame,
"And if they burn their wings, then I'm not to blame."

REPORTS INCOME

Trans-Canada Pips Lions Ltd., had net income for the year ended Dec. 31, 1964, of $12,245,000, or $1.80 a share, compared with $9,800,000 or $1.52 a share the previous year, J. W. Kerr, president, says in a report to shareholders.

GLAMOROUS GRANDMOTHER — Marlene Dietrich, sometimes called the world's most glamorous grandmother, swept into London recently on her first-ever solo stage appearance and took the town by storm. The blonde siren from Berlin, at least 62 years old but without a wrinkle on her face, started singing more than 30 years ago. (CP Photo)

Add Suspense To Festival

TORONTO (CP) — The suspense will be prolonged at this year's regional festival of the Central Ontario Drama League.

To give the adjudicator more time to select trophy winners and choose the group that will represent CODL at the Dominion Drama Festival in May, announcement of awards will not be made until the night after the festival ends.

Previously, winners were named immediately after the final performance but CODL's festival committee felt this placed undue pressure on the adjudicator and decided on the change.

This year's festival will be held in Toronto Tuesday, March 30, to Friday, April 2. Awards will be announced at a special Saturday night gathering. April 4 to be followed by a celebration party.

CODL's entry, the Broadview YMCA Barn Players, won the 1964 Dominion festival with Shelagh Delaney's "A Taste of Honey."

ORDERED TO RESIGN

VIENNA (AP)—Laszio Papp, Hungary's European middleweight boxing champion, has been ordered by his country's Communist regime to quit professional boxing, the Vienna Daily Express reported Thursday. The paper said it obtained the information from the undefeated 38 - year - old boxer after he was told by Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar and sports authorities Wednesday that he had to resign.

JOHNS TO BALTIMORE

NEW YORK (AP) — Center York Rangers returned defenceman Don Johns to Baltimore of the American Hockey League Thursday. Johns was recalled last week to fill in for the ailing Jim Neilson. The latter, sidelined with a shoulder injury, is expected to play in Saturday's six - team NHL games against Montreal and Detroit.

CONFIRMS INTENTION

MEXICO CITY (Reuters) — Gen. Clark Flores, head of the Mexican Olympic committee, reaffirmed Thursday Mexico's intentions of staging the 1968 Olympic games. The general sent a cable to Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, after reports arriving here Wednesday from Detroit said Mexico is behind in preparations for the games.

AT THE BELLE — Convinced of his talent as a composer, Gussie Oliver urges George Hamilton to write a new song in this scene from "Your Cheatin' Heart". The new MGM picture, showing Tonight and Saturday, tells the story of the late country-western singer Hank Williams, one of the most popular natural entertainers of his time. Red Buttons and Arthur O'Connell. It features ten of Williams' greatest song hits, sung on the sound track by Hank Williams, Jr., himself a popular concert and recording star.

Lunt and Fontanne Perfect As Famous Judge and Wife

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC's Hall of Fame Thursday night was a delightful 90 minutes in which Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne played U.S. Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes and his wife, Fanny.

The Magnificent Yankee was a series of incidents starting in 1902 and ending in 1933.

Like the acting couple, the great judge and his wife were a devoted couple, and wise and witty.

Lunt and his wife were perfect and played the many light lines to the hilt. Miss Fontanne was beautiful. Indeed she looked so young during most of the program it was a shock when finally she was made up to be 80 years old and in poor health. Lunt, too, aged slowly and convincingly.

The show was beautifully produced with authentic period backgrounds.

Recommended Sunday viewing.

The American Sportsman, ABC, 4-5 p.m. EST, special on hunting and fishing, with Robert Stack; For The People, CBS, 9-10, premiere of a new dramatic series starring Hesidian William Shatner as a U.S. assistant district attorney.

At the Park
TODAY-SATURDAY

A thoroughly-satisfying excursion into the world of fantastic horror currently is being enjoyed by Park theatre audiences. Taking them on their tour of terror is "The Gorgon," a lady who grows poisonous snakes instead of hair and who has the awesome ability to turn into cold stone anyone who looks upon her.

A Hammer Films horror production in Eastman Color released here by Columbia Pictures, "The Gorgon" is the cinematic updating of an ancient Greek legend. It also is a tense, suspenseful terror tale starring Peter Cushing and Christopher Lee, two masters of the macabre, with Richard Pasco, Michael Goodliffe and Barbara Shelley featured. Miss Shelly, a former magazine cover girl, is redheaded, attractive and brilliantly capable of matching stares for mood, and her romance with her more experienced cast associates.

"The Gorgon" is set in the turn-of-the-century German village of Vandorf, where a series of murders take place, the victims all are turned to stone. When a scientist arrives to investigate the death of his son, he too becomes a petrified corpse; a second son shows up to carry the investigation on, and to a blood-curdling conclusion.

On the same program, second terror, "Curse of the Mummy's Tomb." In color, starring Terence Morgan, Ronald Howard, Fred Clark and Jeanne Roland. Both hits are first Belleville showings with complete showing at 7.00 and 8.45 p.m. tonight.

Now Flippen Has Leg Off, He Feels Wonderful Again

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The doctor told me I could stay in the hospital and be a parasite, or I could lose my leg. So I lost the leg."

Actor Jay C. Flippen, 64, was speaking from his bed at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, where his right leg was amputated at the knee last Sunday. Far from feeling depressed about the loss, he can hardly wait to be fitted for an artificial leg and get back to work.

Flippen's weather-worn face is familiar to movie audiences for his wall-etched roles, often as grizzled westerners or hard-bitten top sergeants. Television fans will remember him as Dean Jones' navy chief in Ensign O'Toole.

He was a successful comedian in vaudeville. Broadway shows and on radio before slipping easily into a career as one of the movies' most serviceable character actors. It was on his latest film, The Ballad of Cat Ballou, that he noticed a sore on his leg.

"I tried treating it with home remedies, but it kept getting worse," he recalled. "Finally I couldn't move it, and I went in a doctor. He told me it was a mass of infection and gangrene was setting in."

DEAD IN WEEKS' PAIN

Flippen went to the hospital and lay for 10 weeks in constant pain. A clogged artery added to his trouble, and although he ate as heartily as he could, his weight dropped from 186 to 132.

That was when he was faced with the dilemma posed by his physician, Dr. Rex Kaphamer, who has also treated such notables as Elizabeth Taylor, Gary Cooper and Marilyn Monroe.

He was this: Either lose the leg or face a vegetable-like existence. The infection was where his right leg was amputated at the knee last Sunday. Far from feeling depressed about the loss, he can hardly wait to be fitted for an artificial leg and get back to work.

Says Mayor Misled Council About Control of Policemen

PORT ELGIN, Ont. (CP)— Reeve Charles Drummond told a police commission hearing Thursday that Mayor W. A. Davey lied to council about whether Const. Charles Riley could have been fired after six months as probationary chief last year.

"... We listened to so many lines from Mr. Davey about what we could and could not do," he told the hearing which resumed here this week after opening last month.

Mr. Drummond said Mayor Davey first told council it could fire Const. Riley on before six months and then changed his mind and said a dismissal would be illegal without a hearing.

He said former police commission chairman Angus Eaton had informed council it could not dismiss Const. Riley without a hearing.

"You don't really mean that Mayor Davey was misled when he was asked by Robin Scott, police commission counsel.

"I call it what you like," Mr. Drummond replied.

The police commission hearing was called to investigate developments leading to the dismissal or suspension of the original three-man police force in this Lake Huron resort town 25 miles west of Owen Sound.

Chief Riley was fired by council twice, but refused to quit his job and remained a rank corporal and has been policing the town with assistance from provincial police at Kincardine.

Const. George Taggart also was fired and Const. Karl MacNaughton quit after he was suspended and later reinstated.

Mr. Drummond said he didn't "have any grudge against Riley" but didn't think he should have been appointed chief.

The reeve denied earlier testimony that former councillors W. J. Bell and Dean Reeder had gone to the police office last summer to have charges of dangerous and impaired driving laid against a friend of Mr. Bell, withdrawn.

Asked whether he was sure of his answer, Mr. Drummond said: "I'm not the first person that stretched things a point here."

Mr. Bell testified that Const. Riley was appointed instead of two outside applicants as "the lesser of the two evils."

Warns Parties Not to Court Extremists

EDMONTON (CP) — Paul Martineau, Quebec Conservative member of Parliament, said Thursday any national political party that courts extremist reaction to Quebec's evolution is "doomed to extinction."

Mr. Martineau, speaking at a meeting of Liberals during French Canada week there, said because the aims of the "quiet revolution" are difficult to understand there is a temptation for a political party to "cede" to those animated by prejudice or even marshal the forces of backwardness.

Mr. Martineau, member for Pontiac - Temiscamingue, is a member of the finance caucus that has asked the Conservative national executive to call a national convention to oust John Diefenbaker's leadership of the party.

Mr. Martineau said failure to establish a "permanent footbold" in Quebec created an unhealthy situation for both major federal parties.

"It has left the parties along ethnic or racial lines — the Liberal party being sometimes identified with French and the Conservatives, an English or imperial party."

"This is more unfair, he said, because both parties brought about achievements that were Canadian in scope and character.

Mr. Martineau said it would be a "fatal temptation" for any party to play section against section.

Any party embarking on such a course would lose its national character, and reduce itself to a faction isolated from the main current of the nation, he said.

STIRLING

Public Library Lists Officers

STIRLING — Stirling Public Library held its re-organization meeting and the new slate of officers is as follows: President, Mrs. Ross Patterson; treasurer, Mrs. Bruce Glendinning; secretary, Mrs. Carleton Potts; publicity committee, Don Rodgers, Mrs. Gordon Bailey and Mrs. Don Williams; book committee, Mrs. Carleton Potts, Mr. W. Camm and Mr. Marvyn Scott.

The reports stated that 13,237 books were read in 1964 and this is a yearly increase of 3,351. The library is a part of the Lake Ontario Regional Library Co-operative and thus there are many advantages for reference books and questions.

Later in the spring it is hoped to have "Open House" at which there will be a display of the work of local amateur artists. This will be a collection of water colors, sketches and oil paintings.

Man o' War Plunges Into Fight to Bolster Paper

By BRUCE LEVETT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Maj.-Gen. Victor W. Odlum—diplomat, business executive and intimate of world figures—at 84 left his quiet world of books and friends to jump back into the turmoil of the newspaper business.

Why?

Tell them the silly old fellow didn't know enough to keep quiet," he says. "I grew restless."

The full answer lies somewhere beyond that, but Gen. Odlum is a man of war whose battles all are fought and a man of words who cannot tell his own story.

He was chairman of the board when the Vancouver Times began publication last September as Vancouver's third daily newspaper. A month ago he moved into the job of publisher, taking over from William Val Warren who continues as president.

The Times claims 50,000 circulation and 5,000 shareholders. Beset with difficulties from the outset, the paper lost 9,000 circulation the first month because, Mr. Warren says, "we couldn't deliver the paper on time and we couldn't print it properly."

Since then, he says, it has been overcoming to the point where "we'll be in the black inside six months."

STIFF TOUGH'

At 84, Gen. Odlum still has the lean hard figure of a frontline soldier, piercing blue eyes and face of a hawk.

"I'm still a pretty tough boy," he says, crediting his condition to the fact he does not smoke or drink and never has.

The years have mellowed some of his opinions, however. His political score: a prohibitionist. I don't believe in it anymore. Your cafe make people be good by law."

Gen. Odlum is not Canada's oldest publisher, a distinction belonging to D. H. Leslie, 98, of the Niagara Falls Review.

A man once mentioned in dispatches "one of the most fearless fighters on the Western Front," the general's philosophy today is "do good or do nothing at all."

"Though he has outlived most of his contemporaries, he says he cannot write his memoirs without hurting persons he has known and respected.

"If my intimate life story is to be written, it will have to be by someone else. I can't write about the people who have come to me in trouble and pain."

A soldier in the Boer War and the two world wars, Gen. Odlum once began a military career with self-imposed restriction that he would write about nothing he did not know at first hand.

"I found the limit of human knowledge to be so short."

READ BOOK A DAY

Men write "with financial reasons or for pride," he believes, and "as each day passes, I want that less and less."

"The desire for recognition makes many men into good, robust liars. I don't want that."

If he could be remembered for anything he says, he would like it to be "in connection with books."

He read a book a day until he found he had a collection of 10,000 books, which he turned over to the library of the University of British Columbia.

He still reads voraciously, approaching each book "to get the germ of the message and build it into my life."

Whoever writes the general's story will not lack for material. It's a colorful past and the information is handy—his passion is to put his voluminous files in logical order" so "anyone else can find what is necessary."

Victor Odlum was born in Cobourg, Ont., a son of a Methodist minister, and was "brought up in a Puritan Sunday school." At nine, after four years in Japan with his parents, he landed in Vancouver.

At 17, following schooling in Ontario, he returned to Vancouver. It has been his home town ever since.

My first job was piling boards in a lumber mill. My hands were full of slivers and I lived for three weeks on a one-week meal ticket."

WON COMMISSION

He later enlisted in the 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, as a private and went to South Africa. On a Boer War battlefield he won a commission as lieutenant in the 3rd Canadian Mounted Rifles.

During the First World War he rose from major to brigadier and commanded the 11th Canadian Brigade. He and another officer were credited with originating the technique of hit-and-run trench raids later adopted by all Allied forces and even copied by the Germans.

Twice wounded and seven times mentioned in dispatches, he won the Distinguished Service Order the night of Nov. 16, 1915, at Mesnines, France. He was a lieutenant-colonel at the time commanding the 7th Battalion. The citation said he showed "conspicuous ability and energy" in organizing an attack on German lines, adding that his "coolness and determination" were instrumental in its success.

He later was awarded a bar to his DSO and was also made a Companion of the Bath and Companion of St. Michael and St. George, two distinguished orders of chivalry.

In 1940 he was promoted major-general and took the 2nd Canadian Division overseas but before the Normandy invasion he was assigned to Australia as high commissioner and later became Canadian ambassador in China and in Turkey.

BOUGHT NEWSPAPER

Between wars he was a newspaper man and built up an insurance and bond business.

In 1932 he joined the now-defunct Vancouver World as a reporter and three years later was editor-in-chief at the age of 25.

In 1934, his private interests flourishing, he bought the morning newspaper The Daily Star and published it until 1933 when it went under.

"Newspaper publishing was different in those days. We tried to give the readers the really important stories of the day. I had a dictum that a crime story would never disgrace my front pages."

In an interview a few years ago he elaborated:

"The glamor has gone out of publishing. Now it is just as other big business. The crime story has become the feature of modern journalism."

The most important thing in life, he said at that time, is a friend. And today's best friend is his wife. Mrs. Odlum, the former Sada Eugenia Tressa Rogerson whom he married in 1904, has been ill for years. They had three sons, Roger, Victor and Malcolm.

The general has travelled the equivalent of 80 times around the world, by his own reckoning. He has travelled widely in Africa and the Arab world.

Of the people of Africa, he says:

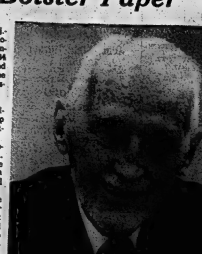
"They don't trust us—but they don't trust the next tribe."

FOUGHT BESIDE WINNIE

At the age of 70 he thought he was through with the business world and settled down to "just enjoy life as the good friend of a great many people."

Among those he numbered Sir Winston Churchill, whom he met in South Africa and alongside whom he commanded a unit in France.

Another intimate was the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur whom he compares with Alexander the Great in generalship but a soldier whose greatest weakness was the assessment of people.



"He was the cleverest soldier who ever came through an American staff college."

Gen. Odlum says he was a man with "a yearning for peace" but that he spent the 20 years from 1920 preparing for a war he knew must come.

"There will never be peace in the world until there is a power strong enough to say to all nations 'you may argue, you may quarrel, but you may not fight,'" he once said.

PUBLISHER AT 84—Maj.-Gen. Victor W. Odlum, after distinguished careers as a soldier, diplomat and business executive, at 84 has become a publisher of a daily newspaper. He was chairman of the board when the Vancouver Times began publication last September and a month ago took on the job of publisher. Gen. Odlum says "I'm still a pretty tough boy," crediting his condition to good living. (CP Photo)

Urges Canadians Raise Spending On Development

OTTAWA (CP) — T. E. Rowlands, president of the Canadian Association of Aerial Surveyors, Wednesday urged Canadians to channel more of their savings into Canada's economic development.

He told the annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Surveying that Canadians too often sit back and wait for foreign capital to discover new Canadian resources and develop them.

Mr. Rowlands, president of Survair Limited of Ottawa, made the statements in a speech stressing the role played by the aerial survey industry in the development of the Canadian economy.

Mr. Rowlands said to exploit Canada's natural resources properly there must be a continuous program of aerial surveying, including surveys of the shape of the land to permit the building of rail lines, roads, dams, airports, harbors and communication systems and magnetometer surveys to show mineral wealth below the surface of the land.

Mr. Rowlands said aerial magnetometer surveys have revealed the existence of rich ore deposits in many parts of Canada. The most recent was the discovery of a huge nickel deposit near Timmins, Ont., by Texas Gulf Sulphur.

The meeting is attended by some 600 delegates from Canada, the United States, Britain, Europe, South America and Australia.

Canada's Best Year Yet In Housing

OTTAWA (CP) — Last year was Canada's best year yet in housing.

A record 165,658 housing units were started, surpassing by nearly 1,000 the previous record set in 1958. The figure was 11.5 per cent higher than the 148,624 units started in 1963.

Figures released Wednesday by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation show that records also were established for dwelling completions and the number of units under construction at the year's end.

Completions totalled 150,983 units, 17.8 per cent higher than in 1963. Units under construction totalled 74,000 at the end of 1963 to 107,718 at the end of 1964.

Loans under the National Housing Act were approved for 58,133 units during the year. This was 3.3 per cent higher than the previous year.

Canada Has Pain in Tummy, Only Cure Men in Kitchens

HAMILTON (CP)—Canada has a pain in its tummy, says a home economics education-ist, and the only cure is more men in kitchens.

Dr. Margaret McReady of Guelph University's Macdonald Institute said Wednesday the food that is the bottom of the social ladder and that more men must be lured into food services to help in handling and cooking.

She told an Ontario Turkey Association meeting that restaurateurs prefer female cooks because they will work more cheaply.

Restaurants perpetuate bad eating habits and poor cooking because their cooks prefer to fry everything, she added. It's faster.

Dr. McReady said in the last 50 years the number of people eating in restaurants has increased five - fold and that unless more men are attracted to the food trade, poor food, bad management and low wages will prevail.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have to get this off my chest and tell someone, because I can't sleep nights thinking about it.

My husband and I just signed the mortgage papers for our home, and I put down my age as 36. Actually I am 42. I put above the place we signed was a statement that the penalty for giving false information in the application was a $1,000 fine or one year in jail.

Even though everyone tells me I look no older than 36, I am deathly afraid the bank will discover I lied. I was a fool to be so vain, but what can we do now. — C. D.

ANSWER: It is my experience that unless the information is of critical importance, even hard-hearted bankers, being worldly — and having wives of their own — are realists, and gentlemen enough to grant women their traditional prerogative to fib about their age. If the rest of the information on your application is correct you have little to be concerned about.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My husband and I are back to our regular winter sport of nighttime thermostat roulette. As usual it is beginning to cause family arguments. He claims it saves on our heating bill to turn the heat down at night, so if he is the last to retire, the house is cool in the morning.

I claim it makes little difference in cost if the temperature remains constant, so I leave it high if I am the last to retire. We both have the words of authorities to back up our two sides — so that doesn't help much. Can you, perhaps, restore us to a tranquil, warm and economic winter? — (Mrs.) R. B. S.

ANSWER: Again we have a deceptively simple question that is very complex to answer. The answer depends on how well insulated the house is, the size and number of windows, the amount of outside exposure, the outside temperature and a number of other variables.

As a general rule, the maximum saving prevails if the thermostat is set about 5 or 6 degrees lower at night. If the thermostat is lowered 10 degrees or more the amount of fuel required to restore the temperature may, in most cases, represent a net loss rather than a saving.

An additional benefit to this resolution is that it represents a useful compromise for contesting husbands and wives.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: For the last two years we have been planning for a custom - built home. Especially after following your column, we decided to do it the right way: architect, soliciting bids, shopping for financing — everything. Then a friend of ours told us about a builder who has been to see us many times, and has my husband stalibound. He is a very practical sounding fellow with a wonderful package deal.

He says he has built enough houses to be able to draw the plans himself — no charge to us. He also knows a lot of short cuts and can build a house much cheaper than an ordinary builder. He says he can even save us money on financing, as he has a friend who lends money and who won't insist on all the nonsense and red tape the banks do, with their charges for inspections and for lawyers drawing up simple papers. He has even offered to throw in all of the landscaping absolutely free of charge.

He says that if we let him do it his way he can deliver our $30,000 house for less than half of what it would normally cost. It sounds wonderful, but I am still a little nervous about it. What do you think? — (Mrs.) V. T. A.

ANSWER: The first thing you should ask yourselves is, "How much does it cost if it's free?" My guess is that in your case it would cost many thousands of dollars, a jerry-built home — and no recourse or protection.

If this chap could deliver $30,000 houses for $15,000, he would not have the time to discuss yours with you. I know of many developers who would pay millions of dollars a year in fees to such a construction genius.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: For the past 30 years our family has been using a short cut across the farm next to us from our barn to the main road. My grandfather drove a horse and wagon over it; my father and I, old trucks — and now my son with his jeep. It saves us several miles, and in the winter it's the only way we can get to town when the other roads are impassable.

The farm we cross has changed hands several times and no one ever said a word. It was sold again last year and the fellow who bought it says he will let us continue to use the road only if we sign a lease and pay him $300 a year. This is not only unneighborly, but will be a hardship on us as we have had a couple of bad years. I think it is too high, but am willing to bargain. What do you think is a fair price? — O. L. J.

ANSWER: I think I may have good news for you. Unless I am greatly mistaken, any price is too high and a fair rent in your case is nothing.

It would appear that by your continued use of this road for 30 years you have acquired a permanent easement across your neighbor's farm by the doctrine known as "Prescription."

Since this is an involved legal concept that varies from state to state, I recommend you consult your attorney, who will take the steps necessary to secure your legal status.

AMID MEMORIES OF SWEAT AND TOIL COME LAST TEARS FOR SIR WINSTON

Churchill Had All Qualities Required To Cultivate Pollen of Gods--Massey

OTTAWA (CP) —There are numerous men capable of greatness, but Sir Winston Churchill was "one of those few who, through lucky circumstances, have all the qualities required to cultivate in themselves the pollen of the gods, the bloom of genius," the Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey said this morning.

Mr. Massey, Governor - General of Canada from 1953 to 1958 was delivering the eulogy at the national ceremony of mourning for the former British prime minister.

The ceremony in the Hall of Fame in the Parliament Buildings began at 11 a.m. EST, following a 80-gun salute fired by the 30th Field Artillery Regiment of Ottawa.

The salute, largest ever fired for an individual by the Ottawa regiment, started an hour earlier and continued every 30 seconds for the next 45 minutes. The four 105 mm. howitzers fired in time with the tolling of the great bell of the carillon in the Peace Tower.

Sir Winston "looked to history as an artist and a craftsman," Mr. Massey said.

"He wrote about the past and his hands have made the future.

"Like no one else before him, Churchill has written and built his age."

TRIBUTE TO HISTORIAN

Speaking in both English and French, Mr. Massey paid special tribute to Mr. Churchill's role as historian.

"Winston Churchill has gone to stalk history to its lair; but, in the written word, he has bequeathed a record of his deeds that will forever last, to be a light to lighten the darkness and to be the enduring glory of his people.

"Not only as a maker of events, and as an architect of thought, but as a chronicler of history, he has left in literature such a tale of the English-speaking peoples as will warm the cockles of the old and quicken the hearts of younger men."

He said pictures carried in heart may differ in detail, but leave the same impression.

"Those of us whose place it was to work with him in years of war, knew him to be the same in private and in public life. He was for all a giant, a wartime chief and leader, by Canadians no less revered than by his own.

"While, with all his countrymen, we, in the communion of Western freedom, mourn his passing, we thank God for having had him amongst us and take comfort in the knowledge that his memory can never die.

"His life was long and full; the fading of the parting light, the manner of his passing marked by a determination to have his will—that this, the last, as was a battle that even he could not but lose."

Churchill Turns for Last Time From London Pomp, Pageantry To Peace of Country Birthplace

By FRANK MURRAY
(Manager CJBQ Radio)

LONDON (Special) — Sir Winston Churchill has left London for ever.

He has gone to lie peacefully in a country churchyard far away from the pomp and pageantry that marked his last day in this great city.

It was a day of bitter cold, biting wind and sombre grey skies.

Many braved the weather to ensure themselves a good position in front of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Many waited out the vigil in makeshift canvas tents attached to the crash-barriers.

I talked to several who had taken up their positions last night and their response was always the same:

"It's the least we could do for old Winnie . . ."

This has been the theme as Londoners talked all this week. Last night, for instance, the queue at Westminster Hall, which for three days he extended for over a mile on occasion, was just as large as ever — even though the weather was miserable as ever, with cold winds and a fine rain.

Shortly after 6 a.m. here this morning the great oak doors closed.

During the lying-in-state period for the great man over 321,000 had paid their silent tribute.

Today's final tribute to the Great Briton began at Westminster—just under the shadow of Big Ben.

When I arrived this morning, the Brigade of Guards had just arrived and taken up positions as sentinels of the final events.

There was a constant procession of people to the great

Canada Pays Tribute

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With solemn memorial services, flowing oratory and cannon salutes, Canadians pay tribute today to Sir Winston Churchill on the day of his funeral — in London, England.

In Montreal, an interdenominational service was to be held at Christ Church Anglican Cathedral, followed by a flypast over the cathedral by three Voodoo jets from the RCAF's 425 (Alouette) Squadron. A single wreath was to be placed later at a service at the Dominion Square Cenotaph.

A service at St. James' Anglican Cathedral in Toronto was being regarded as the city's official service of mourning, although it was not proclaimed by civic officials. Lieutenant-

"During the war his speeches gave me hope. That's why."

Freddie Brampton, waiting all night with his wife and three young children, said: "I teach history. This is a bit of it I want to see."

Stanley Fox, 33, from Invercargill, New Zealand, said:

"Back in 1832 my grandfather saw Wellington's funeral from between a policeman's legs. This is the sort of occasion I can relive."

The Duke of Wellington, victor over Napoleon, was buried in St. Paul's in a state funeral much like Churchill's.

At 8:45 a.m., three buses brought boys from Churchill's old school, Harrow, to Westminster Hall.

Along the procession route in Fleet Street, a group of RAF war veterans held high a banner which said:

"So many owe so much to you."

A group of Belgian former servicemen waved the Belgian flag and sang national songs. One said: "I came here today because I probably owe it to Churchill that I'm alive."

At 9 a.m., Big Ben, the great clock looming over the Houses of Parliament, struck the hour for the last time today.

In tribute to Sir Winston, it will be silenced until midnight.

Thousands lined the route of the funeral procession, many of them having spent the night on the cold curbings and sidewalks.

Women clamored for newspapers—not to read but to protect their legs against the cold.

Near the statue of the Duke of Wellington in the heart of London, one group fried eggs and bacon on a portable stove.

Outside St. Paul's Cathedral, scene of the funeral service, thousands packed the sidewalks. Hundreds hung in windows of the nearby buildings.

MANY TURNED AWAY

Westminster Hall, where Churchill, who died last Sunday of a stroke, had lain in state since Wednesday, was closed at 6 a.m. Hundreds still waiting to file through the hall, past the catafalque, had to be turned away.

The last to take leave of Churchill's coffin as the lying in state was Robert Ward, a 60-year-old driver for Westminster Hospital. For the last three days he had driven nurses to and from the hall to watch over the queues.

In keeping with Churchill's wishes, the burial this afternoon at Bladon was to be in a quiet country churchyard, closed to all but immediate members of his family.

The thousands along the processional route from Westminster to St. Paul's bedecked under blankets, in sleeping bags and wrapped plastic sheets around themselves to ward off the chill wind.

More than 6,000 uniformed police, and 1,200 plainclothesmen were along the funeral route.

Before dawn, Scotland Yard men moved on to each of the buildings overlooking the route.

Others watched over parallel roads set aside for distinguished visitors to travel to St. Paul's.

Such heads of state and other dignitaries did not join the procession but went to

From Westminster To St. Paul's Greatest Englishman Is Borne Through Grieving London Town

Big Ben Silent, Ten Bands Play, Mourners Breakfast at Curbside

By JOHN MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — The body of Sir Winston Churchill was borne through grieving London on his state funeral today in a spectacle of heart-gripping homage.

Big Ben tolled the last time for the greatest Englishman by signalling the start of his majestic funeral procession from Westminster at 9:45 a.m. on a cold clear day.

Then the famed clock, indelibly associated with Britain's valor in wartime days, was silenced until midnight in honor of Churchill, who had lain in state for three days in Westminster Hall, a few hundred yards away.

World Farewell Led By Queen

LONDON (CP)—For a brief half-hour of solemn pomp and sad pride today, the towering marble dome of St. Paul's Cathedral guarded three of the greatest heroes in English history.

The body of Sir Winston Churchill, shrouded in the Union Jack, lay on a black velvet catafalque a few feet above the crypt where Admiral Lord Nelson and the Duke of Wellington are buried.

But neither of those heroic figures was honored as Churchill was honored today with a surfaced Queen leading the world's farewell to the man who symbolized British strength and greatness as no man has symbolized it before.

Though heavy with sorrow, pride was the dominant emotion in the huge, history-steeped cathedral — ramrod - backed British pride in the unique man lying under the flag who in death could summon so much of a grief-stricken world to his side.

In two long rows on either side of the royal-blue carpeted aisle sat the rest of the somberly-clad Royal Family — the Queen Mother and her grandson, Prince Charles; Princess Margaret and her husband the Earl of Snowdon; the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester and their two sons; the Duke and Duchess of Kent and their husband in the Battle of Britain, with her proud son Prince Michael and her daughter Princess Alexandra. Never had British royalty turned out in such force in London or one outside the Royal Family.

Behind the royal pews stretched two long lines of foreign and Commonwealth representatives and Britain's political leaders. Canadian Prime Minister Lester Pearson, with his wife, sat in the centre of the row behind the Queen. Next to him was Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana, president of the United Nations General Assembly.

The bare, black-draped heads stretched away into the shadowy side chapels, hung with battle flags. Among the throng was the Canadian Opposition leader, John Diefenbaker, Newfoundland Premier Joseph Smallwood, Quebec Agent-General Hugues Lapointe, representing Premier Lesage, and High Commissioner Lionel Chevrier.

A ripple of expectancy ran through the vast crowd massed near the great west door heard the rumble of the gun carriage drawing up at the steps and the crunch of military boots as the funeral procession ended its long, historic haul through London's streets.

As the packed, hushed cathedral waited for the coffin with its procession of heralds, the blood-red and gold pageantry of the towering presence of Charles le Gaulle of France, last survivor of the great wartime leaders who had mobilized democracy against Adolf Hitler.

The six-foot-four French president stood out strikingly in his simple, unadorned double-breasted suit, the only civilian in full immediate members of his family.

The thousands along the processional route from Westminster to St. Paul's bedded under blankets, in sleeping bags and wrapped plastic sheets around themselves to ward off the chill wind.

More than 6,000 uniformed police, and 1,200 plainclothesmen were along the funeral route.

Before dawn, Scotland Yard men moved on to each of the buildings overlooking the route.

Others watched over parallel roads set aside for distinguished visitors to travel to St. Paul's.

19 Guns Boom Farewell

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Sir Winston Churchill received awesome final tribute in a state funeral today and then, beneath saluting jet fighter planes, his body was borne along the Thames en route to his last resting place in the heart of England.

Guns boomed out a 19-gun salute—the first time a commoner has received any more than 17 guns—as the remains of the warrior-statesman were placed aboard a launch for his last short voyage on the Thames, river highway of history.

The homage by queens, kings, presidents and prime ministers was over. So was the martial splendor and solemnity, the pageantry and pomp, flying away in the strains of a lament by lilted pipers.

Britain and the world, in effect, thus returned Sir Winston to the hands of his loved ones for burial at Bladon, Oxfordshire, besides his parents in a village churchyard near Blenheim Palace, his birth place.

Churchill, as a young soldier, left home to join a cavalry regiment. Today men of the regiment, the Queen's Royal Irish Hussars, carried the coffin to the train for what was called "the long mile home."

$500,000 LINE ROUTE

An epic circle had been completed.

The cream-and-black train, drawn by the old steam locomotive named Winston Churchill, left Waterloo station and passed through such towns as Twechenham and Virginia Water on the 79-mile trip to Bladon.

The peaceful Oxfordshire scene contrasted with the state funeral in which more than 1,000,000 persons—by police estimate—lined the route of the procession from Westminster to St. Paul's Cathedral for the service attended by the Queen and many world leaders.

The body of Sir Winston, who frequently made trips in battleships and other large vessels of the fleet, was taken to the Tower of London Pier and placed aboard the launch Havengore for the short voyage across the Thames to Festival Pier, and thence to Waterloo.

Churchill Had Many Honors

Sir Winston Churchill had been honored by many countries and institutions during his long career.

He was made a Knight of the Garter in 1953 and was awarded the Nobel Prize for literature in 1953.

He received honorary degrees from Oxford, Cambridge, Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Columbia, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Aberdeen, Strasbourg, Louvain, Sorbonne, Paris, Rome, Bordeaux, Algiers, Brussels, Ghent, Liege, Leyden, Delhi, Allahabad, Bombay, Calcutta, Madras, Ceylon, Melbourne, Sydney, Adelaide, Perth, Brisbane, Wellington, Auckland, Cape Town, Witwatersrand, Pretoria, Natal, Rhodesia, Toronto, McGill, Laval, Montreal, Queen's, Dalhousie, Mount Allison, Acadia, Bishop's, Trinity, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Western Ontario, Ottawa, Waterloo Lutheran, Assumption, Sir George Williams, Carleton, Royal Military College, Kingston, Osgoode Hall, Victoria, Vancouver, Columbia, Fordham, Hamilton, Williams, Wesleyan, Yeshiva, Lafayette, Lehigh, Rutgers, Temple, Pennsylvania, Brown, Dartmouth, Amherst, Smith, Wellesley, Bowdoin, Colby, Bates, Middlebury, Tufts, Boston, Northeastern, Holy Cross, Fairfield, Notre Dame, Georgetown, Catholic University, Washington, Howard, Maryland, Johns Hopkins, Virginia, Richmond, Hampden-Sydney, Washington and Lee, Duke, North Carolina, Davidson, Wake Forest, South Carolina, Clemson, Georgia, Emory, Tulane, Louisiana State, Miami, Florida, Rollins, Stetson, Florida State, Alabama, Birmingham-Southern, Auburn, Vanderbilt, Tennessee, Chattanooga, Kentucky, Transylvania, Louisville, Cincinnati, Ohio State, Western Reserve, Case Institute, Wooster, Oberlin, Kenyon, Denison, Ohio Wesleyan, Miami, Indiana, Purdue, Notre Dame, Wabash, Chicago, Northwestern, Illinois, Knox, Beloit, Carroll, Wisconsin, Marquette, Minnesota, Carleton, St. Olaf, Iowa, Grinnell, Drake, Missouri, Washington, St. Louis, Westminster, Missouri School of Mines, Kansas, Kansas State, Colorado, Denver, Utah, Brigham Young, Stanford, California, Southern California, Occidental, Whittier, Redlands, Pomona, Claremont, Mills, Mount Holyoke, Smith, Wellesley, Radcliffe, Harvard, Yale, Princeton

Says 'Drop-Out' Will Disappear In Few Years

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The word "drop-out" will soon disappear from the educational vocabulary in Ontario within a few years, Education Minister William G. Davis said Friday night.

The reorganized secondary school program introduced in Grade 9 in 1962 now are at the Grade 13 level, he said. After they have completed the full high cycle through Grade 13, the "drop-out" will have almost disappeared."

Soon the only exceptions to elimination of the drop-out problem will be "the very few who seem incorrigible or who have problems which the school system cannot solve," he said.

Mr. Davis was speaking at the annual dinner of District 2 of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

6 RD Airmen Will Honor Winnie Sunday

TRENTON — While no special ceremony is scheduled in Trenton for today, the day of the state funeral in London, England, for Sir Winston Churchill, Trenton residents, and particularly those old enough to remember his great contribution Churchill made in the free world during World War II, will be following the event on radio and television.

At No. 6 Repair Depot, an informal church parade, honoring Sir Winston Churchill, will be held Sunday morning.

At the Protestant Chapel, the special service will be held at 11 a.m.

At the Roman Catholic Chapel, special masses will be held at 9 a.m., 10.30 a.m. and 1.30 p.m.

All air force personnel have been urged to attend these special services.

Wants Windmill To Be Realistic

TRENTON — Town gardener Bart Boers, who is also the owner of the Hollandale Nurseries, west of the town, has a problem.

Last year, Mr. Boers erected an authentic Dutch Windmill along Trenton Highway.

When the mill was opened, Mr. Boers received permission from the Department of Highways to arrange for the "wings" of the mill to rotate, at the rate of three times a minute.

Suddenly, last fall, the permission was revoked.

Mr. Boers claims he lost $2,000 in tourist trade once the wings stopped turning. A stationary windmill interests no one, he says.

Withe summer season coming up, Mr. Boers is making an appeal to government heads for permission to start the wings turning again.

Mr. Boers' windmill at Port Hope claims the moving wings might distract passing motorists and thus become a traffic hazard.

Mother Deserts, Homes Needed For 4 Children

TRENTON—Welfare administrator A. Gordon Davis has issued an appeal for boarding homes for four children of one family, deserted by the mother.

The father of the family has run into financial difficulties and Mr. Davis is looking for two boarding homes; one for the two pre-school children in the family and one for the two children attending school. If two such homes can be found, the family would be "held together." In a manner of speaking until the harassed father can make arrangements to have them all together again.

Meanwhile, Mr. Davis has also appealed to Trenton citizens to remember to take their warm winter clothing and the need clothing depot on Quinte Street. Especially needed are clothes for infants. The depot quite often receives calls from the hospital for such items.

Fox Cartage of Trenton has made arrangements with Mr. Davis to store used furniture donated to the depot, for use when needed by the welfare department. Also in the office of Mr. Davis will result in the furniture being picked up and stored. Stoves, heating and cooking, and refrigerators are needed at the moment.

Photographer Found Guilty Of Contempt

MONTREAL (CP) — James Gratton, president of the Montreal Press Photographers association, was held in contempt of court Friday and given restricted bearing for Lucien Rivard.

Mr. Gratton was sentenced by Mr. Justice Hugh Carey to pay a fine of $25 or, failing that, spend five days in jail.

Mr. Gratton paid the fine. Camera equipment confiscated from him on Judge Caron's orders was later returned.

The development came after the Rivard hearing, which ended in the creation of a writ of habeas corpus for the suspected narcotics-conspirator and key figure in the Dorion Inquiry.

Spectators were filing out of the courtroom.

Through the open door, Judge Caron, still on the bench, caught sight of a camera flash.

Red-faced with anger, he ordered the arrest of whoever was responsible.

Mr. Gratton, a freelance movie cameraman, was brought back to face the judge who said to him: "I have given authorities this kind of thing. Tell me why you should not be found guilty of contempt."

"Because I was only doing my job, your honor," said Mr. Gratton.

"I find you guilty of contempt," said the judge.

Mr. Justice Caron issued a statement saying that if any newspaper published photographs taken in connection with Friday's proceedings, the paper also would be held in contempt.

Sqdn. Ldr. L. B. Macquarrie Is Appointed to Head Study Of Family Counselling Unit

Squadron Ldr. L. B. MacQuarrie is the chairman of a committee which will "study and become familiar with family counselling in all its aspects." He was appointed to the committee by Dr. S. C. Ross, president of the Children's Aid Society, when the directors held their monthly meeting on Thursday.

The committee name the committee was reached at a special meeting called by the Children's Aid Society a week ago, at which the board of directors moved to "approve in principle the establishment of a family counselling service" to be available to all persons resident in Belleville and Hastings County.

Besides Squadron Ldr. MacQuarrie, other members of the committee named by Dr. Ross and approved by the board Thursday are Ald. Thomas J. Lally, Reeve Thomas Armstrong, Rev. Father W. P. Healy, Rev. Alex McDowell, Mrs. Douglas G. Burr and Douglas G. Lockyer.

In commenting on S/L MacQuarrie's appointment as chairman, Dr. Ross pointed out the community was singularly fortunate in having a man of Mr. MacQuarrie's training, experience and ability available to undertake a most important project. S/L MacQuarrie is a social worker by profession and was Welfare Officer with head quarters at the R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton. He resides, with his family, in Trenton.

NAMED REPRESENTATIVE

Mr. Joel Mazer was suggested as the society's representative on the board by Mayor Harold E. Belleville Unified Appeal in 1965.

The secretary, Mr. Stanley Wiggins, read a letter from the clerk-treasurer of the County of Hastings in which reference was made to a motion passed by county council to the effect that the councillor members of the Children's Aid Society be directed to investigate the possibility of establishing a children's aid society in the northern part of the county." After considerable discussion it was left with the clerk-treasurer of the county to advised that the board of directors of the C.A.S. were prepared to make the necessary investigation as recommended in the county motion but that since the placing of a preventive worker would put up to $10,000 additional to that which the County at present pays for exbeing of service, it is respectfully suggested that the proper committee of council consider the advisability of such expense before any exhaustive investigation is undertaken."

NO MANSLAUGHTER

In speaking to the motion, Mr. Kerr stated that about 13-14,000 people lived within a thirty to thirty-five mile radius of Bancroft. Unfortunately, he said, this area encompasses parts of the County of Hastings, the County of Haliburton, the County of Peterborough, the County of Renfrew and the District of Nipissing. This is one of the no-man's-lands. The Province of Ontario and if a social worker were to be stationed at Bancroft, it might be possible to sell services to the other CAS serving these areas — to the mutual advantage of all concerned.

He said that the settlement of Wilno people, for example, was approximately one hundred and fifty miles distant from North Bay, yet it was under the jurisdiction of the Nipissing Society. Conglomerate too, was remote from the town of Renfrew, to which the offices of the Renfrew County CAS were located. The Township of Cardiff was accumulating deficits.

NO HOME REMEDY IS ENTIRELY HARMLESS

For, even though it may give you a temporary relief from distress symptoms, or do no apparent harm to your body, using it too often may delay the proper treatment only a physician can give you.

IN MEMORIAM

DOYLE — In loving memory of Ruby Doyle (Grosney) who passed away January 30, 1964.

The hill three years ago today,
The valley and the sea,
And many miles between dear one,
Miss you more than words can say.
Sadly missed by daughter Helen, brother-in-law Bill and family.

DOYLE — In loving memory of Ruby Marie Doyle (Grosney) who passed away January 30, 1964.

Time has not dimmed the memory,
Nor the heart grown cold,
You are missed by voice, and face and smile,
And every thought of you.
But all I can do now dear daughter,
Is go and tend your grave,
And leave loved tokens of love,
To the best daughter God ever gave.

I like to think when life is done,
Wherever heaven may be,
She'll be standing at the door,
Up there to welcome me.
So sadly missed by mother and father.

ASH — In memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Ethel Ash, who passed away Jan. 30th, 1963.

Those two long years dear mother,
Since we laid you down to rest,
Your memory is with us still,
And you are ever in our thoughts.
We realize God knew best.
Sadly remembered by daughter Martha and son-in-law Ernest.

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. John C. Arnell, 49-year-old native of Halifax, has been attached to national defence headquarters as scientific deputy for engineering and development to the chief of logistics, it was announced Friday. Dr. Arnell, a scientist with the Defence Research Board since its inception in 1947, formerly was scientific adviser to the chiefs of the naval and air staffs.

Gordon Cardy Heads Ontario Heart Fund Drive

Gordon A. Cardy, general manager of the King Edward Hotel in Toronto, has been appointed campaign chairman for the Ontario Division of the 1965 Heart Fund Campaign.

The campaign has as objectives of $1,774,000. Ontario was assumed the task of raising 20% of the total.

Funds from the Heart Fund Campaign will be used to further research work on heart and circulatory diseases which are now responsible for more than 50 percent of all deaths in Canada. These diseases include heart attacks, congenital heart defects, stroke, high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries and rheumatic heart disease.

The Heart Fund campaign starts officially on Feb. 1, and will continue to the end of the month. Sunday, Feb. 14, has been designated as Heart Sunday.

Four Rinks Will Battle For Coveted Corby Trophy

By C. D. T.

Rinks from Napanee, Trenton and two from Trenton RCAF Station will battle it out for the Corby Trophy, main event of the Tri-Quinte District bonspiel that is entering the final phases. The main attraction of the spiel was staged on Friday at the RCAF club when eight teams played before the largest crowd of the show, Mac White, the Quinte curling rink in the eighth lost a heartbreaker to Jerome of Napanee on the last end.

A Trenton rink skipped by Jack Hollett put Fred Elsner of Uplands away in an extra end while Lewis of RCAF and Mel Sjerbaren of the same club had easy wins over Newberry of Rockliffe and Gostick of Kingston. The losing rinks quit before ten ends and then watched the big battles.

Mac White and his rink had the game well in hand with Jerome of Napanee and then the roof fell in. The rink had a two shot lead mooving into the final end with Jerome having last rock. The boys decided on a semi-draw game for the final end—and there were a number of stones in the house. After the last White rock had been declared, Jerome was living two and had the match tied and he calmly drew "cold" to the button for the winning shot.

In the other close game Jack Hollett fought an uphill battle to tie in the tenth end and on the extra end Elsner with his last rock slipped the rock that would have given him the game. The final in this event as well as the Elliott Motors will be played at the Quinte Club this evening.

In this spiel any rink losing their fifth game passes from scene and under this rule the ranks of 72 rinks that started the spiel have been considerably trimmed. In the O'Keefe event two rinks from Quinte, Pat Houston and Dave Tobe could meet in the finals as that event is in the eighths and the rennin from the games were not in when this was written.

The finals for the Elliott Motors and the Corby events will be played at the Quinte Club while the LaPalm Trophy will be contested for at the RCAF rink. At the Trenton club the O'Keefe event will be played. The spiel will conclude on Sunday night when Pepsi-Cola Bottling Transport, Bata Shoe and the British American Bay of Quinte shield will be played when Mayor A. MacDonald of Trenton will do the honors.

Despite the length of the spiel the spirit of goodfellowship and hospitality has not diminished. After every game the competing teams gather in the locker room to discuss the contest, say hello to other curlers and thoroughly enjoy themselves in good-natured banter. The women's sections of the clubs have arranged to provide light refreshments, including bacon and eggs for hungry curlers.

It has been a grand get-together and already rinks are seeking entry into next year's event and no doubt the entry list will have to be increased.

The final social event of the spiel will be held on Sunday afternoon before the finals are played. This event will be staged at the RCAF mess hall when the women will join the curlers at a buffet luncheon. There will be no program but plenty of hospitality. Goodbyes will be said and happy memories revived of a real good spiel. The general committee under Neal Ramsay as chairman and manager of the spiel, Bruce Carly are to be congratulated for the wonderful week of curling.

TENSE MOMENT in Nicholson College play is seen as rebel general, played by Bob Boyle, confronts refugees Mary Anne Burns and Heather Boyle.

'The Queen and the Rebels' Tribute to Sister Fleurette

"Think." Sister Mary Fleurette used to tell her students during rehearsal.

They learned their lesson well, as last night's presentation of Ugo Betti's "The Queen and the Rebels" at St. Michael's Academy proved. There was much thought behind many characterizations drawn by the student cast.

This is the second time the play — now slated for its first off-Broadway production — has actually been seen in the provinces.

Betti is still an author who cannot become familiar in North America, although a leading figure in European drama. This play is his most famous, a melodrama of social revolution in a mythical mid-European country.

It is a work that clearly demands full attention from its participants — both actors and audience. The cast of high school students, apparently had applied themselves with attention to play.

This is one dividend sought by their director Sister Mary Fleurette insists that drama productions by high school students be contemporary and stimulating — if it is to fulfill a true educational role.

Public presentation of such results, while not expectedly polished in many aspects, nonetheless also acquaints local theatregoers with dramatic works which the adults refuse to explore.

Primarily, "The Queen and the Rebels" is a play of conscience, placing on trial in a colorful, if talkative setting, some age-old questions of human endeavor.

Sister Mary Fleurette has seen fit to definitely identify the background with fascism, a twist which provides the presentation with an added dash of zest for the participants.

The play concludes tonight with presentation of a drama festival before a panel of adjudicators consider the outstanding player in the production.

For effort, another award should go to Sister Mary Fleurette for organizing such a production. It meets the principles she has been setting for the high school drama club in recent years.

The productions broaden the educational horizons of her students while benefiting those among the public with a vested interest in drama.

Buddhists Warn Americans No Political Interference

SAIGON (AP)—Eroding confidence after playing a major role in the downfall of three governments, South Viet Nam's militant Buddhists appeared today to be riding on a new crest of power.

Reliable sources said that the Buddhists have made it clear they want the United States to refrain from interfering in their political affairs.

The warning was reported to have been sent from Thich Tri Quang, a popular 42-year-old monk from central Viet Nam who met today with strongman Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh. Tri Quang led the eight - day Buddhist hunger strike in Saigon that helped force out Premier Tran Van Huong in a bloodless military coup.

The Buddhists had charged Huong with repressive measures. They levelled the same accusation against Khanh last September and against the late Ngo Dinh Diem in November, 1963, before their governments fell.

U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor talked with Khanh for more than an hour Friday in the first meeting since Khanh regained power last Wednesday and made Nguyen Xuan Oanh acting premier. A U.S. mission spokesman said relations between Taylor and Khanh, who has been unfriendly at odds in recent weeks, were normal.

Khanh's restoration of military rule put U.S. authorities on the spot. Washington had hoped that a facade of civilian rule could be maintained. Khanh insisted the military seizure was necessary to end the Buddhists' anti-government disorders.

No Inquest Into Death Of Frozen Boy

FUNNICHY, Sask. (CP)—No inquest will be held into the death of an eight-year-old boy who froze to death here Wednesday, Coroner Dr. G. W. Sykes as idFriday.

Arthur Blair Dufour was discovered by George Belrose, 12, and his sister, Eileen, 12, on the front steps of their home as they returned from a visit to Funnichy, some 85 miles northeast of Regina.

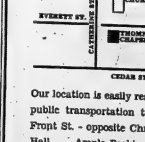
Dr. Sykes, in a telephone interview, said an autopsy revealed the boy died of exposure. Temperatures fell to 38 below zero Wednesday night.

The body was found about 3½ hours after the boy had left the Belrose home, an isolated dwelling about one-quarter of a mile outside the town limits, for his own home.

Two Glace Bay Miners Trapped Two Miles Down

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP) — Two men are trapped about two miles beneath the surface following a "major fall" early today at No. 26 colliery of the Dominion Coal Company mines here.

A company spokesman said the fall occurred at 4 a.m. AST and other miners in the area reported seeing the two men disappear.



Missing are Malcolm White, 27, of Glace Bay and Joseph Oliver, 41, of Reserve Mines, N.S. Both are maintenance men.

The spokesman said rescue operations have begun but "it will be some hours before it can be determined whether the men are dead or alive."

Four Companies Enter Bids for Heavy Water

OTTAWA (CP)—Four Canadian companies have submitted bids for construction of a proposed second plant to produce heavy water for Canada's expanding nuclear power program.

Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, the federal government's nuclear research agency, had invited six companies to submit bids, although there has been no final decision on whether the second plant will be built.

The four bids were sent in by Dexterium of Canada Limited of Glace Bay, N.S.; Dynamic Power Corporation of Calgary, Alta.; Western Dexterium Company Limited of Victoria; and Imperial Oil Company Limited.

Atomic Energy of Canada called for bids for the proposed second plant last October because one now being built at Glace Bay by Dexterium of Canada will not produce enough heavy water to meet increasing Canadian requirements.

No decision on the four bids is expected for some time.

Given 10 Years For Assault On Woman, 77

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Norman Joseph Doucette, 36, of Montreal was sentenced Friday to 10 years in penitentiary for an assault Jan. 10 on a 77-year-old Gananoque woman.

Mrs. Phillip Johnson, a widow, was tortured and her arm broken by a man trying to find out where her money was hidden. She identified Doucette, who said there was a second man with him. Police are now looking for such a man.

Mrs. Johnson, found in the kitchen of her home, lay dazed and moaning as he was carried from the court. He screamed that he had not tortured the woman.

Magistrate P. E. D. Baker said Doucette did nothing to stop "this shocking brutality."

Two men gained entrance to Mrs. Colquhoun's home Jan. 10 by posing as fuel oil tank inspectors. She was tied to a chair while being assaulted.

Sharp Decrease Noted in Hog Market

STRATFORD (CP)—A sharp decrease in the number of hogs marketed in Ontario since Jan. 1 was reported Friday by James Boynton of Toronto, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Hog Producers Marketing Board.

Mr. Boynton said 58,507 hogs were sent to market during the first week of January but this had dropped steadily to 47,000 hogs this week.

He said weather conditions may account for a slight drop, but the decrease generally is unexplained.

Hastings Leads LODA Area In Population, Road Mileage

In the eight county Lake Ontario Development Association Region Hastings county has the largest number of young people in the work force and has the most miles of provincial highway.

During the past ten years the value of county-manufactured products has risen by 66.8 percent, and retail sales increased by 58.7 percent. Also 8.1 percent of its wage earners had incomes of more than $6,000 per year, while at the same time 16 percent of its wage earners were making less than $1,000 per year.

The average family income was $5,211 while the average income of persons employed in industry was $5,633.

The above are figures listed in an economics measurement study prepared by the economics branch of the Department of Economics and Development, which have been re-produced and distributed to the eight Ontario Development Associations.

The region of which Belleville and Hastings are members takes in the counties of Durham, Haliburton, Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Northumberland, Peterborough, Prince Edward and Victoria.

Lennox and Addington showed the highest growth in manufacturing in the 1951-61 period with a whopping 230.4 percent increase. Second was Prince Edward with an increase of 147.7 percent. Northumberland increased 110 percent and Hastings by 66.8 percent.

In the field of education it was shown that 4.1 percent of Hastings population over five years of age had a university education.

Of a total population of 95,400 in the area (including Belleville and Trenton) 30.7 percent were classed as urban residents, and 9.6 percent were classed as immigrants.

Motor vehicle registration in the ten-year period increased 57.1 percent.

Hopes Johnson Can Visit Canada in 1965

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson says he hopes President Johnson can visit Canada this year. He told reporters Friday that Johnson's schedule for foreign visits has not been completed but "I definitely see a visit in 1965."

Many northern regions and officials are vying for the chance to receive Johnson, among them the sponsors of the Calgary Stampede.

"They could put him on a horse—he rides, not like me," Pearson added with a smile.

Pearson said he urged Johnson to make a trip to Canada when the two leaders conferred at Johnson's Texas ranch last month.

Recessions Avoidable?

President L. B. Johnson has forecast a fifth consecutive year of rising prosperity in the U.S.

He coupled this prediction with the contention that recessions can become obsolete in the "great society" he envisions.

In this he is just voicing a conviction which many others appear to share, for all around us we see signs that people believe our present prosperity will go on for some time without a break.

President Johnson seems to be a little more cautious than many of these citizens, for he is asking Congress to streamline its tax-writing machinery so that rapid changes can be made in tax legislation. Specifically, he wants Congress to be in a position to order temporary income-tax cuts if recession threatens.

This pump-priming policy seems to be just Keynesian economics in another form. There is little question but that the remedy is helpful.

Still, when we look around and realize the complicated nature of our economic machinery, and how intricately it is meshed, many of us cannot escape the conviction that the balance is too delicate to justify faith the machine will never develop any real trouble.

Many will find that it reminds them of nothing so much as a well-made, sturdy automobile engine, which will run and run and run without a splutter or a stutter—until suddenly one little screw works loose. Then a skilled mechanic may swiftly discover the source of the trouble and fix it—or the unhappy owner may find that every adjustment throws something else out of kilter and everything seems to go wrong at once.

The pessimists amongst us, while hoping that President Johnson's optimism proves well grounded, will doubt that the economy has been running in high gear long enough to justify a conviction that nothing will ever go wrong.

It is the business of governments to store up tools against the day when repairs may be needed, and President Johnson is doing just that.

The cost, however, though, does well to acquire the means to provide himself with some other means of transportation while the mechanics are at work.

When that day comes, he will find a little spare cash useful, and the same will probably prove true if the economy ever requires extensive repairs.

Just a Minor Mistake

Nonsense, says Russia. She did not break the nuclear test ban treaty. The radioactivity which escaped from an underground test was such a teeny-weeny bit that it really should not count.

For practical purposes, this may result in the closing of the incident.

The Russian plea, though, reveals an attitude which some people may regard as significant.

Underground explosions, in general, were excluded from the test ban, chiefly because it was argued there was no way, short of on-site inspection, to detect them.

Of course, it would be possible for the nuclear powers to abstain from testing underground, even though they are free to conduct such tests. By its explanation of the radioactivity detected by the U.S. on Jan. 15, Russia not only admits that it is not abstaining from such tests, but evidently considers there should be no surprise at this.

Of course, the same holds true of the U.S. It has openly announced details of an underground testing program.

Thus both the big nuclear powers are busily engaged in trying to build a "better" bomb, which means a bomb which is more certain to kill more people, faster, at lower cost.

All the test ban achieved was to prevent these powers further contaminating the atmosphere in the course of their testing.

The big powers are anxious to make certain that any deaths which result from nuclear explosions are intentional and not accidental.

Progress is wonderful!

One has an impulse to bring glad tidings to someone. My sense of literature is a sense of giving, not a diminishment. I know almost no pleasure greater than having a piece of fiction draw together disparate incidents so that they relate to one another, that what is lost in one encounter is replenished in the next, and that we possess some power to make sense of what takes place. — Author John Cheever.

Ottawa Offbeat
Much Jockeying Going on To Fill Diefenbaker's Shoes

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It is fascinating to see the likely contenders covertly or openly jockeying for position in a race that isn't anywhere near being posted yet, and may be a lot longer than they figure in the starting.

"Anyone might feel like a fight!" asks Conservative Leader Diefenbaker as he watches a half dozen or more ambitious and gifted hopefuls mentally trying on his shoes.

Unless, unpredictably, John Diefenbaker, suddenly disarmed by the absolutely incessant [illegible] assertions from his leadership, in heart-broken disillusion resigns . . . and, knowing the man, this, at the moment, appears most unlikely . . . the viciously reluctant and . . . seventy-serious successors may be a long time in the waiting.

There are eight of them — two who are unabashedly hot after the post even now — two who, if enticed, wouldn't at all mind making a run for it — two who are at least outwardly indifferent — and two who probably don't even know they are in the running.

This last pair, largely unaware that they are being touted on an "Island-when-Diefenbaker's-beaten" basis, are Richard Bell, all his life a top Conservative Party organization executive, lately an MP and a Cabinet (Citizenship and Immigration) Minister, and more successful practising Ottawa lawyer, and Gordon Fairweather, former New Brunswick Attorney General and since 1963 MP for Royal.

WATCH HERBS

Talking to Mr. Fairweather around the Capital where headquarters of all the parties are located and among the many MPs now live the year 'round, are some of the younger Conservatives and the party intellects who see him as one who has the mental capacity to handle the big job that has to be done.

Backing Mr. Bell are the hardcore Diefenbaker loyalists respect inevitable appetite for unrelenting work and his confirmed "realism" as a practical man.

The two seemingly indifferent ones are provincial Premiers Duff Roblin of Manitoba and John Robarts of Ontario.

Both have their boosters, all kinds of them. Mr. Robarts' most important attraction is the quiet way he has convinced so many Canadians that here is a Premier willing to place the good of all Canada at least on a par with his own province. Mr. Roblin they like for his proven performance as a man who gets things done. Then, perhaps more than any of the others, Mr. Roblin has loyalty-to-the-leader going for him. He has made a point of stressing that he just ain't interesting that job as long as his old friend and pal-ton John Diefenbaker occupies it.

And both Premiers have convinced almost everybody of their sincerity when they say they have more than enough to occupy themselves without wondering about their prospects in Ottawa.

The two who would need only a little more urging to make their bids are former Conservative Trade Minister George Hees, now president of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges, and Nova Scotia Premier Robert Stanfield.

Of the two, Hees is the man to watch.

TOO FAST TOO SOON

He has been openly yearning to return to the Capital and there are a good many Conservatives here hoping he'll make it. Hees has been frankly preaching for a call. At a dozen or more recent speaking engagements — and he is more than ready, at the drop of a service club hat, to make a speech — he has been recalling, fondly, the joys of public life.

Some Conservative wheeler-dealers have been down to Halifax recently sounding out Premier Stanfield on his availability. Far too foxy to make the error of appearing anxious, he has given no commitment. Said neither yes, nor, more importantly, no.

Some now feel only two candidates who have been making it so painfully plain they can hardly wait.

They are, of course, Quebec MP Leon Balcer and the indomitable Conservative Leader E. Davie Fulton.

Mr. Balcer has been so overanxious, he is still frantically trying, quite without concealment, to get the Leadership. Mr. Balcer if the leader won't willingly go — and he'd so far has shown little inclination to oblige Mr. Balcer — then the indefatigable Quebecer is determined to persist in trying to drive him out.

Mr. Fulton has been quite as assiduous, if a little less headlong about it. There are knowing grins around Parliament Hill these days as the former Federal Justice Minister publicly discusses prescriptions, concocted to cure what he diagnoses as the desperate ills of the Conservatives. His silence in pledging loyalty to the leader — no matter whom he might be — has not furthered his leadership cause, at least among a sizable segment of the party based here in the Capital and many sections of Ontario.

Both Mr. Fulton and Mr. Balcer, as of now, appear in the slightly ridiculous position of being alone in a race that has not yet started, for a prize that may not soon be available.

Letters to the Editor

World Federalists Approve of Editorial

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

I would like to commend The Ontario Intelligencer for the editorial (Jan. 26th) in support of a universal United Nations. Your view that "all states — should be placed under the restraints — which UN membership imposes" is essential if mankind is to emerge from the shadows of nuclear annihilation. As your editorial correctly implied, this will require a basic change in the UN Charter.

Concerned Canadians should urge their governments to adopt a foreign policy which will work for the creation of a universal UN containing institutions capable of making, interpreting and enforcing world law. An organization which has been actively promoting this view for some years is the World Federalists of Canada.

World Federalist groups now exist in over 30 countries throughout the world. Parliamentary associations for world government also exist in a number of countries including the United Kingdom where over 150 British Parliamentarians of all parties belong to the British Parliamentary Group for World Government.

The Canadian World Federalist Parliamentary Association, under the chairmanship of Dr. Frolic Jewett, M.P., has been growing in size and effectiveness during recent months and now numbers some 60 M.P.s and Senators. Canadians who believe that peace and security in the nuclear age demands the establishment of a world ruled by law, rather than the contesting military power of rival nation-states, should forcefully urge their political leaders to join and support the Canadian World Federalist Parliamentary Association.

Virginia McDonald
(Mrs. J. C. McDonald),
Executive Secretary.

Deplores Flag Being Flown 24 Hours a Day

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

I read with interest the recent reports in the "The Intelligencer" that Moira Secondary School had lost its flag. I suggest it wasn't stolen, it's merely blew away. The fact that we have a fine installation, the flag and pole, was presented to Moira S.S. by the technical students is considered most commendable but to see the flag flown 24 hours a day, day after day, as I have, to me is most disgraceful.

As most people know and youngsters should be taught, a flag is never flown after dark, but is raised at sunrise and lowered at sunset.

One sentence from the comments reported that Moira S.S. is proud of its flag. I can only suggest that it had been properly handled and safely "stowed" during off hours and weekends. (at least I'm sure the students would be willing to look after). It would still be in good shape and flying at the masthead.

To Your Good Health
Mother Nature's Mistake Causes a 'Dermoid Cyst'

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there such a thing as a man in the early thirties having a baby's head growing inside his body near the spine?

He has undergone an operation and the story is that parts of his twin were wrapped around the spine, and teeth and long hair were removed but some parts could not be. Is there any truth in this report? — Mrs. R. M. S.

This sort of condition is much more common than you might think, but the way it was expressed to you is what you might call somewhat over-dramatized.

Whether it was "his twin" is a matter of conjecture. Perhaps so, and perhaps not.

When a baby begins to form, two special cells merge — ovum and sperm. The resulting cell is microscopically small, yet it contains the chemical pattern (the genes and chromosomes) which determine the characteristics of that person-being-created. The original cell contains the chemical "information" as to whether he will have light or dark hair and eyes, what big features will look like, whether he will be tall or short, and so on.

Likewise in that tiny pattern are the chemical controls which will take the various nutrients and turn them into hair, teeth, bone, brains, lungs and all the many kinds of tissues which make up the body.

Year by year, more knowledge is being assembled as to how this chemistry works, although the most fundamental mystery of all, the secret of life, remains an enigma. Perhaps it always will.

From time to time Nature gets confused in some manner, and a cyst, or accumulation of tissues, appears in the wrong place. The wonder is that Nature usually is so accurate, rather than that sometimes an error occurs.

Various kinds are known: The heart on the wrong side, six or more fingers on a hand, certain types of tumors. The list is quite long.

So incorrect tissues, usually including hair, and sometimes a rudimentary tooth or two, and other bits of bone and flesh have to be removed surgically. Such is called a dermoid cyst. Sometimes it takes years before such a hidden cyst causes enough trouble to make its presence obvious.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that a woman who has been taking different reducing pills for several years is bound to have a deformed child? — C.

No. We are concerned about some medications and their influences, primarily in the first three months of pregnancy, rather than with something that occurred before the pregnancy. But do not infer from this my approval for continuing the use of reducing pills "for several years."

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband is 25 and has little spots where there's no hair. Could he because he uses too much hair oil? — Mrs. S. P.

No, it couldn't, because he didn't use the hair oil in just those spots. It's probably alopecia areata, which is fancier language for little bald spots. That kind of baldness tends to correct itself, although in the owner of the spots it often seems like a very long wait. Except for having a skin specialist check for some scaly condition, there isn't much to do.

Hemorrhoids can be cured if troubled with flatness, itching and other rectal problems, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 188, Dundee, Ill., requesting a copy of the booklet, "The Real Cure For Hemorrhoids," enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

LOOKING BACKWARDS
GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

50 YEARS AGO

Jan. 30th, 1915

Friday evening of the Belleville City Council meeting was a Tom-Age Night in Belleville. City boys and girls from the ages of 12 to 19, numbering 220 blustery stormed the gymnasium and the occasion was a burst of enthusiasm over the new project of a Tom-Age Club in the city of Belleville. The city is belonging to the footsteps of other cities in the province, in the founding of such clubs for providing a program of fine Canadian entertainment for the amusement of the younger generation.

The local club is sponsored by the Y.M.C.A. under a committee. The Board of Education has granted the club the use of several rooms in the collegiate, namely the gymnasium for dances, the cafeteria and the cost room, the teen-agers being responsible for supervising these. The boys and girls of the club are also responsible for the publicity of the organization.

25 YEARS AGO

Jan. 30th, 1925

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Massey of the Massey homestead of Sidney township were at home to a host of friends on Monday afternoon on the occasion of the celebrating the 50th anniversary of their wedding. Many friends called to offer congratulations and to express good wishes. In the evening the members of the Wallbridge United Church presented Mr. and Mrs. Massey with a handsome clock. The pastor, the Rev. W. Johnson, read the address and as address was read Mr. and Mrs. Massey. Following the address a silver tea service was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Massey. The presentation was made by Mrs. Chisolm and Mrs. Percy Phillips. Mrs. Massey, prior to her marriage, was Miss Bertha Beddick, and the wedding took place at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Beddick, of the 4th concession of Sidney township.

Feel Free-Trade Auto Bill Can Get Passage in 1965

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Some stiff congressional priorities face United States legislation to implement the free-trade auto pact with Canada.

U.S. administration spokesmen, while conceding there will be "flak" along the legislative route, seem confident however that passage can be achieved this year.

Otherwise, the process must be started anew in 1965.

Canada has given the only approval needed, a cabinet order-in-council.

This is the timetable here for the agreement signed Jan. 16 by Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson and removing North American tariffs for manufacturers — not the car buyers—on autos and original parts:

—The U.S. government hopes to have the draft legislation ready and introduced in Congress within two weeks or so.

—It will start out in the 435-member House of Representatives, which constitutionally begins work on money bills.

—The auto pact will be studied in detail in the house ways and means committee which has a crowded schedule.

—Later, the Senate will get the measure. Either body can make alterations.

First objection by presidential order goes to the so-called U.S. medicare bill providing some benefits for persons 65 or more. Work on that measure has begun, but it still may be mid-March at the earliest before the auto bill can be started.

WANT BLOCK DEAL

Some independent American parts makers want to block the deal with Canada. Congressmen from auto-making areas will at least want to have a good look at the whole plan.

There is a strong possibility that another matter—President Johnson's proposed excise tax cut of $1,750,000,000—may be squeezed in first. Committee officials say protests are already being received that buyers, anticipating tax cuts on a wide range of items—are holding up purchases of luxury items. That may prove to be a powerful stimulus for early action on the tax-cut measure.

Generally, house approval tends to take longer than Senate action, chiefly because the Senate has only 100 members. The Senate finance committee will do the detailed study after house approval has been obtained.

The finished product—if it survives as now conceived—would be made retroactive through administrative action. Hopefully, it would be extended back as near as possible to Jan. 17.

On that date, Canada abolished a system of tariff rebates to encourage auto-parts sales to the U.S. The scheme had drawn fire here and the free-trade concept was worked out as a replacement.

Will Consider Reinstating Ex-Police Chief

PORT ELGIN, Ont. (CP) — Council is considering reinstating Const. Charles Riley to his former rank of chief constable in this Lake Huron resort town 25 miles west of Owen Sound.

Mayor W. J. Davey said a special meeting to discuss the matter was held Friday at the conclusion of the eight-day police commission hearing, but no decision was reached.

Mayor Davey said council will discuss the proposal again during a closed meeting Monday night. Members also are expected to consider reinstating former constable George Armour Taggart, who also was dismissed last fall.

The police commission hearing was precipitated mainly by council's firing of Const. Riley when he was chief constable. Riley refused to resign, but later was reduced to constable at the same salary—$4,200—plus $12 in daily overtime.

More than 45 witnesses were called to testify at the hearings which opened in December and resumed Monday.

Counsel for each of the parties told the three-man commission they would present written submissions. Robin Scott, commission counsel, said findings are expected to be announced in about a month.

Mayor Davey said immediate steps will be taken to bring the town police force up to its previous three-man strength. A third member of the force, former Constable Karl W. MacNaughton of London, resigned last fall.

Housing Act Changes Seen As Significant

OTTAWA — New approaches to old problems, particularly in the field of urban renewal and public housing, were contained in recent amendments to the National Housing Act which received swift Parliamentary approval. The measures are expected to have a significant and far-reaching impact on housing conditions in Canada, on the growth and development of our cities and in our day-to-day environment.

Briefly, the National Housing Act amendments provide for: increased funds for direct lending by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation; approved loans and direct loans by CMHC to corporations existing housing projects in designated urban renewal areas; extension of the forgiveness period on loans made for sewage treatment projects; an added measure of help for university students and their families; increased loan facilities for housing for low-income families and elderly persons; broad changes to assist provinces and their municipalities with their housing and development needs.

In introducing the amendments to the House of Commons, the Honorable John R. Nicholson, Parliamentary General and Minister responsible for CMHC affairs, referred to them as "complimentary" to "fresh approach" to some of the country's most troublesome housing problems. He said the new measures would introduce a "new flexibility" into the National Housing Act, so as to objectives and the ways to reach them. He described the objectives as ambitious and encompassing "nothing less than a decent standard of housing for all Canadians".

Basically, the changes in the National Housing Act promise new hope for low-income families, for elderly persons and for those who presently struggle to raise their children in slums or near slums. In a statement to the House of Commons, Mr. Nicholson said the general housing situation in Canada had shown great improvement over the past ten years but that hardship persisted, particularly in congested urban areas and for people unable to rent accommodation adequate to their needs at rentals they can afford. For these reasons, the accent in the new legislation is on urban renewal and public housing.

300 Quebec Women Had Cancer Signs

QUEBEC (CP)—Ten per cent of the 3,000 Quebec women who took advantage of free examinations for cancer of the breast and uterus were found to have cancer symptoms and were advised to seek more thorough examinations, it was announced Friday.

A spokesman for the Canadian Cancer Society said the program in co-operation with Quebec hospitals was the first of its kind conducted in Canada. Its aim was early detection of cancer affecting the breast and uterus.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are going to Halifax next month, and would like to know the best route and quickest. Also, if the ferry at Plattsburgh is open this time of year. We wish to come back through Vermont. — Mrs. R., Belleville.

ANSWER: Belleville to Montreal via No. 2 Highway, then on to Quebec, cross the St. Lawrence to No. 2 on to Levis, and continue on No. 2 to Riviere-Du-Loup, then south east to Edmunston, cross over to Highway No. 9, and drive on No. 9 until you blend with No. 2, and continue on No. 2 until you come to Truro and then No. 2 to Halifax.

The ferry from Burlington on Lake Champlain opens April 4.

QUESTION: We are driving to Chicago next month. We would like maps, and any information you could give us for this motor trip, also any accommodation books you have of this area.

ANSWER: If you would like to phone the Ontario Motor League we would be pleased to give you any information you require. Accommodation books and routings are for members only, but if you write to the Chamber of Commerce of Chicago they will be happy to send you brochures and maps.

QUESTION: We are travelling to Dayton, Ohio, next month, and wondered if you could tell us something about the Ohio Caverns. How far are they from Dayton? — Mr. S., Belleville.

ANSWER: The Ohio Caverns are in West Liberty, Ohio, about 50 miles north of Dayton. The caverns are open all year 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and are considered a carved fairyland of Nature. There are thousands of large and beautiful stalactites stained with mineral colors; brilliant crystals and glistening white stalactite chandeliers. A sight well worth seeing.

QUESTION: We are considering going to Myrtle Beach next month. We would like information on how far it is, how long it will take to drive there, and what it has to offer at this time of year.

ANSWER: Myrtle Beach is a favorite vacation place for Canadians at this time of year.

The temperatures for South Caroline are very moderate, with mean temperatures of 43 degrees. Summer temperature 80 to 90 degrees winter temperatures 47 degrees.

Myrtle Beach is approximately 850 miles from Belleville. At an average speed of 50 miles an hour it should take about 17 hours.

There is not much doing at Myrtle Beach this time of year, but would suggest you write for brochures etc., to South Carolina State Development Board, PO Box 827, TF, Columbia, South Carolina.

QUESTION: We are visiting New York City next week, and we would like to know the most direct route down. Can you give us some information regarding a visit to the New York Stock Exchange and what are the hours; also information on the Empire State Building. — G. W. Belleville

ANSWER: Drive to Watertown and then to Syracuse on No. 81 and turn east on to the New York Thruway to Albany, from Albany continue on to Sloatsburg, then on No. 287 east to Nyack, and again on to No. 87 to New York via 9A.

The New York Stock Exchange is on 20 Broad Street near Wall. It is the largest organized securities market in the U.S. visitors' gallery overlooks trading floor, animated displays tell the story of investment and the nation's growth. Color motion picture shows in Exhibit Hall every half hour. Reception-ists explain function of Exchange Monday to Friday 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., free. The Empire State Building 5th Avenue and 34th Street, is the tallest building in the world, 102 storeys high, 1,472 feet, 74 elevators. Observation terraces on 86th and 102nd floors annually attract 2 million visitors. Daily 9:30 a.m. to midnight. $1.40, 5-11 years 70 cents.

Police Officer Acquitted of Theft Charges

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — A jury Friday acquitted former Port Elgin constable Karl Wayne MacNaughton of theft charges. MacNaughton resigned from the Port Elgin force last year after being suspended and reinstated.

The theft charges concerned a break at a trailer at the Turnbull Grover summer resort near Grand Bend, Ont.

The jury was out 45 minutes before returning the not guilty verdict to Judge E. S. Hetherington.

H. B. Simpson Is Appointed Principal of Albert College

H. B. Simpson, B.A., acting principal of Albert College since the resignation of Rev. J. Alastair Haig, has been appointed principal of the century-old school of learning. Announcement of the unanimous choice of the Board of Governors was made today by chairman of the board, W. Lorne McDougall.

Mr. Simpson, classics graduate of Victoria College, University of Toronto, brings to his new position considerable experience in residential school management. Appointed head of the classics department when he joined the staff in 1951, Mr. Simpson has served as residence house master, vice-principal, and acting principal.

In 1934 Mr. Simpson married the former Gladys Parry of Belleville. They have two daughters, Elaine, a student at Queen's University, and Elizabeth, on the clerical staff of the Ontario Hydro.

Says Churchill Helped Write Abdication

NEW YORK (AP)—The Duke of Windsor said Friday the late Sir Winston Churchill had a hand in writing the abdication speech in which the duke—then King Edward VIII — gave up his throne for an American divorcee.

"I've always been grateful to him for the support he gave me at the time of my abdication," the duke said.

He abdicated Dec. 11, 1936, so he could marry Wallis Warfield Simpson.

The duke and duchess sailed on the liner United States for le Havre, France, en route to Paris.

The duke said only the orders of doctors, following serious surgery, prevent him from attending Churchill's funeral Saturday.

The duke underwent surgery in Houston, Tex., last month.

30 TO ATTEND COURSE

OTTAWA (CP)—Thirty men and women from across Canada will attend a special course at the Canadian Civil Defence College in Arnprior, Ont., Feb. 1-5. The course will teach how to "duplicate" accident victims by the use of theatrical make-up to allow first aid instruction to become more realistic.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"I'll trade you the society section for the front page!"

Second Glance

By Viva Richmond Graham

AN EMBLEM STORY

"It is good to be zealously affected always in a good thing."— Galatians, 11, 9.

By this morning's mail, we note the New Year has come up already with a "first": the first "all number" telephone book.

Gone forever is the lovely exchange word that designated our district — "Woodland."

In its place are all numbers and thus so-called the All Number Calling (ANC) system. "But why the change?" various Bellevillians are wondering.

Upon our enquiry Mr. D. C. Curry, the local Bell Telephone manager kindly explains:

"This is not really a change in the telephone number but just a new way of expressing the existing ones. For example Woodbine 3687 becomes 963-3687. W is 9 and O is 6.

URGENT NEED

"ANC answers an urgent need for more telephone numbers brought on by the tremendous increase in telephones since World War II. For almost the first time, telephone growth does not mean an extra digit to dial. ANC provides the most telephone numbers with the least change and inconvenience to customers," Mr. Curry says and adds:

"Also, ANC eliminates the confusion between the letter 'O' and 'Zero' and between the letter 'I' and the figure 'L' and resulting errors that have plagued dial service since it began. Other common errors caused by misspelling and mispronouncing exchange names, will be relegated to history.

"There is still another advantage to ANC and one that will facilitate speedy dialling in the future: alphabets and letter arrangements on dials vary widely, but numbers form an internationally common anguage. Even today, 43 million dial telephones in 100 foreign countries use All Number Telephone numbers."

45 million dial telephones in $10 foreign countries . . . !

What would Alexander Graham Bell say to that if he were alive today?

Perhaps exactly what he said back in 1911: "Why, the little telephone system that I look back upon — what was it, compared to the mighty system that goes through the whole extent of our country today? It is to you (the men connected with the industry) that this great development is due, and I feel it behooves me to speak very modestly of the little beginning that led to this great end."

These memorable words were spoken by Mr. Bell when he did once lived in Brantford, Ontario at an unusual meeting held November 9, 1911, when 246 men met in the Hotel Somerset at Boston, Mass. They came from as far west as Texas and Oklahoma. One was a Canadian from Montreal named Charles Fleetwood Sise.

"All these men had one thing in common. All had been engaged in the promotion of, or were employed in the telephone business. All had more than 20 years of industry service. In fact there were two whose service went back as far as June 1875 One was Mr. Bell and the other, his one-time assistant, Mr. Thomas A. Watson," we are informed.

TELEPHONE PIONEERS

Proud of the ever-broadening scope and increasing usefulness of the telephone, it was decided to form "an insoluble bond of brotherhood between them all, and between all who followed in their footsteps."

Thus "The Telephone Pioneers of America" came into being.

Its golden anniversary was celebrated on Thursday, November 2, 1961. From a few hundred it has increased to over 215,000 members having at least 21 years in the telephone industry throughout North America. Of these about 74,000 are life members or employees who have retired from active service.

Considered the largest organization of its kind, we are told, it has 63 chapters, seven of which are in Canada — one of which is named the C. F. Sise Chapter. Each chapter is divided into councils. The C. F. Sise Chapter No. 36 covering Ontario and Quebec has eight councils.

BELL EMBLEM

Just now we are looking at the Pioneer emblem which is worn by the Pioneer members. It is triangular-shaped, centred by a bell design upon which it inscribed the figure "174455". This was assigned "by the United States Patent Office to Alexander Graham Bell's patent on the fundamental principle of the electric speaking telephone."

"The bell design, upon which the number appears is a copy of that which for many years was used by the Bell System Companies. Though it is now somewhat streamlined, in accordance with modern trends, the old type has been retained in the Pioneer Emblem," we read from an authoritative source.

"The dates "1875" and "1911" appear on the left and right of the bell respectively. They are commemorative of the experiment of June 2, 1875, when Bell verified his theory of the electrical transmission of speech, and of the organizing of the Telephone Pioneers of America, of November 2, 1911."

The triangular shape of the emblem denotes the three principle objects of the Telephone Pioneers of America; Fellowship Loyalty and Service. They express the lasting companionship, the true allegiance and the ideal of ever growing usefulness of the Bell Telephone Company.

And now you will understand why we have a special pride in this emblem before us. It was recently presented to my husband.

Physically-ill People Are Often Hard to Live With

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You saved our marriage. I was actually reading my suicide when the mailman delivered your letter.

Your advice was as follows: "It would be foolish to leave your husband. It sounds as if the man needs to see a doctor. By all means insist that he give a physical checkup."

I showed Howard your letter and he agreed to see our family doctor. I guess he was shocked that I had written to you. He was also surprised you answered. He said he didn't think you'd bother.

Well, Ann, the doctor gave Howard a series of tests and found out that he was dangerously anemic and had a low grade infection. No wonder the guy was tired and irritable all the time and had no interest in me or anything else.

Now, four weeks later, Howard is like a new man. The shots and pills have done wonders for him. It's almost like being on a honeymoon again and I want to say thank you, thank you. — BACK ON THE BEAM.

DEAR BEAM — People who are not well physically are difficult to live with. It's tough to be cheerful and pleasant when the pep-o-meter registers zero.

Irritation and chronic fatigue can be symptoms of illness and should be investigated. I hope others will take a cue from your letter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My daughter has gone off to school again — in tears. Sally is eight years old and very sensitive. Her sister, who is 11, refused to walk with her again this morning because she had made plans to walk with a girl friend.

I've tried every way I know to get the 11-year-old to be nice to her younger sister, but it's hopeless. She resents Sally and doesn't want to be bothered with her.

When I see children in the neighborhood who watch after their younger brothers and sisters I know that some parents have done a better job than I have. Any help you can give me will be deeply appreciated. — SAD MOM.

DEAR MOM — If the older girl can be made to feel that her younger sister loved her, and looks up to her, the battle is won. It's difficult to be mean to someone who loves and admires us.

The older girl should be given "grown-up privileges" (later bedtime, etc.) as a symbol of her seniority. Explain that grown-up privileges carry with them responsibilities. Make her feel honored to be an older sister and tell her you hope she will live up to her sister's high opinion of her.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I've been going with (or should I say "staying home with") an eligible bachelor for three years. He lived in the apartment below mine, and we sort of fell into the habit of having dinner together every evening — at my place.

Three weeks ago I decided to move out of the building so he would have to at least walk a couple of blocks for a free meal.

Now I'm not so sure I did the smart thing. He telephones me when he feels like it and this week he has left like it only twice. Furthermore, he's the jealous type and says he will never see me again if I go out with anyone else.

Last night I asked him bluntly when he planned to marry me. He replied, "If there's anything I can't stand it's a pushy woman." Ann, I am 29 years old and I believe I've been very patient. I love this guy and don't want to lose him. I know he doesn't take out anyone but me. I need some help. — AGING FAST.

DEAR A.F. — The answer to this one is so old I'm going to have to shave it to tell it.

Tell your friend if he wants you to be Exclusively His, a marriage licence costs less than a dinner these days. In the meantime, go out with others and tell him to call you when he gets the urge — to merge, that is.

GLEN MILLER - JOHNSTOWN

The first meeting of the new year was held January 20th. The "creed" of the Canadian Home and Parent Teacher Federation was read by Mrs. M. Rowman. "Its great object should be to interest all people in all children and to link in common purpose the home, the school, and educative forces in the life of the child and to work for its highest good."

The safety petition is now completed and on February 1st at the Wallbridge Orange hall it will be presented to the Hastey township council. Ninety-nine percent of the people of Glen Miller and area have participated in this worthwhile effort.

Craft "Nite" is still continuing. Copper tooling is now being taught.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker was Mrs. M. Grant, guidance teacher at Quinte Secondary School in Belleville. Mrs. Grant gave a most descriptive and informative talk on the facilities of the school, going into detail covering the restaurant, gyms, library and music room. At the present time there are 3 - 5 year courses, 3 - 4 year courses and a 2-year course, covering art and science; business and commerce, and technology and trade.

She stressed the fact that there are many extra curricular activities open to student, including the bands and sports. There is something going on which would be of interest to each individual concerned. She also made the point of the student being able to listen and above all, the student must study and keep working. In closing she said "A busy life is a happy one."

The Home and School Association has been approached by the students to hold teenage dances. It is being considered, but would require more voluntary help.

Reader's Saturday Column

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION:

I would like to have a cocktail party in February. This is my first attempt. Could you give me some ideas? Ruth M.

ANSWER:

Select two of the four following canape spreads and add caviar canapes because they are popular and easy. Make small toast bases (see below) and cover neatly with caviar. The Roquefort and Cream Cheese spread piped into short inner celery stalks, makes a welcome and attractive variation. Little bowls of jumbo-size pecans are popular.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Sauteed Chicken Livers and Mushrooms; Buttered Cabbage; Rosebud Beets; Tossed Salad: Iceberg and Bibb Lettuce with Spinach, Italian French Dressing; Pineapple Upside-Down Cheese Squares (see Friday); Tea.

CANAPE SPREADS:

1) Chicken Liver Paste: To ½ lb. chicken livers add ¼ cup hot water. Simmer covered 15 minutes. Gently saute 1 tablespoon chopped onion in 2 tablespoons butter for 3 minutes. Add to drained and dried livers and force through finest blade of food chopper. Add ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon each pepper and accent and grind again to a smooth paste. Chill.

2) Chopped Clam and Cheese Spread: Drain liquid from 1-lb. can minced clams. Chop clams very finely and add ½ cup white cream cheese, 3 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Chill.

3) Roquefort and Cream Cheese Spread: Mix to a smooth paste ½ cup each Roquefort and white cream cheese with 1 teaspoon each Worcestershire sauce and dry mustard and 2 tablespoons mayonnaise or soft butter. Good for canapes, but even better for stuffing celery. Pipe it attractively into short stalks of celery or use a slender knife. Perfect as a "dip" for tiny white cauliflowerets, but add extra mayonnaise for this purpose.

4) Salmon Spread for Shrimp Canapes: Mash finely or put through finest knife of grinder one 4-oz. can drained red salmon. Work into it 1½ tablespoons mayonnaise and 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Spread on round canape bases. Top each with one whole large shrimp or top salmon spread with thin small slice of cucumber, spread it sparingly with mayonnaise and top with a small whole shrimp.

TOAST BASES FOR CANAPES:

Trim the crusts from fine-textured white bread which is sliced very thinly — RIP. Cut into fancy shapes — oblongs, stars, rounds, triangles. Gently saute on one side only in a little butter — they must not be buttered-cooked. Dry and cool on wax paper. When serving time approaches spread untoasted side with one of the above spreads. Garnish the canapes daintily with tiny sprigs of parsley, slices of stuffed olive, strips of pimiento, finely chopped ripe olives or hard-cooked egg yolk sieved.

Once Considered Cesspool Puerto Rico Now Beauty Spot

By A. HENDERSON

To be whisked on white wings from "Our Lady of Snows" over blue Atlantic waters to Puerto Rico, "The Switzerland of the Americas," was a most enjoyable occasion on Thursday evening for those lovers of the Kiwanis travelogue series, who braved the snowbound, icy streets, and filled the collegiate to near capacity.

Mr. James Metcalfe, owner of the plane, who was accompanied by his wife as co-pilot, and his daughter as stewardess, has been flaining captivating scenery for a period of 21 years. Is known as the "Flying Photographer." He accompanied his film with a fine and interesting narration, and tribal music.

PUERTO RICO

Puerto Rico, which belongs to the United States, is one of the West Indies' islands; 100 miles in length and 3,435 square miles in area. In the centre it is mountainous; has a beautiful climate with temperature of 81 degrees in summer and 76 degrees in winter. Its people are mostly of the Spanish race as the island was once a Spanish possession. Its government is democratic, and has a Governor, Senate and House of Representatives; the Governor appointed by the United States President. It makes its own laws and is responsible to them. The people are industrious, lovers of the beautiful, and most loyal to their families. In 15 years the island has changed from a "cesspool" to a place of exquisite beauty with brilliantly colored flowers, miles and miles of sandy beaches, modern buildings and a hive of activity with its many factories.

INDUSTRIES

The chief industry of the island is that of sugar making and the production of rum, with horse and cattle ranches. Other industries include tuna fishing, growing of tobacco, pineapples, grapefruit, coffee and oranges. Experimental agriculture is also being tried out including the growing of pepper. Sports favor horseracing, cock-fighting (with much active betting included), baseball, golf, with fine courses, and shopping, where fine laces and other items of fine needlework are to be found. "Handicraft, such as mask- made from the cocoanut shells is sparse, but pottery of intricate designs heads the list of purchases.

ARCHITECTURE

The architecture, predominately of the Spanish type, is gradually changing to the modern. Houses are made from blue brick, and the old, narrow streets are now becoming wide, expressways for automobiles. Where the slums once were, beautiful gardens are growing; and well-designed apartments are rising. Education is compulsory, with the university at Rio Piedras, near San Juan.

Among the eye-catching modern hotels, bordering the sea, were those of the Rockefeller at Dorado; the Condado Beach Hotel, and the El Conquistadore at Fajardo, all of which were finely appointed. The meals are most elaborate, consisting of six courses with three different soups. Other places of interest consisted of the Dorado Beach Fly-In where an aeroplane convention was held with 28 small private planes attending. Here, a bone-dropping contest was held from a height of 300 feet, with the speaker of the evening winning first place. The bombs consisted of bags of flour which changed the surrounding scenery, somewhat. Here, also, the pilots were treated to a whole barbecued pig, roasted over red-hot coals.

CARPET MAKING

Carpet-making was also shown where rugs of rainbow hues were carefully made from special designs. The wool used was of a bewildering range of colors and shades. After the design is completed, the women trim off the outstanding wool with clippers, making an even and delightful effect.

Among the island flowers are tree-like specimens topped with gorgeous crimson flow- ers; the bougainvilla in its ordinal hues and the beautiful frail-like orchids in shades of pale lemon; cream paled pinks; Chinese pink; and pearl-white, looking so ethereal that a breath might blow them away. Odd trees included the 'cannon ball,' so named from its shape and unpleasant taste. Where once the sandy desert held sway, now, due to irrigation, fields and fields of pineapples are grown, of which there are 12 varieties, deliciously sweet.

SILENT WORLD

One of the many fine sights was the "Silent World," an underwater portrayal of sea swamps waving their plume- like limbs; glistening corals in tree-like form; huge pin-cushion creatures, with bristling black spires; strange floral vegetation and crannies and caves. Mr. Metcalfe stated that color pictures were not obtainable beyond a depth of 30 feet, with the best being from eight to 11 feet.

Mr. Metcalfe was introduced by Mr. Friedel Belltedt, one of the directors of the Kiwanis Club.

Old Chinese Customs Thrive In Teeming City of Singapore

By SHIRLEY and ROB SLOANE

SINGAPORE — With nearly four out of five of this historic island city's 1,200,000 population Chinese, there is little of the exotic color of Cathay that cannot be found here.

Its dense and teeming Chinatown is said to be larger even than Hong Kong's, which is spread over many sections of that city. The bamboo poles with wash dangling like flags of welcome flutter from block after block of tenements. The screech and haggle of the sidewalk stalls go on endlessly around the clock and through the city. And in the sleazy bars and 3 upstairs hotel rooms of Bugis Ki- only Fu Manchu knows what goes on.

Chinese, by their own admission, eat all the time, day and night, whenever they feel like it. They may dine in Chinese restaurants with familiar names like Peking and New China, where there are hundreds of items on the menu ranging from Buddha Vegetarian Hundred Flower Crab Claws to Talking Bird's Nest Soup and Lip Stick Chicken. These are no prices on the menu since the proprietor is trained to charge fairly according to the current market. Or they may have a hearty meal of rice and vegetables for a few pennies it an open-air walk luncheonette of Albert Road.

The tourist more likely will have a walking dinner, wandering from stall to stall to another. If he has that look on his face, the proprietor will automatically dish out a pan of boiling water so he may wash his dishes and chopsticks to his heart's content.

AS CLEAN AS EXOTIC

It is invariably unnecessary, as the Chinese are nothing if not fastidious. That it is manifest even in the sidewalk markets, as clean as they are exotic.

Here pajamaed housewives browse for black salt eggs soaked in brine, huge duck eggs and tiny quail eggs, and the inevitable thousand-year-old eggs, which are 100 days old.

Live ducks, live rabbits, live chickens, live fish and dressed iguana, red barbecued pork, huge meal-in-one prawns and nauseating smells, coddlefish and duck meat pies, turtles and half-skinned pythons, bean curd and bean milk, thorny rambutans hiding delicious lichee-like fruit, and prickly durian melons, star-fruit and sum and pear-like chikus . . . all are among the bewildering profusion of everyday Chinese market foods.

In the Chinese philosophy, only dying is more important than dining. In Singapore's Chinatown are some of the last of the "death houses" — combination lodging placed and funeral parlors — where the doomed move to prepare for their end.

In the streets beneath are coffin manufacturers. Chinese often order and pay for their caskets while still young, and store them away for decades.

Adjoining shops sell wreaths joss sticks, and custom-made impediments for burning after funerals: bundles of fake money and paper houses, autos and other possessions all for fiery transfer to Paradise, and all designed and built according to the affluence of the deceased.

ENJOY LIFE

But the Chinese are also great ones for enjoying life while it goes on. Two of their favorite — and unique — places of amusement in Singapore are the "New World" and Haw Par Villa, the world famous Tiger Balm Garden.

Tiger Balm is a kind of Chinese snake oil that is trusted, along with certain satellite products, by countless millions as being good for whatever ails you. Currently it is the family enterprise of Aw Cheng Chye, who wears a $100,000 star sapphire ring and is reputed to be one of the richest men in the world.

His father and uncle, founders of Tiger Balm, built the $1,000,000 "amusement" park as a place of relaxation for the people of Singapore and, incidentally, as a convenient spot to remind them of Tiger Balm products.

Whether the park offers amusement or not is a matter of taste. In a lovely setting overlooking the China Sea, it is an engagingly ingenuous place of pastel concrete pagodas, bowls, caves, grottos and figures covered with brightly painted concrete statuary.

These deal in everything from the cultures of various lands to strange and often gruesome scenes from Chinese mythology.

One elaborate diorama graphically depicts the tortures of hell, with all sizes of punishment, impalement, being sawed in half, and other delights to gladden the hearts of children who seem to take it all with delighted relish. Some visitors find the place a dreamland, others a nightmare.

Just as inscrutable — and intriguing — is the New World, a more conventional amusement park featuring dance halls, tea gardens, a "Chi- Happiness Car Racing Yard," and the most bewildering and popular of all entertainments, Chinese Opera.

GAUDIEST, NOISIEST

Chinese opera is both the gaudiest and noisiest entertainment in the world, not even excepting a Beatles' concert. At New World it takes place in a bamboo-draped wooden theatre with wooden chairs occupied by families whose purpose seems to be to drown out the performers with an aimless, continuous cacophony. Unlike audiences' responses in western theatres, this racket bears no relation to the performance; it just goes on and on.

On stage, in front of an asbestos curtain advertising "Nice- fresh Cream," a musical troupe from Taiwan — nearly all of them women — currently enacts an ancient tale of bloody revenge and counter-revenge to the accompaniment of arhythmical wails and atonal trumpets and drums, firecrackers and off-stage horses hooves.

Brilliantly gowned in medieval brocades, they squeal in inaudible falsetto, swing wooden swords, pirouette in frenzied black-out sketches that send the audience into ever greater transports of noise, then fly regularly on wires across the stage.

Flying is only one specialty trick. Each troupe has its own, and the performance is judged mainly on these, since the stories are all familiar and the singing drowned out anyway.

Through it all the loudly hawk fruit in the aisles, and a stage manager in an incongruous modernist sweater-vest and off the platform remaining scenery. Was China ever like this?

Sewing Club Wishes to Make Christmas Stockings

DEAR DORIS — A long time ago you told about some organization giving instructions for groups making up Christmas stocking to send to children in other countries. Our sewing club would like something like this. Are these stockings still being sent?—MOTHERS' CLUB.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR MOTHERS' CLUB—More than ever. By the Canadian Save the Children Fund. And they do a big job.

In October Father Olivier in Viet Nam wrote: "Keep the stockings coming. If they can't get here by Christmas, try for early in the New Year.

"Even when they come in the middle of summer those packages do something wonderful for the little ones in my charge. In all probability those will be the only gifts they receive this Christmas."

Now groups are working towards next Christmas. Deadline is June first. I'm sending you an instruction sheet which tells how to make the stockings and a list of desirable contents.

Headquarters of C.S.C.F. also suggests that the same contents might go into clinics bags made up for the purpose for other than Christmas time.

(Note for Readers: I have a pile of these instruction sheets. Send in a large stamped envelope with your request.)

DEAR DORIS — I had acne very badly in my teens. It has all gone now except for my cheeks, which are getting better. I guess I am still self-conscious about it.

How can I become a warm, outgoing person, or do you have to be born outgoing? — IN A SHELL.

DEAR SHELL — All newborn babes are completely self-centred. Later we begin to discover that others have needs, and if we have the right influences around us we learn some- thing about give-and-take.

Yet the inborn equipment to understand other humans varies. Lucky are those with both insight and the environment in which to cultivate outgoing habits!

Your poor complexion started you off worrying more about yourself than being concerned with the other fellow. Try now to put yourself in his or her shoes; the sympathy will follow, and eventually get across to him; whoever he is.

Speaker Relates History Of Her Native Jamaica

An excellent attendance of the members of the Women's Study Guild at the home of Mrs. H. R. Gibson heard Mrs. Ruby Dailey of her homeland, Jamaica. The island which is about twice the size of Prince Edward Island has a population of about 1½ million people, the majority of which are Negro origin. Many other nationalities exist as Chinese, Indian, Syrian, French, Canadian and American contribute their industry and culture to the island's rich tapestry of color, but all consider themselves Jamaicans. From this was derived the new country's motto, "Out of many, came one".

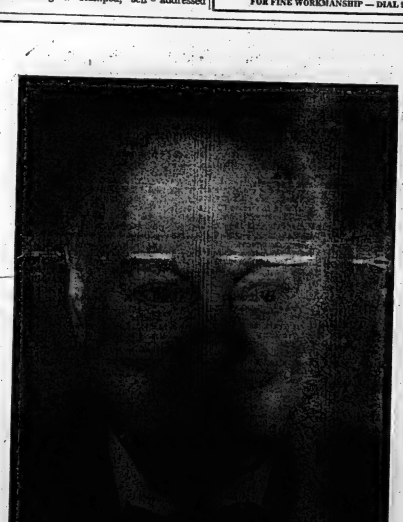
Mrs. Dailey gave an excellent resume of the island's educational system, stating that secondary school education was the most expensive, as many of the schools are boarding schools, run by various religious denominations. There are five teacher training colleges for elementary school teachers which give a three-year course past secondary school graduation. Praise was given to the University of the West Indies located at Mona in Kingston, Jamaica.

Jamaica was a partner in the West Indies Federation formed in 1958, but withdrew in 1961 and became completely independent the following year. Its constitution is patterned after that of Canada's and there is close co-operation between the two countries.

TOURIST'S PARADISE

The description of the island's beauty, climate and agricultural products really explained why it has become a tourist's paradise. A short film "Jamaica on the March" produced by the Jamaican Industrial Development Corporation showed how modern and industrialised Jamaica has become. Canada the United States have large investments in all phases of commercial life on the island.

Mrs. J. Reynolds, president of the Women's Study Guild welcomed the members and visitors. Letters were read from the adopted Tunisian girl who is supported by the Guild and from Mrs. W. Hurst thanking the ladies for the gifts at Christmas time for the Mental Health Association's project at the Cobourg hospital. Mrs. H. G. Wylie presented a fine devotional period, pointing out that "there is a great contest going on in the world today for men's minds and that it is most important for everyone to have a creed in which we can believe and for which we can fight."



An enjoyable social period followed the meeting for which Mrs. L. Lantz and Mrs. M. Beresford were hostesses.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. George Carrod, Halifax, N.S., are spending two weeks with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Carrod, Foster Ave., and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ethier, McDonald Avenue.

A Lift For Living

We Need New Cemeteries For Burying Dead Deeds

By REV. HAROLD E. KISSIN

A certain town in the Mid-west is building a new cemetery. Although the village itself has less than three thousand people, its cemetery, the city of the Dead, has a population several times that number. So now the city fathers have found it necessary to build a new cemetery to accommodate the graves that will be dug across the coming years. This town is solving a problem that is common in North America: as villages and cities grow, the more extensive their cemeteries must become.

We also need some cemeteries of another sort — for burying dead deeds, insults and injuries suffered at the hands of our fellowmen. When a disturbing deed is done, its impact and influence have been felt, and it becomes a thing of yesterday and yesteryear. It should be quietly buried in forgiveness and forgetfulness. If not, it will poison our days.

One of the strangest features of man is the lengths to which he will go to try to keep a past offense alive. He will massage it. He will give it artificial respiration, attempt to pump life into it and breathe fresh inspiration, anger and resentment into it, long after the act is finished and its pulse has stopped. Men won't let a dead deed rest in decent peace. Everyone needs a cemetery where slights and injuries can be laid to rest.

A man who was eager to make a thirteen-month tour of Europe went to a bank where he had done business for many years and asked to borrow enough money to cover his expenses. The bank refused to make the loan.

SMELLY DEPOSIT

Disgusted and angry, the man went to another bank, applied for the loan and got it. Then he purchased a five-pound fish, had it well wrapped, returned to the first bank, put it in his safety deposit box and with a twist-ing, vengeful smile left town for his six months' European tour.

Such fantastic instances of revenge reveal the absurd extremes to which people will go in attempts to keep hate alive. But other instances are more sad than silly. Take for example the tragic fate of vengeance in the character of one of the world's best-known poets. Sigfried Sicbee, the German lyric poet, although capable of producing songs of the most exquisite beauty, sometimes stooped to writing unfair, bitter attacks upon those who disagreed with him. He frequently wasted his genius on cutting satires, vented against his enemies.

Heine once wrote, "My nature is the most peaceful in the world. All I ask is a simple pottage, a decent bed, good food, some flowers in front of my window, and a few trees beside my door. Then, if God wanted to make me wholly happy, he would let me enjoy the spectacle of six or seven of my enemies dangling from those trees. I would forgive them all the wrongs they have done me — forgive them from the bottom of my heart, for we must forgive our enemies. But not until they are hanged."

Such "forgiveness" is a hollow, mad mockery. It is rank-est hatred, unbridled.

What is wrong with revenge?

REVENGE DEGRADES

Christian faith and practice have always recognized that revenge degrades the person who tolerates its presence in his heart. Christ condemned vengefulness not only because it could lead to harming the offender, but because it always hurts the heart of the offended. He denounced grudgefulness because the life of faith aims to elevate man, and grudgefulness always debauches him. Forgiveness is a friend of reason, while vengefulness is its enemy. Forgiveness lightens life's load, while grudgefulness adds to it, for a grudge is one of life's heaviest burdens.

Forgiveness and forgetfulness heal, while the spirit of revenge wounds. So the Christian aim is to bury the offensive deed in forgiveness and forgetfulness.

But how can we bury someone's offensive deeds in forgetfulness? By "forgive and forget" we do not mean to say that hurtful experience should be repressed into our subconscious minds where they are out of control and rankle and ruin us. Rather Christian forgetfulness means the abandonment of all emotion associated with offensive experiences. It is God's attitude toward His children. As Jeremiah puts it, "I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more." Jeremiah did not mean that God is absentminded, but that in His transactions with us He treats the penitent as if the offense had never occurred. Such forgetfulness in human relationships does not suggest that bad consequences are beyond our recall, but rather that we have lowered our offensive as it or desire for revenge. Intellectually we recall the event, but emotionally we forget.

Strangely, paradoxically, this remembering! It is the result of filling the mind so full of worthy things that we have no room for emotion-packed recollections of offensive deeds.

We can "forget to remember" the grievances we have suffered at the hands of others by remembering how general and widespread human weakness is. We remember our own faults, by recalling that while they may not be identical with those of our fellowmen, they are fully as irritating and hurtful. We remember how often we have been forgiven by God, and we recall the patience of our parents, our spouses, our children, friends, employers, employees and all others who have overlooked our blunders and ill-temper and have acted as if we had never bothered them.

Do you have trouble forgetting? Did someone betray your confidence? Were you slighted or dishonored in public? Were you humiliated? Did someone outwit you or "sting" you in a business deal? Do you find it hard to forgive? Who cuts a mean path while secretly praying for his soul? Bury offenses under a heap of prayer.

Women's Institutes

MADOC W.I.

MADOC—The January meeting of Madoc Women's Institute was held in the Memorial Hall. Albert Empey with Mrs. Vera Hill presiding with 20 members present. Mrs. Hill opened the meeting with a poem.

Correspondence contained a request for data on local history. A committee was formed to assist in the preparation of the community. Mrs. E. T. Reed, Mrs. A. Empey, Mrs. R. Hall and Mrs. Vera Hill were appointed. Mrs. A. Empey, hostess, gave current events, a quiz on Canada and "Winston Churchill; the success of bright school in the community; reading by Mrs. Hall and the naming of Highway 401; red sleigh flags being stolen from the school.

Mrs. Hugh Empey spoke on the topic, "Be quick to see what is good and slow to see what is evil." Mrs. Empey introduced the guest speaker, Rev. James H. Thompson, his topic was "Citizenship, Education and Responsibility." He explained the meaning of the word, citizen and its Greek origin, low citizenship training in the growing Roman Empire; and what is expected today when new Canadians desire to become citizens of this country.

Rev. Thompson's address was most interesting and education-al and was the result of a great deal of research work.

Mrs. S. R. Beatty extended thanks to the speaker and hostess.

A social hour followed, with a beautiful lunch served by the hostess and her assistants.

Golden Curtain Quartet Delights Concert Audience

By EUGENE LANG

For the second attraction of the 1964-65 season of the Bellville Community Concert Association, the music lovers who braved the bitter cold weather were well recompensed for their efforts by being presented in the Collegiate Auditorium last evening by being delightfully entertained by the Golden Curtain Quartet. This vocal ensemble consists of four young artists on the way up in the world of song. They have soloed forces under this collective title (symbolic of the renowned Metropolitan Opera Curtain) to entrance their listeners with their varied voices, be it ellisa, in solo, duet, trio or quartet form. The four participants in this quartet are Maria Albanese, soprano; Sandra Warfield, mezzo-soprano; Dan Marek, tenor; and David Glenn Gentry, baritone. Using last evening's performance as a criterion of these four young operatic participants, we can only conclude that each seems to have a decided career in the offing that will eventually separate them and let them take up their individual roles as potential soloists in their own rights for greater plaudits upon their far reaching perspective being attained.

The program was divided into three main categories of the vocal art — the opera, the operettas and musical from Broadway. Each member of the quartet had an opportunity to exhibit fully his or her musical and dramatic ability as soloist, along with other selections in-terspersed that gave credence to their ensemble singing, regardless of the coupling of timbres. Description by the use of the written word would be inadequate to give full meaning to the many fine interpretations that were positioned last evening, so let it be sufficient to sum up by stating that those in attendance were more than merely satisfied by the offerings of the vocalists — they were happily satiated from start to finish. As for those who did not hear this excellent program of mostly popular items, it must be their loss not to have been present. Enjoyment for all to no end is the keynote phrase that properly tallies up the evening had with the Golden Curtain Quartet.

Piano accompanist William Sowerwine came through with keyboard shadowings and blendings that enhanced every number — plus his dry drollery as a sometime annotator.

SIDNEY TOWNSHIP — Mrs. E. Wickens, R.R. 3 Trenton, district secretary, presided over the annual district association meeting of Guiders and parents. This association includes Frankford, Johnstown, Glen Miller and Batawa Guides and Brownies. Mrs. Willian Defranse was acting secretary. The yearly reports of the officers in the association were given and the Blue and Brown Guiders outlined a resume of their activities. Mrs. Standish, captain of the First Frankford Guides announced that Donna Chase had successfully completed her two-year Cadet Course. This is a provincial correspondence course in leadership. The pennant for the most meetings in a school year was won by the 1st Glen Miller Guides and the 1st Brownie Pack. The meeting with school and their Guide prayer and refreshments were served by Mrs. Clara Collar and the Glen Miller Group committee.

BRIDGE ST. CHOIR PRESENTS

ORGAN RECITAL by John Weaver

Monday, February 15th, 8:15 P.M.

John Weaver - Organist

Skill and style win applause when John Weaver, talented young organist and choir director from the Lutheran Church of the Holy Trinity in New York City makes his Canadian debut in an organ recital at Bridge St. Church on Feb. 15th. This young virtuoso is already a leader in the country's younger generation of organists. His compositions include works for voice, chorus, organ and piano. The four manual casavant pipe organ under the skill of this young musician will be a highlight of our Quinte musical world.

Common Man Confuses Quantity With Quality

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

God must have loved the common man, said Abraham Lincoln, for He made so many of him.

The long-awaited "century of the common man" has at last come. Judging the results thus far, however, one could easily be wroth with the Almighty for over-production. The "common man" indeed: heights and peaks have been levelled to the lowest common denominators and mediocrity rides high. What ones were standards to be aspired to, have now become "norms" — stereotypical private attitudes, common-place public platitudes.

A "Gallup-Poll" style of life, a consensus morality and culture are standard equipment for our time: "Everyone's doing it, why not they? "Come what's good for everyone must be good for me!"

Here's a little list:

POSITIVE TRUTH

Kinsey-style "scholars" at our universities are the new moralists. They report behavior — "what they see it!" — or "hear tell" about it. Their volumous graphs and statistics, their I.B.M. cards and tapes have become the real notes from the underground. These, and these alone, are the real, the positive truth. In their hands, the norm has come to mean "the normal" — and it alone is all that is "real."

Result: We are caught up in the vicious circle of a vast feedback. In an age which trumpets the "rights of man," the inalienable rights of the individual, there are scarcely any individuals left. Because few have the courage to challenge "the statistics," and fewer the heart to appear ab-"normal," most have come to accept the "norm" as nonconformists as their own standard.

Box-office appeal is the measuring rod for much of our "comic-strip culture." Will it sell? — this is the primary gauge of what is good or appropriate for the people to know and to enjoy. The vulgar, the obscene, the trivial and the tiny have triumphed because, so the mass-producers of "culture" report, this is what the people want.

Result: What sells tells — about the books we read, the plays we see, the T.V. we spy. We white, pink, mean, green over the stuff "they put out." But if we did not "buy," "they" could not sell. If we don't buy, we're not to buy, when-he's been told — and told and told — that everyone's buying! Again, the feed-back at work.

FULLER MEN

We grind excellence under our feet in a thoughtless and mad scramble to accept the pressures of mediocrity as the norm. We are satisfied with less than those which if they were our very own. But it is the second-best which tri-umphs when the common man is coming or resembling a statistic.

Our times call for a new Declaration of Independence — an emancipation from the mediocre a liberation from the ordinary. We need to stop worshipping at the altars of the average, and begin to think of ourselves as taller men, with larger needs to be satisfied than those which feed computers or box-offices.

We need to rebel against becoming quantities with quantitative qualities.

Lighting The Way

By Walter S. Crone

AFTER 12 YEARS AND $5,000,000

Some of our newspapers recently carried the story of a wealthy and eccentric widow, of San Jose, California. This woman had passed away at the age of 85 years. Several years before, she had consulted a fortune telling medium who convinced her that she would never die as long as she kept building additions unto her house. For 38 years she kept adding room after room. At the time of her death, her house consisted of more than 150 rooms, and these had cost her $5,000,000. Her mansion has been described as "an architect's nightmare."

Not more than a dozen rooms are on the same level; there are stairways that dead-end at the ceiling; doors that open on blank passageways to nowhere. There are 107 gables, 47 fireplaces, 40 stairways (most of them with 13 steps) and at least ten thousand windows. Many of the chandeliers have 13 lights. Several of the rooms have 13 windows. This "architect's nightmare" is a California landmark, located on Winchester Road, southwest of San Jose.

This woman was seeking eternal life, but she went to the wrong source for her information and guidance. All too often, this woman makes a shambles of their lives for the same reason. Almighty God is the Origin and Source of our lives. His direction for us is given in His word, the Bible. If we will go to Him, instead of to the "fortunetellers" of mere man's wisdom, we will assuredly be guided into the way of Life Eternal.

TEXT FOR THE DAY: Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life. no man cometh unto the Father but by me." (St. John 14-6)

Pinch Hitting

By Garry Alexander

One thing is certain about Monday night's heavyweight fight between Canadian George Chuvalo and ex-champ Floyd Patterson.

This paper's sports department will have picked a winner when the battle is over.

George H. Carver, who wears the sports editor's togs, yesterday announced to the world that Patterson will carry home the victory nod over Chuvalo.

This agent has earned the right to contradict the bossman by saying that see, Sonny Liston, would NOT dethrone Cassius Clay back in November.

Liston did not.

It was a surgeon's knife that "laid the Lip low," not the fists of Sonny.

Sure, our prediction may have been slightly tainted by the fact that Clay did not fight that November night, but so what? He is still world champ, despite the WBA's claims of nay, so we will crawl back out on the limb once again.

George will win and George will lose. Chuvalo in the first instance and Carver in the second.

There is more than just liking of a contestant that brings about this call of a Patterson defeat. And, since Canadians and Maple Leafs are well behind Chicago and Detroit in our NHL "title list," no one can accuse me of being pro-Canadian when it comes to choosing sports winners.

Chuvalo will emerge victorious in Madison Square Gardens because he is the better fighter at the present time.

Patterson can box. He never could hit with any great authority. His glass chin is world famous. He holds the record for five quick knockouts at the hands of Mr. Liston and he will never forget them when he climbs into the squared circle against a man who can hit.

Chuvalo can hit—he always could.

A year or so ago, or any time before Patterson met with Liston, we would have had to pick Chuvalo to lose. Not now.

Chuvalo, much like Liston not so long ago, finds himself very close to a shot at boxing's prize—and all the money and glory that goes with it.

Liston won but failed to handle the situation, and a fellow by the name of Clay, when he did reach the top.

But Chuvalo has been a poor man all his life. He has fought for peanuts, been called a bum, a "stevedore" and a "has-been" while being pushed too quickly and mishandled.

Much of that has changed.

He has been taken under the collective wing of people who know boxing. He has learned the hard way that there is more to boxing than just slugging. He has learned how to box, perhaps not in the class of the Robinsons and the like, but then how many have?

Chuvalo beat a better fighter than Patterson in Doug Jones, a man who at the time ranked close behind Liston and Clay.

True, not too many among the Canadian's other opponents have been boxing elites.

But, despite twice holding the world heavyweight crown, how many good men has Patterson beaten?

And don't forget that money bit.

No matter what they say, money is the main reason any pro gets inside the ring to risk life and limb.

Patterson has been at the top and still has the money.

Chuvalo is just nearing the pots lined with gold and the odor has to be filling his nostrils.

Top this with the fact that Patterson has never seen Chuvalo fight.

Nor has he shaken the fear you saw in his eyes whenever he looked at Sonny Liston, both running from a title bout for many months, and in the ring on those two brief occasions when Liston did the stalking.

It adds up to a knockout victory for George Chuvalo inside of nine rounds.

After that, the rest will be up to three men.

Their names? Chuvalo, Clay and Liston, much in that order.

Chicago Black Hawks are considered in at least one respect—they can't seem to win the games that really count.

The Hawks have had three golden chances in the second half of the current National Hockey League season to tie Montreal Canadiens or take the league leadership away from them. They blew them all.

Another chance comes up Sunday when the Hawks, now two points behind, play host to the Canadiens.

Home ice is generally supposed to be an advantage, but the Hawks were in Chicago on two previous Sunday nights—Jan. 3 and Jan. 17—when they lost to Canadiens just the same.

Another team that would like to start winning the big ones is the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Picked by many observers to finish the season in first place, the defending Stanley Cup champions are wallowing around eight points behind the Canadiens and have played two more games.

WASN'T UPSET

Toronto manager-coach Punch Imlach didn't seem overly upset last November. He predicted the Leafs would win the ones that counted.

Lately, however, he has expressed dissatisfaction with the performances of Frank Mahovlich, Dickie Moore, Allan Stanley and Bob Baun.

Of Mahovlich, who missed several games earlier in the season because of a mysterious illness, Imlach said:

"His enthusiasm hasn't shown me anything since he returned."

The Leafs, who play Boston Bruins in Toronto tonight and in Boston Sunday, will have two key injured regulars back in the lineup.

Andy Bathgate has recovered from a hand injury, and captain George Armstrong from strained knee ligaments. Their return relieves Dave Keon from his temporary duty on the forward line, and the Leafs will revert to their former defence pairings of Horton with Stanley and Carl Brewer with Baun.

Meanwhile, last-place Bruins have called up goaltender Jack Norris from Los Angeles Blades of the Western League for tonight's game.

Norris will replace ailing regular Eddie Johnston, who the NHL netminder this season who has played every one of his team's games.

Other NHL games tonight send New York Rangers to Montreal and the Hawks to Detroit. Detroit visits New York for Sunday's third game.

The Rangers, who hope to overhaul either Detroit or Toronto for the fourth and last playoff spot, will have to make a move soon.

With 30 points, the New Yorkers are seven points behind Detroit and eight behind Toronto.

Woodstock Defeats Welland

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Woodstock Athletics downed a fighting, short - handed Welland Black's team 8-5 Friday night to maintain their hold on third place in the Senior Group 1 Hockey Association league.

The Blacks, with only 10 player, were kept in the game by goalie Larry Zimmerman as he blocked out 50 of 58 shots fired his way by the Athletics.

Defenceman Bryle Klinck led Woodstock with three goals. Art Sullivan scored two and Rio Caron, Tom Wilson, and Roy Ryan the others.

'If Anything Left Former Manager Likes Patterson

By JAC KHAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Joe Louis has picked Toronto's George Chuvalo, Jimmy Braddock has picked Floyd Patterson. Cassius Clay has picked Muhammad Ali. But nobody asks Cus D'Amato.

A telephone call to a midtown number brought the voice of Patterson's former manager over the wire. Cus has not seen either fighter in camp. He isn't sure if he'll go to the fight Monday night at Madison Square Garden.

D'Amato hasn't talked to Patterson since the July night in 1963 at Las Vegas when Floyd was knocked out for the second time by Sonny Liston. It is a matter of money and the people who now help Patterson run his affairs.

"If Floyd has anything left, he should beat the likes of Chuvalo," said D'Amato. "I have not seen Floyd. I don't know how much he has left. People who saw him in Sweden tell me he toyed with Eddie Machen.

"I watched the movies of Chuvalo in training. He was hitting accurately, throwing fast combinations. I was very surprised. Now, maybe he is a gymnasium fighter. Maybe he won't fight like that in the ring. But I was surprised how much better he looked than the night he knocked out Roy Jones."

D'Amato still has a feeling for Patterson.

"I feel very bad about the whole thing," he said. "I always considered Floyd my friend. I've tried to talk to him but I don't seem to make connections."

Patterson, returning to the garden for the first time since 1956, will be boxing before a sellout crowd of 18,400. The expected gate of $160,000 with a $20 top will be the largest since the days of Louis.

When Clay and Jones sold out the garden in 1963, a lower price scale resulted in a gate of $104,943. You have to go back to 1951 and Louis and Rocky Marciano to top that with $152,945 in the garden.

'Trotters' Win Over Cornwall

TRENTON (Special)

Cornwall Royals outshot but failed to outscore the Trenton RCAF Globetrotters here last night in quiet exhibition hockey game. Trotters won the contest 6-2.

The Hubs scored the game's first goal, by Larry Gabri, at the twelve minute mark of the game. Seconds later Roger Drake tied it for Trenton and Il was 3-1 by the end of the period and 4-2 after two minutes.

Derrill Johnstone played a strong game in the winners' nets as the visitors held a 32-29 shooting margin. The Hubs appeared to lack finish in front of the Trenton net. There were few penalties, all minors, assessed.

Pete Champagne scored the losers' final goal after Trenton had gone ahead 4-1.

After Drake's equalizer, Keith MacDonald made it 2-1 and Joe St. Pierre upped it to 3-1 on a breakaway rush.

John "Shaker" Baker potted the "Trotters' second-frame counter and Wayne Steiner scored twice in the third to wrap it up.

The RCAF Summerside Eagles, from Prince Edward Island, are scheduled to meet the Globetrotters here on Friday. Orville "Red" Gravelle, ex-star of the Trenton team, is a member of the Summerside squad.

Australian Miss Breaks World Record

—Crothers Wins Easily

By CARL WOLLINS

TORONTO (CP) — Indoor track records easily withstood the uneven assaults of 120 athletes at the Telegram - Maple Leaf International Games here Friday night except when the girls got going.

A slip of a miss from Maryland, Debbie Thompson pushed Australia's Pam Kilborn to a world indoor record of 6.3 seconds in the 50-yard hurdles and a Canadian open mark of 5.8 in the 50-yard dash.

Debbie and little Marjorie Turner of Lockport, N.S., both 16, matched the 6.8 sprint time in preliminaries but yielded in the final to Miss Kilborn, three years their senior.

Nothing else in the 19-event program came close to menacing the records.

But Bill Crothers thrilled the 10,811-strong hometown crowd by taking the 600-yard run with ease, his fifth win in as many starts this month.

Judy Amoore, second half of the touring Australian duo, romped away from Abby Hoffman of Toronto in the women's 440 in 58.1 seconds after covering the same yardage in 55.6 the previous night at New York.

Miss Thompson, a high school girl from Fredrick, Md., faded to a second - place 6.5 in the result, ahead of Chi Cheng of Formosa and Jenny Wingerson of Toronto, who both clocked 6.7.

In the women's sprint, Miss Thompson's specialty, both she and Miss Kilborn were timed in 5.8, one-tenth of a second off the world indoor record set in 1957 by Isabelle Daniels of the United States. Wilma White of Chicago, third, and Marjorie Turner, fourth, both clocked six seconds.

Crothers, who won the 880 yards in New York Thursday and is set for the 600 yards tonight in Boston, jumped ahead of Jamaica's George Kerr in the ball leg Friday night and held off a late challenge from Ron Whitney of Southern California Striders, who finished second, ahead of Kerr.

Ray Tucker, Hamilton high school boy who was a consolation winner of the 1,000-yard run in 2:12 two weeks ago at Boston, was the victim of track finesse in the same event Friday night.

John Dunkelberg of the North Carolina Track Club, beaten by Tucker in Boston, jumped the 17-yard-old in the ball leg, pulling Ergse Lepe of Toronto and Tony Nelson of Southern California Striders along with him.

Dunkelberg clocked 2:15.5, Lepe 2:16.7, Nelson 2:15.2, Tucker faded to 2:18.4.

New Zealand's Bill Baillie came home in the three-mile run by the straight-forward expedient of outsprinting Dave Ellis of Toronto in the last quarter mile. Baillie finished in 13:42.6 and Ellis was almost three seconds slower.

Tom Robinson of the Bahamas retained his meet title in the 30-yard sprint by a whisker over Mel Pender of the U.S. Army. Both men clocked 3.3 and Vancouver's Harry Jerome was one-tenth of a second behind for third.

PRESS CHIEF RESIGNS

TORONTO (CP) — John Walsh, director of promotion and publicity for Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, resigned Friday, saying he did not receive the autonomy he desired in the job. He said he was blamed by Lew Hayman, managing director of the team, for 1964 subscription sales to Argos games falling 2,000 below 1963.

'Red Kelly Heads Movement

Wants Olympics For Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Red Kelly, National Hockey League player and member of Parliament, is pushing to get the 1976 summer Olympics for Toronto.

The Liberal MP for York West and forward with Toronto Maple Leafs says he has suggested the idea to Jim Worrall, president of the Canadian Olympic Association, Roger Bilon, director of the physical fitness program in Ottawa, and John MacBeth, owner of the Toronto suburb of Etobicoke.

"While they were not exactly overwhelmed, they still admitted it was something worthwhile looking into," Kelly said Friday.

Kelly said the Olympic association would need federal government support but added, "I think they could get it."

His plan would include either the building of a new stadium for track and field events or expansion of the Canadian National Exhibition stadium to 60,000 capacity from its present maximum of about 33,000.

NEED NEW POOL

He said a new pool to hold 10,000 persons would be needed for swim events. All-Toronto rowing events at St. Catharines, Ont., with soccer at the CNE, University of Toronto's Varsity Stadium or Hamilton's Civic Stadium.

Kelly said Maple Leaf Gardens here could accomodate boxing and wrestling matches, while Varsity arena could handle weightlifters and judo competitors. Equestrian events could be held on nearby farms after they were adjusted to Olympic standards.

Mayor Philip Givens, told of Kelly's idea, said: "I think it is a excellent idea but there would be many obstacles to overcome.

"I understand the Tokyo Olympics cost around $2,500,000,000. I don't think our politicians will be prepared to spend that much when we had to move heaven and earth to

Litz Scores Three In 6-1 Victory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eddie Litzenberger is on the move again.

The veteran forward, who has 178 National Hockey League goals to his credit, but had scored only 12 times this season with Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League, got three goals in two periods Friday night as the Americans whipped Cleveland Barons 6-1.

Litzenberger also got an assist.

In the only other game Friday, another veteran had a good day. Mike Labadie scored twice as Springfield Indians crushed Pittsburgh Hornets 8-3 at Springfield.

Rochester's victory stretched its first - place lead in the western division to 14 points over Buffalo Bisons. Cleveland remained in last place in the west, while Springfield's win gave it a third-place tie with Baltimore in the east.

Larry Hillman and Brouce Horvath scored the go-ahead goals at Rochester as the Americans dumped the first - period lead. Dick Gamble got the other Rochester goal, while Bob Currey scored for Cleveland early in the third period. Bill White, Dennis Olson, Gerry Foley, Jimmy Anderson, John Rodger and Brian Kilrea scored for other Springfield goals in a game that was close until midway through the second period.

Murray Hall and Duke Harris scored for Pittsburgh.

Minor Hockey

Games were played in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's tyke and novice divisions last night.

TYKES

Wings and Canadiens battled to a 3-3 tie. Howie Means fired two Wing goals and John Ross got the other. Scott James, Bruce Sutherland and Tim Barber netted a goal each for Canadiens.

Rangers whitewashed the Bruins 2-0. Larry Wells, Barry Watts and Rick Moffatt potted one goal apiece.

Leafs also copped a 3-0 victory with one player doing all the scoring. Peter Crawford pulled the trigger on each Leaf scoring play.

NOVICE

Leafs downed the Hawks 3-1, led by Stewart Boardman with a pair of goals. Tom Rogers also scored for the winners and Wayne Warner for the Hawks.

Teepees won the tightest decision of the night, 4-3 victory over the Maroons. John Venn also scored the game's only goal.

TIE FOR THIRD

MONTREAL (CP)—Bishop's University Gaiters moved into a three-way tie for third place in the Quebec - St. Lawrence Basketball Conference with an 85-72 win over Sir George Williams University Friday night. The Gaiters now occupy third place with SGWU and St. Patrick's College of Ottawa. Peter Munzar scored 24 points for Bishop's while teammate Nick Dering had 22 and Bill Forward 18. High scorers for the Georgians were Bob Nathan with 21 and John Elliot with 20.

Hayes Given NHL Axe

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League announced Friday it is releasing George Hayes, a veteran linesman who refused to take an eye test.

"The NHL has exercised its option to terminate its contract with George Hayes, effective Feb. 14," the brief announcement said.

A league spokesman said Hayes was given a "period of grace" to take the test, but he did not.

Hayes, who has been with the NHL longer than any other employee except president Clarence Campbell, was suspended Jan. 15 for his refusal to take the test, which is compulsory for all league officials. The linesman had 19 years' service with the league.

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — George Hayes, veteran hockey linesman, says he has "no regrets" about his dismissal from the National Hockey League.

Hayes said in an interview he expected the news, announced Friday by the NHL in Montreal.

"I don't feel any different today," he said. "I wouldn't back down then and I'm not backing down now."

Hayes said he first heard of the dismissal through news reports.

Asked about his plans, he said: "I don't want to say anything about that now. It's a bad idea to let the enemy know your plans."

Monteith Scores 5 In 11-6 Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Steve Monteith went into Kingston Friday night looking for a record in career goals, but instead was robbed and outshone.

His brother, Hank, tired five goals to pace University of Toronto Blues to an 11-6 victory over Queen's University Golden Gaels and, while managing to get one goal to the record, was robbed on three breakaways by Queen's netminder Elwyn Derbyshire. The Hamilton, Ont., native has 62 goals in four seasons, including the one last night, needs one more to break the record set over five seasons by Jean - Pierre Raymond, formerly with Laval University Rouge et Or.

The win extended Toronto's undefeated streak to 10 games and left them in first place while Queen's remained in fifth spot with nine points.

In the only other game, sixth-place Laval downed fourth-place McMaster University Marlins 8-5.

"Your Cheatin' Heart" showing Tonight for the last times at the Belle theatre tells the amazing story of the late country Western singer Hank Williams.

Argues, Pushes Linesmen

Oshawa Star Given Works

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Black Hawks are starting to find their playoff.

They dropped Kitchener Rangers 6-4 Friday night to move into a tie with Kitchener for the sixth and final playoff spot in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The victory leaves them four points behind Montreal Junior Canadiens.

In other action Friday night, the Canadiens squeezed a six-game winless streak with a 5-3 victory over Hamilton Red Wings and first - place Niagara Falls Flyers added to their margin over Toronto Marlboros with a 5-3 win over Frazer Applauds.

At Kitchener, Phil McDonald and Wayne Maki teamed up to each for the Black Hawks. Ken Hodge and Wayne Sheldon also scored for St. Catharines.

Sandy Fitzpatrick scored three of the four Kitchener goals and Billy Reay got the other.

Referee Blair Graham handed out 16 penalties, including a spearing minor to Reay and a misconduct to McDonald.

HELD LEAD TWICE

At Montreal, Hamilton twice held the lead but was unable to maintain it as did the desperate Canadiens. Christian Bordeleau had two goals to pace Montreal, with Guy Dufour, Rene Drolet and Jacques getting the others.

For Hamilton, Jim Peters scored twice and Jim Vervaeke, Jim Cossa and Gary Edwards once. Hamilton started Jean-Guy Ruest but benched him for Peter Plitsch after Bordeleau's first goal.

Niagara Falls, Ont., won only once in their last 20 games, pulled away in the second period to defeat Toronto. The teams were tied 2-2 after the first period, but the Flyers led 4-2 after the second.

Bill Goldsworthy with two goals and Mike Sherman, Bud Debrody and Jim Mantette were the Niagara Falls scorers. Wayne Hillman, Bill Little and Ron Buchanan scored for Oshawa.

Referee Hugh McLean handed out 26 penalties, including two majors, misconduct, a game misconduct and a match penalty. Oshawa's Dan O'Shea drew the misconduct, game misconduct and match penalties.

OPENS MONDAY

New Comedy is a Mad, Glad, Wild, Whirl

Described as hilariously funny by the nation's critics, "Never Put it in Writing," a mad modern comedy, opens here Monday at the Park Theatre with popular Pat Boone topping the cast.

Included among his co-stars is an Academy Award recovery, a gorgeous 19-year-old native of Ireland, Fidelma Murphy, who makes her screen debut in this Seven Arts Production presentation released by Allied Artists. Miss Murphy, one of Europe's funniest performers, also co-stars with Boone.

The story revolves around a letter written by Boone to his boss during a moment of anger, and his frantic attempts to retrieve it, first in Dublin where it was mailed, and later in London where it has been delivered.

SECOND COMEDY

Do-It-Yourself Pot Proves Big Comedy Success

Meetings of the Boards of Directors and corporations are not generally a place of riotous laughter, but the meetings of the board of a most unusual business organization provided the plot for one of the most hilarious motion pictures of the year in "Ladies Who Do."

All the members of the board are ladies except the chairman. And never did a board have such ladies with such unique business talents.

Robert Morley is the board chairman who guides the financial destinies of the fabulous upstart firm that turns London's financial district upside down and changes the plans of many an established business leader.

Peggy Mount, Miriam Karlin, Avril Elgar and Dandy Nichols are leading members of the board. They are ably supported by Harry N. Corbett, well-known TV performer in England.

One complete show starts at 7.30: "Ladies Who Do" at 7.40, "Never Put it in Writing" at 9.15. Both features are first showings.

POST THIRD WIN

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—The University of Waterloo Warriors posted their third victory in the Senior Intercollegiate Basketball League here Friday night by downing Queen's University Golden Gaels 84-57.

Favorites Upset In Tournament

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Roberta Albers of Tampa and Rhonda Glens of Lake Worth, Fla., upset a couple of favorites Friday and advanced to the semi-finals of the international four - ball golf tournament.

Miss Albers and Miss Glenn, both 18, defeated Tish Preston of Pompano Beach, Fla., and Doris Phillips of Belleville, Ill., one up.

Defending champions Jane Woodworth of Hollywood, Fla., and Gloria Ehret of Danbury, Conn. also earned semi-final berths by beating Sandra Post of Oakville and Margaret Post of Covington, Ky., 2 and 1.

In six matches, Nancy Roth of Hollywood, Fla., and Maureen Crum of Plant City, Fla., defeated Mrs. Jean Westerby of Edmonton and Kay Helleur of Toronto 7 and 6.

World

from the gun carriage by its tall Guardsmen bearers.

Headed by Canadian-born Dr. Conrad Swan, "rouge dragon pursuivant," and Col. Robert Dennis, "rouge croix," the 17-man procession of heralds moved slowly into the cathedral with a measured, stride.

In an old custom of chivalry observed at the Duke of Wellington's funeral, four heralds carried the knightly "achievements"—sword, shield, helmet crest and spurs—of Sir Winston. Four more carried silk cushions with his decorations.

Slowly, they came down the carpeted aisle to the waiting bier. The weight of emotion was almost tangible as the red, white and blue flag on the coffin came into view. On either side walked th: pall bearers, including Field Marshal Viscount Alexander, former Governor-General of Canada.

FAMILY FOLLOWS

Behind the coffin came the mourning family — 79-year-old Lady Churchill, aristocratic and upright; silver-haired Randolph Churchill with the leonine head of his father; Sarah, the actress daughter; and Mary Soames, her mother's greatest strength through the long death watch at Hyde Park Gate.

As the procession moved slowly forward, the marble-galaxed nave, the fiercely sad notes of the Last Resurrection and the Life rose from the choir.

The heralds, dividing at the bier, formed up against the entrance to the choir. Sir Winston's knightly honors were placed at the head of the coffin.

Gently, the flag-wrapped coffin was laid upon its velvet bed, and the long procession, pausing in front of the Queen, took their places on the south side of the cathedral, facing the bier. A stirring, typically Churchillian hymn rang out, with its tap line—"No lot, nor him fright; he'll with a giant fight.

Then the dean of St. Paul's, 84-year-old Dr. Walter Matthews, rose to brief, powerful eulogy. Addressing the huge congregation as "people of this land and of the British Commonwealth," he gave thanks for the man "raised up in our days of despair and need to be a leader and inspirer of the nation, for his dauntless resolution and unfailing vigilance and for his accomplie of courage and endurance."

SING U.S. HYMN

After a small silence, and prayers, the great dome echoed to the American Battle Hymn of the Republic—last heard here at Britain's memorial service to John F. Kennedy.

The canon of St. Paul's read the lesson from the Corinthians —"Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" hymn, a Churchill favorite, filled the vast marble cavern: Fight the Good Fight."

The brief service ended in a triumphant climax with the national anthem, sung from three peters high up in the "whispering gallery" came the lament of the last Post, played by bugler Sgt. by reveille, and the organ thundered into Handel Dead March as the coffin was again lifted from its bier. Heralds formed up to escort it once begin its final journey home to an English country churchyard.

As Sir Winston was borne out of St. Paul's—once the symbol, with his own jutting profile, of blitzed Britain's defiance—kings, nobles, presidents and prime ministers and all the hundreds of humble folk in the great church sang: O God, Our Help in Ages Past.

Group by group, the great ones departed. The candles flickered and died on the lonely bier. Suddenly, the crowded church, with all its 300 years of history and its glory, seemed empty and bereaved.

CBC Newsroom Staff Quits After Dispute

TORONTO (CP) — Members of the CBC newsroom staff walked off their jobs Friday in a dispute with the CBC's public affairs department.

The 75 employees, members of Local 213 of the Canadian Wire Service Guild (CLC), returned after a weekend meeting and an agreement with the CBC for a meeting with senior officials of the television news and public affairs departments.

A statement issued by the union did not give a reason for the walkout. Members said, however, it involved use of news film for public affairs programs such as This Hour has Seven Days, Observer, and Toronto File.

Sir Winston

For long long years
You've been a part
Of the ever-changing scene
A staunch old oak —
Your valiant heart
Beat strong and true —
The low, the mean,
The coward's path you never knew
And now you've gone to be with God.

We well recall those black black days
Dunkirk — Britain's army safely back
Across the narrow channel
Ay God's grace —
All ordnance lost — the soldier's pack
To arm an army home on Britain's shore —
But we had God and you,
Nor needed more.

Alone, unarmed — you held the breach —
Your ringing words spurred on a flagging race
To deeds supreme —
You gave a little of your great heart to each —
You made reality of Freedom's dream;
You mocked the tide —
The Lord and you —
You did what no man else could do.

And now you've gone ahead —
More we'll read the witty word
From your sharp tongue —
Old warrior, I won't call you dead!
I know your task on earth is done
But now you'll wield a shining sword,
And fight Heaven's battles for the Lord.

Keith Rogers,
Picton.

Churchill Turns

hall of Westminster.

The first to arrive was Lady Churchill, dressed in deep mourning and accompanied by her family.

Then came the three heads of the armed services and—alone—there followed Earl Alexander, the Queen's chief of Britain's defence staff.

Next came service officers carrying the flags and decorations of Churchill.

The gun carriage arrived with its Royal Navy escort.

SERVED 8 SOVEREIGNS

Behind the gun carriage came the first of five sovereigns he served—Queen Victoria—Churchill served—to her grave.

Then followed the horse-drawn carriages of the chief mourners.

And so the scene was set.

It was one of sadness and splendor. As Winston Churchill started his last journey, Big Ben tolled the hour of 9.45 a.m. and then was silent for the rest of the day.

The funeral marched through London streets, crowded — and silent. Only the sounds of marching feet be heard and the funeral dirges of the Royal Navy.

There was tremendous ceremonial to the procession.

When the coffin was carried into St. Paul's, the cathedral was completely filled.

Queen Elizabeth, Prince Philip and Prince Charles were there. And so were the representatives of 112 countries.

They had come, as a London-diner put it, to pay their last respects "to a man who has received more honors from his countrymen than any other in history."

For three men in that procession, there was much more that must have had special significance. General de Gaulle, former president Eisenhower and USSR Marshal Konyev, all wartime colleagues of Churchill.

Following the moving significance of the ceremonies in the great cathedral, Churchill left London forever.

A simple ceremony at Waterloo Station saw his beloved Londoners, and his nation, receive for the last time their man's body to his ancestors.

The flag-draped casket was then taken by train for interment at Bladon cemetery, on the Churchill family's Blenheim estate.

It was a profoundly moving journey as we stood and watched the train move slowly out of Waterloo Station.

One London newspaper caught the atmosphere of history this morning, with these words:

"Churchill — the great name stands by itself now, a sentinel in history. All that is mortal of him goes from us as his soul and spirit join the immortals."

Dorion Inquiry Takes 10-Day Recess, Will Resume on February 9 in Ottawa

By DAVE McINTOSH

MONTREAL (CP)—Guy Rouleau, natty, 41-year-old Liberal MP who resigned Nov. 24 as Prime Minister Pearson's parliamentary secretary, has a 10-day recess before re-entering the witness box at the Dorion Inquiry Feb. 9 at Ottawa.

The Inquiry into allegations of attempted bribery and influence-peddling in high places in Ottawa is adjourned until that date after a week of testimony by Mr. Rouleau, Raymond Denis, accused of making the bribe offer, and nine other witnesses.

A total of 35 witnesses now have appeared at the 19 days of hearings and the end is far from in sight. Some witnesses will be recalled and new ones will be summoned.

One of the witnesses—murder suspect Robert Gignac, 35—likely will be charged with perjury.

Chief Justice Frederic Dorion, who heads the inquiry, said parts of Gignac's testimony—he didn't specify them—will be submitted to the Crown Attorney-General Claude Wagner so that a perjury charge may be laid.

ALREADY CHARGED

Gignac already is charged with capital murder in the Sept. 17 gangland slaying of a night-club doorman.

The redhaired, cadaverous Gignac said he tried to help his friend Denis Rivard get out of jail where he has been held since June on the U.S. narcotics on charges that he called the shots in, a huge, Mafia-controlled dope conspiracy.

Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne, acting for the U.S. government in Rivard's extradition hearings, has testified that Denis offered him $20,000 July 14 to get Rivard out on release on bail. Denis, at that time executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, has denied it.

Rivard, 26-year-old possessor of a criminal record, was denied release on habeas corpus on Friday by Mr. Justice Francois Caron.

This means that Rivard, described by Mr. Rouleau's testimony as a well-spoken businessman with a "nice personality," will be extradited to Laredo, Tex., on the conspiracy charges until his appeal of the Caron decision is heard.

APPEALS UNTIL FALL

Legal sources said appeals by Rivard's lawyer likely won't be disposed of until the fall.

Rivard was one of three criminals he met, Rouleau said Mr. Rouleau said he made representations to federal authorities since he had said Rivard was a friend.

The others were Rivard's "boyhood chum" Bob Tremblay, now serving 20 years for attempted murder in a Vancouver slaying, and Mario D'Agostino Joseph (Bananas) Bonanno who was expelled from Canada July 16 to the United States after his scheduled appearance before a New York rackets grand jury.

Mr. Rouleau said it is impossible for an MP to verify the truth of the many letters of applications for help that come to him.

Francois Even, Creditiste party counsel, asked whether Rouleau thought Mr. Rouleau involve criminal cases.

Mr. Rouleau replied: "A father and mother always come to see me about a son who is in trouble some place."

MP'S DUTY

The MP for Montreal Dollard since 1953 and still chairman of the party caucus in Ottawa said Rivard came to see him June 17 in the capital to help the paroled Tremblay paroled. Mr. Rouleau had written the National Parole Board.

Two days later Rivard was arrested and Mr. Rouleau in August began making representations on Rivard's behalf to Mr. Lamontagne and two aides to Justice Minister Fabreau. They were Raymond Daoust, then special assistant, and Andre Letendre, executive assistant.

Mr. Rouleau said three times he didn't understand Mr. Lord when the 25-year-old aide to Mr. Favreau told him that Mr. Lamontagne was acting for the U.S. and not the Canadian government in the Rivard case.

He had then gone to Mr. Letendre but because things were "lagging," he had called Mr. Lamontagne himself to ask whether bail could be arranged for Rivard.

Mr. Rouleau also said he arranged for a July 15 meeting between his old college chum, lawyer Raymond Daoust, and Denis on the Bonanno case.

Mr. Daoust was representing Bonanno and still represents Rivard.

The MP said Mr. Daoust wanted to see the immigration minister but Mr. Tremblay had told him he never saw lawyers in extradition cases.

Mr. Rouleau filed with the commission a July 9 letter to him from Mr. Daoust seeking an interview. Mr. Tremblay had instructed Denis to see Mr. Daoust.

Denis, 32, testified that the reason he asked Mr. Lamontagne to come to Ottawa July 14 to see him was to get the latest decision in the Bonanno affair. Mr. Lamontagne was acting for the federal government in this case, as well as for the U.S. administration in the Rivard case.

Mr. Lamontagne has said Denis did discuss the Bonanno case with him July 14 but that he also offered him $20,000 to drop opposition to bail for Rivard.

Denis said Mr. Lamontagne's accusations came to him as "a bomb, an explosion, a terrible surprise."

He said he went to see Mr. Favreau Aug. 20, the day after being questioned by the RCMP and informed by them of the bribery charge.

He said that during his "soul-to-father" talk with Mr. Favreau "I cried all the time."

Yves Fortier, counsel for Mr. Lamontagne, asked repeatedly why Denis had not told the RCMP Aug. 19 that all he knew about the Rivard case was what he had read in the papers and that his testimony had shown he had discussed it with friends 10 times in the period between July 14 and July 27.

Denis said he was in state of shock during the Aug. 19 afternoon interview with police and couldn't even eat his lunch because he was so busy.

"I used to have 1,100 immigration cases on my desk, hands in a month. I worked hours and hours. I was under extreme tension.

"It is important that you understand that it was working hundreds of hours a week. It was terrible. I seldom stopped before 2 a.m. and it is easy for it difficult to remember facts now."

Two other witnesses were rounded up by police after failing to appear last week.

They were Miss Willie Lee, who admitted to a criminal record, and hotelkeeper Roger Aubin—were arrested on a capias and they had supplied to Mrs. Rivard for which she said was intended as bail money for her husband.

After bail next-egg was $60,000 Guy Masson, self-described informant-investigator between Mrs. Rivard and Mr. Rouleau and Mr. Rouleau said he made representations to federal authorities since he had said Rivard was a friend.

The others were Rivard's "boyhood chum" Bob Tremblay, now serving 20 years for attempted murder in a Vancouver slaying, and Mario D'Agostino Joseph (Bananas) Bonanno who was expelled from Canada July 16 to the United States after his scheduled appearance before a New York rackets grand jury.

Mr. Rouleau said it is impossible for an MP to verify the truth of the many letters of applications for help that come to him.

Francois Even, Creditiste party counsel, asked whether Rouleau thought Mr. Rouleau involve criminal cases.

Mr. Rouleau replied: "A father and mother always come to see me about a son who is in trouble some place."

Judge Orders Press Blackout Levesque Trial

OTTAWA (CP)—Mr. Justice A. H. Leith Friday ordered a complete press blackout of the trial scheduled to open in the city of Victor (Pretty Boy) Levesque on charges of rape and armed robbery.

Mr. Justice Leitf said he issued the order "most reluctantly" at the request of Crown Attorney John Cassells and Defence Counsel Thomas Swabey.

He said he did not want to hamper news media on the the trial "might well hinder, if not interfere with the course of justice."

Levesque is being tried on charges of armed robbery and rape in the Nov. 16, 1963, robbery at the Ottawa home of Dr. Edward Shapiro. Four masked men took part in the robbery which netted only $2.

the cathedral in advance by other routes.

The parade of Churchill's people that moved past his catafalque was joined Friday night by Queen Elizabeth's guests from the royal houses of Europe.

ROYALTY MOURNS

Accompanied by the Queen's husband, Prince Philip, and her children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, they walked into the cavernous, candle-lit chamber by a side door and stood on its steps to mourn.

With Prince Philip were King Frederik of Denmark, King Olav of Norway, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands and her husband Prince Bernhard, King Baudouin of Belgium, King Constantine of Greece, the Grand Duke of Luxembourg and Prince Willem of Sweden.

They stayed in the hall seven minutes.

Earlier President de Gaulle of France, in his brigadier-general's kepi, had stood bareheaded in the hall. Former president Eisenhower, Churchill's wartime colleague, was there, too.

Prince Minister Wilson visited the catafalque with Sir Harry Hilton-Foster, Speaker of the House of Commons; Sir Alec Douglas-Home, leader of the Conservative prime minister and Jo Grimond, leader of the Liberal party.

Thousands of stores closed during the funeral and sports events were delayed while the funeral was over.

Many hours before the start of the funeral procession the American embassy announced that U.S. President Lyndon Johnson had a cold and could not attend the funeral.

Big Ben minute a gun boomed over the city—80 times in all to mark each year of the great man's life.

BIG BEN SILENCED

As Big Ben, the bell on the House of Pres on one o'clock, boomed out the quarter hour before 12 a.m. the flag-draped coffin left Westminster Hall. Westminster Hall. The big clock was to be silenced for more than 24 hours as a mark of respect.

Five mounted policemen led the procession, followed by detachments of all Britain's fighting services.

The band marched a group of 13 middle-aged men in RAF blue—some of the "survivors" of Churchill's fighter pilots who down Hitler's air might in the Battle of Britain in 1940.

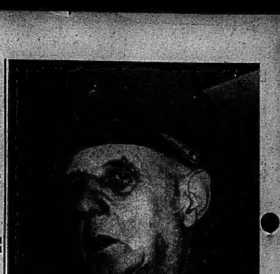
They represented "The Few" of Churchill's immortal phrase for the pilots to whom Britain owed so much in those fateful days.

Then came the bands, the state trumpeters of the Royal Household Cavalry in medieval scarlet and gold, the massed bands among the dull browns and blues of modern uniforms.

Behind the bands, the long line of sailors, pulling on white ropes, the gun carriage on which lay the coffin.

WOMEN FOLLOW COFFIN

Lady Churchill, 79, Sir Winston's widow, followed by her two daughters and other chief mourners rode in five coaches behind the flag-draped gun carriage by horses—a scene that looked like a tapestry tableau from a more gentle age.



Randolph Churchill, Sir Winston's 54-year-old son, walked with other male mourners behind the carriages.

In the historic slow-march at 65 paces a minute, the funeral hall to Charing Cross, Churchill's home station, there were numerous places in which he made great decisions during his epic political career—the Admiralty, Downing Street, where he ruled for a total of nearly 10 years in war and peace.

The cortege passed Admiralty House, where he served as first lord of the admiralty at the beginning of both world wars; the Treasury and other government offices where he held office since the early 1900s.

Churchill passed the site of the former Whitehall royal palace where Charles I was executed 300 years ago. It also also passed the place where Lord Nelson, with the Duke of Wellington about the only other British warrior frequently compared with Churchill, lay in state after his death in the Battle of Trafalgar.

As the procession approached Trafalgar Square, where Canada House is located, the walling crowds strained forward with such intensity that seemed almost unbearable.

THE BANDS PLAY

Then bands—Sir Winston specifically requested lots of music at his funeral—played spectators to the heights of feeling with martial and mournful music, as more than 3,500 men from the three services marched, with another 3,500 lining the route.

Most significantly of all, the cortege passed the Cenotaph, the first war memorial to which always moved Churchill deeply, with its simple inscription To The Glorious Dead of the Empire."

Amid the throngs were hundreds of French, Dutch and other European members of the wartime resistance and tens of thousands of veterans, breasts covered with medals.

'GOODBYE, WINNIE'

As the coffin, surrounded by a small sea of white naval ratings passed between the crowds women wept and some called softly "Goodbye, Winnie."

The departure of the coffin from the Parliament Buildings was perhaps the most moving moment of all, for it was the last moment that Churchill saw the scene of his greatest triumphs.

Its halls and corridors had echoed for more than 40 years—his unbended cries of warning against the evil tyrannies of the world—then the supreme battle speeches of the war years that rallied the free, threatened nation to defiance and victory.

The procession crawled up Whitehall, past the massive white building there contained a chapter of the drama of Churchill's life.

The muffled throb of the drums beat from the Admiralty, the home office from where, as home secretary, he sallied out in 1910 to direct the police and troops in a gun battle with a gang of criminals.

Then the sound of the horses bounced back off the walls of the treasury where once he was chancellor of the exchequer.

Then the Cenotaph, the war memorial to which Churchill conducted the strategy of the Second World War.

It was from there he broadcast to the commonwealth: "If we shall never surrender" speeches.

At the top of Whitehall the coffin passed the admiralty arch where Queen Victoria launched the ill-fated Jameson raiders expedition during the Boer War in South Africa.

Its failure brought him sneers of "amateur strategist," but Churchill, with typical humor, said it a brilliant conception which, if performed properly, would have shortened that war by two years.

The funeral cortege turned into Trafalgar Square, where Nelson looked down stonily from his lofty memorial column.

Down the street called the Strand marched the troops with the bands playing solemn music because Churchill, in planning his funeral, left no orders for "Let there be plenty of music."

DINED AT SAVOY

They came past the Savoy Hotel, another memory here, for Churchill often dined here with his friends.

There was a table reserved for him and today, at the request of the queen, it was left vacant with only a bowl of flowers on it.

On top of the gun carriage was a circle of gold laid on a purple velvet cushion, Churchill's coronet and the insignia of the Order of the Garter, Britain's oldest and most noble order of chivalry.

Down Fleet Street, the journalistic heart of Britain, rumbled the gun carriage with its 98 sailors with 44 more on the flanks and rear.

Here, on Fleet Street, was part of the Churchill history, for it was here, as a journalist-ally - known figure for his daring exploits as a war correspondent in the Boer War.

As the procession, policemen on four black horses at its end, passed, some of the crowds broke
